"America Has Found Its Wings"—Lindbergh

COLONEL TELLS HOW U. S. HAS LEARNED TO FLY

First of Series on Aviation.

[This is the first of a weekly series of articles, written for The Tribune, the New York Times, and a group of associated newspapers, by Charles A. Lindbergh, ace of American flyers, which are intended to give the reader a comprehensive understanding of aeronautics. In the event of any notable feats or outstanding developments during the course of his articles Col. Lindbergh will digress from his educational theme to write of such news of the moment.—Editor's Note.]

BY COL. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH.

America has found its wings, has awakened to the realization that it can fly. This realization has come so quickly that the long process of learning to fly has been forgotten, its technical development of the airplane has been so unnoticed that the labor of years seemed to reach its fruition almost overnight.

Forty years ago a man named Lilienthal watched the washing hung out on a clothes line. He noticed that the tablecloths and sheets and other normally flat pieces lifted in a strong breeze above the horizontal position which it would be natural to suppose they would assume when blown out by the wind. Then he noticed that the cloth had been curved by the wind, and discovered, logically, that a curved surface lifts.

Beginning of Airplane.

This was the beginning of the airplane—the result of the knowledge Lilienthal gained by patient observation of such things as washing and the wings of birds. He learned that a curved surface with a thick leading edge like that of a bird lifted better than one with a thin edge, although he did not know why this was the case. Now we know it is due to the greater vacuum produced above the wing.

There is no greater romance than the development of the airplane, and it is a pity that the recent flights which have done so much to extend its use have dimmed a little the less spectacular achievements of men who began this evolution by patient experiments. Many of them lost their lives. Lilienthal himself was the first man to die in attempting flight in a machine heavier than air.

The airplane has now become a vital part of our life. Its potentialities are even greater than we realize. We have planes carrying twelve passengers at 120 miles an hour, planes that transport the mail safely through the night and storm with remarkable fidelity to schedules. We have planes which climb seven miles into the air and can fight at a speed and altitude that was impossible only a few years ago.

Future Holds Much.

Both as the development of the airplane has been in the last twenty years since the Wrights made their flight of fifty-seven minutes at Fort Kitty Hawk, the next twenty years will give us even more remarkable results.

To see how much has been accomplished let us go back a few years. Thirteen years ago a fragile monoplane with a three cylinder motor, carrying Louis Blériot, flew 21 miles across the English channel. The flight made him instantly famous, for it seemed a foolhardy, dangerous thing to attempt. I was only 7 years old at the time. In the brief period that has elapsed since, the ocean has been flown several times and only a few weeks ago an airplane carrying four men flew 3,200 miles over water, from San Francisco to the Fiji islands.

Blériot's flight was made at a speed of 40 miles an hour. The flight over the Pacific was at a speed of nearly 100 miles an hour. The first plane to cross the channel was a little thing of lightest construction, so light that one man could pick up the tail of it in his hands and trundle it about. The other weighed nearly seven tons, was built partly of steel, had a radio set with which to communicate with the world and three powerful motors, which, under fortunate conditions, could be depended upon to keep running as long as the fuel lasted. Lindbergh, who made the first attempt to fly the channel, came down in the water only a few miles out because his motor quit.

A Striking Advance.

The speed of planes has increased from forty miles an hour to more

THE MASTER OF THE WORLD

SYNOPSIS.

Paul Rayburn, a scientist employed by the Grannett company, discovers a method by which he thinks he can talk with Mars. He loses his job, but continues his experiments and, after financial difficulties, in which he is aided by Theodora Bowne, the rather plain cousin of his former employer's daughter, Eleanor Grannett, he gets into communication with Mars, learning, among other things, how to change gold into platinum and how to make women beautiful.

Rayburn is waited upon by a group of eminent financiers, who have arrived to offer him $1,000,000 for his inventions, while admitting among themselves that they are worth five billions, but, reading their minds, he laughs at them and leaves them astounded.

The young man startles the world by making a homely woman beautiful, by rejuvenating an old man and by flying an airplane without wings or power. Some one tries to kill him but he escapes and is sent for by the President of the United States, where he learns of the activities of several nations to gain control of his discoveries.

While Rayburn is in Washington the envoys of five powerful European nations confer with the President concerning the young man's discoveries, threatening an economic boycott if they are not allowed to share in them. During the course of the conference Rayburn, by telephone, offers his services and when he appears he states that he is willing to allow the world to share in his inventions provided they are used for peaceful purposes.

The envoys gladly agree, but through his ability to read minds he knows that two of them are bitterly hostile and he dumfounds them with his knowledge of their innermost thoughts. He tells them that as he leaves the building a young woman whom he has never seen will appear to faint in his arms, and as the astounded envoys watch from the window this occurs.

CHAPTER XLIII.

Things now happened with lightning rapidity.

While Rayburn was supporting the inert figure of the young woman, the chauffeur leaped out and flung open the door of the car.

"Here!" he cried. "Help her in. We must get her to a hospital!" As Rayburn did so, the door was slammed shut and an instant later the car leaped forward with such suddenness that he was thrown heavily against the inert young woman, surprising from her a startled cry.

Rayburn shifted to an unoccupied part of the seat. "Very neatly done," he said, "and timed perfectly." From the tail of his eye he saw an eyelid flicker, but when he turned her eyes were tightly closed.

He did not do the things customary in such emergencies. He did not chafe her hands or get excited. Instead he leaned back comfortably and lighted a cigaret. For a few moments he smoked complacently.

"Had you been waiting long?" he asked.

There was no answer. He continued to smoke. The car, traveling fast, was approaching the outskirts of the city.

"We seem to be in a hurry," he commented. "Are we late for luncheon somewhere?"

At this there was a faint stir.

"Perhaps a cigaret might help compose your nerves." He proffered his case. The stir was now positive. When presently she opened her eyes in the uncertain manner of one just regaining consciousness, she saw a composed young man regarding her with amused interest. Her complete recovery followed instantly.

"Who are you? Where are you taking me?"

"I am the person into whose arms you pretended to faint," said Rayburn, smiling pleasantly. "As to your second question, I must ask you where you are taking me."

She now sat up. Her first move was to powder her nose and straighten her hat.

"Shall I ask the chauffeur to turn back to the city?" he asked.

"It isn't necessary," she said.

"Then you know where we are going." She bit her lips. "Is it to be a long trip? If so, I'd like to go back for my traveling bag."

She turned to him soberly. He noted that she was extraordinarily beautiful—of a slightly foreign type.

"This seems to amuse you, Mr. Rayburn."

"It is most amusing." She laughed shortly, but at his next remark she looked at him sharply. "And before long you will understand why I think it is so amusing."

She considered this for a moment.

"Just what do you mean by that?"

"I am saving that as a surprise. When this quixotic adventure begins to bore you, a little surprise may add zest to it."

There was a disturbing assurance in his manner and she decided to change her tactics. She smiled her loveliest.

"You are too clever for me, Mr. Rayburn. Of course, you know I did not really faint."

"Naturally. I knew that before I came out of the White House."

"You what!" She sat bolt upright.

"I knew you were to pretend to faint just as I came along."

"And where did you get this intriguing bit of information?"

He shrugged his shoulders and laughed. "You mustn't expect me to reveal all my secrets."

"Did this interesting informant by any chance tell you why I have—what shall we say?—kidnaped you? Or abducted you?"

"Certainly." She laughed outright. "This is divine!" she murmured. "Then you know that you are going to a lovely rendezvous where you are to remain long enough to transform a very important lady—formerly a famous beauty—into renewed loveliness."

He looked at her and smiled. "That information was denied me."

"And how do you like the prospect? Do you think you can stand being cooped up with me for a month—I believe it takes a month for you to perform this miracle, doesn't it—even if I promise to be as amiable as I possibly can be?"

Rayburn glanced at his watch.

"It is time we were returning," he said.

"But we are not returning, Mr. Rayburn."

"Then I shall soon have the pleasure of affording you a most diverting surprise." Here he leaned back comfortably as though wholly indifferent to time and destination. Once more his supreme assurance made her acutely uneasy.

"You will not be returning for some time," she ventured, eyeing him narrowly.

"That's where we differ," he smiled, idly flecking some ashes from his knee. He was looking out the window. "What lovely country! See those masses of cherry blossoms on that hillside. I've never seen anything as lovely!"

"I hope to show you something lovelier, Mr. Rayburn," she answered softly.

"You could never show me anything lovelier than you are yourself," he said slowly, as he turned directly toward her. She flushed with pleasure. Perhaps she had the key at last!

"But alas," he added with mock sadness, "I am to be denied all these alluring prospects. You see, we are returning very soon, leaving this beautiful though somewhat lonely countryside. I shall not soon forget this lovely ride you have given me."

"You will remember it for a long time, my friend."

They looked at each other for a long moment, her eyes serious and challenging, his slightly narrowed and penetrating.

The car was now whirling swiftly along a country road. They had not passed another car for many miles. There was a heavy silence, a lifelessness, overhanging the land. Still lovely, but very lonely. They must be many miles from Washington, thought Rayburn, casually lighting another cigaret.

Again she felt those disturbing qualms of uneasiness which his confident assurance unfailingly stirred.

SPLIT BULLET SHOCKS MELLON; INQUIRY LIKELY

Adams' Attackers Held to Grand Jury.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, it was indicated here tonight, may order a special investigation into charges that federal dry agents who raided the City Hall square building in Chicago's loop district several days ago, wounding Merle S. Adams, a salesman, were equipped with dum dum bullets.

In the absence of an official report of the Chicago shooting, the secretary declined to discuss the affair or say whether special agents would be sent from Washington to make the proposed inquiry. He did say, however, that "of course, no prohibition or other federal agent is authorized to use 'dum dum' bullets under any circumstances." He added that he "hoped and believed the charges made against Arthur R. Franklin and Edward Gill would prove to be baseless."

Called Barbarous in War.

"The use of 'dum dum' bullets on any human being, even in war time, is recognized as most reprehensible throughout the civilized world and if it develops that they were used by dry agents in this Chicago fracas it is a serious situation," declared Alf Oftedal, acting prohibition commissioner in the absence of James M. Doran, who is abroad.

Mr. Oftedal declared the charge against Franklin is the first involving any dry agent in the use of dum dums in the record of the prohibition bureau.

"I don't pretend to know the details of this, because there has been no report of it received," Mr. Oftedal continued. "But such information as is available to me indicates that Adams was involved in a conspiracy to violate the law and if that is true he is a felon. There is a law which authorizes officers to shoot escaping felons. We have done all in our power to discourage the promiscuous or reckless use of firearms by our agents and have repeatedly warned them that they may use their revolvers only in self defense or to prevent the escape of a law breaker."

Directed from Washington.

The enforcement squad of which Franklin and Gill are members and which is led by George "Hardboiled" Golding, is one of ten special groups operating in various sections of the country. Each of the squads acts independently of the district administrators on orders direct from Washington or information of Volstead conspiracies supplied by federal district attorneys.

Oftedal declared that in spite of reports that Franklin acted and looked like "a frenzied man" as he pursued and shot Adams, the prohibition bureau would not recommend an examination into his sanity. Information from Chicago said the police there would seek such an examination. Franklin, the deputy prohibition commissioner pointed out, is one of the many agents recently added to service after they had qualified for the places under civil service rules, having passed oral and written mental tests.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Saymour Lowman, in charge of prohibition enforcement, asserted that until indisputable proof was offered, he would refuse to believe that Franklin had used dumdum bullets.

HELD TO GRAND JURY

Prohibition Agents Franklin and Gill, who on Tuesday shot and beat Merle Adams, who chanced to walk into a loop office which they were raiding, may be subjected to mental tests, it was announced yesterday.

It was also indicated that congressional action may be urged following the production of evidence that Agent Franklin used a dumdum bullet, which is outlawed in modern warfare as barbarous, and that Agent Gill used a blackjack on the head of Adams after he was wounded and helpless.

Deputy Police Commissioner John P. Stege, who arrested the agents, who are members of the hardboiled squad sent here from the east, declared he would endeavor to have the agents examined at the Psychopathic

Bomb Wrecks Office of Ch'go Heights Paper

The office of the Star, the principal newspaper of Chicago Heights, was badly damaged by a bomb shortly after 4 o'clock this morning. The entire front of the story brick building at 86 Illinois street, the first floor of which was occupied by the newspaper, was blown out. The interior of the printing plant, toward the front of the building, was left a mass of wreckage by the explosion.

The paper is published twice a week by the Williams Press, Inc., and is edited by King Williams. At an early hour the police were unable to establish a motive for the bombing.

The blast was reported as terrific and aroused the entire city. Windows in buildings for blocks away from the plant were blown out.

Among nearby places damaged were those of the Perlman Motor company, Stephen & Lux, the Victoria hotel and the Asher building. None was injured by the blast, the last printers having left the building at midnight. The damage was estimated at $5,000.

Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally known for the turbulence of his domestic affairs as well as for his achievements in architecture, yesterday in California received both a final decree of divorce and a marriage license. He married Mme. Olga Milanoff at Rancho Sante Fe, a suburb of San Diego, on the same date that his divorce from Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright became final.

Formal announcement of the ceremony was made by telegraph to friends in Chicago, as follows:

"Married Aug. 25 at Rancho Sante Fe, by the Rev. Charles Knight of La Jolla, Olga Ivanhovna, daughter of Ivan Lazovich and Militza Milanoff, Cetinje, Montenegro, to Frank Lloyd Wright, son of Anna Lloyd Jones and William Cary Wright, Taliesin, Wis. We are altogether well and happy, going to put new life into new buildings in the great Arizona desert spaces during the next year or two.

"FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT."

Ends Troubles in Courts.

This most recent chapter in the marital experiences of the architect marks the culmination of hostilities between himself and his former wife, Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright, begun three years ago. It was at that time that he first attempted to get his freedom from his second wife, for the announced purpose of legitimatizing his relations with Mme. Milanoff, who was about to become the mother of his child.

In this endeavor he was repeatedly repulsed by Miriam Noel Wright, who persisted in refusals to give him a divorce until one year ago, when a settlement was effected. Six weeks ago Mrs. Wright entered the bungalow occupied by Wright and Mme. Milanoff in La Jolla, smashing $3,000 worth of furniture with an ax.

Baby Iovanna, the child born to Mme. Milanoff in a Chicago hospital, is now two years and eight months old. She has a stepsister, Svetlana, 12, who is the daughter of Mme. Milanoff by a former marriage to Vladimir Hinzenberg of Chicago, from whom she was divorced.

Taliesen Sold by Sheriff.

Taliesen, the home designed and built by Wright at Spring Green, Wis., was sold under the hammer on July 30, for $25,000, to satisfy a mortgage. It was at one time the scene of his romance with Mamah Borthwick Cheney, who with her two children was killed there by an insane Negro butler. Later Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright occupied it with him.

INVITES WORLD NATIONS TO JOIN ANTI-WAR PACT

Balks at Query on U. S. Ratification.

Pact Open to All

PARIS, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The pact for renunciation of war which is to be signed here Monday on behalf of fifteen nations is open to all the world. This was emphasized today by Secretary Kellogg at a mass interview by French journalists, who told him that many people cannot understand why so many powers, big and small, were left out of the Monday peace feast.

"Peace, under the Briand-Kellogg pact, is free to all," said Mr. Kellogg. "Countries which do not sign the treaty here may all do so whenever they like."

"How about the American senate—will it ratify the pact?" a French journalist asked.

Mr. Kellogg explained that the American executive department can only make treaties and that it is for the senate itself to say whether they are to be ratified. Then he added a mild rebuke by telling the persistent questioner that he ought not to have insisted on an answer.

BY HENRY WALES.

PARIS, Aug. 25.—A private dinner at the American embassy closed Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg's second day at Paris after a strenuous round of golf at Saint-Cloud and the placing of a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey and his wife, Ambassador Herrick and his family, members of the secretary of state's party, and Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson of Brussels were the only ones whose names were made known, the ambassador's entourage refusing to give out the entire list of guests "because that would make jealous dissatisfaction among those in Paris who were not invited."

Ambassador Herrick gave orders for the menu not to be quoted nor even the wine list served with the tempting repast.

Kellogg Receives Press.

Secretary Kellogg announced that he would receive the press this morning at the embassy, and journalists of all nationalities, sexes, colors, ages, and creeds arrived early. The concierge insisted on cards from every one, and news writers were shunted around from one salon to another by embassy flunkies.

The secretary of state appeared at the foot of the big stairway on the identical spot where Col. Charles Lindbergh received the press daily a year ago.

"I am very glad and happy to meet you all, ladies and gentlemen, and am extremely sorry to have nothing to say," said Secretary Kellogg, and his fateful words were translated into different languages for the benefit of the foreign newsmen there.

Dodges "Official" Statement.

"We received an enthusiastic reception at Le Havre," said Secretary Kellogg when pressed to say something "officially."

"In the treaty we sign Monday lies respect for law and a love for peace," he said.

When asked whether he intends to make an important speech Monday, Secretary Kellogg replied, "I will say as little as possible—only a few words."

Afterward the demon photographers and moviemen lured the secretary of state and the ambassador outside, snapping and filming them until Secretary Kellogg disappeared and the flunkies shooed everybody out.

The Herrick family, Secretary Kellogg, and Ambassador Hugh Gibson lunched alone and Edouard Herriot, minister of public instruction and of fine arts, called to pay his respects to the secretary of state immediately afterward.

Stresemann Leaves for Paris.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—Accompanied by a physician, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the German foreign minister, left for Paris tonight to sign the Kellogg anti-war pact, with the whole country as deeply worried about his health as about the outcome of his negotiations for the liberation of the Rhineland.

It is only out of courtesy to Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg that Dr. Stresemann overruled the remonstrances of doctors and insisted on attending the Paris meeting. Immediately after the main ceremonies he will proceed to Baden-Baden, which is close to the French [illegible]

TWO GIVE CLEW IN SLAYING OF BANDIT'S WIFE

John Francisco and his wife, Marie, of 433 Roslyn place, were taken into custody last night for questioning in the slaying of the former's brother, Angelo, West McHenry bank robber, and his common law wife, Adeline. Angelo Francisco's bullet riddled body was found in the automobile used in the bank robbery ten days ago, and his wife's shot and burned body was found in a ditch near Crown Point, Ind., the following day.

According to Deputy Police Commissioner John Stege, John Francisco and his wife told him the name of a man who called for Miss Zaccard at her home, 626 North Halsted street, and took her with him in his automobile on the pretext of having her identify Angelo's body. She did not reach the undertaking rooms, and the next day her charred body was found. A search was started this morning for the suspect.

PLANE MISSING; FEAR FOR SAFETY OF 6 PASSENGERS

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Anxiety was felt tonight for the safety of six persons in a ten passenger cabin plane of the British Columbia Airways, which had not been heard from since it left Victoria at 10:30 a. m. today for Seattle. The flight should take but one hour.

Lieutenant Commander J. D. Price in a naval seaplane and Clayton Scott, commercial pilot, in a pontoon equipped plane, flew over the entire course of the passenger plane without finding a trace of the craft.

Ask Padlocks on 26 Homes for One Year

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The United States district attorney's office today applied to the federal court for padlocks on twenty-six homes in St. Paul and Minneapolis. The padlocks are to be applied for one year, and the twenty-six cases are included in sixty-one abatement cases filed today.

Granting of the padlock petition by the court will mean that the defendants will be denied entrance to their homes for a year, Assistant District Attorney J. H. Gifford pointed out. Only a court order will give a defendant the right to reenter the premises pending the duration of the padlock.

Can't Move Furniture.

"All furniture and belongings must be left in the home from the time the padlock is put on and cannot be removed except by special order of the court," Mr. Gifford went on. "All this is taken care of in the act, which is effective against any place where the national prohibition law has been violated, whether it is a hotel, soft drink bar, store or home."

The federal officials assert they have taken this action only in cases where liquor has been sold on the premises, not where it is being kept for use by the owner of the place.

Use Homes as Blinds.

"The government decided to move against the home in which the law has been violated when it was discovered that a great many bootleggers have been using them as blinds for their operations," Mr. Gifford said. "Most of the soft drink bars where violations occurred have been closed up and private residences have been their only haven for months."

The strictness of the padlock order was shown here recently when, by accident, a cat was locked in an abandoned soft drink bar by United States marshals. When her howls attracted the attention of neighbors and the Humane society called it was found necessary to put the machinery of the federal court in motion and obtain an official order from a federal district judge to open the premises and release the animal.

MAYFIELD TRAILS IN TEXAS RUN-OFF FOR U. S. SENATE

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 25.—(AP)—United States Senator Earle B. Mayfield of Texas appeared to have lost his seat in the upper house in today's Democratic runoff primary. Incomplete returns from more than half of the counties in the state showed him trailing almost 45,000 votes behind his opponent, Congressman Tom Connally of Marlin, Tex. Returns from 175 counties, 19 of them complete, gave Connally 183,550, Mayfield 138,613. Connally was gaining on almost every report.

the physicians fear he will not be strong enough to travel further.

German diplomats in Paris, London, Brussels and Rome have called on the governments in these capitals and prepared the ground for the negotiations for the evacuation of the Rhineland. Dr. Stresemann intends to confer personally with French statesmen on the subject. Chancellor Mueller will continue his work of carrying on negotiations for the subject to be brought up at the forthcoming league of nations meeting at Geneva.

While the powers of the world are getting ready to sign the anti-war pact, Russia sent the chairman of the disarmament committee a new note on peace, which was circulated in diplomatic circles tonight. In this Maxim Litvinoff, the under-commissar of the foreign office, scoffs at the Kellogg policy, which "asserts there is no relationship between the anti-war pact and disarmament. You cannot solve the peace problem without solving the problem of disarmament, which alone is the real guarantee of peace."

MINORITIES FEAR PACT

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 25.—A feeling of dismay is spreading through central Europe as the full text of the Kellogg pact renouncing war is being digested among the millions of Hungarian, German, and other nationalities annexed by the allies of Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, and Roumania in the peace treaties in which the United States senate refused to participate. The pact is to be signed in Paris Monday by the United States and 14 other nations.

The impression exists that the Kellogg pact is being based on false premises; that is, that the European frontiers today are perfect and that no changes are necessary.

Spokesmen for the minorities said the Kellogg pact virtually pledges the United States to oppose any changes in the central European frontiers—in other words, serving for the allied and associated powers the same purpose as signatures to treaties approving the present status quo.

"Arrests National Growth."

"If George Washington had signed the Kellogg pact, the United States today would be a British colony," one of the leaders of the minorities said. "If the Kellogg pact was signed after the Napoleonic wars, when the Holy Alliance arbitrarily committed the same crimes perpetrated in the Versailles, St. Germain and Trianon treaties, Lombardy, Milan, and Venice would be Austrian today. Italy, in the modern sense, never would have existed; the Napoleonic kingdom still would be in power, and the pope would be the temporal ruler. Texas still would be part of Mexico, and Cuba and Porto Rico still would be Spanish.

"It seems odd that a country as great as the United States would take a leading part in a scheme designed to perpetrate crimes in peace treaties on nations who signed the armistice on the promises of Woodrow Wilson that self-determination would be the guiding principle in making new nations, or determining the nationality of peoples."

LADY MAYOR OF SOUTHAMPTON SAILS FOR HOME

New York, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Wishing her "as much health as you have charm," the mayor of New York bade farewell to the mayor of Southampton, England, today with a bow and a kiss of the hand.

After a whirlwind trip to Boston and Buffalo, Philadelphia, and Washington, "Her Worship" Mrs. Lucia Marion Foster-Welch, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Marion Paton, sailed for home on the Leviathan.

"Strange as it may seem from the lips of a loyal British subject, I'd like to come over and make my home here," she said. "You have all endeared yourselves so in my heart this week.

"This trip was the realization of a dream of my childhood and the realization has been greater even than the lifelong dream."

The mayor of Southampton found her stateroom on the Leviathan banked with flowers, fruit and candy.

Woman, Policeman, and Bandit Shot in Gun Battle

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Following a holdup this afternoon of a Third avenue shoe store, a policeman, one of the alleged holdup men and a woman who walked into the line of fire were shot. The patrolman, Joseph Dorsee, died later. Ignatius Carado, who was wounded by Patrolman Dorsee, was reported to be near death in the same hospital. The condition of the woman, Katie McCabe, was said to be grave. Two of the thieves, one of whom shot Dorsee, escaped with $20.

WORLD'S EYES ON U. S. AS KELLOGG PACT IS SIGNED

Sees America Giving Up Isolation Policy.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—America assumes a new part in international relations with the signing Monday of the Kellogg pact for the renunciation of war.

Whether the declaration, to which Secretary of State Kellogg and the representatives of fourteen other nations are to affix their signatures in Paris, represents an actual accomplishment toward the outlawing of war remains for future determination.

In any event the occasion will attract world wide attention and in many countries the initiative taken by the United States in negotiating the treaty will be interpreted as meaning that this nation has to some extent abandoned its policy of isolation in international affairs.

Senate May Not Approve.

As yet it is too early to forecast the fate of the treaty at the hands of the senate. It is recognized that there is dynamite in the proposition and a wave of adverse sentiment might easily make it impossible to obtain the necessary two-thirds vote for ratification.

Just as the senate rejected the treaty of Versailles and the league of nations pact, in the shaping of which Woodrow Wilson had a dominant part, so may this country, despite its sponsorship of the Kellogg treaty, again withhold its approval.

President Coolidge already has taken the lead in advocacy of the proposition and is likely to carry a fight for ratification of the treaty to the country if opposition continues to develop. The Republican platform specifically indorses the Kellogg treaty and Herbert Hoover is on record for it.

Borah Will Lead Fight.

Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, who often is at odds with the administration, had a good deal to do with perfecting the treaty. He will lead the fight in the senate for ratification.

A good deal of Democratic support is anticipated although the Democratic platform declares for the outlawry of war only in general terms.

As the situation now stands the odds would appear to favor ratification.

Action May Be Delayed.

One uncertainty is the fact that the coming session of congress ends on March 4 with the change in administration. Opponents of the treaty, if they so desired, would be in a position to filibuster with a view to forcing a delay in action until the following session. If the Democrats should win in the November election it might be that the situation would be entirely changed with the advent of the new President and congress.

A strange feature of the present lineup is that pacifist groups, which have been arrayed against President Coolidge in his program for naval construction and other preparedness measures are among his strongest supporters on this particular proposition. The pacifists do not like the interpretations placed upon the treaty by Great Britain, France, and other nations, but they point out that no actual reservations are contained in the treaty itself.

On the theory that the pact represents a forward step toward their vision of complete and perpetual peace the pacifists are urging its approval.

Some Republicans Skeptical.

On the other hand, some of the strong Republican groups which are ordinarily supporters of the administration are skeptical of the Kellogg treaty.

Objections already advanced to the treaty are that it is visionary and impractical; that the interpretations placed upon it by some of the leading participants will nullify its effect; that it will tend to drag the United States into European entanglements; that it may imply an obligation on the part of this country to abandon the Monroe Doctrine by which it undertakes to defend Latin-American countries from European aggression and that it will militate against adequate preparedness.

Depend on Public Opinion.

As against the objections it is asserted that the force of public opinion should serve to make the treaty effective; that the United States assumes no obligations whatever with respect to European problems; that the Monroe Doctrine has been maintained as a measure of defense of the western hemisphere and would come within the scope of defensive warfare which is not outlawed under the treaty, and that there is nothing in the treaty to interfere with adequate preparedness.

The two essential articles of the treaty are:

"Article 1. The high contracting parties solemnly declare in the names of their respective peoples that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies and renounce it as an instrument in their relations with one another.

"Article 2. The high contracting parties agree that the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts, of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, never shall be sought except by pacific means."

Assurances by Secretary Kellogg in a note transmitted to the other powers that the treaty would not prevent defensive warfare were a factor in obtaining approval of the document.

Free to Defend Territory.

"There is nothing in the American draft of an anti-war treaty which restricts or impairs in any way the right of self-defense," said Mr. Kellogg. "That right is inherent in every sovereign state and is implicit in every treaty. Every nation is free at all times and regardless of treaty provisions to defend its territory from attack or invasion, and it alone is competent to decide whether circumstances require recourse to war in self-defense.

"If it has a good case, the world will applaud and not condemn its action. Express recognition by treaty of this inalienable right, however, gives rise to the same difficulty encountered in any effort to define aggression. It is the identical question approached from the other side.

"Inasmuch as no treaty provision can add to the natural right of self-defense, it is not in the interest of peace that a treaty should stipulate a juristic conception of self-defense since it is far too easy for the unscrupulous to mold events to accord with an agreed definition."

HYMN FOR PEACE PACT INSCRIBED TO LEADERS BY EX-ENVOY TO ITALY

PARIS, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Robert Underwood Johnson, former American ambassador to Italy and long a champion of various efforts toward peace, has written a "Hymn for the Pact of Peace" which he has inscribed to Foreign Minister Briand of France and Secretary of State Kellogg. It reads:

Lift up your heads, ye peoples,
The miracle has come,
No longer are ye helpless,
No longer are ye dumb.

Those whom ye craved to lead you,
Your path of yearning dare,
The few rejoice with feasting,
The millions praise with prayer.

Lift up your hearts, ye peoples,
Cheer every doubting soul,
That found the road a barrier,
Betwixt you and your goal.

Go say to him that feareth
That peace is but a wraith,
"Not rulers, but the people Shall seal the peoples' faith."

Lift up your hands, ye peoples,
And take the sacred vow,
"To wars age-honored Moloch,
No longer will we bow."

Your leaders who have followed,
Arise and follow them,
O hear ye not the angels
Singing of Bethlehem.

BYRD'S SUPPLY SHIP SAILS FOR ANTARCTIC; HE FOLLOWS SEPT. 10

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The first unit of the Byrd Antartic expedition, consisting of 32 men and 200 tons of food, clothing and miscellaneous equipment, sailed from Pier 1, Hoboken, today on the Bark City of New York, bound for Dunedin, New Zealand, by way of the Panama canal and thence to the Bay of Whales on the shore of the Antartic ice barrier, where the expedition will establish a base.

Commander Byrd himself will not accompany the party, but will sail about Sept. 10 on the freighter Chelsea with the rest of the expedition, including four airplanes, in one of which he will attempt to fly over the south pole next December or January.

Lieut. Commander Frederick C. Melville of Lynn, Mass., commands the City of New York, which is a Norwegian ice breaker propelled by sail and steam, and which has just been reconditioned at Todd's shipyard in Brooklyn at a cost of $9,000.

DAWES RETURNS AFTER VACATION IN SOUTHWEST

Brown and happy, Vice President Charles G. Dawes arrived home yesterday from a three weeks' vacation trip in Colorado and New Mexico. With him were Mrs. Dawes, their adopted children, Virginia and Dana, and a party of personal friends, including John T. McCutcheon, TRIBUNE cartoonist; Kenneth L. Roberts and Charles Francis Coe, magazine writers, and Joseph Otis Sr., and Joseph Otis Jr., Ben Ames William, another member of the party, remained behind.

The party spent eight days at Wagon Wheel Gap, Colo., and then continued to the ranch of Waite Phillips at Cimarron, N. M., where the vice president fished, while the others hunted bear and wild turkey.

Thirteen Japanese students who arrived in Chicago Thursday to inspect the city will be the guests this morning at 11 o'clock of Mr. Dawes at his Evanston residence. Tomorrow, after attending a ball game with Secretary Shimadu, they will leave for Seattle to complete their tour around the world.

FALLS OFF RAFT AND DROWNS.

Leo Kusmaz, 14 years old, of 3149 Emerald avenue, was drowned yesterday when he fell from a raft on which he and other boys were playing in a creek at 30th and Morgan streets.

MAYOR'S VETO OPENS WAY FOR NEW TERMINAL

Western Indiana Street Concession Ended.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Mayor Thompson filed a veto yesterday against the Chicago & Western Indiana Railway ordinance. This ordinance, passed July 11, at the last regular meeting of the city council, granted the Western Indiana the right to maintain for five years its tracks and other facilities along Plymouth court, between Polk and Taylor streets. The concession made a slip of land abutting State street available for terminal purposes.

James Simpson, chairman of the Chicago plan commission and of the mayor's railway terminal commission, urged the veto.

"I withhold my approval of the ordinance," reads the mayor's veto message, "because I believe the ordinance would be prejudicial to the public interests and general welfare of the people of Chicago, and the traveling public; and would seriously jeopardize, if not prevent, present plans to establish a great railway terminal in Chicago."

Explains Terminal Plans.

The mayor in his message says that he believes that the city council is in sympathy with the plan to erect a new railway terminal to accommodate all of the railroads using the Dearborn, La Salle and Grand Central stations. He refers specifically to the Santa Fe, Monon, Wabash, Grand Trunk, Erie and Chicago and Western Illinois roads now using the Dearborn street terminal, and then continues:

"It is within the plans for the development of a great central railway terminal that these other roads shall transfer their terminals to the proposed central terminal together with other roads. It is planned to have a common terminal to the great advantage and benefit of the city, the public at large and the railroads themselves.

"The manifest purpose, on the part of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad company in seeking the rights given to it by this ordinance, is to enlarge its facilities accommodations in order that these other six railroads may continue to use the terminal and streets for at least another five year period, and thus delay, if not entirely block, the present plans and work for a great common railroad terminal in the city."

Terminal Move Revived.

The passage of this ordinance was not discovered until several weeks after the council meeting had been held. The veto message will be read at the next session of the aldermen in Sept. 12. Mr. Simpson had also requested Chairman D. A. Horan [1st] of the committee on streets and alleys to ask the repeal of the ordinance as passed.

It was said yesterday in the city hall that the mayor's veto should convince the railroads involved in the south side terminal projects that he seriously desires an agreement upon a plan. They are expected to indicate a more favorable attitude toward action.

Ald. Edward J. Kaindl [34th], chairman of the council committee on railway terminals said that he intends to invite the presidents of the 13 railroads concerned to a new terminal to a conference immediately after Sept. 12. The alderman said yesterday that he had obtained assurances from two rail executives that they will talk frankly of their plans.

U. S. CONFISCATES REALTY LEASED TO MOONSHINERS

New Policy Invokes 100 Year Old Law.

Real estate on which illicit stills are found will be forfeited and sold by the government. The announcement of this new legal policy was made yesterday on the return from Washington of Assistant District Attorney William Parrillo, with the sanction of the attorney general's office for such procedure.

The foundation for this confiscation policy was laid recently by Mr. Parrillo in a case before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Dry enforcement officials say the seizure of real estate may become the strongest weapon in their war against moonshiners.

Invoke 100 Year Old Law.

In this procedure the federal authorities have invoked a century old internal revenue law which has never been used against the bootleggers of the prohibition era, according to Mr. Parrillo. The law provides for the forfeiture of property owned by persons who knowingly lease it to moonshine makers.

The first case thus prosecuted by Mr. Parrillo was against the trustee and beneficiaries of the estate of Carmen Ferro, wealthy manufacturer and leader of a band of moonshiners, whose body was found beside a road near Bensenville last November. In this suit Judge Wilkerson recently issued an order libeling the property owned by Ferro at 4600 West Huron street and forfeiting it to the government. Prohibition agents in a raid on the building had uncovered two 1,000 gallon stills said to be the largest ever found in this district.

Treasury to Get Money.

The property is to be turned over to the commissioner of prohibition at Washington and will be sold and the money will go into the United States treasury.

Under the provisions of the same old internal revenue law the prohibition agents under Administrator E. C. Yellowley recently began the confiscation of bars and other fixtures used in saloons in connection with violations of the prohibtion law. Bootleggers who moved their fixtures and resumed operations while injunction proceedings were progressing against them were the objects of this action.

YOUTH TAKES HIS OWN LIFE IN RENTED ROOM

William R. Dill, 21 years old, a bond salesman, ended his life with gas yesterday in a room he had apparently rented for the purpose at 18 East Elm street. The youth, fully dressed, was found on a bed which he had drawn up near the gas stove, of which two burners were open.

Young Dill, who roomed at 56 East Bellevue place, rented the quarters at 18 East Elm street on Friday, explaining that he wanted them for friends he was expecting. He occupied the room on Friday while his father, Victor H. Dill of Dayton, O., waited at the boy's Bellevue place residence to surprise him with a visit.

A note at the youth's side merely requested that his father be notified. Dill's business associates advanced the theory that ill health was the motive for the suicide. They said that he had not recovered satisfactorily from two serious operations performed a year ago.

CHAPLAIN SUED FOR DIVORCE FOR HIS "HYPOCRISY"

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—William F. Hopp, chaplain of the Michigan state prison here, today was made defendant in a suit for divorce filed by his wife, Lydia E. Hopp.

Mrs. Hopp charged the chaplain with associating with persons of questionable reputation, drinking, and extreme and repeated cruelty.

The Rev. Mr. Hopp said he will not contest the divorce.

Mrs. Hopp's petition alleges that for the last four years her husband has been absent from his home most of the time and that "his life since our marriage has been one of hypocrisy."

The Hopps were married in Pittsburgh, Pa., her home, July 23, 1914. He was a Universalist pastor in Mount Clemens and Concord, Mich., before his appointment as chaplain June 1, 1919, according to the bill.

Ex-Cabinet Chief Greece's Richest Man, Estate Shows

ATHENS, Aug. 25. — (AP) — Appraisals of the estate of Stephanos Skoudis, former premier and foreign minister of Greece in 1915-16, revealed him as the richest man in the country. The total was estimated at a billion drachmai, which is approximately $12,000,000. The death duties on this will amount to approximately $1,500,000, all of which will go into the government treasury.

A. S. CARRUTHERS, REALTY DEALER, SUED BY WIFE

Complaint Names Girl as Winning Love.

Arthur S. Carruthers, realty operator and capitalist, is being sued for separate maintenance in the Superior court by Mrs. Grace Carruthers, 441 St. James place, it was discovered yesterday. The suit had been suppressed for several days on the representation of her attorney, David H. Jackson, that the defendant might evade service if he learned of the litigation before a deputy sheriff could hand him a summons.

Mrs. Carruthers, who says she is a great-granddaughter of a lord mayor of London, alleges in her pleading that her married life was happy until last May when her husband became enamoured with one Pauline, it is charged. First he neglected his wife and then he deserted her, she avers.

Member of Several Clubs.

Mr. Carruthers is a member of the Hamilton, Army and Navy, Elks, Sojourners, Chicago Yacht, and Lake Shore Athletic clubs.

"I went into his downtown office and found Pauline sitting on his lap," said Mrs. Carruthers.

In 1916, Carruthers was named in a suit for divorce brought by Dr. Ralph Hayden, a south side dentist, against his wife, Mrs. Grace Hayden.

Mrs. Carruthers sets up that her husband has an annual income of between $25,000 and $30,000 and that their household expenses have averaged $20,000 a year. Her pleading also charges that her husband borrowed securities worth $35,000 from her and has not returned them and that he sold her expensive automobile, keeping the receipts.

Engineer Sues Wife.

A second suit that attracted attention in the divorce courts yesterday was a bill brought by William H. Bell, an electrical engineer, against Mrs. Jennie Bell, 812 Forest avenue, Evanston. The pleading, drawn by Attorney Seymour N. Cohen, sets up that she conducted a campaign of nagging in an attempt to force him to leave her but that, this failing, she deserted him three years ago. They were married in 1907 and have a daughter, Eleanor, 19 years old.

BUTTER PRICES HERE ADVANCE TO HIGHEST MARK IN EIGHT YEARS

Will a pound of golden butter soon be worth its weight in gold? This is the question Chicago housewives are putting to their grocers in no joking manner. August prices have soared to heights unknown in the last eight years.

Chain stores yesterday were selling butter at 51 to 53 cents a pound. But top prices were reached in the loop shops, where bulk butter sold for 58 cents and brick butter at 61 cents.

According to a bulletin issued by the Illinois Agricultural association, the price is about 5 cents higher than the average for May, June, and July since 1920.

"There is no indication of a decline in the butter price this fall," stated C. L. Pier, marketing specialist for the United States bureau of agricultural economics. "September wholesale prices last year were 2 or 3 cents higher than August, October a cent or 2 higher than September, and November about the same advance over October."

A shortage of butter may account for the new high prices, Mr. Pier explained. "Because of high mill feed prices farmers curtailed winter feeding of cattle, affecting the condition of the stock. Then the pastures were dry in the spring. The entire United States output was 24,820,000 pounds less on Aug. 1 this year than last," he said.

Hope for Coal Pay Scale Settlement This Week

A possible termination this week of the joint wage scale conferences of the Illinois coal miners and operators was predicted yesterday by W. L. Jenkins, president of the Illinois Mine Operators' association. Subcommittees of the two groups will begin their fifth week of negotiations tomorrow. No announcement of the progress of the conference was made at adjournment yesterday pending a settlement.

Mrs. "Jimmy" Walker's Mother Has Sinking Spell

Clinton, Ia., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Etta Traver Allen, mother-in-law of Mayor James Walker of New York City, who is ill here with anemia, suffered a sinking spell today and her condition is grave. Mrs. Walker is at her bedside.

STEGE ORDERS HIS DETECTIVES TO GET SALTIS

Joe Saltis, south side beer baron, who has successfully dodged the police, government operatives and municipal court deputy bailiffs for 98 consecutive days, must be found shortly or members of the police department will be called to account, Commissioner of Detectives John Stege announced to his force yesterday.

"Saltis has dodged us long enough," Commissioner Stege said yesterday to Capt. William Schoemaker, and the squad leaders, who have failed so far to find the elusive hoodlum. "He must be found and given a real dose of jail life. He has dodged it long enough and now that we have the opportunity we should make the most of it."

Saltis is under sentence of 60 days in the Bridewell and a fine of $50 following the refusal of the United States Supreme court to review his gun toting case.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 25.—(AP)—A shop for the manufacture of men's clothes and manned by the 750 members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America striking against the David Adler & Sons Co., will be opened in Milwaukee for the duration of the strike, according to a statement today by Leo Krzycki, organizer for the union.

ONE KILLED, THREE HURT IN WRECK.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 25.—[U. P.]—The engineer was killed and three other members of the train crew were injured today when New York Central passenger train number 17, Grand Rapids to Elkhart, Ind., ran into an open switch at Parchmont, a few miles north of Kalamazoo.

Parents Confess Throwing Baby Girl Into River

Parents of a baby girl, born Aug. 13 in the Cook county hospital, confessed to the Aurora police yesterday that they threw her into the Fox river because she cried too much. They are Mr. and Mrs. Elias Perkins, colored, both of Aurora. "My wife cried and fussed so much we decided we didn't want her," Perkins said. "We bought a gunny sack in a Chicago store and then started for Aurora. The baby cried and fussed all the way out. When we got off the train I put the baby in the sack and threw her in the river."

French Steamer Sinks in Collision; Crew Saved

DUNGENESS, England, Aug. 25.—[U.P.]—The French steamer Daphne sank rapidly today, after a collision with the German barque Passat. The twenty-one members of the Daphne crew were rescued.

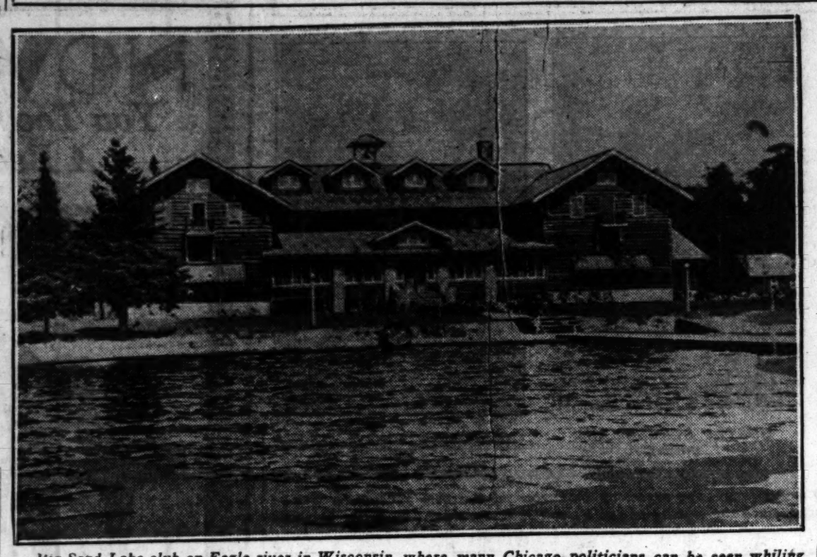
CHICAGO PUBLIC FOLK "AT EASE" ON EAGLE RIVER

Politicians Build Mansions in Wooded Wilds.

WHERE POLITICIANS WHILE AWAY THE TIME



Big Sand Lake club on Eagle river in Wisconsin, where many Chicago politicians can be seen whiling away the time on week-ends and vacations. It is claimed to be the largest log cabin in the world.

Phelps, Wis., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—French courtiers in the more gallant days were accustomed to veil themselves from the vexations of court life by seeking refuge on their estates where they devoted themselves to the pleasures of angling and the chase.

The visitor to the chateau country of France today gains some notion of the splendid entertainment and the peaceful obscurity which the court attachés provided for themselves in their woods and retreats.

There is today in the stretches of pine and birch and balsam of the Eagle river country in Wisconsin a twentieth century counterpart of the chateau existence of the French courtiers. Sequestered in sumptuous rendezvous, most of them in Vilas county, are the lake and forest chateaux of Chicago, Cook county, and Illinois courtiers.

Shelter from Annoyances.

In their chauteaux the statesmen are sheltered from the courtly whirl of pay rolls, special crime juries, paving scandals, and other unpleasant problems of administering to the needs of the people. Architects and interior decorators have brought to them every shading of comfort and beauty that may be found in Gold Coast mansions. Landscape gardeners have improved upon the natural topography of the estates.

In the neighborhood of Big Sand lake ten miles from here there is the most concentrated community of chateau estates.

The mansion of Homer K. Galpin, chairman of the Cook County Republican committee, may be found there. The visitor will follow the long drive through the woods and brave the stern "Private. Keep out" signs along the way. And Mr. Galpin himself is there, far from the madding crowd.

All Comforts of City.

The Galpin chateau, situated on that courtier's 800 acre preserve, is constructed in the colonial taste. Soaring Ionic pillars create an imposing facade overlooking the lake from a bluff. Interior decorators have lavished their art in the fourteen rooms of the mansion. Subtly they have worked to give it the substantial comfort of an elaborate city dwelling together with a touch here and there of the lake and woodland.

So expansive is the grand living room of the Galpin retreat that three large sofas are required to give it the proper balance essential to the well-being of a statesman. Heavy tapestries, embroideries, and draperies of gold and purple hang from the walls with an occasional mounted fish to remind the occupants of their location.

At the water's edge there is the Galpin boathouse, which shelters "the fastest thing on the lake" and the Galpin pergola invites the visitor to idle hours away there as the water laps underneath.

After an awed visit to the Galpin chateau, the next destination is the Big Sand Lake club, where many of the Chicago statesmen and salaried office holders pass their Thursday to Tuesday week ends.

The clubhouse stands at the head of Big Sand lake opposite the Galpin chateau. From without the club gives an impression of fabricated rudeness. For two years a crew of forty woodsmen hewed and trimmed the logs and fitted them snugly into place. Now the massive structure rises to a height of three stories, commanding a view of the clear waters bounded by uninterrupted forest. It is the boast of the proud courtier members of the club that it is the largest log cabin in the world.

Within, the visitor's eyes rest on a cheerful prospect. The great gallery on the ground floor is decorated in the hunting lodge taste on a grand scale, loaded with heavy leather chairs and lounges. On the walls hang stuffed elk and deer heads, mounted muskies, and weighty silver trophies. The figure of an elephant wrought in copper beset by three copper panthers faces the entrance. It weighs nearly a ton and was moved from the former headquarters of the America First statesmen in the Hotel Sherman.

Cozy Nook on Cool Evenings.

At one end of the hall a crackling log fire furnishes comfort and cheer during the cool evenings. Twin staircases at the opposite end lead to the chambers around the second and third floor balconies.

Flanking the gallery is the banqueting hall designed to seat 250 court attachés and their guests. High ceiling and towering log supports afford an atmosphere of grandeur amid which the tables are set with fish and game and rare delicacies to tease the jaded appetite. In the busy kitchens, the best pastry cook that could be found helps keep the courtly paunches from fading.

Off the dining salon is the billiard room, where the courtiers beguile many an hour during their respites from court life in Chicago. The ground floor also contains dainty and elegant quarters for the enjoyment of the ladies, who retire thereto for gossip at bridge and tea.

Operate Own Electric Plant.

On the club's 800 acres are the facilities which bring all the comforts and luxuries of metropolitan existence to the forest retreat. There is a laundry establishment to keep the courtly linen spotless. A generating plant provides heat and light, but soon this will be abandoned because a power line is being stretched from Iron river to the chateau. An icehouse and refrigeration plant insure a steady supply of viands for the most fastidious appetite.

Garages for thirty automobiles shelter those which are decorated with courtier's stars and courtesy stars, and incidentally the native residents of Vilas county have learned to detect a deputy coroner's star at a distance of fifty feet.

An octagonal dance hall, brilliantly decorated with jack 'o lanterns and draperies, was once the scene of sprightly merrymaking of an evening. But it so happened that its builders erred in placing the ballroom at a distance of 100 feet from the chateau.

There was complaint among the ladies that the dampness of the grass often spotted their gowns when they passed from the chateau to the ballroom. So this ballroom was abandoned and it was arranged that the floor of the chateau should be finished for the purposes of terpsichore so that the ensemble of the ladies should be protected from the elements.

Near by is a tennis court which cost $3,000 to construct. Its concrete finish is done in brick red because it was found that the glare from the untinted concrete was unpleasant to the eyes of the courtly netmen.

Courtly conversation may be had within the great gallery at almost any hour with members of the club. The visitor might perchance find Oscar Wolff, the county coroner, languishing there along with perhaps Sheriff Charles E. Graydon and George H. Woods, chief deputy bailiff of the Municipal court. Or he might discover Meyer Cossman, or Robert R. Levy, former United States marshal. In short, a person bitten with ambition to consort with courtiers would find gratification for this urge that could not be found in the city hall or county building in the summer time.

Leaving the clubhouse, a sidewalk lighted with electric lights leads to the chateaux of still other courtiers. These mansions were erected at the direction of their occupants and are held on long term leases.

First comes the château of John K. Lawler, which has been christened with knightly ceremony "The House That Jack Built," pictures of which are on sale at the clubhouse for five cents. Now it falls out that Courtier Lawler, whose duties as sanitary district trustee bring him to Chicago occasionally, is something of a bird fancier. In the rear of his château are martin houses, but Mr. Lawler has observed that these birds make their departure for points south at an early date. So tucked in the trees and shrubbery of his grounds are artificial birds of beautiful yellow and red plumage.

Carlstrom Place Less Pretentious.

Having feasted the eyes on the graceful features of the Lawler establishment, the way leads past the more modest residence of Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom. Although an ordinary taxpayer might envy Mr. Carlstrom the possession of his château, it is something of a waif among the more pretentious retreats.

Then comes the stone mansion of Charles V. Barrett, a member of the board of review. Imagine a Gold Coast residence set down in the forest of Arden and you picture the chateau of Statesman Barrett. Still further along the shaded lake front walk rises "Crowe's Nest," the quaintly named refuge of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. This is a three story chateau constructed of wood and painted a white and yellow trim. Since the debacle of last April 10, Mr Crowe, though still on the county pay roll as state's chief prosecuting officer, is spent most of his time at this comfortable retreat.

Before leaving Sand Lake a short boat ride will take the visitor to the habitat of George E. Nye, the boiler inspector who explains that there is little to demand his attention in Chicago "until they light the fires." Courtier Nye has sequestered himself from the chateau community immediately surrounding the club house. The construction of his chateau he superintended himself as he did the construction of the club's laundry establishment and its power plant.

Upon departing from Sand Lake, the road passes the Smoky Lake Golf club, which was established by thirty members of the Big Sand Lake club. At present the course consists of only nine holes but another nine is soon to be added. These will be laid out in timber land.

Now comes a sixty mile drive to find the retreat of Mayor William Hale Thompson, the courtliest of the courtiers and the one most addicted to the chateau existence.

Where the Mayor Rests.

The trail leads to the 1,000 acre preserve of Carter Blatchford, who is not himself a courtier but is an associate of courtiers and for a month or so past the host of the mayor. From the main road to Woodruff, a circuitous forest trail leads through a bower of timber. There is no sign to point the way, but after a long trip the visitor is greeted by heavily grated gates and nearby are prominent signs announcing the presence of vicious dogs.

The gates are opened, nevertheless, revealing the picturesque brown shingled chateau of Carter Blatchford nestled in a balsam grove on a bluff overlooking Island lake at its juncture with the channel leading to Spider lake. Intimate walks point the way to the servants' quarters, the ice house, refrigeration plant, power house, bear dens, deer and elk preserves.

Mayor's Seclusion Protected.

The knocker on the front door is sounded. Presently the door is opened just wide enough for Mr. Blatchford to slide through and lead the visitor away from the chateau.

The door was opened wide enough, however, to disclose the startled face of Courtier Thompson as he looked up from a roaring fire.

Mr. Blatchford reported that the mayor was doing nicely and that the reports of his illness were not founded. "But the mayor doesn't want to be interviewed. He's funny that way," Mr. Blatchford added.

Then, while Mr. Blatchford stands on the doorstep to superintend the departure so that he may report back to his courtier guest that he may again breathe in solitude, the visitor pulls out to visit other chateaux before nightfall.

E. J. Kelly Recuperates.

A drive back to Eagle River region brings the chateau student to "South Park," the home of Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board and chief engineer for the sanitary district. Here on the shore of Catfish lake, Mr. Kelly is recuperating this summer from serious ailments.

Finally the visitor may end his perambulations in the chateau country with a fair knowledge that the courtiers charged with administering to his governmental needs are refreshing themselves for the rigorous winter's tasks. Dozens of them frequent the club house. It is the fashion among statesmen and the more prominent holders of public office in the Chicago area.

Frigidaire Corporation, the world's largest makers of electric refrigerators

PRESENT

THE NEW FRIGIDAIRE

YOU DON'T HEAR IT START • • YOU DON'T HEAR IT STOP • • YOU DON'T HEAR IT RUN

For twelve years the pioneer in automatic refrigeration once again sets a new standard

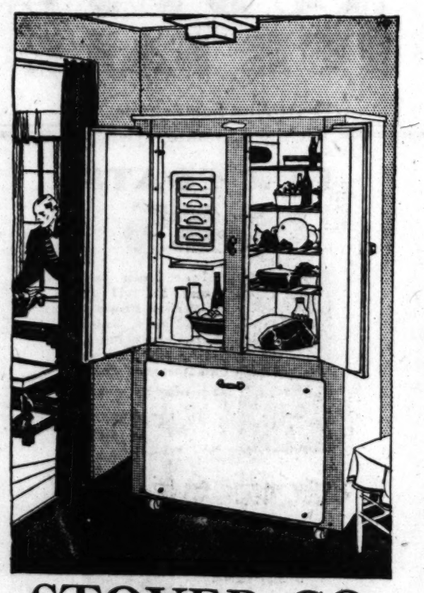
INCREDIBLY quiet operation, greater cabinet beauty and convenience . . . surplus refrigerating power built into a new and radically improved compressor . . . this is the New Frigidaire. Millions of dollars were spent to make possible the New Frigidaire. Not only the experience of refrigeration experts was called on but even that of automotive inventors, chemical and electrical engineers . . . authorities in many different fields.

Sound-proof rooms were constructed for tests. Sound recording instruments were used, more delicate than the human ear. And all that the New Frigidaire should be noiseless, powerful and economical. The result is an entirely new and radically improved compressor . . . a new development in automatic refrigeration. The New Frigidaire is incredibly quiet. You don't hear it start. You don't hear it stop. You don't hear it run.

The New Frigidaire has tremendous reserves of power in its simple mechanism. It meets every emergency with the same absolute reliability.

The shelves of this cabinet are all at convenient height. Frigidaire engineers have concealed the compressor completely

The New Frigidaire is the most beautiful refrigerator ever developed commercially. But more surprising even than its beauty, is the convenience of its details. You should see it for yourself . . . you should visualize it in your own kitchen . . . only then can you realize the advance which the New Frigidaire marks in convenient housekeeping.



There is a beautiful new Frigidaire planned and built for your exact needs. Come down and pick it out . . . on August twenty-third.

Big Special Demonstration opens Thursday, August 23rd

The New Frigidaire, the newest development in electric refrigeration, is now on our showroom floor. And we're giving a remarkable demonstration every day and every night this week.

We're showing what the New Frigidaire will do under actual household conditions. We're showing just why it runs so quietly and so efficiently. We're showing how it insures absolutely safe refrigeration.

Come in and see it for yourself. For your convenience, we are open each night this week and next week until ten o'clock.

Low prices and easy terms

The Frigidaire Corporation believes that every household in America should have automatic refrigeration . . . for health . . . for convenience . . . for economy. The New Frigidaire carries low prices and easy General Motors terms . . . prices and terms which make it possible for everyone to have the benefits of Frigidaire now. Come in this week and find out about them.

The patented self-sealing ice trays of the New Frigidaire freeze ice cubes quickly and always

FISH FANS' CLUB ORDERED OUT OF BELMONT HARBOR

Complaints of 'Stags' and Gambling Bring Ouster.

The Fish Fans' club must get out of Belmont harbor, where it is housed in its ship, according to an order issued yesterday by Emil A. W. Johnson, superintendent of Lincoln park. The order was interpreted as practically putting the club out of existence. Of late it has been conducted as a cabaret by Henry Finkelstein, former operator of the Silver Slipper club, which was closed by prohibition authorities.

Action was taken by the Lincoln park commissioners after numerous complaints were received from property owners. The order also was reported to be the result of influence used by former officials of the club, including a political journalist and politicians, who were recently ousted from membership.

Boat May Remain Open.

Supt. Johnson denied reports that the park commission had ordered the boat to be moved or burned. The boat may remain open as a clubhouse, it was intimated.

The club is headed by State Representative Thomas J. O'Grady, south side politician. Supt. Johnson said he wrote a letter to Mr. O'Grady, notifying him that the cabaret must be closed. He received no answer, he added.

The present cabaret management was given until Sept. 15 to move out furnishings.

Ginger Ale and Stag Parties.

A recent visit to the club showed a cabaret in full blast on the second story of the structure. Guests drank ginger ale at tables, adding their own ingredients, while an orchestra blared and performers danced and sang. Below this floor is a long dining room where stag parties are sometimes held. The girl entertainers saved their peppier dances for this exclusive retreat.

Off the dining room is the gambling room, where a roulette table was said to go into action about midnight. Patrons were also accommodated at dice and cards.

The club, originally organized by friends and supporters of Mayor Thompson, lost its popularity in 1925, when, following a raid by prohibition agents, the peddling of liquor was ordered stopped. Hundreds of members resigned and the cabaret was started later.

O'Grady Blames Mensback.

Representative O'Grady last night said that a Mr. Mensback, formerly connected with the Rainbo Gardens, who sub-leased the boat restaurant concessions from the club, would have to explain the present predicament of the club boat.

In placing the responsibility on Mensback for the club's embarrassing position with the park board, Mr. O'Grady said:

"Mensback offered to keep the boat in first class shape for the use of the Fish Fans club if the club would give him the restaurant concession. Mensback agreed to pay the light bill and all other expenses incidental to the upkeep of the boat.

"The club had been losing $1,000 a month on the restaurant proposition and we were more than glad to accept Mensback's proposition."

HOLDEN ASSUMES NEW JOB WITH SO. PACIFIC R. R.

It was officially announced yesterday that Hale Holden, president and chairman of the executive committee of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, has been appointed chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific. The announcement was made by the board of directors of the Southern Pacific. Mr. Holden, who succeeds Henry W. de Forest, will assume his new duties Jan. 1.

Mr. Holden declined to discuss the report that this change is connected with a contemplated new grouping of Pacific rail lines, whereby a service, with its eastern rate agreement, spanning the continent by three routes would be offered. "There is no new alignment contemplated," Mr. Holden stated.

Mr. de Forest will retire as chairman of the executive committee to be chairman of the board of the Southern Pacific. Paul Shoup, now executive vice president will become president of the company on the first of the year, succeeding William Sproule.

LEVINE REACHES LONDON; MAY HOP TO U.S. TOMORROW

[Copyright: 1928: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Charles A. Levine and Bert Acosta arrived at the Croydon airdrome at 8:30 tonight from Brussels, in the Junkers monoplane "Queen of the Air." They immediately began preparations to take off on a westward flight across the Atlantic. Levine said tonight there is a possibility of flying Monday, if the load test tomorrow proved successful.

It was necessary to fly from Antwerp to Brussels to obtain clearance papers, and in landing on the rough field there the plane twisted a wheel. It took five hours to repair the damage.

The delay made Mabel Boll, who expects to accompany the flight, wait all day in comparative boredom in Croydon's limited facilities of amusement.

WORKER DIES SUDDENLY.

William Miller, 45 years old, was found dead yesterday in the engine room of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium, where he was employed.

Russian Film Actor to Marry Olga Baklanova

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Nicholas Soussanin, who left the Petrograd stage as an outstanding Russian star to come to America to work as a laborer before his chance came upon the American screen, is to Marry Olga Baklanova, Russian screen actress.

The marriage plans were announced by Miss Baklanova, dependent upon notification from Russia of her divorce from Valdemar Zoopi, Moscow attorney, whom she left several years ago in Russia.

WARREN AVENUE POLICEMEN ARE ALL TRANSFERRED

Shift Is Laid to Election Day Activities.

Sweeping with the same broom that cleaned out the Maxwell and Desplaines street stations, Commissioner of Police William F. Russell late yesterday transferred out of Warren avenue every man in the district except Capt. Patrick Kelliher. The captain was recently installed as commander.

The order is effective at 8 o'clock this morning. Like the two that preceded it, it is another attack on a west side stronghold of hoodlums, gangsters and panders—a district notorious for gambling and prostitution and election violence, and a stamping ground of Crowe-Thompson America Firsters.

In Galpin's Stronghold.

Just as the Maxwell street district has been bossed by Morris Eller and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller, so the Desplaines and Warren avenue districts have been under the domination of Homer K. Galpin, leader in the Crowe-Thompson ring.

Commissioner Russell's first police shift came when he transferred every man there away from Maxwell street. Desplaines street and Warren avenue have been as open and notorious vice districts as the old south side levee of twenty years ago. It has been honeycombed with every known kind of a shady resort; scores of disorderly houses and hotels have run 24 hours a day, and beer flats have been plentiful.

Scattered All Over.

Commissioner Russell's order sent the men from Warren avenue to stations all over the west and south and northwest sides, and brought men from a number of other stations to the Warren avenue district.

A number of lieutenants were affected by the order, but no captains or deputy commissioners were affected.

The lieutenants transferred are:

	From	To
Daniel J. Cahill	Warren Ave.	Lawndale
Thos. J. Duffy	Warren Ave.	Marquette
Frank Malone	Warren Ave.	Albany Park
Arthur Mooney	New City	Kensington
Jos. Berounsky	New City	Irving Park
Garret Coan	Gresham	New City
John Sloop	Kensington	New City
William Blasi	North Robey	Hudson Ave.

Stephen Barry	Hudson Ave.	Shakespeare
Frank McCann	Shakespeare	Hudson Ave.
Joseph McGuire	Summerdale	Wargen Ave.
Wm. C. Lang	Albany Park	Summerdale
Charles Egan	Irving Park	Gresham
Julian Bernacki	Austin	Irving Park
Chas. E. Dudley	Irving Park	Warren Ave.
Thos. F. O'Hare	Fillmore St.	Austin

State's Attorney Crowe lives just west of the Warren avenue district borderline on Washington boulevard.

Four Wards in District.

The district includes part of the 25th ward of which Joseph P. Savage, former assistant to Crowe, is Thompson ward committeeman; it takes in a portion of the 27th, where Homer Galpin is ward committeeman; a section of the 29th, Sheriff Charles E. Graydon's ward; and the 28th ward, a Democratic stronghold.

In the general transfer order from Warren avenue, are included 15 sergeants, all the patrolmen and Operator Patrick Mulvihill.

CATHOLIC VEREIN, IN SESSION, SEEKS TO KEEP BOYS ON FARMS

St. Cloud, Minn., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Committee meetings to consider what might be done to help improve the status of agriculture occupied the Catholic Central Verein of America at its convention here today with business sessions scheduled to start Monday.

Agricultural life must be made more attractive, according to Charles Koerz of Butler, N. J., president of the organization, if the sons and daughters of farmers are to be kept from leaving their homes.

The most Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States, will celebrate pontifical high mass Sunday. More than 25,000 persons are expected for the Sunday program.

INDICT WOMAN AS POISONER OF 2 IN HER HOME

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Eugene Gifford, 50, wife of a farmer near Eureka, St. Louis county, was arrested at her home today on indictments charging her with the poison murders of two of five persons who died suddenly at her former home near Catawissa within six years.

Mrs. Gifford was taken to the Franklin county jail at Union where it was reported she had signed a statement that she frequently had taken a poison as medicine and had given it to the five persons along with medicine left by doctors.

She is charged in the indictments with responsibility for the death of Edward Brinley, a neighbor, in May, 1927, and of Elmer Schamel, a boy, two years before, while both were at the Gifford home.

The home became known among neighbors as a "house of mystery" after the five deaths. First to die was Sherman Pounds, a farmer and relative of Gifford, a few hours after he arrived at the home seven years ago. His granddaughter, Beulah Pounds, died two years later, after she and her mother had spent the night at the house.

Lloyd and Elmer Shamel, young brothers, who made their home with the Giffords, died a month apart three years ago.

Later Mrs. Gifford issued a statement to police admitting putting poison in medicine she administered to the five persons in order to "quiet severe pains in the stomach suffered by the patients."

Gifford said Pounds and Brinley had been drinking before they came to the house and attributed their deaths to that.

1,340 U. S. Marines Sail Home from China Oct. 6

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—(AP)—The navy department announced today that the transport Henderson will sail from Shanghai Oct. 6 with 1,340 marines of the Third brigade, which has been on duty in China since the spring of 1927. The Henderson will proceed to San Diego, where she is scheduled to arrive Nov. 4.

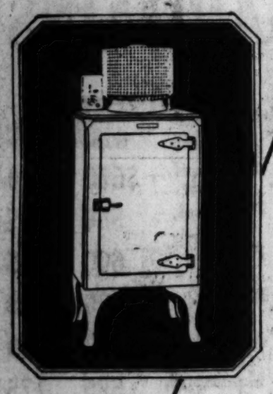
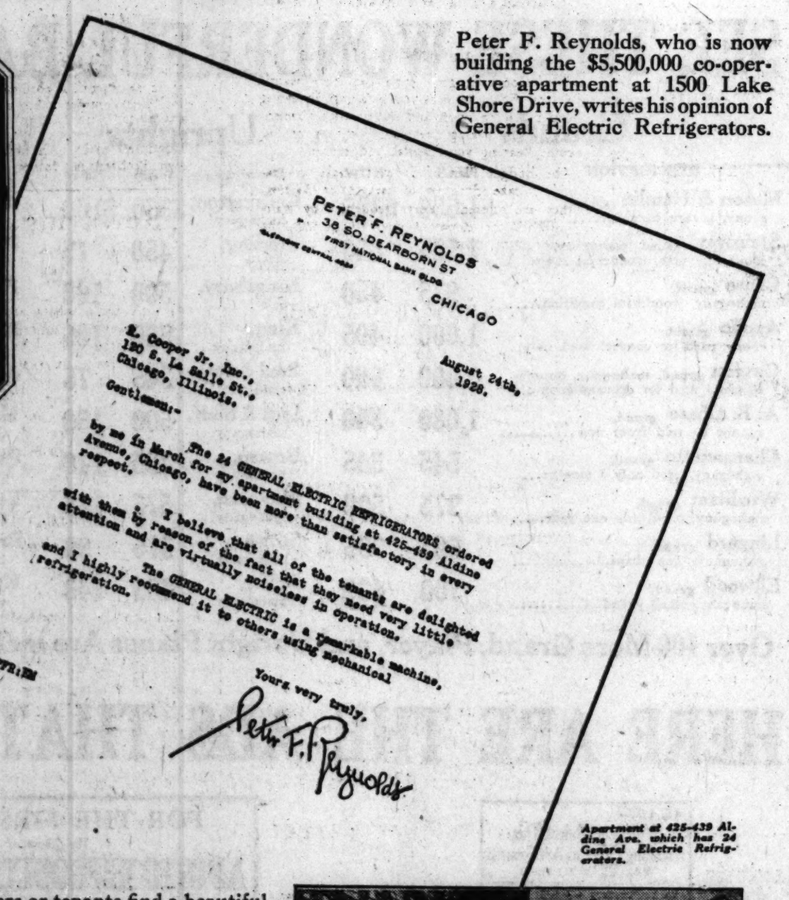
GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerators





Peter F. Reynolds, who is now building the $5,500,000 co-operative apartment at 1500 Lake Shore Drive, writes his opinion of General Electric Refrigerators.

Apartment at 425-439 Aldine Ave. which has 24 General Electric Refrigerators.

WHEN prospective buyers or tenants find a beautiful General Electric Refrigerator in the apartment—the last word in electrical refrigeration—they feel assured that the apartment is strictly modern and of the highest quality throughout.

Wherever families get together the talk about electric refrigerators resolves itself into one thought—the quietest, most efficient, most economical, most convenient electric refrigerator is made by General Electric.

And this is why the co-operative apartment sells easier and the regular apartment rents faster when equipped with General Electric Refrigerators.

Let us explain the many advantages of this different electric refrigerator. You, too, can capitalize on its overwhelming popularity and ready acceptance by home owners and tenants.

BODY IN CULVERT MAY BE THAT OF MILWAUKEE GIRL

Mother Makes a Partial Identification.

Elkhorn, Wis., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Partial identification of the body of the young woman found stuffed into a culvert near here was made today by Mrs. Gizella Farkas of Milwaukee, who believes it to be that of her daughter, Alice, missing for three weeks. The identification was based mainly on a silk chemise, the only garment found on the body.

Because of the condition of the body, which physicians at first declared must have been placed in the culvert from four to six weeks ago, it was interred yesterday in the potter's field of Hazel Ridge cemetery. This morning it was exhumed and a post mortem held under a tree in the cemetery.

Scar on Girl's Knee.

On previous examination the age of the murdered girl had been placed at from 18 to 22 years, and an L shaped scar was reported found on her left shoulder. Today, however, Coroner's Physician E. T. Ridgeway, who also is mayor of Elkhorn, said there was no such scar to be seen, and that he had located a scare on the right knee, similar to one described by Mrs. Farkas on her daughter's knee.

He further reported the victim appeared to be from fourteen to sixteen years old. The Farkas girl, who still was attending school, was fourteen years old last June.

Friendly with Salesman.

Mrs. Farkas refused to state positively that the body was that of her daughter, but said she was inclined to believe it was. She told of a traveling salesman named Sam, whose surname remains a mystery, who had been friendly with Alice and who disappeared about the same time. She gave her address in Milwaukee at 634 Fourth street.

The viscera was removed from the body today and will be sent to the state chemist in Madison for examination. An inquest will not be held until his report is received by the coroner.

Earlier today the body of the young woman was believed to be that of Miss Lenora Abitz, 25, also of Milwaukee, who has been missing, but this was disproved when it was found the appendix of the victim had not been removed. Miss Abitz's appendix had been removed.

FIGHTS 9 FOOT RIVER CHANNEL TO MINNEAPOLIS

Rock Island, Ill., Aug. 25.—(AP)—A proposal to improve the Mississippi river between the Missouri river and Minneapolis with a view of securing a channel of nine feet at low water, an increase of 3 feet over the present authorized depth, has been reported on unfavorably by Maj. C. J. Hall, head of the Rick Island district, it was announced here today.

Maj. Hall explained that the proposed improvement would put the government to great expense and that there is yet not sufficient commerce in sight to justify the cost. He believes that whatever handicap is imposed on the upper river barge line by a depth of six feet instead of nine can be measured in terms of money and that it is better for the government to suffer a slight loss on this account than a large loss which would follow the building of insufficiently utilized locks, and dams.

The cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul have been active in the promotion of the proposed increased channel depth.

DAMAGE SUITS SPROUTING FROM BROKEN STREETS

Sidewalks Help; Nearly $2,500,000 Sought.

Defective sidewalks and streets in bad condition have caused suits for damages totaling nearly $2,500,000 to be brought against the city during the last twelve months, according to a report made public yesterday by City Attorney William D. Saltiel.

Most of the complainants are citizens whose arms and legs have been broken by falls in holes, and whose automobiles have been damaged by rough pavements. In some districts, especially on the north side, surveys have shown miles of pavement in almost impassable condition. In these districts, garage owners report a heavy business in repairing tires, broken springs, and in some cases broken wheels.

Rogers Park Streets Worst?

"A large proportion of the damage suits come from the Rogers Park district," Mr. Saltiel explained. "There, it appears, the streets are in the poorest condition."

During the period from Sept. 1, 1927, to Aug. 25, 1928, the total of new damage suits brought against the city was $3,896,928. Of this amount, $2,477,000 was for personal injuries and property damages due to defective sidewalks and broken streets.

Miscellaneous damages accounted for $1,477,000. Suits totaling $2,735,000 were brought in the Superior court, $1,120,000 in the Circuit court, and $41,928 in the Municipal court.

"Of course, we will fight every suit and expect to save the city a big part of the damages asked for," Mr. Saltiel said. "But many of the suits are legitimate. It makes uphill fighting when the facts really are that streets and sidewalks are dangerous in many places."

Worst Yet to Come?

The full effect of the two months' cessation of street repair work on the north side from June 1 to Aug. 1, because of the White Paving company dispute has not yet been ascertained, according to Mr. Saltiel, as most of the suits are not filed for several months following the damage charged. A large part of the suits caused by the tangle over the White contract probably will be filed in September and October, he said.

100 Officers Participate in Liquor Raids at Herrin

Herrin, Ill., Aug. 25.—(AP)—A big liquor raid was conducted here last night by federal officers, assisted by Sheriff Oren Coleman and deputies. Nearly one hundred officers participated, raiding ten or twelve places simultaneously. The raid resembled the one staged here by the late S. Glenn Young in December, 1924, which was followed by strife and bloodshed between klan and anti-klan factions.

PUBLIC RESPONSE ASSURES HOLDING OF WORLD'S FAIR

Best in History Decided On for 1933.

The first formal announcement that Chicago will have a world's fair in 1933 was made yesterday by Rufus C. Dawes, chairman of the trustees of the fair. Wholehearted response of the public in favor of the fair as shown by the enrollment campaign led the trustees to make a final decision to hold the exposition, he said.

Mr. Dawes in his statement outlined a huge project, subject to the approval of the federal government. The celebration of this city's centennial, he said, can be made a success only through the united support of all Chicagoans.

Agree on Big Fair.

"It is agreed that we should provide a celebration of such character and magnitude as to be a worthy expression of a people's pride," Mr. Dawes stated. "It should be a fitting acknowledgment of the services of our ancestors and a source of education and inspiration, as well as entertainment to our visitors.

"We plan to invite the assistance and participation of this nation and other nations and to go beyond and away from the familiar and the standardized lines which are fixed in the public mind.

"We would like to present as the central theme of our whole undertaking what might be called, for the want of a better word, the dramatization of the progress of civilization during the hundred years of Chicago's existence.

"To carry out successfully an exposition which contains the possibilities of such dramatic interest and permanent influence requires the attention of the best minds of the nation. We feel greatly the need of assistance in formulating, announcing, and developing this theme. To this end we have appealed to the national research council at Washington.

To Profit by Research.

"We have asked the research council to help us, not only to make an adequate statement of what might be called the philosophy of our exposition, but, in addition, to have the statement indorsed by competent authorities. We must be able to present in an intelligent and convincing manner the benefits and advantages to be derived from our plans by the various associations of industries and other groups, and we need help in selecting the men who will be recognized as competent to deal with our general theme in detail.

"Plans are being made for a series of national and international conferences on matters of public interest, for a festival of music, for a carnival of sports, and for other entertainments. We expect to be able to provide a notable exhibition of art and archaeology. We have created an architectural commission into whose hands has been placed the responsibility for designing the grounds and buildings. In all these things we are trying to proceed with a national and not a local vision."

Extra Luxuries

Beyond the famed appointments—the refined beauty, the lavish spaciousness of Hotel Shoreland apartments, still extra luxuries make living here most enjoyable. So each apartment is supplied with softened, filtered hot water—softer than rain water. For the skin and complexion this soft water has no rival. It gives foods cooked in it a tenderness and flavor unknown before. While only a detail, it is one of many features which have attracted Chicago's most notable clientele.

The new Balkite AC Receiver can be compared with a fine car

Engineering refinement, therefore dependability. This sums up the Balkite AC set. For Balkite has not been content to merely give the radio public new inventive features, important as they are, but has gone much farther. Balkite has taken all that is good and practical in radio, winnowed out the best, refined and engineered it into a simple, practical, trouble-free set that matches in its faultless reception, the most complicated special laboratory-jobs. Just such quality of service that a fine car gives.

Cabinets by Berkey & Gay

Women, particularly, will admire the Balkite Cabinets—by Berkey & Gay, Balkite has gone to the most distinguished furniture house in America, because of the permanence and finality of this set; which deserves the most beautiful and lasting cabinets possible.

The receiver is AC in every sense of that loose term, a complete unit ready to operate from the light socket. It is AC without hum. It has push-pull audio, complete shielding, dynamic speaker power, a jack for reproducing records electrically, tube protection against high voltage.

Finally the price to you is, surprisingly enough, well within the upper limits of what you expect to pay for fine radio. Ask your dealer for a demonstration.

CHICAGO GOAL OF POLISH SEA HOP IN NEXT 2 WEEKS

Aviator Will Try Nonstop Flight from Europe.

A non-stop flight from Europe to Chicago will be attempted within the next two weeks by three Polish army officers, it was announced here yesterday by Ald. Stanley Adamkiewicz, chairman of a committee of Polish-Americans who have raised the money in the United States to finance the flight.

The flyers will fly from Warsaw, the capital of Poland, to Lisbon, Portugal, where they will takeoff for the hop to Chicago. If the flight is successful the Polish airmen will break the record established by the Italian flyers who this summer made a non-stop flight from Italy to Brazil.

A message received in Chicago yesterday from Capt. Adam Kowalczyk, flight commander, stated that a two-motored airplane is now being tested for the venture. Capt. Kowalczyk, who is a former world war ace, will be accompanied by Capt. Vladimir Kliasc and Col. Count Zahorski.

Invited by City Council.

President Mosciki of Poland, on the request of Ald. Adamkiewicz, designated these flyers for the flight. They will come here at the invitation of the city council.

The word from the flyers yesterday stated that their plane, christened "Polonia," will follow the southern route across the Azores for the American continent. A prize of $50,000, established by the Illinois Aero club, will be awarded the airmen if their venture is successful. It was stated yesterday that they will tour the United States after they reach Chicago. The tentative itinerary includes Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Washington, New York and Boston.

John Zaleski of Chicago, who has recently returned from Poland, where he visited Capt. Kowalczyk, said yesterday that the Polish army officers are apparently unmoved by the hazards of the flight.

Not Worried by Hazard.

The captain told him that while he was absolutely confident in the success of the venture, misfortune in the Atlantic did not worry him. "All my comrades of war are gone," he is quoted as saying, "why should I care about the risks of this flight."

The leader of the flight has spent the last two months making long flights over the Carpathian mountains to learn more of the rough air currents anticipated in the flight across the Atlantic.

"We consider the Warsaw to Chicago proposed flight a good will message from the republic of Poland to the republic of America," Ald. Adamkiewicz said yesterday. "We believe it will cement friendships and stimulate trade relations."

CAPTURE TWO AS BURGLARS.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 25.—[U. P.]—Harry Hamilton, 21, and Ralph Van Meter, 19, both of Alton, wanted in connection with the burglarizing of a Medora, Ill., store Thursday morning and the shooting of a garage mechanic, were captured here today by a squad of deputies from the sheriff's office.

THE AMERICAN EAGLE

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, ace of American airmen, who begins a series of articles on aviation in today's Chicago Tribune. Col. Lindbergh will write an educational series on flying, digressing, at times, to discuss outstanding aviation news events as they develop.

[Times Wide World Photo.]

AMERICA FINDS ITS WINGS, SAYS COL. LINDBERGH

Many Years of Labor Reach Fruition.

than 200, and indeed one of the great problems of designers now is to extend the range of flying speed so that a plane may maintain its high speed and still be able to land slowly and safely. The weight of planes has increased from a few hundred pounds to 20,000 or 30,000, and in a few years probably will be much more. The application of sound engineering principles has resulted in strong construction and greater aerodynamic efficiency. Even the weight in motors has been reduced from ten to eleven pounds per horse power to a fraction less than one pound per horse power in racing engines.

What a striking advance in the few years since airplanes first took the air! Then there was uncertainty and grave danger to the pilot or the passenger who might be rash enough to accompany him. It took real courage to fly in those days. Now the airplane, when properly built and flown by a competent pilot over regulated routes, is as safe as the automobile. It has developed from a toy or a fighting machine into a real instrument of transportation and commerce.

The Next Great Step.

The extension of these peace time uses of the airplane is the next great step in aviation. Our country has lagged behind Europe in commercial air transportation because of the different governmental policies here and abroad. Although the airplane originated in the United States, Europe soon took the lead in its development and after the war foreign governments subsidized air lines. Aviation did not pay at first and still does not pay in Europe, but abroad the necessity of developing the plane as a war machine enabled air lines to obtain financial support from the state.

Aviation was kept alive in the United States in a very different way. The present rapid extension of air lines, some of which are making a good deal of money, is due to the wise governmental policy that encouraged the development of aviation, but refused to grant subsidies. The government established the transcontinental air mail line, which, since it has been turned over to private operators, has been the backbone of commercial flying. The army and navy also made possible considerable technical progress by encouraging airplane designers and giving manufacturers enough orders, occasionally only for experimental planes, to keep their organizations active.

No Longer Experimental.

The government and the barnstorming flyers, however, kept a struggling industry going until the flights of last year made it apparent that the airplane had reached a stage where it was no longer an experimental machine. The demand for airplanes has made the industry prosperous. The new air-mindedness of the American people has led them to use to an extent greater than before the airplanes that have been slowly but surely perfected by the men who loved flying and believed in its future sufficiently to stick to the game. Commercial aviation in the United States is being extended rapidly, and air transportation which will link all parts of the country awaits only the ability of the manufacturers to produce enough planes. I fully believe that this country will soon surpass Europe in commercial flying.

America has found her wings, but she must yet learn to use them, and this period of adjustment should be approached with caution.

[Next week Col. Lindbergh will tell what makes the airplane fly.]

BRITAIN BUILDING PLANE TO STAY IN AIR 3 DAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 25.—A monoplane is being built secretly for the British air ministry to attempt duration and non-stop air records. Preliminary tests will be made in the next fortnight. It is hoped the monoplane will be able to remain in the air nearly three days, and will be able to travel between 6,000 and 7,000 miles without descending to refuel. The details are being closely guarded, but the authorities are highly optimistic.

Sentences Against Yankee Women Annulled by Turks

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 25.—(AP)—A sentence of three days, recently imposed by the Brousse petty court upon three American teachers charged with religious propaganda, has been annulled by the court of appeals, and the cases will be retried. The women are Miss Edith Sanderson of Berkeley, Cal.; Miss Lucille Day and Miss Jennie Jilson.

BIGGEST HANGAR PLANNED HERE BY AIRLINE COMPANY

Officials of the National Air Transport company yesterday announced the completion of plans and specifications for what is believed to be the largest commercial hangar in the United States. The building will provide an unobstructed span of 160 feet and will accommodate the new passenger transport planes which will be delivered to the company for use in the New York-Chicago passenger service to be opened next spring. Three motored passenger planes, which will carry from twelve to sixteen passengers, will be used in this service. The type of plane has not been selected.

A wedding one mile above Chicago will be performed at 9 a. m. tomorrow by the Rev. Hans P. Ausan, pastor of the United Evangelical Lutheran church. Carl Stoddard, head of a chain of cafeterias in Iowa, will be married to Miss Geneva Louisa Saber of Cedar Rapids, Ia., in a National Air Transport plane as it hovers over the city.

NATIONS PROPOSE AERIAL FRONTIER DEFENSE UNION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 25.—The probable coöperation of the air experts of Great Britain and France is seen in the projected agreement for frontier defenses against air attacks, as well as the exchange of staffs and pilots and coöperative maneuvers which may include Belgium. The coöperation is planned to include defense in three air districts of Asia, namely, Syria, Transjordania, and Palestine; the northeastern frontier of India and Burma, and French Indo-China, Hong Kong, and the Straits Settlements.

LAKE MICHIGAN FRONTAGE

WITH FULL RIPARIAN RIGHTS in NORTH SHORE BEACH

RIGHT ON LAKE MICHIGAN—HANDY TO THE LOOP

Above—Entrance to bathing beach showing portion of new, broad, concrete-paved parking plaza.

NOW is the time for you to get a parcel of Lake Michigan waterfront property! Maybe you'll never have another chance—certainly you never will at such prices for such a location and with such improvements as are offered in NORTH SHORE BEACH.

It's only a few years ago that the Clarendon, Wilson, Edgewater and Rogers Park beach districts were being sold "for a song." Look at them today! They have made millions for far-sighted early buyers, and their value is constantly going higher. The same kind of story is true of beach districts everywhere. Wealthy individuals, corporations and communities are taking up most of the shoreline. There is very little left that can be bought at reasonable prices and easy terms.

But in NORTH SHORE BEACH you can still buy waterfront, right! Here you can get a large lot, fronting the paved Lake Front Drive and running out to the waters of Lake Michigan, at low cost and on easy terms. It can be utilized for a fine shore home, or for a beach store, concession, hotel or apartment house, or held for future profit. You will have full control of the waterfront of your lot, as riparian rights are included with ownership.

AT USUAL BARTLETT BARGAIN PRICES

Again great cash resources, economical administration, and alertness to the demands of the times gained from more than 30 successful years' experience triumph! We were able to secure NORTH SHORE BEACH, spend vast sums of money in preparing it for distribution, and still we are able to offer it as another typical bargain opportunity such as have started thousands of Bartlett customers on the road to financial independence.

60-foot lots, well-located, near station, beach and plaza, offer home locations rich in beauty and profit possibility.

Riparian Rights Locations

Right at the water's edge, with full control of waterfront included. Priced at low figures that should indicate profit from rising future values.

50-foot business sites, on main paved avenue connecting Sheridan Road with the new beach. For present use or future profit

SMALL DOWN PAYMENTS — EASY MONTHLY TERMS

Rapid progress rules in NORTH SHORE BEACH! More than a million dollars worth of property has already been reserved by investors in advance of the formal opening date. Thousands are flocking here to see this great seaside type of development. Here are fine homes under construction—concrete streets and sidewalks going in—a modern-equipped children's playground on the beach—a broad, paved waterside parking plaza and a large pleasure pergola—two stations close to the property on fast transportation with less than an hour's running time to the Loop—a broad, clean-sanded beach giving joy to many. This improvement program shows the great effort being made to insure this new development's future as a choice community of distinctive character.

Let us mail you, without cost or obligation, a bird's-eye view showing location of beach, plaza and other features, and tell you all particulars regarding NORTH SHORE BEACH in advance of the official opening date. Also let us know if you wish to be our guest at a FREE pre-opening outing at this fine place to live, play and profit.

THE SOFT SOAP IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT.

When President Wilson went abroad for the peace conference there were vague if any premonitions of what was about to be attempted. The country was on stilts. Half the world was punch drunk. The fourteen points are sick now, but then they were new doctrines of ethical internationalism. The conferees took the open covenants of peace to be openly arrived at into the back room. In that merciful secrecy the cause of altruism was given a lily and a candle and the boys sat down to shuffle and cut the cards.

Out of the secrecy the picture came gradually. Clemenceau snarling at his associates, contemptuous of their pretenses. Wilson determined to have a world state created in his name. Lloyd George trying to be Androcles and the lion. Orlando pale with fear of losing out in the real estate scramble. Japan sitting tight, waiting for Shantung to drop into its lap. The dismemberment of the prostrate portions of the world proceeded.

When these moral documents were examined in the United States it was found that an American President had submerged every American interest, even the Monroe Doctrine, had been tricked even as to a cable station on Yap, had tied America up to a scheme of European imperialism, was underwriting it and was insisting that the American people take it and that the United States senate did not have the right to amend it, modify it with reservations or explain the American understanding and acceptance of it.

He nearly succeeded but a minority in the senate, a resolute band of men whom Mr. Wilson denounced as unspeakably small, prevented it. The judgment of the country sustained them and a campaign conducted on the league of nations issue overthrew the Democratic party.

The United States had changed Presidents and was thought to have changed policies, but confidence in that was unjustified. Presently another peace conference was meeting in Washington for the limitation of naval armaments, and Mr. Hughes, as secretary of state, was reading the list of capital ships which America would sink. The list did not come from the navy department but from the state department. Mr. Balfour, who had expected to be extended to the limit of astute statesmanship, concealed his amazement, signed on the line and went home to accept an earldom from a grateful government.

That was not enough. The advocates of vicarious sacrifice in the United States produced the world court, and Mr. Harding, a Republican President elected over a Democratic leaguist, accepted it. Mr. Harding died and Mr. Coolidge, a Vermont Yankee born with plenty of self-interest and common sense, took the court as an adopted child. It was whipped through the senate, but again the reservationists, although fewer in numbers, reduced by death and not so courageous in spirit, protected the American adherence in such fashion as to cause its rejection by member nations of the court. The United States was saved that time by an eyelash.

Mr. Coolidge, however, had not been satisfied in his adventure in internationalism. The second naval conference, at Geneva, was undertaken and again the American navy was threatened with further loss by agreement. The danger was avoided because the navy department and Hugh Gibson got control and the state department was kept out of it. There being nothing to take away from the United States the conference failed.

Next we had an innocent attempt on the part of Briand to beguile the United States into an alliance disguised as something else, and to his lure Mr. Kellogg, secretary of state, came out of the water with the war outlawry now about to be signed by European nations which suddenly perceive that the United States is in at last.

What Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lansing of the state department were willing to do in June, 1920, and tried to do, Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Kellogg are willing to do in 1928. The political decisions of the American people in elections which have rejected this internationalism have not prevailed with the state department nor with the administration in spite of the overthrow of party and the change in the presidency.

Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lansing would have subordinated the United States to a super state controlled in Europe. Mr. Harding and Mr. Hughes gave away American sea power. Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Kellogg are giving away the national defense, placing the country in the control of its organized and endowed pacifists and stimulating the debt cancellationists to new hope and renewed effort.

This, it must be said, is consistent with the tradition, the record and the ambition of the American state department, which conceives its duties and its obligations to be everywhere except where they should be. The influences which cause this may be many but they are effective. Regardless of the changes which may be made in the personnel there persists in the very atmosphere of office the potent ambition to be well regarded abroad for acts detrimental to American welfare. The flattery of European statesmen whom American representatives regard as their superiors converts the men who ought to be our lawyers into counsel for the other side.

Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Kellogg at times seem to be aware that they have overreached themselves. They may find evidence of it in the British understanding that the outlawry of war disposes of the American navy bill but underwrites the new Anglo-French alliance, in the statement of Nicholas Murray Butler, as president of the Carnegie Peace foundation, that Mr. Hoover is benighted in upholding an adequate national defense and in the statement of Prof. Shotwell, also of the Carnegie foundation, that the senate has no right to exercise any judgment in ratifying the peace pact.

When Mr. Kellogg in Paris takes up his pen to sign the documents he might reflect that Mr. Wilson was there before him bent upon giving something away. Other American secretaries have found themselves surrounded by admiring gentlemen who knew exactly what they wanted and thought they were getting it. And this time they may have it.

Senator Caraway of Arkansas has announced that a determined effort will be made in the next congress to increase the federal appropriation for flood control in the lower Mississippi and its tributaries. At the last session of congress a program of flood control which will cost the federal government $318,000,000 in the next ten years was adopted. The engineering plan is essentially that of Maj. Gen. Jadwin, chief of army engineers. His financial proposals were modified to relieve the local taxpayers of $60,000,000 of the burden which he had apportioned to them. Senator Caraway now proposes that the federal taxpayers shoulder an even greater share of the load.

The proposal for flood control received support from the states of the north and east, which supply by far the greater part of the federal income. The program was adopted in the face of the fact that the territory to be benefited is solidly opposed to the political party in power, the party which voted the appropriation. Sectionalism was forgotten in congress, as it had been forgotten some months before, when the lower valley suffered from the most disastrous flood in years. At that time the entire country poured contributions for relief into the treasury of the Red Cross. It is perhaps worth noting that a Republican congress voted hundreds of millions for benefit primarily of southern Democrats, while voting nothing to prevent a repetition of the flood in Vermont.

This newspaper was among the first to demand adequate measures of flood relief in the south. A board of engineers of unquestioned reputation has now reported that the measures proposed by Gen. Jadwin are adequate. That being so, we are forced to conclude that the federal government has undertaken all that it can properly be expected to do. Some regard must be paid to the interests of the taxpayers.

Senator Caraway's proposals indicate as clearly as anything can the universal tendency to increase the flow from the federal treasury once it has been tapped. Gen. Jadwin's first proposal, which called for a federal appropriation of $258,000,000, was virtually refused. Congress added another $60,000,000, and even then the gift was only grudgingly accepted. The southern lobby wanted the federal government to pay cash for permanent flowage rights even over swamp and cut-over lands, which will be protected nine out of ten years by government built works. Most of these lands have been subjected to floods as long as there has been a Mississippi river. Much of the land is worthless, some of it is benefited by the overflow, and more of it suffers no injury. When the government agreed to pay damages only when damage was done the lobby and its spokesmen in congress howled in protest, though to any impartial mind the proposal must have seemed not only fair, but generous. A gift of treasury gold arouses no sense of gratitude, but instead the lust for more money. Unless Senator Caraway's proposals are resisted it is certain that the precedent will lead to heavier and heavier demands upon the taxpayers and the productive wealth of the country.

Editorial of the Day

HALDANE A WAR CASUALTY.

[Kansas City (Mo.) Star.]

The death of Lord Haldane in Scotland recalls vividly the state of nerves of the nations involved in the great war. Haldane was a competent war minister from 1905 to 1912. Against formidable opposition he reorganized the British military establishment so that it was able to put a force in France immediately after the outbreak of hostilities.

Philosophy had been his avocation ever since his student days at Goettingen. He felt deeply indebted to the German philosophers, and he had once said that Germany was his spiritual home. Naturally, he hoped Britain and Germany could live peaceably together, and the year before the war, while still a member of the cabinet as lord high chancellor, he made a visit to Berlin in the hope of dissuading Germany from the naval program that was embittering relations with Britain.

In the hysteria of the war a great outcry arose against Haldane because he had had German sympathies and German friends. German servants in his home were arrested on the suspicion of being spies, and on the reorganization of the cabinet Haldane himself was excluded from it.

Now it is recognized, as Mr. Lloyd George said recently, that he was treated with "the basest ingratitude" by his country. His last years were clouded by this unjust prejudice that only gradually was dissipated as overwrought feeling calmed. The war had other victims than among the men at the front. Haldane was one of the casualties.

RELIGION AND SCIENCE

BY THE REV. FREDERICK C. GRANT, D. D.
[Dean Western Theological Seminary, Episcopal, Evanston, Ill.]

Dean Inge has somewhere remarked that "the constructive task which lies before the next century is to spiritualize science." On the other hand, the late Lord Morley wrote, in one of his essays, "The next great task of science is to create a religion for humanity." And Prof. Whitehead of Harvard has said, in his first Lowell Lectures: "When we consider what religion is for mankind, and what science is, it is no exaggeration to say that the future course of history depends upon the decision of this generation as to the relations between them." With these three modern texts in mind, we may proceed to ask, What is the present status, and what are the prospects of a mutual understanding?

The world has seen what an unchristian, irreligious, unspiritual and "godless" science leads to—namely, to something just as deplorable, perhaps even more deplorable than, an unscientific religion. For it leads to a one sided interpretation of experience, blending all too readily with what has passed for a materialistic philosophy of nature. And it blindly submits to be the tool of a social philosophy which uses such terms as "survival," "evolution," "biological necessity," and so on, but means something quite unscientific, anti-social, ghastly, suicidal, and even devilish.

We caught a glimpse of the destined outcome of such a social philosophy in the horrors of the world war—not only in the horrors of the actual slaughter but also in the abomination of ideas that accompanied it.

If human experience is to be worth continuing and preserving, and the human race a species worthy of survival, something must be done to draw together and relate, indeed to identify, our judgments of value and our judgments of fact, i. e., the best that we hope and believe, with what we know of the world experimentally. Since our highest values are those enshrined in religion, science must be "spiritualized," and our world of facts must be related to our world of values. The two may exist in isolation, for a while; but meantime we perish, as intellectually honest persons.

It is intolerable that what is true in fact should not be true in philosophy, or what is true in theology should be false in philosophy or science, and vice versa—as the idea has been expressed by minds more ardent than profound.

Indeed, from the point of view of both science and religion such a course of rapprochement is most desirable, not to say inevitable. In truth, the two cannot be kept apart; and though the nineteenth century, with its long and bitter "warfare of science and theology," may have seemed to acquiesce in a cynicism like that of the domestically unhappy man, who said of his wife that he "couldn't get along with her or without her," it may be that the twentieth century has something more felicitous in store. If religion is true, it has a bearing at least upon the final reading of the scientist's data and discoveries. If science is true, a religion which would ignore, permanently and completely, the facts and hypotheses of science cannot count upon an indefinite future. Its "expectation," in the life insurance sense, is limited and its days are numbered; probably the next generation or two, if modern education continues, will see its finish.

A true religion has nothing to fear from a true science, from a science willing to admit the limited and really abstract range of its investigations, and to recognize that for a full and complete account of existence, other facts, values, and hypotheses are necessary in addition to those with which science ordinarily deals. It is only the fear of new ideas, an intellectually lazy conservatism, or even a covert skepticism, that has terrorized religious minds when confronted with the scientific account of the world. On the other hand, a true science has nothing to fear at the hands of a true religion. Many of the great names in modern scientific history, including the science of today, are those of religious men; and if you call the roll of the real leaders in Christian history, including the present, i. e., the true prophets, the creative minds, the men in whom the genius of the Christian religion is genuinely expressed, how many of them have been or are persecutors or antagonists of science? As Newman Smyth once remarked in a Yale laboratory, "How would Butler, Aquinas, and Augustine have reveled in modern scientific research!"

We say this fully mindful of the persecution of rising science by conservative ecclesiastics and by fanatical religious revolutionists alike. The danger has often come from little minds, swayed by loyalty to what they felt were popular interests, frightened by new views beyond their capacity of assimilation, and driven to the 'weakling's last weapon of defense—persecution. Yet in every generation, we are beginning to realize, there were those who had not bowed the knee to intolerance and fanaticism. It has been reserved to our day—and chiefly, alas, to our nation—to behold the dying embers of the persecution mania fanned into a final smoky pretense of fire. One is inevitably reminded of the decline of chivalry caricatured in the pages of Cervantes' masterpiece, "Don Quixote."

If the present anti-scientific movement is the full force a losing cause can muster, then its days are numbered, and neither science nor religion has much to fear from it. Were the movement stronger and more promising, religion would no doubt have more to dread in the prospect than science, and the future of intelligent faith might appear to be in jeopardy. But save for a few conspicuous Quixotes, the religious leadership of America is in the hands of those friendly to science—indeed, more or less scientifically educated, thanks to the American college and university system; and the majority of modern scientific men, at least here in America, are said to be either professed believers in religion or at least sympathetic in their attitude toward religion—and toward the Christian religion. The future harmony of religion and science thus seems a not impossible ideal, and at least their external harmony to be an accomplished fact.

Somehow, life began; it is here. Somehow, it uses matter, building it up into organic structures or patterns; the patterns change, but life moves on. Somehow, what once were called "inorganic" structures display an organizing, constructive behavior akin or at least analagous, on a lower level, to the organic processes of life. Probe as deeply as we may, "life" seems to be thoroughly immaterial, granting the popular definition of "material," while matter shades off into qualities, structures, patterns of energy.

The beginning of it all, the Efficient and Final Cause of it all, the Mind devising it all, the Christian creed ascribes to God. And far from the mystery passing out of life, with which religion ever concerns itself, it is here in tenfold abundance. How unsearchable are the ways of God, and past our finding out! What we know of them is only a tiny fragment of a whole which we do not know, but which reflects the glory and splendor of the Eternal, whose thoughts we are able "to think after Him" in a childlike, infantine way.

BY AUGUSTUS M. TOPLADY.

Rock of ages, cleft for me, let me hide myself in thee;
Let the water and the blood, from thy wounded side that flowed,
Be of sin the double cure, save from wrath and make me pure.

Could my tears forever flow, could my zeal no languor know,
These for sin could not atone; thou canst save and thou alone;
In my hand no price I bring; simply to thy cross I cling.

While I draw this fleeting breath, when my eyes shall close in death,
When I rise to worlds unknown, and behold thee on thy throne,
Rock of ages, cleft for me, let me hide myself in thee.

TO TAN OR NOT TO TAN.

THE place is an open space in the men's dressing quarters of a public bathing beach. Most of the benches are occupied by men lying full length and taking the sunlight treatment.

The bodies of some of these men supply the best proof that the tanning part of sunlight cannot penetrate cloth. All skin covered ordinarily by any part of the bathing suit shines white in contrast with the mahogany brown nearby skin. Many of the men have removed their bathing suits in order to tan the untanned areas of the skin. The male of the species is too superior to care for looks and, therefore, does not object to tigerlike stripes because they overthrow his pulchritude. Therefore, he is tanning his stripes of white because of the good he thinks it does him.

In the first place, no well informed person tans the skin in order to improve its texture. Nor is there any premium on any appearance which raises the Jim Crow law, written or implied. These men are tanning the skin because they think doing so is good for what ills within. They probably do not know that tanning is the method the skin employs to keep the light out. Assuming that sunlight is good for what the skin covers, we should avoid tanning since that is a fence built to keep the good stuff out. Under that assumption, the wise policy would be to keep some part of the body, say the left shoulder blade, untanned. As occasion arose that part of the body made famous by Gilbert and Sullivan might be exposed briefly in order to cure rickets or some other impending calamity.

Before dismissing the text for this sermon, let us digress one step. The bodies of some of these men offered proof that the tanning part of the light ray does not penetrate water. These men had to come on the beach to tan, thus proving that codfish must borrow vitamin D from some other source. So much for one side of the question. Now for the other.

It has been found that the pigmented skin of the Negro does not prevent the sunlight treatment from curing him of rickets. One explanation is that the skin layer which holds the pigment lies below that one which takes part in the cure of rickets. If this be true then a man can get much of the good effects of light even though his skin is tanned to a dark brown. Maybe tanned skin lets through enough and, at the same time, serves to prevent overdosage.

Such are the arguments for and against tanning.

COOLER WEATHER IS BETTER.

Mrs. L. S. writes: I want to have my child vaccinated before he goes to school. Will it affect him in this hot weather?

REPLY.

As a rule, it is better to wait until cooler weather. In the first place, vaccine does not keep well in hot weather. In the second place, it is not easy to protect a vaccination scratch against infection in very hot weather. There are occasions when it is necessary to violate the rule.

If you have the boy vaccinated now, consider the method by injection into the skin.

MANY MODELS OF HUMANS.

G. E. H. writes: Is it a fact that fresh peaches act as an astringent, while fresh pears act as a laxative?

They do so with me, but I have seen it doubted by those to whom I have suggested that that is their usual action.

REPLY.

The difference in action is peculiar to you. Not all people are built on the same model.

WEEDS ARE LAID LOW.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—[Friend of the People.]—The weeds along Granville avenue, west of Western and especially near Maplewood avenue, have grown so high that there have been several automobile accidents. Young and married women in the neighborhood are also frightened to come up late at night, as in the dark it would be very easy to hide therein.

Could this cause be remedied by having the weeds cut? H. C. R.

Report is made that men are now engaged in cutting weeds in the 50th ward and Granville avenue, west of Western avenue, will be reached within a short time.

WANTS A CLEAN FLAT.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I signed a lease to run for two years, to expire Sept. 30, 1928, this lease stipulating that at the beginning of the second year the premises were to be redecorated and specifying the things to be done. The agent for the owner has refused to do the decorating called for in the lease.

1. Can I consider the lease null and void and vacate the premises before the expiration of the lease?

2. Can I claim some damage for having been compelled to reside in a dirty apartment?

3. As the lease provides for a third year option, can I claim damages for expenses incurred by reason of being obliged to move elsewhere? G. A. M.

1. We doubt if a court would consider this clause so vital as to justify so drastic a retaliation. It would be preferable to notify the landlord that if he does not comply with the agreement you will hire the work done and deduct the cost from your rent.

2. Not if you have acquiesced.

3. Not with substantial hopes of collection. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PERSONAL TAX.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man dies and leaves several notes, mortgages, and bonds and some real estate. This man was single at the time of his death, living with his father. He had no personal property such as furniture, automobile, etc. Does he have to pay anything to the county as a personal tax on this? If so, how much and for what items mentioned above?

E. S.

There is no exemption from the personal property tax. Personal property includes all property other than real estate. The question whether there is an inheritance tax depends on the size of the gifts.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—News has just been received from Fortress Monroe, telling of the partial reduction of Fort Sumter, and it is further stated that Charleston is being shelled. The Richmond Sentinel, in a dispatch from Charleston, dated Aug. 22, says that Gen. Gillmore demanded the surrender of Fort Sumter and Morris island, with a threat to shell Charleston within 24 hours after the papers were received at Fort Wagner, and that in his reply Gen. Beauregard charged violation of the laws of war against Gillmore.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Gov. Curtin has received reliable information that Gen. Lee is planning a cavalry raid into Pennsylvania. He is consequently contemplating the organization of a cavalry force of 25,000 men to meet the invaders at the border.

CHICAGO.—W. H. Cavin, M. D., of Hudson, Wis., and Miss Carrie A. Griffith of this city were married at the home of the bride's father, David Griffith, on Aug. 25 by the Rev. Robert Laird Collier.

CHICAGO. — Lieut. Col. Joseph Stockton of the 72d [1st Board of Trade] regiment arrived home from Natchez, where his regiment is now serving under Gen. Ransom. He left here a year ago as a first lieutenant, and his rapid promotion indicates his services have been appreciated.

WASHINGTON.—After many vexatious delays the First Illinois infantry has sailed on the transport Berkshire from Santiago for Montauk Point. The soldiers will be placed in quarantine on their arrival, and when it is lifted will be sent either to Fort Sheridan or Springfield, Ill.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—Dissensions between Col. Casimir Andel, commanding the 4th Illinois regiment, and other officers of the regiment over the question of going to Cuba culminated in Col. Andel ordering the arrest of Lieut. Col. McWilliams and Majs. Land, Bennett and Elliott on the charge of violating the 61st article of war "by conduct unbecoming officers and gentlemen." Col. Andel favors mustering out the regiment. The officers are charged with sending telegrams to Gov. Tanner and Senator Mason saying that all the officers, with two or three exceptions, and 90 per cent of the men desire to go to Cuba, and asking that influence be used to send the regiment there. The arrested officers were compelled to hand over their swords to the colonel.

CHICAGO.—One hundred and thirty-six sick troopers of the 1st Illinois cavalry arrived home and were sent to Fort Sheridan.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE. — On some parts of the northern battle front the British have reached points 1,000 yards from the old Hindenburg line which seems strongly held. In addition to crossing the Albert-Bapaume road at many places the British have made progress southward for a considerable distance, with the cavalry operating in front of the infantry.

LONDON.—Reconnoitering patrols of British troops are entering Bapaume. It is reported that British outposts have reached the fringe of Bullencourt, which lies seven miles northeast of Bapaume, and captured the high wood east of Albert. Australians captured the German positions on the high ground east of Bray.

PARIS.—The French continued their progress east of Bagneux, between the Aliette and the Aisne, and repulsed counter attacks east of Crecy-au-Mont.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE. — Reports from various sources say that the Germans are retreating north of the Vesle owing to continued pressure along the French and British fronts. American troops advanced their lines slightly east of Bazoches, while other American units in the Vosges inflicted heavy losses on the enemy in repulsing a raid.

CHICAGO.—Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Helen Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stanton Peck of Barrington, R. I., and Weir Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Williams of Evanston which will take place on Sept. 10.

RAILROADS VERSUS BUSSES.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Wherever bus lines are operated the railroads are already operating their passenger service at a loss. The rates charged by railroad companies are made with a view of making a reasonable profit. The railroad companies are the largest tax-paying organization in our city, county, and state governments, and in order to pay taxes they must operate at a profit. The railroads must buy land for right of way, construct their tracks, and then maintain and operate them in a high standard of efficiency, the cost of which is taken into consideration when the interstate commerce commission authorizes the rates to be used.

Now, consider the bus lines. These big busses are crowding and damaging our highways. The highways are constructed and maintained with the taxpayers' money. Do the people derive any profit by bus lines locating and operating here? Do the bus lines pay any taxes or any amount for the use of these highways? No; their only cost is a bus license for a nominal sum to operate through the state, and recent investigation here in Chicago proved that a considerable number of busses operating through several states did not even do this.

Will the people ever tumble to the fact that if the railroads lose on passenger service they must reduce the passenger service accordingly? Corrective measures should be taken up by the people, to the end that the bus lines be made to bear their proportionate share of the expense, thereby causing a fair competition between these two classes of transportation.

J. M. KOMP,
Illinois Central Railroad Company.

THE ISSUE DEFINED.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Though reluctant to prolong a discussion, of which I fear THE TRIBUNE and its readers have had enough, I cannot rest easy under the imputation, in Mr. Taylor's last letter, that 'I have been making all this fuss about a grade separation at a mere turn in the road. Of course, there can be no cross traffic at what he calls the "L" turn, and no separation is needed there.

What I had reference to was the point where Wacker drive traffic will join the through north and south traffic of the new outer drive, wherever that point may be. And that is where Mr. Taylor admits that traffic lanes will intersect, and where "there is likely to be a small amount of cross traffic in the future." Well, I contend there will be more than a small amount. Which brings us, not to agreement, but to the exact point on which we disagree. And there I think we will have to leave the discussion until the completed drive furnishes a demonstration.

CECIL BARNES.

NOISE ON THE RIVER.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Why do the size and volume of whistles on boats in the Chicago river increase in inverse ratio with the size of the boat? Why do they blow these whistles with reckless abandon when there is no necessity for raising a bridge and no traffic with which they can interfere? Is there not some business men's association with whom we can negotiate to secure an abatement of this whistling nuisance?

C. B. ADAMS.

THE RAILROADS' HANDICAP.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—A correspondent in your columns asked why the railroads do not "tumble to the fact that a reduction in passenger fares is the only way to retain what little business they have." Is he aware of the fact that rates are established by the interstate commerce commission and, further, that the railroads can never compete with the bus as a means of transportation so long as they have a right of way to maintain and are paying a heavy tax for the roads used by the busses? Could the bus owners build their own right of way, maintain it, and, in addition, pay a tax to the states through which they operate to maintain the roads on which their competitors operate; be restricted by various laws in the operation of their business; meet the price of their competitors, and still make a fair return for the stockholders? I don't think so. ROY E. HANSEN.

THE ITALIANIZATION OF TRIESTE.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—The articles that THE TRIBUNE has been publishing on Italian affairs ever since its correspondent was kicked out of Italy have been of such apparent malignity that no intelligent Italian has ever paid any attention to them.

Today's correspondence from Larry Rue on the "Italianization of Trieste" is also misleading, inasmuch as it magnifies what no doubt is merely an incident in the restoration of the rights of the Italians.

What I would like to take exception to is the caption by your foreign editor. Trieste, you may rest assured, has been for centuries the most Italian of Italian cities. The "Italia Irredenta" movement would have not survived years of servility on the part of Italian statesmen and politicians had it not been for the people of Trieste.

As a college student in Italy before the war, I took part in several demonstrations against Austria. Invariably they were started by Trieste Italians. During the war I was in close touch with the New York bureau of the "Italia Irredenta." I have yet to meet as patriotic Italians as those friends of mine from Trieste.

However, if your foreign editor had been more careful in reading Mr. Rue's copy he should have noticed that even Mr. Rue writes of the Slavs in and about Trieste as "minority population." To speak then of "Italianization of Trieste" is not only misleading but simply ridiculous. GIOVANNI SCHIAVO.

PEDESTRIAN'S RIGHTS.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—How might it be if a yellow light flashed even for thirty seconds an absolutely clear free passage for the pedestrian? It would seem as though the greatest danger to the pedestrian under the green light was the vehicle coming round the corner.

When we fought against the railroad grade crossing the number of fatal injuries yearly was far below that which now obtains through the auto. Is not THE TRIBUNE aware that recently the Supreme court decided [our friend Justice Holmes wrote the decision] that the pedestrian had the prior and super right to cross the street in any direction, at any part of the street, at any time, and that the vehicle driver was thereon subject accordingly?

Standard Warranty for Pneumatic Casings and Tubes

"Every pneumatic tire of our manufacture bearing our name and serial number is warranted by us against defects in material and workmanship during the life of the tire to the extent that if any tire fails because of such defect, we will either repair the tire or make a reasonable allowance on the purchase of a new tire."

The Tire Manufacturing Members of The RUBBER INSTITUTE Inc.

Look for this Warranty at your local dealer's service station.

THIS announcement, issued simultaneously in all parts of the country on August 16, met with an instant response from car owners and tire merchants alike.

No man who reads this will have failed to see similar announcements in the windows of tire stores—copies of the warranty displayed on dealers' walls—newspaper advertisements by individual manufacturers and by dealers confirming the policy.

For it is the voice of the industry, representing the producers of over 95% of the tires made in America.

It is the acceptance of full responsibility for the merit of their product by manufacturers who have learned that real quality means more to their customers than definite mileage guarantees.

Years ago these standard manufacturers discontinued the outworn practice of guaranteeing a definite number of miles in order to sell their tires.

As a selling inducement the so-called "mileage guarantee" was inevitably pushed beyond all reasonable bounds. It resulted in unjustified allowances to the unscrupulous driver who abused his tires and misrepresented his mileage, thus penalizing the careful driver who took care of his tires and was honest in his claims.

With its passing, all tire users felt the benefit at once in lower tire costs. Today you pay less for tires than ever before in history. Few, if any commodities, show so steady a reduction in prices.

The art of tire building has improved as well, until the casing and tube you buy today can be counted on to carry you more miles than was thought possible even so short a time as five years ago.

The unlimited guarantee of quality is the natural outcome; the warranty against defects for the life of the tire is a final expression of the manufacturer's confidence in his product—

—a guarantee broader in its protection to the individual, yet fairer in its operation to all, than anything ever offered to the car-owning public.

WIDESPREAD LOCAL SERVICE

THE HUNDRED THOUSAND DEALERS widespread throughout the country who handle the standard tires named above and who display this warranty, add a further value to your purchase in the services they render locally for your immediate convenience . . .

—giving expert advice on proper size and type —mounting and dismounting
—checking inflation
—checking wheel alignment
—maintaining repair service

By availing themselves of these expert facilities, car owners have secured maximum mileage from their tires. The workmanship of the tire-builder and the services of the tire dealer are thus linked together in support of the manufacturer's warranty.

'IT'S SURPRISING,' SHERIFF SAYS, 'WHO ASK CARDS'

Nearly 10,000 Out for April 10 Primary.

Sheriff Charles E. Graydon, on the eve of his return to the ice business, was in a confiding mood yesterday. With his highway police chief, James L. Devereux, he told an inside story about courtesy cards and automobile stars.

"It's the hoodlums who are most anxious to get these stars," the sheriff said.

"There isn't much use of wearing a star on a car unless you want to violate the law or common traffic courtesy," the chief agreed.

Nearly 10,000 Courtesy Cards.

The sheriff and his subordinates have issued 9,863 courtesy cards, they disclosed, but they were emphatic in asserting that neither has ever issued an automobile star. Of a dozen pictures of automobile stars published in THE TRIBUNE in the last few days, two of the badges read "deputy sheriff." Of these two, one hundred per cent were being used without authority, Sheriff Graydon said.

The sheriff armed a deputy with a letter notifying Dr. Clarence A. Neymann, 3740 Sheridan road, that his commission had been revoked some time ago and that he should surrender his badges. A similar letter was addressed to Morton H. Cohen, 7621 Eastlake terrace, stating that there was no record of his ever having been a deputy and that he also should give up his insignia.

Too Many Starred Cars.

"I am the only sheriff who never issued these stars," Graydon said. "When I took office two years ago I thought I'd stop all cars with badges on them to see whether they were authentic. There were too many of them and after halting such men as County Judge Jarecki, I was worn out and quit."

Courtesy cards also were discussed.

"We issued them in bunches just before the April 10 primary," Chief Devereux remarked.

"And I used the names as a mailing list for political literature," Sheriff Graydon added.

"But no more go out of my office," Devereux said.

"And hereafter I've got to see the man personally before he gets my card," the sheriff added.

"Of what value are the cards?" a reporter asked.

"Merely for identification," Graydon replied. "They don't give anyone any police authority, and whenever some one gets into trouble we take his card away from him."

"Avoids Some Annoyances."

"Well, if you're riding along the highway and get stopped for speeding you can show your card and maybe it will save you a ride to the highway police station. Don't misunderstand. You'll get an arrest ticket just the same, but the policeman will know that you will report in court and you won't have to post bond."

"It's only the stars that are used for imposing on the public," Devereux added.

"Who has these cards?" a reporter inquired.

"I don't know all of them, but you'd be surprised at some of the big business men who carry them," the sheriff chuckled. "Some of the biggest men in this town have my courtesy cards."

"Will you make the list public?" he was asked.

"No. It would be all right as far as I'm concerned, but some of these big men might feel that I am violating a confidence by publishing their names. I'm going back to the ice business in November and I want to keep my friends."

Graydon, a Republican of the Thompson-Crowe-Galpin faction, was defeated in the primary last spring.

In the meantime, Mike Carrozzo, business agent for the street cleaners' union, still was absent from Judge Howard Hayes' court, where he is charged with gun toting. His lawyer, Senator Adolph Marks, promised to surrender him last Thursday. Carrozzo had a state highway maintenance police card.

Before Judge Frank Padden, George Davenport, 23 years old, 2324 West Adams street, was recommended for clemency as a first offender and was placed on six months' probation for trying to obtain a $500 fur coat with a bogus check from a Michigan avenue shop. He carried one of Sheriff Graydon's courtesy cards and a special city police star he had obtained several months ago when he was employed by a West Madison street dance hall.

"We Have a Drag" Club.

A TRIBUNE reporter, in a stroll through Streeterville noticed eleven automobiles with the "We have a drag" stars. The owners, as identified by the state license numbers, are as follows:

CITY OF CHICAGO OFFICIAL—John J. Murphy, 3500 Sheridan road; Louis P. Piquett, 661 Irving Park boulevard; H. G. Meyers, 39 South La Salle street.

NORTH SHORE PARK DISTRICT.—Theodore E. Cornell, 6543 Greenview avenue.

ILLINOIS POLICE RESERVES—Robert H. Reid, 33 East Elm street.

PERSONAL STAFF PRESIDENT OF THE COUNTY BOARD—Robert A. Cavenaugh, 442 Wellington avenue; John Wesley, 4450 Ashland avenue.

ASSISTANT COMMERCE COMMISSIONER STATE OF ILLINOIS—Carleton A. Coon, Marlborough hotel.

COUNTY OF COOK HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT — Cement Finishers' union, Harry Beihl, president, 906 Monroe street.

JURY COMMISSIONER—James J. McVicker, 2436 Sheffield avenue.

SANITARY DISTRICT POLICE—George Marco, 6375 Ridgeland avenue.

Others Using Stars.

Other stars were seen on the boulevards but their inscription could not be read because the cars were in motion. The owners, according to their licenses, are as follows:

Edwin G. Foreman Jr., Sheridan road, Glencoe; James R. McMurdie, Drake hotel; Otto M. Rice, 3665 Washington boulevard; K. C. Leaton, 2478 Orchard street; Harry I. Kraywitz, 1005 North California avenue; John A. Graham, 10729 Avenue J; Joseph Szejwa, 4424 Altgeld street; J. Geiserowich, 1421 Millard street; Marvin T. Sackrison, 4424 La Porte avenue; C. P. Ernst, 4421 Sawyer avenue; A. M. Jackson, 2057 Berwyn avenue; P. R. Crippen, 7340 Jeffrey avenue; George L. Weed, 4509 Woodlawn avenue; Henry Grandt Jr., 5036 Avondale avenue; M. V. Pacelli, 2235 Thomas street; James A. Hendley, 3619 South parkway; Edward Coury, 2126 West Washburne avenue.

In so far as could be learned, none of these cars was being used in a police service that would entitle the owners to special privileges either in driving or parking.

"WE HAVE A DRAG"

Charles S. Davidson, 6636 Normal boulevard, "State of Illinois Department of Public Welfare."

Cement Finishers' union, Harry Biehl, president, 906 Monroe street, "County of Cook Highway Department."

George Marco, 6735 Ridgeland avenue, "Sanitary District Police."

H. G. Meyers, 39 South La Salle street, "City of Chicago Official."

Robert A. Cavenaugh, 422 Wellington avenue, "Personal Staff, President of the County Board."

Robert H. Reid, 33 East Elm street, "Illinois Police Reserves."

More members of the "Star league" discovered yesterday who expect better treatment on streets and highways than ordinary motorists.

TOOMBS' INSURANCE STOCKHOLDERS ARE SAVED BY MERGER

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 25.—(AP)—The Missouri State Life Insurance company today merged with the International Life Insurance company under court order and assumed all obligations of approximately $320,000,000 outstanding insurance of the International. Thus no policy holder loses anything in the wreck of the International, charged to its president, Roy C. Toombs of Chicago.

Hillsman Taylor, president of the Missouri State company, said he estimated stockholders could count on receiving at least $107 a share for stock which they bought at about $85 a share.

William G. Darst, secretary of the International, was arrested today on a charge of signing a fraudulent certificate of stock, which is a felony punishable by from two to seven years imprisonment. Three warrants against Toombs charge over-issue of stock. The circuit attorney's office was informed Darst signed stock certificates in blank and turned them over to Toombs.

TOOMBS' AID IS ARRESTED.

William G. Darst, secretary of the International Life Insurance company, was arrested in St. Louis on a charge of signing a fraudulent certificate of stock, it was learned here yesterday. Three warrants against Roy C. Toombs, former president of the company and of the bankrupt brokerage house of Toombs & Daily, charge overissue of stock. Darst signed stock certificates in blank and turned them over to Toombs, according to the St. Louis prosecutor's office.

THREE NATIONS PUSH SEARCH FOR ROCKFORD PLANE

Explorer in Arctic Asked to Give Aid.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 25.—[U. P.]—Three nations continued their search along the Greenland coast today for traces of the airplane Greater Rockford in which Bert Hassell and Parker D. Cramer started from Cochrane, Ont., to Mount Evans, Greenland.

Belief was expressed that the aviators had landed some place in Greenland after reports reached here saying that citizens of Leichtenfels and Fiskenaesset had seen a plane Sunday morning.

The two towns are well off the course for the flight from Cochrane to Greenland.

It was considered likely, however, that the aviators had been blown off their course by high winds, which they encountered in Quebec, had struck lower Greenland and still were attempting to find the landing field when they were forced down from lack of fuel.

Offer Reward for Joker.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 25.—(AP)—The executive committee of the American Radio Relay League, Inc., at a special meeting today, authorized a reward of $500 for information leading to the apprehension of the person or persons who broadcast the messages signed "Rockford Flyers" and which are now believed to have been false.

Officials of the organization are thoroughly aroused both over the messages purported to have been sent by the missing flyers, Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, and by the imputation that they may have been sent by some licensed amateur operator as a practical joke.

"We have committed ourselves to the task of running down the person or persons who sent the messages," Secretary Kenneth B. Warner of the league told the Associated Press today, "and will go to any lengths to apprehend and punish those responsible. We are broadcasting the announcement of the reward from every amateur station in the league chain and we hope in that way to get something definite and concrete to work on."

Canada Abandons Hunt.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Search in northern Canadian waters for the missing airplane Greater Rockford was called off by the Canadian government here today following receipt from the Rockford-Stockholm flight committee of a telegram stating there was positive proof that the plane had been seen over Greenland last Sunday morning.

M'MILLAN ASKED TO AID.

Chicago's interest in the search for the lost Rockford flyers, Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, was intensified yesterday when authorities of the Field museum radioed to Capt. Donald B. McMillan, leader of the Rawson-McMillan arctic expedition of the museum, to assist as far as possible in efforts to locate the aviators.

The move was made by the Chicago officials after receipt of a telegram from Clarence M. Young, director of aeronautics of the U. S. department of commerce, suggesting that the ships of the expedition might be invaluable in rendering aid.

It is thought that the expedition has sailed from the scientific station at Nain, Labrador, on the return voyage, having completed the work of the season.

JACQUELINE LOGAN NOT TO LIVE WITH NEW HUSBAND TILL MARCH

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Jacqueline Logan, film actress, and her recently wed husband, William Lawrence Winston, Los Angeles broker, returned home today to start married life as single persons until the actress' divorce from Ralph Gillespie becomes final next March.

Miss Logan, accompanied by a maid and a large bundle of clothing, but without her husband, arrived today by airplane. Winston drove into town by automobile this evening from Lower California, where the couple were married. While Miss Logan went to a Los Angeles hotel, Winston took rooms at a Hollywood hostelry.

The actress, after being told that the Los Angeles district attorney's office might take action against her if she and her husband returned here to live together as man and wife, said the two would remain apart until she receives her final decree from her former husband, Gillespie. At that time, Miss Logan declared, she and Winston would be remarried.

STRIKER'S HOME TENTH BOMBED IN LABOR WAR

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The tenth bomb in Kenosha's labor war in less than two months was thrown early today at the home of Eric Tillman, member of the general strike committee of the Allen A Knitters' union. The bomb had been thrown from the street and landed about eighteen feet from the house. Aside from breaking several windows and uprooting shrubbery, little damage was done.

It was the first bomb aimed at the home of a striker.

Police said they believe the bomb is a reprisal for damage done to knitters' homes.

The condition of Rudolph Weigel, 22, Allen A knitter, who was shot from ambush yesterday, today was reported as slightly improved.

3 Toughs Stab Youth Who Saves Girl from Attack

Kewanee, Ill., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Phillip Rotz, 19, of Kewanee is in a hospital with numerous stab wounds inflicted by a trio of unidentified youths who stopped him on his way home with his sweetheart from Toulon and attempted to attack the girl. Rotz succeeded in defeating their attempt but was badly injured.

OBITUARY.

JOHN H. HARTKE, 80 years old, pioneer resident of Cincinnati, who came to Chicago to engage in the decorating business, died yesterday at the home of his son, Frank Hartke, 255 North Longcommon road, Riverside. Funeral services will be conducted at 10:30 tomorrow morning at St. Mary's church, Riverside. Burial will be at Cincinnati.

PLAN APPEAL TO PRESIDENT FOR INDIANA DRAGON

Gary, Ind., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Rebuffed in their recent attempt to free D. C. Stephenson from the state prison through a writ of habeas corpus, attorneys for the former klan leader today announced plans for an appeal to President Coolidge for a ninety day parole during which time Stephenson would supervise preparations of a new appeal to the Indiana Supreme court.

Announcement of the contemplated action was made here by Attorney Robert Moore, following a conference with his client at the prison yesterday afternoon.

Stephenson is serving a life sentence for the murder of an Indianapolis girl.

An Indiana Supreme court writ was issued early this week to prevent Circuit Judge John Richter of Laporte from hearing the habeas corpus action in which Stephenson sought release on bond pending review of his murder conviction in 1925. The writ was asked on the contention that he had been illegally convicted.

Attorney Moore said that the appeal from the murder conviction which is now before the Supreme court is not of his choosing and charges that the briefs on file are prejudicial to Stephenson.

BANDIT BLAMES RUNAWAY WIFE FOR DOWNFALL

When Policeman Ryan of the Woodlawn station last night seized Harry Larson, 29 years old, and his brother-in-law, Herman Smith, 24, both of 6216 Dorchester avenue, in the act of holding up William Hogue a block from his home, at 6528 Kimbark avenue, Larson said he had been driven to become a stickup man because he was despondent. He explained he was despondent because his wife had left him.

But the police were disposed to doubt that story when they found in his pocket a check signed by Dr. André Safrine of 7959 Indiana avenue and showed it to the physician. Dr. Safrine said the check had been taken away from him by two men who held him up on Aug 10, and he went to the station and identified Larson and Smith as the robbers.

FUNERAL RITES TOMORROW FOR JAMES HEANEY

Funeral services for James B. Heaney, former president of the Logan Square Trust and Savings bank, will be held tomorrow at St. Sylvester's church, Palmer square and Humboldt boulevard.

Mr. Heaney died of pneumonia at St. Mary's hospital Friday. He returned to Chicago two weeks ago from Jacksonville, Fla., where he had gone in 1921, following his retirement from business. He had become president of the Logan Square Trust and Savings bank in 1916.

Mr. Heaney was 66 years old. He is survived by his wife, a son, an adopted daughter, and his brother, Charles N. Heaney, a divisional chief in the fire department.

Tho' Many Miles Away They Call Hursen

Not so long ago it was customary to call the "nearest" funeral director. There was little incentive to go beyond the neighborhood. The "Hursen" revolution in funeral methods, service, quality and equipment has changed this old, old custom completely.

The reason now why there are so many thousands who will call no one but "Hursen" is because "Hursen" lavishes on every funeral, large and small, that distinct Hursen method and elegance which it is impossible to secure anywhere else. It ceases to be a question of distance. Every day there are calls from homes as much as 15 or 20 miles away.

The Hursen organization wipes out distance. As proof of it, witness the many Hursen funerals even into the far suburbs of Chicago. Hursen is as near to you as your telephone. The desire for unexcelled elegance in every detail, the demand for the finest funeral limousines and for the Hursen limousine-hearses is fulfilled only when the funeral is directed by Hursen.

Another powerful factor is this: the charges for Hursen funerals are always less than the charges made anywhere else. Extreme elegance is never sacrificed. This is why "Hursen's" is today the largest and finest establishment of its kind in America. When you demand the best, call Hursen, of course!

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam.

PEASE—Joseph Pease, Aug 26, 1927.
My lips cannot speak how I love you,
My heart cannot tell what to say.
God only knows how I miss you,
And how lonesome I am today.
Time may heal my broken heart,
Time may make the wound less sore,
But time will never stop the longing
For the loved one gone before.
BROKEN HEARTED MOTHER.

ELKS TO HONOR HANSON, VICTIM OF DRY GUNMAN

Body Will Lie in State; Funeral Today.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Jacob D. Hanson is dead but his soul goes marching on. His body is in state in an undertaking parlor on Main street today, and his name is on every man's lips, his death a story with one refrain.

They say it may swing this part of New York to Al Smith. On street corners, in hotels, and among the groups along the river, they wonder if something won't happen now to stop prohibition killings. Senator Copeland is to start a row in congress. The district attorney is to start a fight here; wait and see.

House of Unusual Interest.

In the quiet street, called Main street, there was a house of unusual interest. Men passed up and down the steps all day.

And inside was the heavy smell of flowers and a tiptoeing about. In the parlor, lying on the couch, almost as if he had dropped asleep, was the body of the man who was shot by coast guardsmen last May, as he was innocently driving long the highway.

"Yes, that's Jake," men whispered.

Old Terrifying Mystery.

There was majesty here. The old terrifying mystery. Kings, presidents, warriors and saints may lie in state, by official proclamation. Jake Hanson was put here by those who loved him and who feel that he may serve even now as a figure in a cause.

"Brother," was the one word written in the flowers by his head. There was no casket in sight, just the still figure and waxen face lying there for all the world to see. No weeping. He had no wife or children.

Sort of Double Service.

So he will lie in state again tomorrow in the new temple of the Elks, which will have the strange dedication, and a funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon that may carry the story of Jacob Hanson's death farther than ever. At least this is what the Elk brothers hope. A sort of double service will be held with the lodge ritual given. The exalted ruler and officers and remarks by the Rev. A. S. Bacon, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The sentiment of the community seems to be expressed in the following editorial in the Niagara Falls Gazette today:

"The tragedy of May 6 is complete. Jacob D. Hanson, victim of government gunmen, is dead. After weeks of suffering, the result of an irresponsible act on the part of government agents, he has passed out of his misery.

". . . During all the long days that have intervened since Hanson was shot down while driving his automobile up the Lewistown mountain he has been blind and at times irrational.

Can't Excuse Slayer.

"The death of Hanson will again arouse indignation in the public mind, and the feeling will be shared by all citizens, regardless of their views on the prohibition question. The action of the coast guardsmen who shot Hanson purely upon suspicion and without the slightest justification cannot be condoned or excused upon any ground or in the slightest degree.

"The conduct of the officers has been condemned from one end of the land to the other and has been made the subject of editorial comment in all the leading newspapers of the country. So wanton and uncalled for was the deed that even official Washington, which is seldom shocked out of its complacency, was compelled to take cognizance of the occurrence, with the result that orders went forth to all prohibition agents to have greater regard for human life and the rights and privileges of law abiding citizens.

Dies Martyr to Liberty.

"There have been two or three incidents of similar circumstances since the Hanson shooting but on the whole that terrible tragedy and consequent condemnation seem to have sobered the law enforcement agencies in this vicinity at least.

"Hanson really dies a martyr to the cause of personal freedom and human rights and privileges under the guarantee of the Constitution of the United States. The sacrifice he made was supreme, but his fellow men have been emancipated from a kind of governmental oppression that was rapidly becoming a menace to all citizens who dared, even in the slightest degree, to assert themselves.

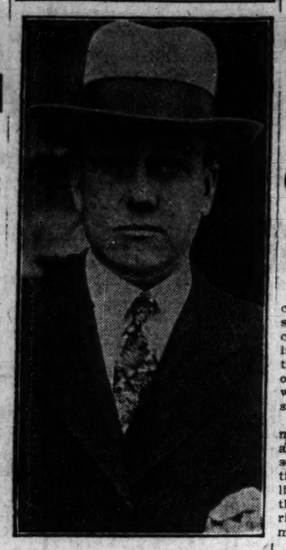
"The attack on Hanson and the protest of the public halted this tendency and caused the people to contemplate seriously the drift of events.

Lived Blameless Life.

"While death is always to be regretted and brings its grief and sorrow, there is a blessing in the passing of Hanson, who was terribly and hopelessly afflicted. He lived a blameless life. He was a happy soul, kind and considerate to all; a good citizen, given to no vices or vicious habits, a respected, esteemed resident. It was because of these qualities and virtues that the government itself expressed regret and made haste to investigate the circumstances.

"We want government, we want respect of the law, and we want proper enforcement of all official edicts, and decrees—but we want no more tragedies of this character enacted in the name of the law by persons who have not the qualifications to represent the law."

PROSECUTES DRYS



District Attorney Raymond Knowles of Buffalo, who will seek indictment of coast guards responsible for death of Jacob D. Hanson.

2,000,000 Caps Ordered as Persia Abolishes Turban

BIELITZ, Germany, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Abolition of the turban by decree of the Persian government has been followed by the receipt by local manufacturers of orders for 2,000,000 cheap tweed caps.

NO LAW IN U. S. CODE TO PUNISH DRY SLAYERS

Can Shoot Innocent with Impunity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—In all of the 10,000 or more separate laws included in the federal code, not one can be found to protect innocent citizens from a death like that of Jacob D. Hanson, secretary of the Niagara Falls Elks' lodge, who was shot down by coast guard dry sleuths.

Instead of providing certain punishment for needlessly killing or maiming a citizen, the government, it is asserted by some students of the situation, has encouraged murder by deliberately framing its laws on the theory that the dry enforcer is always right and his crimes are always commited "in line of duty."

Under this system scores of Volstead enforcers—dry agents and coast guardsmen—accused of murder, manslaughter and a host of lesser crimes, have escaped any punishment.

Army Code Different.

In sharp contrast are the articles of war governing the army.

Not even in war time will the government undertake to defend a soldier—officer or enlisted man—accused of murder or rape from trial in a civil court, and in peace time, the articles not only require the immediate surrender to civil authorities of a soldier accused of any crime, but they also provide for the dismissal of any officer who refuses to surrender the soldier upon formal demand or attempts to conceal him from arrest.

The articles also provide that in cases where it is contended that the crime charged against the soldier was committed in line of duty, the case may be removed to the federal court for trial, but war department records do not disclose a single case, since the war at least, in which an attempt has been made to take advantage of the provision.

Recent Case Cited.

In a recent case, a soldier of a military police detail in San Antonio, Tex., killed a citizen while attempting to arrest another wanted by military authorities. The solder was indicted for murder by a state grand jury and was surrendered immediately, although the war department, contending that the soldier shot in performance of his duty, is preparing to defend him in the forthcoming trial.

Meanwhile, within the last eight and one-half years, nearly 200 citizens have been killed by dry agents or coast guardsmen, who in virtually every instance have claimed they were forced to kill in self defense or in line of duty. Whenever or wherever, state authorities have indicted hair trigger dry enforcers for murder, manslaughter, or assault, the government has not only refused to surrender the killers for trial, but has frustrated the state court prosecution by removing charges to federal courts for trial.

Only Five Convicted.

The result has been that only five of all the dry enforcers indicted for murder or manslaughter have ever been convicted, and in those five cases the victims had been run down and killed by automobiles piloted by drunken or reckless agents who could not plead "performance of duty" as an excuse.

Under the 74th article of war "when any person subject to military law" except one already on trial before or undergoing the sentence of a court martial "is accused of a crime or offense committed within the geographical limits of the states of the union and the District of Columbia, and punishable by the laws of the land, the commanding officer is required, except in time of war, upon application duly made, to use his utmost endeavor to deliver over such accused person to the civil authorities, or to aid the officers of justice in apprehending and securing him, in order that he may be brought to trial."

U. S. FRISKS MORE HIPS AT NEW YORK PIER AS BOAT SAILS

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Prohibition enforcement today still was sticking to an uneasy New York like a bad case of measles. A rash of customs officials broke out at the pier of the French line and fifty guests of departing passengers were politely searched for whatever they might have on their hips.

The courteous "raid" took place just before the steamship France was to leave its moorings. Although the gentlemen were frisked and the hand bags of the women carefully examined, not one drop of liquor was found.

It may have been, of course, that the customs men were not searching for contraband drinks. That was the announcement from Washington last week, when a similar incident occurred at the sailing of the Ile de France.

When a storm of indignation arose over the customs tactics at that time, officials at the capital said the search merely was for smuggled diamonds and narcotics.

The customs officers remained extremely reticent regarding their searching operations. Questioned by newspaper men, none would commit himself on the reasons for the careful scrutiny of visitors at the pier.

hospital or elsewhere by a psychiatrist. He said he was convinced the actions of the prohibition agents were not those of normal persons.

Holds Both to Grand Jury.

Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden held the two agents to the grand jury on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder after hearing the testimony of but one person, William E. Ragsdale, 6204 North Claremont avenue, an insurance broker, who was a witness to the acts of the agents.

Yesterday Judge Padden said he would have had the agents sent to the laboratory of Dr. William J. Hickson, city alienist, had he heard the testimony of other witnesses who are to testify before the grand jury.

Miss Constance Bemis, standing in the hallway outside her office on the eighth floor of the City Hall Square building when Adams ran out pursued by Agent Franklin, stated:

"He (Agent Franklin) seemed to be in a frenzy; I thought he was a wild man."

This statement was supported by others, including Attorney Ralph O. Winkenwerder, whose office is on the eighth floor of the City Hall Square building. He said:

"The one who did the shooting was staring wildly as he yelled at us to get back into our offices."

Tell of More Frenzy.

Those who made statements regarding the blackjacking of the wounded man said it was a savage spectacle.

Attorney Benedict J. Short, an expert on firearms and a veteran both as prosecutor and defense counsel in the Criminal court, said ye terday the use of dumdum bullets by a prohibition agent, policeman, or other person indicates a "vicious complex."

"I never heard of the most lawless characters in the history of Chicago crime using dumdum bullets on a human being," he said. "In all our gang killings here dumdums never were used to my knowledge. Such practice is barred by civilized nations in war, but I have heard of dumdums being used in Mexico during revolutions.

"Dumdums are often used in killing big game, such as bears, as they cause death quickly by profuse bleeding. But to use them on a human being is monstrous."

Hopes for Quick Action.

Assistant State's Attorney Harold Levy was preparing yesterday for the prosecution of the two assistants of Hardboiled George Golding. He said he might summon the grand jury early in the week, or if that was impractical the grand jurors would hear the evidence in the latter part of the week, when they meet to prepare their final report before being discharged.

Because a delay might result in some of the witnesses being absent or afraid to testify, Prosecutor Levy said he desires to hasten the trial. He said he expects the government will take the case away from the state court and put the agents on trial in a federal court—where they will be prosecuted by the state and defended by the federal government.

Prosecutor Levy said that in every instance delay has benefited the quick trigger dry enforcers.

"If we try them we'll have their sanity tested," Levy said, "and if the government tries them we'll insist on mental tests anyway. The government ought to coöperate with us in this matter as the country ought to know if the government is arming and giving authority to mental defectives."

PAY ROLL PROBE GOES TO SPECIAL JURY TOMORROW

Ettelson Employes Admit Doing No Work.

Evidence showing that many special investigators on the pay roll of the corporation counsel's office failed to do any work for the city, is ready for presentation to the special grand jury when sessions are resumed tomorrow, according to Special Assistant Attorney General Ferre Watkins. One-third of these pay rollers investigated so far were engaged only in campaign work, or merely reported by phone or in person to the office, according to Capt. Watkins.

The prosecutor announced that he would probably call on city hall officials to explain why addresses given for some of the investigators appear to be vacant lots or that the persons named are not known to the address given. Capt. Watkins said it is not unusual for his policemen to return subpoenas with the announcement that the "person is unknown at that address."

Support for Candidates.

Out of nine pay rollers questioned yesterday three of them made frank admissions, the prosecutor said, that they did no actual work for the city, other than to support the Thompson-Crowe list of America First candidates.

Some of the payrollers refused to respond to the summons from the prosecutor, it was announced, and either the grand jury or Chief Justice William V. Brothers will be asked to force them to appear and explain what work if any they did for the salaries ranging from $1,680 to $2,400 per year.

Another phase of the investigation, which is ready for grand jury submission, is that involving the operation of gambling and vice dens in the colored belt district, which delivered the votes to the Thompson candidates. Special Assistant Attorney General William Haynes and Investigator Sheridan Bruseaux have assembled evidence that a war chest was gathered from gamblers and resort owners to help out the America First candidates. Many south side resort owners are expected to be brought before the grand jury this week.

Identified as Jailer.

Identification was made by several witnesses yesterday of John Genero as one of the men who acted as jailer at a house at 1352 South Peoria street, a short distance from the home of Judge Emanuel Eller, where kidnaped political workers were imprisoned until the polls closed.

The identifications were made in the courtroom of Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court, where some of those already under indictment were arraigned. Hearing of charges against various men accused of hoodlumism in their efforts to aid the candidacy of the America First ticket were continued yesterday until Aug. 30 at the request of Prosecutor Haynes. He said he expected grand jury action in the meantime. Howard E. Reddy, investigator for the sanitary district and a former deputy bailiff in the Municipal court, charged with bombing the home of William Wood, blind colored leader in the 14th ward, objected to a continuance of his case, but his motion was overruled.

Investigator Is Stabbed.

Edward Lowery, an investigator in the employ of the special grand jury, was assaulted and stabbed early yesterday while on his way home after completing some investigations for the special jury, according to Sheridan A. Bruseaux, his superior. Lowery was stabbed in the back and the left arm, but not severely injured.

"Lowery was instrumental in working up the evidence against the Eilers," said Bruseaux. "He obtained much of the information which was used before the grand jury."

Bruseaux announced that his information is that the assault was committed by two known west side gangsters and one unidentified colored man.

Bandit Shoots Doctor to Death

Held for Murder

Samuel Kauffman, 20 year old bandit who yesterday morning shot and killed Dr. Julian M. Finke, 1147 Independence boulevard, and wounded Miss Rose Steele, 2127 South Lawndale avenue, during an attempted holdup at Clifton and Ogden avenues, was held to the grand jury without bail on a murder charge by a coroner's jury. Kauffman, who lives at 1649 South St. Louis avenue, was captured a few minutes after the holdup by Policeman William J. Mangan and readily confessed that he shot Dr. Finke.

Elmer Humbert, 26 years old, of 1646 Orchard street, was wounded last night when he became the target in a pistol battle following the attempted holdup of the Simonis company at 2116 Indiana avenue, where he is employed. Three armed men entered the cashier's cage just as Sergt. John Armstrong, a colored detective attached to the state parole board, was paying a bill. He drew his pistol and fired at the bandits, who returned the fire. In the exchange of shots Humbert was struck.

CRIMINAL COURT UNDER ANOTHER LOESCH ATTACK

Long Delays Censured; 29 in Murder Case.

A survey of the Criminal court records as announced yesterday by the Chicago crime commission in a report to its president, Frank J. Loesch, shows that 383 of the pending cases have been continued at least six times and still are pending. The cases cited include all classification of crime from larceny to murder.

The purpose of the survey is to show the slowness with which justice moves in the Criminal courts and the lack of consideration for the prosecution witnesses, who are forced to return time and time again to the courts. Witnesses in criminal cases do not receive recompense for the time lost from their employment by virtue of their efforts to prosecute the enemies of society.

Murder Charged; 29 Delays Given.

One of the most flagrant cases as cited in the report is a murder charge against Marshall Williams, reported as one time chauffeur for Judge David M. Brothers. His case has been continued 29 times, since it was placed on the call of Judge Emanuel Eller in 1926.

Williams was tried once, but was given a new trial by Judge Eller on Sept. 14, 1926. Prior to that time the case was continued 15 times in the courts of other judges, and has been postponed 29 times since and is now marked "held on call."

The 383 indictments involve 423 defendants and the cases have been continued a total equivalent to 3,555 times before 945 judges, the report announced.

More of Laws' Delays.

Two cases have been continued 44 times before 11 judges; one 44 times before 2 judges; two 33 times before 11 judges; two 33 times before 9 judges; one 36 times before 7 judges; five were continued from 31 to 35 times; six from 26 to 30 times; twenty from 21 to 25 times; fifty from 16 to 20 times; ninety from 11 to 15 times and 203 from 6 to 10 times.

Of the cases cited 30 have been left over from the present Criminal court régime without any definite day being set for trial in the future or without being assigned to any of the new judges.

Forgery Charge Long Delayed.

The case of Aaron Moshiek, noted forger, is one of those cited. This case has been continued 18 times since the Supreme court ordered a retrial. Samuel Hadesman, charged with perjury, is another who has received many continuances. Earl [Big] Herbert, a reported henchman of Joe Saltis, also is listed. His case has been continued 18 times before six judges.

"The study speaks for itself," says the report. "It discloses a condition that should not exist. In cases cited there is evident proof of indifference and haphazard handling. It is this indifference that can be blamed for many of the evils existing in the Criminal court."

Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the commission, said this is only one of the evils existing in the Criminal court, and that he will report other observations to Mr. Loesch in the near future, which he hopes will bring about an improvement in the administration of criminal justice in the county.

COLLAPSES ON STREET; DIES.

An unidentified man about 50 years old, who collapsed suddenly in front of 649 West Madison street, died at the county hospital a short time after he was taken there by Desplaines street police yesterday.

TRAINING ENDED, 1,975 YOUTHS QUIT MILITARY CAMP

Yesterday was demobilization day at Camp Holliday, the citizens' military training camp at Fort Sheridan, where 2,000 young men and boys from Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin have been living the life of the barracks and parade ground for the last month.

A number of the citizen soldiers left on Friday following the farewell chicken dinner given for them. When reveille was sounded at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, however, 1,975 youths, almost the entire original enrollment of the camp, responded. Four hours later, having exchanged their uniforms for civilian clothes, they were en route to their homes.

Senator King Renominated by Democrats of Utah

Logan, Utah, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Senator William H. King was unanimously nominated to succeed himself by the Democratic state convention here this afternoon. Senator King's name was the only one placed before the convention. Gov. George H. Dern was named by the same method as the party's standard bearer to succeed himself.

CUBA PLANS BIG FETE FOR VETS OF SPANISH WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 25.—With reservations coming in every mail and prospects of a record attendance at the thirtieth annual encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans, which meets in Havana Oct. 7 to 13, the Cuban committee is working unceasingly to prepare a program of entertainment that will make the veterans remember their second trip to Cuba.

Arrangements have been made by Gen. Francisco de Paula, [illegible] the port of Havana and members of the official committee, to put the Cuban steamers at the service of steamship companies in case the traffic should be heavier than can be handled by the regular lines.

Several of the larger camps of the veterans have chartered their own vessels for the trip, among them the Boston aggregation, which will carry 1,000 strong on the liner Amsterdam. The committee is encouraging the chartering of special vessels, since this will relieve the Havana harbor, which it is believed will be hard put to accommodate the crowd.

Throughout an Entire Fleet

a Speed Wagon for every hauling need

Here's a remarkable fact: Big buyers in every vocation, men with widely varying requirements, have found that the Speed Wagon line gives them everything they have ever looked for in motor trucks!

Some want speed to cope with modern traffic—and discover that Speed Wagon Speed includes quicker acceleration, surer stopping, wider areas covered and greater Daily Mileage Output.

Some want power—and learn that the Reo 6-cylinder engine is unsurpassed for steady, economical pulling.

Some want stamina—long life—low maintenance cost—driver comfort—beauty of appearance. All these, Speed Wagons combine in a measure never known before.

You, too, can have Speed Wagon quality throughout an entire fleet—for today there are thirteen Speed Wagon wheelbases, capacities from ½ to 3 tons. Try out a Speed Wagon—start it, step on it, stop it, park it. You'll find what you have been looking for.

A Few More Examples

An oil company of Chanute, Kansas, has just purchased a fleet of twelve Speed Wagons.

In Haverhill, Massachusetts, an express company has added five Speed Wagons to its fleet.

A big power company in Pennsylvania has decided to replace trucks of other makes with Speed Wagons.

An ice cream company in Los Angeles has increased its fleet to eight Speed Wagons with the addition of another Heavy Duty.

Five Senior Speed Wagons are now serving a cartage company of Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

Another cartage company in Detroit now owns sixteen Speed Wagons.

A Wisconsin creamery has added the seventh Speed Wagon to its fleet.

A laundry in Indianapolis has bought four Speed Wagon Tonners to replace trucks of other makes.

A bottling company in New York now owns ten Speed Wagons.

The State of Tennessee recently purchased five Speed Wagon Tonners.

'MAN FAILURE' IS BLAMED FOR N. Y. SUBWAY WRECK

Hold Transit Employe; Death List Is 15.

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The transit commission in an official finding today blamed "man failure" for the Times Square subway wreck, with its list of 15 persons dead and 100 injured.

Acting in advance of the finding, District Attorney Banton placed responsibility for the accident upon William S. Baldwin, maintenance foreman of the Interborough. Baldwin was charged with homicide and released in $10,000 bail.

Says City Must Share Cost.

Frank Hedley, president of the Interborough, refused to fix individual responsibility. He admitted that the company was liable in the accident, but added that the city must share any financial obligation that might result from suits. Chairman John F. Gilchrist of the transit commission disputed the city's liability.

Although Baldwin apparently was singled out for blame by the authorities—Mayor Walker and Commissioner Warren concurring in Mr. Banton's action—the transit commission's report suggested another possible cause of the disaster. The police investigation charged Baldwin with having sent the ten car west side express over a defective switch, eighty-five feet south of the Times Square station, causing derailment and wrecking of the ninth and tenth coaches.

Switch May Have Been Thrown.

The transit commission report, however, suggested that the derailment might have been caused by the switch being thrown as the train was passing over it. Baldwin at that time was standing beside the track while an assistant, Joseph Carr, manually operated the switch, holding down the "tripper." Carr has denied that he released the switch at any time.

The commission also found that if the switch had been "spiked," as is the practice in "good railroad operation," the apparatus could not have been moved, either from the tower or from the post of Baldwin and his helper alongside the track. "Spiking" is the driving in of a railroad spike beside the switch, thus locking it.

Reported Defective Switch.

During the passage of the train over the switch, Henry King, towerman, was in the tower where the switch levers are located. It was King who reported the defective switch to Baldwin. The towerman told Mayor Walker's investigators that he had had no control over the train as soon as Baldwin appeared. He said that Baldwin had been in charge and to him should go all responsibility.

"From what I know of it," Mayor Walker said, "I think the grand jury will find some one guilty of negligence but of course that is up the grand jury."

Twenty-five persons remained under hospital treatment tonight. Physicians said that thirteen were in serious condition. Two victims of the crash died during the day.

Hope for Recovery of Governor Sorlie Fades

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 25.—(AP)—A. G. Sorlie of North Dakota is critically ill and it is doubtful if he will recover, physicians attending the chief executive reported late today. Gov. Sorlie has been suffering from heart disease. His condition became so critical that relatives were called to the bedside.

PROBES CRASH

500 GIRLS WITH BARE, CLEAN LEGS ARE SENT HOME BY TEACHER

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 25.—[U.P.]—The indignation of modesty loving school ma'ams today was pitted against the modernism of present day youth in a battle here that has found a reaction in virtually every San Francisco home.

The fight centered around whether high school girls may be presumed to be fully clad if their legs are unadorned by stockings.

U. S. Webb, attorney general of the state, recently ruled that girls might go to school without stockings if "their legs are washed clean." And thereby the controversy started.

Scores of girls went to school barelegged, and some 500 of them promptly were sent home by Miss Eugenie Lacoste, dean of Lowell High school.

The girls angrily pointed to their legs. "Aren't they clean enough?" many of them asked.

"Go home," was the order.

Parents intervened, claiming the cost of silk hosiery had been saved.

But Miss Lacoste remained obdurate. And this question is the most discussed in the city:

"How clean does a bare leg have to be before it can go to school?"

PRISONERS CUT HOLE IN CEMENT FLOOR; 7 FLEE

Greenville, Ill., Aug. 25.—[U.P.]—Seven prisoners escaped from the Bond county jail here last night and fled in a commandeered automobile. They hacked a hole through a 12 inch concrete floor, and obtained access to a tunnel under the jail foundation. Piles of refuse were found concealed under prisoners' beds.

The escaped prisoners are: Henry Miller, 21, Toledo, O.; Luke Cosley, 21, East St. Louis; Tom Tyler, 30, Sandoval, Ill.; Frank, Lester and Arthur Perry, and James Bilyon.

The automobile in which the escape was made was a Hudson sedan, Illinois license 357,357, owned by W. L. Morgan of Greenville.

ROCK ISLAND'S CITIZENS DEFEND JUDGE THOMPSON

Brand Johnson's Charges as Absolutely False.

Rock Island, Ill., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The record of Justice Floyd E. Thompson, Democratic nominee for governor, was defended at an organization meeting here last night of the "Thompson for Governor" club. At the same time charges made by Dr. G. F. Johnson, former mayor of East Moline, which are being used by Louis L. Emmerson in his campaign talks, were labeled as fabrications.

Dr. Johnson, once a political friend of Mr. Thompson, has attacked the justice's conduct while state's attorney of Rock Island county and also his record in the world war.

M. H. Sexton, president of the association of minor baseball leagues, paid a glowing tribute to the Democratic nominee. He declared that there was no basis whatever for any insinuation that Thompson had any political connections with the John Looney vice ring.

Mr. Thompson was a member of the original committee of nine citizens named to effect a cleanup of conditions here. As to Justice Thompson's war record he called attention to the fact that two of his assistants went into the service and one paid the supreme sacrifice while Thompson was prevailed upon to stay in office as a duty to his country. The United States arsenal was located here and 900 paroled convicts were roaming the streets or working in wartime industries. C. A. Hoeft of Geneseo, Ill., in a fiery speech declared, "Jesus had his Judas, Caesar his Brutus and Thompson has Dr. Johnson."

FIVE HURT IN TROLLEY CRASH.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Five persons were injured last night in a collision between two trolley cars. One car was discharging passengers from the fair grounds when the second crashed into it.

TWO MEN SHOT BY BANDITS IN TWO ROBBERIES

John Vederatos, 38 years old, 3256 West Adams street, owner of a candy store at 200 South Kedzie avenue, was shot in the leg early this morning, when, on leaving his store he was confronted by two bandits whose efforts to obtain the $200 he was carrying he successfully resisted. He was taken to the county hospital.

A shore time later Leo Shaplewski, 26, of 1346 Cleaver avenue, was held up in his soft drink parlor at 1346 Cleaver avenue by, police believe, the same two robbers, and was shot in the abdomen and both legs when he resisted them. The bandits fled after locking two customers in a rear room and rifling the cash register. Shaplewski was taken to the North Avenue hospital, where his condition is reported to be serious.

George Satory, 2118 Sedgwick street, was compelled by a lone robber to drive from his home to the A. & P. store at 2108 North Halsted street, of which he is manager, open the safe and hand over $200.

BELGIANS MOTOR 17,000 MILES TO CAPE IN 15 WEEKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Aug. 25.—Traveling from Brussels to Cape Town, 17,000 miles, in fifteen weeks, in a light automobile, is the feat of three Belgians who arrived in Cape Town this morning.

The expedition comprised Lieuts. Robert Fabry, Hubert Carton Dewiert, and Jacques Lemarche. The object was to survey a proposed air route for a weekly air service from Belgium and France to the Congo.

The party left Brussels May 13 in two cars. One was lost in a central Africa bush fire. Its load of gasoline and ammunition exploded. The expedition was forced to crowd into the remaining car. The men arrived at Lake Chad June 2 and found the lake twice its normal size. The cars were bogged. Lieut. Dewiert borrowed a camel and set out for assistance. He brought hundreds of natives, who harnessed themselves to the cars and dragged them free.

The three Belgians will leave for Europe next Friday.

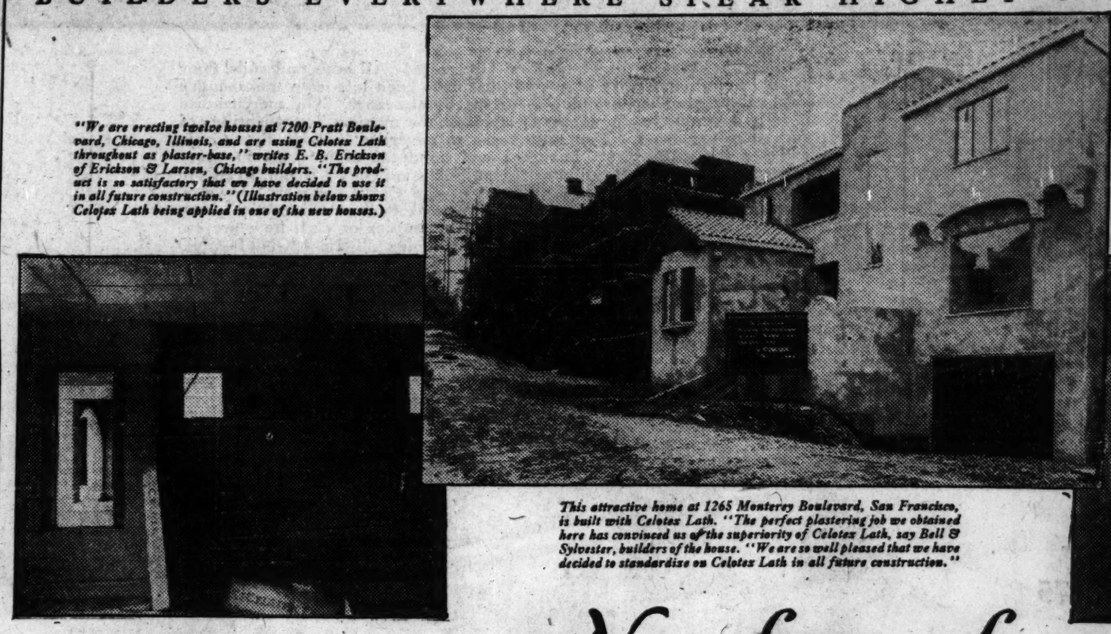
BUILDERS EVERYWHERE SPEAK HIGHLY OF CELOTEX LATH

"We are erecting twelve houses at 7200 Pratt Boulevard, Chicago, Illinois, and are using Celotex Lath throughout as plaster-base," writes E. B. Erickson of Erickson & Larsen, Chicago builders. "The product is so satisfactory that we have decided to use it in all future construction." (Illustration below shows Celotex Lath being applied in one of the new houses.)



Herbert Amero, 22 Highland Avenue, Lynn, Massachusetts, is enthusiastic over the use of Celotex Lath in the homes he builds. "I have just completed a house for my own use, in which I used Celotex Lath throughout as plaster base," Mr. Amero states. "I find it furnishes a good sound job, besides being economical to apply."

This attractive home at 1265 Monterey Boulevard, San Francisco, is built with Celotex Lath. "The perfect plastering job we obtained here has convinced us of the superiority of Celotex Lath, say Bell & Sylvester, builders of the house. "We are so well pleased that we have decided to standardize on Celotex Lath in all future construction."

New form of

LATH

from tough cane fibre

that protects homes from

HEAT · · COLD · · DAMPNESS

that gives permanent beauty to plastered walls

NOW, a plaster base that insulates—Celotex Lath.

This new product brings you home comfort undreamed of by other generations.

It reduces heat leakage and lowers fuel bills.

It gives you plastered walls and ceilings that retain smooth unbroken surfaces.

It enables you to enjoy a quieter, more restful atmosphere wherever you live or work.

Two In One!

Celotex Lath combines insulation with better plastering and gives both to you in one operation at one cost

These Sections Are of Equal Insulation Value

In summer, Celotex Lath keeps your home cool and enjoyable. During winter it shuts out freezing cold. And at all times of the year it protects you from penetrating dampness.

Moreover Celotex Lath cuts down your winter fuel bill by keeping heat where you want it—inside walls and ceilings.

Celotex Lath provides these remarkable advantages because it is made from long tough fibres of cane which contain millions of tiny sealed air cells—just what is needed for efficient insulation!

This new lath is 18 inches wide and 48 inches long—convenient to handle and ideal for lining attics, closets and other restricted areas.

A distinctive feature of Celotex Lath is its beveled ship-lap edge. The bevel insures extra plaster at the joints, a protection against cracking. The ship-lap joints bring lath edges together, giving a continuous surface that eliminates open joints, the cause of disfiguring lath marks.

These construction features enable you to decorate plastered surfaces with permanent effect.

Celotex is already well known everywhere, due to the widespread use of Celotex Standard Building Board for sheathing; for lining basements, garages, attics, roofs and for many other purposes.

Think what Celotex offers you in building economy, fuel saving, quieter rooms, more healthful homes and greater living comfort, throughout the year!

All reliable lumber dealers can supply Celotex Building Board and Celotex Lath. Progressive builders and contractors have used these products in more than 250,000 homes.

FARM-LABORITE LEADER RESIGNS; TURNS TO HOOVER

Disintegration Is Seen in Martin's Action.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Disintegration of the Farmer-Labor party as a national political organization, forecast by the fruitlessness of the Chicago convention last month, advanced a definite step yesterday with the announcement that its principal executive, Bert Martin of Denver, had resigned as national secretary-treasurer, and declared himself for Herbert Hoover.

At the same time it was said that Edwin Spurr of El Reno, Okla., who was acting national chairman during the Chicago meeting, is contemplating urging his state organization to withdraw from the national party. And Neil MacArthur of the Colorado organization already has declared for Hoover.

The fulfillment of recent predictions that minor parties were in for bad times this year would be reached if the Prohibition party withdraws its own nominees and indorses Hoover, a contingency provided for by the national convention's adoption of a resolution authorizing such action by the national committee.

Spokesman for Labor.

Bert Martin's turning to Hoover was announced from Republican western headquarters in Chicago which made public both his letter of resignation from the Farm-Labor ranks and a statement opposing Gov. Alfred E. Smith. The accompanying text construed Martin's action as having the effect on the agricultural vote, for Martin, a lawyer for Colorado farmers, is considered a spokesman for labor rather than for the farm.

It was largely as the result of his personal efforts that sufficient skeleton of a national group was maintained to pave the way for the Chicago convention but when the nominees selected by that meeting—first Senator George W. Norris and later Will Vereen, a George Republican—declined to accept the honor, it was believed that the party was doomed.

"There is but one conclusion at which a person can arrive in his sober senses however enthusiastic he may be," said Martin's letter of resignation. "That is that a very small part of the vote this year will go to the independent parties."

Refuse to Lead Further.

The letter further asserted that "certain persons who have assumed leadership of the progressive forces" now refuse to lead any further and that "sordid ambitions" have controlled some leaders who have controlled the movement of the three or four small parties among which the so-called progressive vote has been split.

Martin's statement alleged that Gov. Smith has no interest in the farmer, while Hoover, he argued, is primarily the product of a rural community.

"The natural tendency of Tammany Hall," it proceeded, "is to see to it that the urban dwellers of New York City pay as little as possible for farm products and food. Control of the government by Tammany, therefore, presents a rather gloomy picture for the men and women who raise this food and ship it to the city markets.

"I have not touched on prohibition because the situation seems so apparent. This issue has been injected into the campaign by Tammany Hall as a smoke screen. I hope it will not confuse the voters and obscure the real issues.

Tammany and Debts.

"Tammany Hall has been in control of New York for many years. The indebtedness of that city is almost equal to the bonded indebtedness of the forty-eight states of the Union. What would happen if Tammany gained control of the government? I feel it the duty of every earnest citizen to help to prevent this catastrophe."

The nominees of the Prohibition party are William F. Varney of Rockville Center, N. Y., and James A. Edgerton of Washington, D. C. They were named after the defeat of a strong pro-Hoover movement in the dry convention, and those forces are said to be working now to effect the withdrawal of the two and the indorsement of Hoover.

Early last week D. Leigh Colvin, national chairman and and a sympathizer with the Hoover idea, sent letters to all members of the national committee asking their views on substituting the name of Hoover for that of Varney. The committee was authorized to take such action any time before Sept. 1 and the Hoover leaders among the drys contend that the acceptance speeches of both Hoover and Curtis meet the requirements of the prohibitionists.

M'MULLEN, LEADER IN G. O. P. FARM REVOLT, IS OUT FOR HOOVER

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 25.—(AP)—"I have decided to support Mr. Hoover," Gov. Adam McMullen said tonight in a statment made public here. The governor stated that his sole guide has been the economic welfare of the farmer. "Politics have not been of the slightest influence nor have personalities figured as deciding factors," he said.

The governor, a lifelong Republican, a zealot in support of farm relief and strongly committed to the McNary-Haugen bill, has hesitated up to tonight in announcing which presidential candidate he would indorse. In tonight's statement he pointed out what he termed inconsistencies in Mr. Hoover's plans to aid agriculture, but says Hoover declares agriculture to be the foremost issue and that this "offsets his indefinite plans for relief."

In addition the governor finds comfort in the protective tariff policy of the Republican party as contrasted with what he calls the Democratic party's views on that subject, and hopes to see the tariff benefits extended to agriculture.

Gov. McMullen says Gov. Smith makes liquor his leading issue and then brings in agriculture later and states that his frankness in handling the latter question is in contrast to his handling of the farm problem.

12 Hurt When Two Cars Plunge Off Roller Coaster

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Twelve persons were injured, one girl probably fatally, when two cars on a roller coaster at an amusement park jumped the track this evening. All of the eighteen occupants of the two cars were employes of the H. P. Wasson & Co. department store, who were holding a picnic at the park. It is said the attendant failed to apply the brakes properly as the speeding cars started around a curve.

KILLS WIFE AND HIMSELF.

Vermilion, S. D., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Crazed by indulgence in moonshine liquor for several days, Stewart Fleeg, 40, shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide.

installed complete—no other expense

ONCE AGAIN, credit must be chalked up to Freshman and Lyon & Healy. This time, it is an all-electric Radio with built-in Dynamic Speaker. Far and away superior to the magnetic type in natural tone reproduction. But who would have hoped to own one at such a low figure? $187.50 complete; tubes, aerial—everything! Even with the ordinary speaker, this set has sold for considerably more than that. Just another instance of the fact that, whenever there's a better Radio value, one knows Lyon & Healy has it!

We will take your old Radio with the batteries in trade. The difference you can pay in small monthly sums.

150,000 STORM SEAGIRT CAMP TO YELL FOR AL

Smash Police Lines in Wild Greeting.

Camp Moore, Seagirt, N. J., Aug. 25. —[Special.]—From his lofty seat atop an ancient tallyho, pulled by four spirited horses, Gov. Smith looked down today on the greatest mustering of Democratic strength New Jersey has ever witnessed.

From the ropes protecting the mile long review grounds of Camp Moore, within which the presidential candidate rode, more than 150,000 people, massed around the field, sent up to him a roar of welcome.

Gov. A. Harry Moore and Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey predicted that Gov. Smith would carry the state by 200,000.

Ostensibly a review of the 102d cavalry of the New Jersey National Guard, the occasion was really the launching of the Smith campaign in this state and a test of his strength.

Mob Smith Auto.

Scores of special trains, motor buses, and automobiles brought thousands upon thousands of men, women, and children into Camp Moore.

Benches, chairs, ropes, and police lines went down before them as they fought to get near to Gov. Smith. They swarmed over running boards, mudguards, and tonneau of his automobile crying "Al, Al, Al!" and seeking to shake his hand when his car pulled into the entrance of the camp.

Again, as he rode the stage coach that he might be seen better, he appeared to be imperiled when the horses, frightened a trifle by the storm of applause, swerved away from the crowd and the coach lurched to one side.

Chats with Crowd.

"How do I look now—on the level?" the governor asked the crowd in general as he took his usual seat on top of the coach and clutched the rail in front of him.

"You look like our next President, Al!" shouted a stentorian voice, and a storm of applause swept down the line.

W. C. T. U. Leader to Make Address for Gov. Al Smith

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. J. B. Houston, prominent Charleston W. C. T. U. leader, announced tonight she would deliver an address upon the subject, "Why I Am for Gov. Smith for President," before the Women's Al Smith club of Charleston next Tuesday evening.

TO VOTE AGAINST AL ON RELIGION A PITY—COPELAND

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 25.—(AP)—To vote against Gov. Smith in November because he is a Catholic would be repudiation of one of the vital principles on which this country was founded, United States Senator Royal S. Copeland declared in a speech here today.

"It would be a great pity if Gov. Smith were denied the presidency because of his birth into a Catholic family," said Senator Copeland. "In a country founded on religious freedom it is unthinkable that we should vote against him on this account. This would be 'nullification' of one of the most vital guarantees in our constitution.

"I sit beside Catholics in the United States senate. I vote with them or against them—they vote with and against me. They are just as loyal, just as patriotic, just as truly American as Mr. Coolidge, the Congregationalist, or Mr. Hoover, the Quaker. The accident of birth and religion means nothing in statesmanship and citizenship."

PRESBYTERIANS REPORT TRYING YEAR AND DEFICIT

Discouragement over "a trying year with the problems accentuated by the dire need of money" was expressed in the 1928 report just issued of the church extension board of the Chicago Presbytery. The report is a résumé of the work done in the forty-six stations of the church by the local board.

"Our board with other branches of our extension obligation suffered a decrease, threatening the progress and growth of activities," writes Dr. Robert Clements, president. "The last year has been weathered, but unless the coming year shows a decided increase in interest, as attested by gifts, the results will be serious."

Attention to the shrinkage of $8,000 in maintenance funds last year and a deficit of $10,000 in 1926, causing the 1927 budget to be curtailed to $130,000, was called by Dr. Henry S. Brown, superintendent of the board. The maintenance budget of $130,000 must be further reduced by closing out some of the less profitable and more expensive institutions, he declared.

Ever Hear of Man Who Tried to Mail Letter in Firebox?

Allen Thompson, 23 years old, recently of Barnum, Minn., turned in a fire alarm yesterday from a box at Church street and Dodge avenue, Evanston. He was captured and explained to the police that he was trying to mail a letter. He was freed after being given instruction in the difference between fire alarm boxes and mail boxes.

HOOVER DECIDES TO STAY SILENT TILL LABOR DAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Herbert Hoover's next campaign address is likely to be over the radio on Labor day.

The program contemplates a hookup of stations throughout the country. Mr. Hoover would make the speech from his home or from his headquarters here.

No definite decision as to this speech was made by Mr. Hoover today in his first conference with Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee, and other advisers following his return from the Pacific coast. Mr. Hoover told the Republican leaders that he wanted to take things easy today and tomorrow, but that on Monday he will be ready to take up questions of campaign policy.

Mr. Hoover plans to remain in Washington for at least two or three weeks. He will then be ready to undertake a number of short trips to points in New York, New Jersey, and Massachusetts. He also will speak in the border states, including possibly Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Missouri.

Pending further speeches, Mr. Hoover proposes to maintain silence. He does not intend to be drawn into a running debate with his Democratic opponent.

Dawes Plan Court Allows German Rail Rate Increase

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—The arbitration tribunal provided by the Dawes plan, called upon to settle the dispute between the German government and the railroad company controlled by the reparations authorities, decided against the government. It approved an increase of 11 per cent in freight rates. The railroads said they would be unable to pay the reparations annuities unless they were given the increase. The court decided against an increase for food and export goods to enable Germany to keep its goods on a closer level with the world market.

Barbara Stanwyck to Wed Frank Fay in St. Louis Today

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Frank Fay, master of ceremonies at the Missouri theater, and Miss Barbara Stanwyck, star of "Burlesque," will be married tomorrow afternoon in St. Louis county. Miss Stanwyck will arrive here at 1 p. m. The couple will motor into the county to a justice of the peace, and Mrs. Fay will leave at 4 o'clock to complete engagements in Pittsburgh and Cincinnati before opening in Chicago for the winter season.

ORDER 3 STATIONS OFF AIR; RENEW PERMIT OF 11

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Orders revoking the operating permits of three broadcasting stations, reducing the power of one, and renewing the licenses of 11 stations, all located in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, or Nebraska, were issued by the federal radio commission. The stations affected by the orders were among the 162 cited last July.

The three stations whose right to the air expires on Sept. 1, under the commission's rulings, are KWUC, operated by the Western Union college at Le Mars, Ia.; WAIZ, operated by Irving Zuekko at Appleton, Wis.; WNAL, operated by R. J. Rockwell at Omaha, Neb. The latter station was criticized for failing to maintain a regular broadcasting schedule, while KWUC was charged with having increased its power from 50 to 1,500 watts without authority. WAIZ's station was recently destroyed by fire and has not been rebuilt.

Station WHFC operated by Goodson and Wilson in Chicago was ordered to reduce its power from 200 watts to 100 watts. In issuing the order, the commission explained that the station had failed to make a showing of substantial public service and, in addition, its transmitter, located in a Chicago residential district, was responsible for much interference.

The stations whose licenses were renewed are WTAX, Streator, Ill.; WMBD, Peoria Heights, Ill.; WTAD, Quincy, Ill.; WHBF, Rock Island, Ill.; WEBQ, Harrisburg, Ill.; WJBC, La Salle, Ill.; WCAZ, Carthage, Ill.; WWAE, Hammond, Ind.; WRAF, Laporte, Ind.; WKBV, Brookville, Ind., and WJAK, Kokomo, Ind.

THREE ROBBERS GET $93.

Three robbers yesterday held up employes of the Martin Transportation company in the offices at 335 East 29th street and escaped with $93.

RTYR'S DEATH REAM OF NUN IN NEW DENIAL

ms Journalists in Prison Interview.

BY JOHN CORNYN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

XICO CITY, Aug. 25.—Animated, ...ions, and smiling, Mother Con... Acebeda de la Llata in an ...view with the foreign press today ...ctically denied charges laid ...t her for participation in the ...der of President-Elect Alvaro ...on July 17. Clad in a tailor ...ss suit and fur trimmed coat, she ...ed the room, a dainty figure of ...ed refinement and with perfect ... where members of the press ...ded her.

"I had no knowledge of the manu...re of bombs or meeting of bomb... and consequently no knowl... of the uses to which the bombs ...e put," Mother Conchita, as she ...were familiarly called, said. "I ... not present at the meeting in ... the assassination of Gen. Obre... and of President Calles were ...ed, and I did not know of plots ...assinate them, by person of by ... means. I should have gladly ... silent on all charges laid against ... but my family and lawyer repre... to me the harm such a course ...d do to others.

Sought Martyrdom.

"Were it not for this," she con...ed, "my lips would never be opened. Martyrdom, a glorious death, demands one to die unjustly in a just cause. I had planned such a death for myself. The Catholic church had nothing to do with the plots to assassinate Gen. Obregon and President Calles. This I want to say emphatically."

As Mother Concepcion Acebeda de la Llata talked, rapidly and animatedly, her compelling personality exercised a remarkable influence on all in the room.

When asked if she knew any labor leaders connected with the assassination of Gen. Obregon, she laughingly said, "I have no labprites or followers behind my skirts. In my heart there is only room for the love of God. If my life would end this religious conflict I should gladly give it drop by drop."

To the question: "How do you reconcile the acts of violence and the assassination with the teachings of the Catholic Church?" she parried with a smile, "Oh, they say I'm chiflado [off mentally] you know."

"But Bishop Miguel de la Mora," she was reminded, "says there were mentally unbalanced persons in your family. Do you consider yourself sane and normal?"

Again the merry laugh.

"I've been warned not to say crazy things," she said. "There has never been a mentally unbalanced person in my family, and I consider myself perfectly sane and normal."

Retired from World.

"I've been a confirmed idealist since entering a convent when twenty, that is sixteen years ago. With an elevated conception of God and his religion, I retired from the world to live within myself. But when in January, 1927, police took me out of my convent and made me face the world I took my nuns to a private house, where we continued our religious observances with more fervor than in the past.

"Driven to face the world, we did it resolutely, and soon we were dealing with more than half of Mexico. People began visiting my home, and I received all interested only in the salvation of their souls. I resolved to bring to God all who came to me. I believed that if I didn't they would continue their plottings and political hatreds far from God. My creed is that we should love one another as brothers. I never invited any one to visit me, but all who came received comfort. When the boys who visited my home talked among themselves I never heard their full conversation, for I was busy with the work of the nuns.

Accuses U. S. Press.

"American newspapers have said sensational and untrue things of me. I did not enter a convent because I was disappointed in love, for I have never had a love affair. Men have never interested me, as Jesus fills my heart so completely that there is no room for another.

"It is absolutely untrue that I visited the place where bombs were manufactured, and approved their manufacture, as I moved away from Chopo street, where the dynamiters worked, to Zaragoza street, where I never went out."

To the question: "Do they treat you well in prison?" Mother Conchita answered with her habitual smile and look of exaltation, "I am happy always. I have no mental sufferings, and the more I suffer in body, the happier I am, for in suffering is redemption. The jail authorities are kind to me, and my guards are all good fellows.

Was "Good Fellow."

"In the convent they all said I was a good fellow, but when I say I have been in an isolation cell in Belem municipal prison, that is sufficient to express my corporal sufferings."

SOME SOUTH SIDERS GO THIRSTY—RARE LIQUOR DESTROYED

Some residents on the south side went thirsty last night. Prohibition agents under George H. Hurlburt, chief administrator in charge of enforcement, raided a saloon at 7759 South State street. They destroyed the following rare items:

Seventy-seven pints of "genuine" Canada whisky.
Forty-two pints of William Penn rye.
Sixty-eight pints of Log Cabin whisky.
Fifty-seven pints of Mountain Ridge whisky.
Twenty-seven pints of Glenmore whisky.
Twelve quarts of champagne.
Five gallons of wine.
Fourteen barrels of beer.

The agents arrested Harry Ogle and John Boland, who are being held at the Grand Crossing police station.

SHOWS OF EVERY VARIETY PLANNED AT COUNTY FAIR

Automobile shows and baby shows, style shows, horse shows and wild west shows are on the program for the annual Cook county fair, to be held at Palatine Aug. 29 to Sept. 3. Pumpkins and politicians, livestock, prize preserves and model farms in miniature will attract the interest of the crowds and provide educational as well as entertainment features.

Mrs. Mary C. Llewellyn of Sunset farm will manage the society horse show on Friday, Saturday and Sunday during the fair, and has secured for the occasion some of the best show horses in the county. Harness horse races are scheduled for the same days, while a different type of transportation—Alaskan dog teams, will perform each day. Auto races have been arranged for Labor day, the closing day of the fair.

Salesman Killed by Fall from Tenth Floor

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 25.—[U. P.]—D. D. Thomson, 50, of Columbus, O., a salesman for the Mason Fiber Lumber company of Chicago, was killed today when he fell from the tenth floor of the Roosevelt hotel.

WORLD LEADERS REFUSE TO PUT O. K. ON FASCISM

Interparliamentary Union Laughs at Defense.

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The Italian Fascist system of controlling the parliament of that country was laughed out of court at a session of the interparliamentary union here today.

Prof. Arrigo Solmi, rector of the University of Pavia and a member of the Italian parliament since 1924, tried vainly to convince the union that Fascism has only reformed parliamentarism, without changing its basic principles.

Replies to Dr. Wirth.

He was discussing a paper by Dr. Karl Joseph Wirth in which the former German chancellor criticized the new Italian law which gives to the executive committee of the Fascist party, the duty of selecting a single candidate for parliament from each district.

Derisive laughter greeted Prof. Solmi's attempt to defend this system. Another outburst came when he contended that the welfare of the country might demand that parliament be compelled to become a disciplined party group.

Praises German Constitution.

Jean L. Barthou, former member of the French cabinet, said that a dictatorship would have no chance in France because of the firmness with which the parliamentary system is established. He also praised the new German constitution.

Makram Ebeid of Egypt said that in his country dictatorship had suspended publication of 200 newspapers and placed all others under government censorship.

Warn Ships of Floating Mine Off Coast of Maine

Boston, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Warning that a loaded submarine mine, containing enough explosive to sink a big steamer, is floating beneath the surface of the north Atlantic off the Maine coast, was given today by United States hydrographic offices to commanders of vessels in that vicinity. The mine, used by the army to guard the entrance to harbors, got away from coast artillerymen at Fort Preble in Portland harbor, and before its loss was discovered it was well out at sea.

DELAY CROWNING PRESIDENT ZOGU AS ALBANIA KING

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Aug. 25. —(AP)— Proclamation of President Ahmed Zogu as king of Albania, expected to take place at today's first session of the third constituent assembly, has been delayed until at least next week.

The assembly met at Tirana and the foreign minister delivered the presidential message to the house, which then began verification of the members' mandates.

Proclamation of President Zogu as king is expected to be made either Aug. 28 or Sept. 1.

The government has issued invitations to the foreign consuls at Vallona to attend the historical session of parliament, which will call the president to the Albanian throne.

AERO THE NATIONAL RADIATOR
in keeping WITH MODERN HOME APPOINTMENTS

Home-makers struggled for years with the difficult task of combining tasteful, modern furnishings with radiation equipment which really belonged to the Spanish-American War period.

Then came Aero, the National Radiator. With its advent, the problem was solved.

Graceful, slender, unostentatiously beautiful, Aero is in keeping with any setting. It harmonizes with the most modern of home appointments. It satisfies all modern demands for economical, healthful, even warmth.

YEARS OF PROVED PERFORMANCE

The first complete line of tube-type radiation, Aero, the National Radiator, enjoyed such instant and widespread popularity that it changed an entire industry. It is, today, the only complete line of tube-type radiation whose dependability and sterling performance has been demonstrated over a long period of years on all sorts of heating applications.

See a good Heating Contractor—specify Aero (the name on the end marks the genuine). In this way assure yourself of permanent warming satisfaction.

5 "LA FOLLETTE STATES" FULL OF AL SMITH TALK

G. O. P. Faces Big Fight to Hold Them.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Huron, S. D., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Five states in which La Follette had his greatest strength in 1924—Wisconsin, Minnesota, the two Dakotas, and Montana—with a total of 35 electoral votes, form the great battle ground of the west between Hoover and Smith.

This region has been a haunt of radicalism for a decade and more, the happy hunting grounds of a string of politicalism, starting with the non-partisan league and emerging into the farmer-labor party and into a La Follettism and the third party movement four years ago.

Wherever one goes, politicians are wondering how the old La Follette following will divide itself between Hoover and Smith.

Smith in Lead Now.

In August, Smith appears to be leading in popularity, and the question with the politicians is who will be ahead in November after an intensive October campaign. Republican leaders predict it will be a reproduction of 1924. Then La Follette was apparently leading in all those five states six weeks before the election, but when the vote was taken, Wisconsin was the only state he carried.

In the hard wheat belt, South Dakota, North Dakota, and Montana were carried by Coolidge by a plurality. He did not roll up a clear majority over La Follette and Davis, and these are the western states which Democrats figure Smith has the best chance of carrying, next perhaps to Wisconsin.

Much adjustment, however, is going on among the leadership in the states. In North Dakota the non-partisan league chiefs and the Republican regulars are in a joint organization behind Hoover. Senators Gerald, Nye, and Lynn Frazier are actively supposting him. Republicans say North Dakota is bound Hooverwards, but they qualify this by admitting that a world of campaigning has to be done to overcome the lead Smith has.

South Dakota in Line.

South Dakota, one of the strong McNary-Haugen states, has a harmonized Republican party supporting the Hoover-Curtis ticket and the Kansas City platform. Senator Peter Norbeck is now strongly for Hoover. He took his position by degrees, first saying he would support Hoover because he had no place else to go and later sending a letter to the state meeting last week, going the full route for Hoover.

Norbeck who is of Swedish and Norwegian stock, has a great personal following among the farmers. The Republican chiefs say his indorsement of Hoover will do much in October, after harvesting is over, in assuaging the agricultural discontent born of the snub handed the farm group at Kansas City and fanned by the recent drop in grain prices. Hoover's kind words about Frank O. Lowden, in his Iowa speech are also counted on to mollify the farmers.

Prohibition Big Now.

The predominant issues vary in the five battleground states. Prohibition is by all odds the outstanding subject in North Dakota, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Farm relief runs a close second in Minnesota and North Dakota.

In South Dakota the agricultural situation almost obliterates everything else. There has been a let down to the liquor question in this dry state, where every one brews his own.

As experienced leaders view it, the farmer sentiment is "again the party in power." Just now it has much the appearance of 1920. Harding's great landslide came largely through a desire for a change at Washington.

That's the way South Dakota is talking now, the farmers are expressing resentment that in eight years the Republican party has put through no measures intended to stabilize farm prices. Republican leaders sense in it possibly the greatest source of danger to their national ticket here.

One stock remark frequently heard in the rural regions is, "Well, things couldn't be any worse under Smith than they are now."

The matter of religion is declared by the political lights to enter into the determination of the Hoover-Smith contest. They point out that the Lutheran vote is the largest single factor in South Dakota.

Recapture Convict Freed in Indiana Prison Scandal

Michigan City, Ind., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Charles Ulrich of Michigan City, sentenced in February to the Indiana state farm for petit larceny and alleged to have been released one month too soon, was taken into custody here last night and returned to the farm today. He was one of nine prisoners said to have been prematurely released from the state farm this summer. The matter is now being investigated by the state board of charities.

Policeman Dies in Auto Crash

Policeman Luke Howe, who was killed (left), and Michael J. Kinney, driver of auto which collided with patrol wagon on south side yesterday as police were taking burglary suspect to station.

CRASH WITNESS CHARGES CASE IS FIXED FOR DRIVER

L. L. Kimmel, an automobile salesman, shouted before Judge Samuel Trude yesterday that driving while intoxicated, reckless driving and assault and battery charges against James O'Neil, 33 years old, 7135 Clyde avenue, had been fixed. O'Neil, an ex-policeman, was arrested in a fight following a collision Friday night at West 63d street and South Maryland avenue. Kimmel was a witness.

"Policemen at the Woodlawn station told me the defendant would never be brought to trial," Kimmel declared when the case was continued due to the absence of O'Neil, who was reported to be ill. "I knew there would be a continuance today and I won't return to the mockery of this again."

Assistant State's Attorney Thomas A. Dillon said he will investigate. O'Neil's car crashed into one driven by Ivan Bjorn, 5952 Addison street. Bjorn jumped onto the running board of O'Neil's machine as the latter is said to have started to drive away. The former policeman's automobile then smashed into a coal truck.

Policeman Is Killed.

Policeman Luke Howe, 55 years old, was killed and five other persons injured in a collision yesterday morning at Dorchester avenue and 50th street between a police patrol automobile and a car driven at nearly sixty miles an hour, according to the police, by Michael J. Kinney, 22 years old, 2017 East 72d street.

Others besides Kinney who were hurt are: Policeman Frank Murphy, 58 years old, 7621 Langley avenue, fractured skull; Policeman Maurice Hearne, 59 years old, 8047 East End avenue, lacerations; Policeman James Doolan, bruises; and Thomas Fay, 5427 South May street, a burglar suspect who was being taken to jail, cut about head.

The death of the policeman and two other automobile victims during the day raised Cook county's 1928 motor toll to 637.

Newsboy Is Killed.

Edward Zelasko, 12 years old, 1114 Fry street, was fatally injured by a car driven by Mauritz Mauritzen, 32 years old, 1143 School street. The boy was selling newspapers at Milwaukee and California avenues. The motorist had been drinking, according to the police who arrested him.

Peter Lukosiewicz, 50 years old, 4836 South Crawford avenue, died at St. Anthony's hospital from injuries suffered Wednesday night when he was hit by an automobile at Avers and Archer avenues driven by Gottlieb Perzezek, 4948 Drummond avenue.

Mrs. Veronica Walsh, 23 years old, 4312 South Ashland avenue, an expectant mother, was seriously injured in a collision on the southwest side. The driver of the second car abandoned his machine and fled. Police traced the license number to James Martin, 23 years old, 5015 Aberdeen avenue, and placed him under bond, although he said the car had been stolen. His stepbrother, Steve Pozewicki, 19, was arrested when he went to the New City police station a short time after the accident and reported the theft of the machine.

POOR FAMILIES' NEED FOR ICE STILL CONTINUES

September Often Brings Scorching Weather.

"Scorchers ahead!"

This is no positive weather forecast. It is just a suggestion that perhaps the hot days of the present summer are not all registered on the discarded leaves of the calendar.

"September in the Chicago area frequently provides proof that the sun is a long way from its winter solstice —and that ice is a fine thing to have in the refrigerator.

As long as there are women in the world like those who managed a benefit performance at the Chicago Beach hotel on July 13, there will be ice for the suffering, sickly babies down in the tenement districts, to keep food cool and milk sweet for the wearing, torrid days. Yesterday THE TRIBUNE free ice fund received a check for $100 as its share of the benefit.

Twelve hundred dollars in all was realized from the evening's entertainment, all of which was distributed among children's charities. Checks were distributed as follows: South Side Crippled Children's camp at Plymouth, Ind., $350; Resthaven, $250; Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children, $200; Lucille Wolfson aid, $150; Daily News Fresh Air fund, $100; TRIBUNE Free Ice fund, $100; David Brodsky Benefit fund, $50; Haskell Fund for Crippled Children, $50.

Mrs. Helen Danek of 65 East Oak street and Mrs. Ronald Brunswick, of the hotel were in charge of the program and refreshments, every item of which was contributed. Miss Lillian Herbert and Dr. Anton Lombardo furnished musical numbers, with accompaniments by Mrs. Danek, and vaudeville turns were provided by the Palace theater.

Next year the benefit will be repeated for the same beneficiaries.

PA WA DIES OF BANANAS; CURSE FALLS ON NURSE

LONDON, Aug. 25.—[U.P.]—In Burma, land of idols and strange beliefs, a curse is supposed to descend whenever a sacred white elephant leaves the land.

Pa Wa, the only white elephant in existence, believed to be the reincarnation of Buddha, died in Calcutta, India, yesterday, of a surfeit of overripe bananas. He had recently returned from a tour of the United States and Canada.

Today, Sanniri, the Burmese who accompanied Pa Wa on his American tour, was found seriously wounded in the London zoological gardens near the flat. Said Ali, a Mohammedan, who shared Sanniri's flat, was found dead nearby.

Unless Sanniri talks, police believed the affair would be written down as an unsolved oriental mystery.

Pa Wa's remains are being stuffed to be placed in a Rangoon temple for perpetual worship.

SEEK $1,000,000 IN AMERICA FOR SOVIET MISSIONS

Free Lance Organization Would "Save" Reds.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

RIGA, Latvia, Aug. 25.—American churchgoers, particularly Baptists, are being asked to contribute $1,000,000 for missionary work in Russia, according to the Journal of the Russian Missionary Society, published in Riga. Pastor William Fetler is the organizer of this free lance evangelical organization. He spoke in Chicago at the Moody Bible institute four years ago, after having been expelled from Russia for his religious work. Mr. Fetler, who is a Latvian subject, now is in California, collecting money, according to the journal.

Of the $1,000,000 fund, $300,000 is scheduled to pay for publishing bibles, testaments, and religious literature destined for Russia, which the soviet government prohibits from being imported into the country at present.

Have Few Missionaries.

Investigating the activities of the society here, it was found that Mr. Fetler collected large sums of money in recent years in the United States and England, ostensibly for enlarging missionary activities in Russia. The acting head of the organization here refused to divulge the number of missionaires in Russia, but admitted the number was small, and said the society at present has 65,000 Russian Bibles stored in Riga which they are unable to forward to Russia.

The American headquarters of the Fetler organization are located at 1844 West Monroe street, Chicago, where the Rev. E. Shields officiates.

It was found that much money collected by Pastor Fetler is used to publish a small journal called "Friends of the Missions;" which is mailed monthly to thousands of religious people in America who are asked for contributions. The journals and Bibles are published in a large modern printing plant in Riga, which is said to be owned by Mr. Fetler privately, and which expects to publish $300,000 worth of Bibles and literature from the money he is at present collecting in America.

Can Work in Baltic States.

Mr. Fetler also proposes to spend $200,000 to support missionaries, a similar amount for a seminary, and $300,000 for churches, homes and missions. The appeal says the million dollar gospel fund for Russia will be used for the evangelization of the former geographical Russian empire. This permits Mr. Fetler to spend the money given for work in Russia in the Baltic states and Poland.

N. Odinzoff, president of the Russian Baptist union, comprising 3,000 pastors, 1,000 churches, and 200,000 communicants, said he did not know a single missionary working in Mr. Fetler's organization in Russia, and that the Baptists refused to recognize his society.

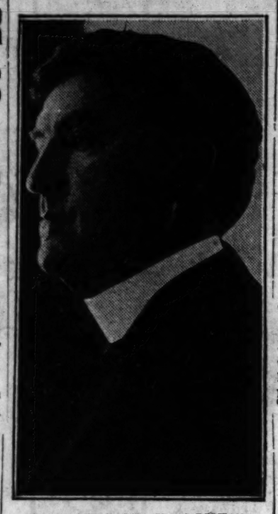
Aside from building a large tabernacle at Riga from contributions, Mr. Fetler's activities in Latvia are said to have resulted in the disruption of the local Baptist church, whose leaders are accusing him of attempting to stead their congregations.

HAS REPRESENTATIVE HERE.

The Rev. E. E. Shields, at the headquarters of the Russian Missionary society, 1844 West Monroe street, corroborated most of the facts about Mr. Fetler and his $1,000,000 campaign to spread the gospel in Russia. The Rev. Mr. Shields said he himself is the home director and treasurer of the American section of the society. Asked if Mr. Fetler was the publisher or owner of the company printing the bibles and magazines of the society, he said that he was not, but was the editor-in-chief.

He said the fund is being raised to propagate the gospel in Russia, and to publish bibles and magazines which, he said, are in reality the "missionaries." He denied that any particular appeal was being made to Baptists, saying any one could contribute.

HEADS UNIVERSITY



THE REV. W. H. AGNEW.
[Pandrina Photo.]

The Rev. William H. Agnew, S. J., former president of Loyola university, has been elected to the presidency of Creighton university, Omaha, it was announced yesterday. The Rev. Father Agnew left last night for Omaha, where he will be installed today by the former Creighton university president, the Rev. William J. Grace. The Rev. Father Agnew has been rector of the Sacred Heart church, 815 West 19th street, for the last year. He will be succeeded in the pastorate by the Rev. William P. Whelan, for 25 years regent of the medical department of Creighton university.

RAVINIA, SCHIPA, AND LA TRAVIATA ATTRACT THRONG

Tenor Gives Strength to Old and Infirm Opera.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It was either "La Traviata" with Tito Schipa or Schipa in "La Traviata" for the week-end attraction at Ravinia and, by the way, concluding the sum of thirty-three operas which have been offered at the North Shore park this summer. At any rate, one or the other, the pilgrims came by gas, steam, and electricity, packing the park from three points of the compass which would have been four if the lake had not been in the way.

It is a curious and inspiring spectacle to watch the Schipa following. Even the oldest and most infirm of the operas, even one like this, whose first act with the exception of one duet and one aria sounds as though it must have been meant for a performance of the trained seals, needs only his name in the cast to bring out a huge and worshipful throng.

Schipa at His Peak.

Happily the throng is always justified, for when he is in the cast one hears the tenor melodies sung in a most ideally lovely manner with a voice not to be compared with any other voice nor, for that matter, with any other musical instrument. Schipa has been distinctly there this summer, and never more so than last night.

But there are other characters than the tenor in "La Traviata," and the better they are the better for the performance. Queena Mario took the part of Violetta, a smartly dressed, smartly acted and sung performance which worked up a climax in her first act aria until it landed on a high E flat as brightly and inspiringly as any one could ask.

Recovers After Sagging.

Admitting that she permitted her voice to sag a trifle in the middle of the aria, she pulled it back in efficient style, and besides, many sopranos in the past have sagged much worse and not come back so well.

Giuseppe Danise was Father Germont, with a baritone delivery that compared entirely favorably with Son Germont's tenor as done by Mr. Schipa. Mr. Danise is an expert in the manner of music of a former day, and his aria in the second act was another cause of delight to the audience and quite as much justified as anything that had gone before. The lesser principals and the chorus were excellent.

WOMAN HANGS SELF TO TREE.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 25.—[U. P.]—The body of Miss Eunice Turner, 42, today was found hanging to a tree on Cliff drive. Miss Turner had lived at the Girls' hotel since her arrival here Aug. 3 from Delaware, O. She had been despondent, officials at the hotel said.

TELLS HOW 16 STOWAWAYS 'FOUGHT FUMES

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 25.—(AP)—The sixteen South American stowaways caught in the hold of the steamship Steel Inventor yesterday fought among themselves to escape the deadly fumes poured in for fumigation, a survivor today told newspapermen through an interpreter.

They kicked and punched each other in their struggle to get up a rope dangling from a ventilator, Antonio Francisco Roza said. Three reached the ventilator, while others fell one by one. Roza was one of those revived. Seven died of the fumes.

Roza told the interpreter that his brother, Rusino Roza, living in New York, sent him $350 with which to come to this country. He paid the sum to get on board the Steel Inventor, he said. He and his companions were smuggled on board and let down into the hold on a rope, according to Roza's story.

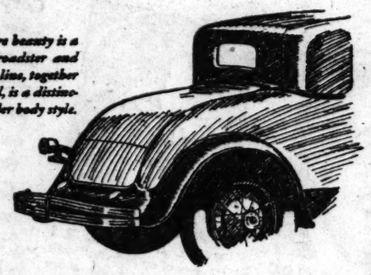
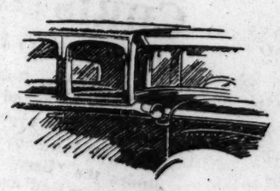
CHRYSLER



New sweep and curve of rare beauty is a feature of the rear deck of roadster and coupe models. This new deck line, together with the gasoline tank shield, is a distinctive feature of the new Chrysler body style.



Chrysler "arched-window" silhouette for closed models gives a particularly pleasing effect inside and outside the car. The curve of the window harmonizes with the curve of the louvre panel on the hood. The glass in the Chrysler closed models is arched at the top to match.

The more closely you judge the new Chrysler "75" and "65" by the highest canons of good taste and lavish beauty, the more apparent it will be that Chrysler Standardized Quality makes possible value-giving which compels readjustment of offerings in every price division of the industry up to the very highest.

Each has brought into its particular price class richness and beauty which were not there before.

Each gives its owner new style and smartness, new satisfaction of performance and a new degree of safety from its internal expanding hydraulic 4-wheel brakes with squeakless moulded lining.

Each enables him to motor in luxury impossible at any such investment heretofore.

You find in the new Chrysler "75" and "65" steel-quality, body-quality, quality-of-finish, upholstery-quality, hardware-quality, engine-quality, accessory-quality, richness of beauty and design which vie with, and even surpass, the standards of cars costing many hundreds of dollars more.

The field is filled with good-looking motor cars—but here is symmetry and charm that you know instinctively must leap at once into authoritative leadership.

Light-action, internal expanding, self-equalizing hydraulic 4-wheel brakes, with specially-moulded squeakless brake lining—assure the Chrysler driver of positive brake control at all wheels under all weather conditions.

STUDEBAKER President Eight

30,000 miles in 26,326 minutes!

Greatest endurance record in history of transportation

UNDER constant supervision of the American Automobile Association, not one President Eight, but four—all fully equipped, regular factory production cars—triumphed this month over the severest test ever given any automobile. All four motors and chassis were selected at random by A. A. A. officials. If not chosen for this test, these regular factory Presidents would have gone out to dealers and you might have bought one of them at any Studebaker showroom.

Only comets, suns, planets, meteorites have ever traveled so far so fast as these eight-cylinder Presidents, strictly stock cars, fully equipped.

All four Studebakers—two President Eight roadsters and two President Eight sedans—completed 30,000 miles each at better than mile-a-minute speed. Both roadsters completed the 30,000 miles in less than 27,000 consecutive minutes.

The fastest thousand miles of each roadster was the thirtieth—71.67 and 69.65 miles per hour. Studebaker Presidents improve with use.

Of 6 seals placed on the engines of these roadsters by American Automobile Association officials not a single seal was broken during 60,000 miles of running. These official seals were placed on the manifold, engine head and carburetor.

Studebaker's new, exclusive ball bearing spring shackles needed no attention or lubrication and were functioning perfectly at the end of the run.

You can pay more than Studebaker prices but in no other car on earth at any price can you buy more stamina or more finely balanced performance than in Studebaker's President Eight. And back of every One-Profit Studebaker is 76 years of manufacturing integrity.

Don't wait until November 6 to select your President—DO IT NOW!

What it Proves

The Studebaker President's new record of 30,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes vastly exceeds any similar feat in the history of transportation. It proves beyond doubt or question that:

1. The President Eight is an expression of engineering genius without peer in the automotive world.
2. In fine materials, precision manufacture, craftsmanship and rigid inspections, The President is worthy of the high engineering genius of its design.
3. In the long run the economy of The President will make it more thrifty to operate than cheaper cars.
4. President performance has resources which you cannot exhaust.

Genuine Stock Cars

The Presidents which made these phenomenal records were selected at random from the assembly line in the Studebaker factory by two officials of the American Automobile Association. They were disassembled at the track by A. A. A. technical officials and every part checked against standard catalog specifications. The engines were then sealed by the A. A. A.

At 9:38 A. M. on July 21, 1928, the four Presidents started man's greatest battle against time and distance. Sixteen officials of the A. A. A. were on duty continuously at the Speedway, keeping a precise record of every lap, of every tire change, of every stop for gasoline or oil. All stops were included in the 26,326 minutes total elapsed time.

Studebaker says it with FACTS

On August 8 at 4:27 P. M., with the thermometer 100 in the shade, and no shade, the first President roadster completed its 30,000 mile journey—26,326 minutes after the start—total elapsed time. The second President finished three minutes later. Both of them exceeded 68 miles per hour average speed for the entire thirty thousand miles—68 miles per hour average speed for 19 days and 18 nights. Never before has machinery been subjected to such a strain.

In traveling 30,000 miles in less than 27,000 minutes the total up and down travel of each piston was 49,087,000 feet and the total number of explosions in each cylinder was 33,660,000. Despite this terrific ordeal of continuous driving at high speed, both roadsters completed the run without a single scored cylinder or burned bearing—ready for thousands of additional miles of carefree service

$1685 President Sedans set closed car records

On August 9 at 9:15 P. M. the first of the two sedans finished 30,000 miles with an average speed of 64.15 miles per hour—total elapsed time, 28,057 minutes. The fourth President Eight completed its task with an average speed of 63.99 miles per hour for 20 days and 19 nights—28,128 minutes total elapsed time.

Only a Champion can beat a Champion

The only other car on earth which has ever approached this great record of the Studebaker President is the Studebaker Commander. Three Commanders amazed the automotive world last year by traveling 25,000 miles in less than 25,000 consecutive minutes—two of them in 22,968 minutes.

DOLP'S 22 PARS WIN WESTERN GOLF

HACK'S HOMERS SCORE 4; CUBS WIN BY 7 TO 3

Braves Victims of Long Range Firing.

Two and one half games now separate the leading Cardinals from the surging second place Giants in the race for all National league race. The New Yorkers dropped back a lap yesterday when they fell before the rushing Pirates while the Cards were disposing of the Phillies. The third place Cubs by winning from the Braves reduced three and one half games from the top. Cincinnati's even break nudged them tighter into fourth place, but one and one half games from first place. The Pirates remain in fifth place, one game behind the Reds.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

When Mr. Wilson the Hack and Mr. Elbi Cuyler broke out with an epidemic of home runs yesterday there wasn't much to be done except to summon the doctors; not for the Cubs but for the Braves. With a pair of blows over the wall The Hack accounted for no fewer than four runs and Cuyler slapped one over the barrier that netted two. With things going on in this fashion the humble ones from Boston naturally weren't very boisterous and succumbed by 7 to 3, giving the North Siders their fourth win in a row.

Two unfortunates were developed from the violence with which the victors assailed the ball. One was Dutch Brandt, who remained long enough to let the Cubs complete their day's scoring with a cluster of four runs in the fifth. The other was young Guy Bush, who might have registered an easy win for his personal ledger if he'd remained. As it was he lost all idea of control in the fourth, so had to go away and Percy Lee Jones stepped in to carry the thing through and receive proper credit.

Wilson Raps No. 29.

The first bit of business transacted was Wilson's homer No. 29. He clouted it into the right field seats, well toward center, when he led off in the second inning. This slim lead lasted only until the Braves could take a whack at Bush in the third. With one out Richbourg singled to right and Jimmy Smith tuned in with a double that Wilson almost flagged in right center. Richbourg scored on the hit. The Cubs promptly came back with two in their half, the contributing factors being Maguire's single to right with two out and Cuyler's homer that cleared the left field wall just inside the foul line marker.

Bush started to disintegrate in the fourth after retiring one man. He walked Farrell and Taylor. Brandt flied out, whereupon Bush decided to fill 'em up, which he did with a ticket to Richbourg. J. Smith also exercised a little patience and he too walked, forcing Farrell to score. At this point Boss McCarthy decided Bush would look better in street clothes than in uniform, so Jones was called in and he ended the round on Sisler's tap to English.

English Starts New Rally.

The complete ruination of Lefty Brandt in the fifth was caused by four sound, also successive wallops. With one deposed English rolled a triple down the left field line. Maguire pushed a single through short and English scored the only run that wasn't driven in by a homer. Cuyler, who had lost his job to Heathcote the day previous, added a single to left. Then Wilson hit No. 30 over the left field bricks sending in two runs ahead of him and releasing Brandt from active service. For the remainder of the struggle Cantwell handled the Bruins so well that not a hit was made against him.

After taking charge of the situation in the fourth Jones, with some able assistance around second from the roving Maguire, kept the Braves under control until the ninth when they registered one harmless run. Brown opened the stand with a single and was safe at second when Jones threw wild on Sisler's tap. A bit later Brown ran home on a single that Bell smashed in the direction of third base.

$10 Prize Answer

Quotation—I have never allowed words make me say what I did not wish to say.

Answer—It is entirely possible and not improbable that all the men who have been proposed by your readers as author of the remark in question have actually used it. Then, supposing it is true of all of them, the credit must go to Dante Alighieri, the Italian poet, who preceded all the others named by at least 400 years [1265-1321].

The evidence for attributing the saying to Dante is found in "L'Ottimo Commento," an early commentary on Dante's "Divine Comedy" by Andrea Lancia, in which the author writes: "I, the writer, heard Dante say that never a rhyme had led him to say other than he would, but that many a time and oft he had made words say in his rhymes what they were not wont to express for other poets."

That this statement in its popular form—"I have never allowed words to make me say what I did not wish to say"—is still commonly attributed to Dante I can affirm from the fact that I have heard it quoted by three different persons, and each time Dante has been named as the author. H. M. Priest, 3739 North Marshfield avenue, Chicago.

NOTE.—Mr. Priest's answer is supported by P. Toynbee's life of Dante, James Russell Lowell's essay on the poet, and by information obtained from universities. Prof. James E. Shaw of the University of Chicago says "L'Ottimo Commento" (Edition of Pisa," "Presso Niccolo Capurro," 1827) contains Lancia's discussion of the matter in a note on the tenth canto of "The Inferno," verse 85 (vol. I, page 183). Among the institutions that assisted in the search for the origin of the expression are the Newberry and public libraries of Chicago and the libraries of the following universities: Chicago, Northwestern, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Harvard, Cornell, and Columbia. Wellesley college library also joined in the quest.

Quotation—My right is beaten back; my center is crushed; my left has been repulsed. Situation excellent. I am attacking with my left.

Answer—On Sept. 6, 1914, began the first battle of the Marne, and the French and English turned at bay in a colossal battle along a 200 mile front to defend Paris. Joffre, the French commander in chief, issued to all corps commanders the famous order: "The hour has come to let yourselves be killed rather than to yield ground." The crisis came on the fourth day when the Germans, anxious to use their numbers in an enveloping movement around both allied wings, had weakened their center. Gen. Ferdinand Foch, commander of the French 9th army on the allied center, hurled his exhausted troops desperately at that key position. Joffre had sent an anxious inquiry as to Foch's situation. The dogged Foch replied in the famous words of the above quotation. The attack broke the invaders' line and Paris was saved.—Lois Gustafson, 821 East Ewing avenue, South Bend, Ind.

Note.—Historians differ on the exact wording of Foch's message. Another version is: "My right has been rolled up. My left has been driven back. My center has been smashed. I have ordered an advance from all directions."

Quotation—So this is Paris.

(Answers from several readers show they believe Lindbergh said this first—when he arrived in Paris on his famous flight from New York. Lindy may have said it, but our recollection is that his first remark was: "Is this Paris?" The quotation is certainly older than Lindy's flight.)

Quotation—I have no time to waste on emperors.

(No answer has been received, but the saying is attributed to Victor Hugo, French author, on the occasion when the emperor of Brazil, on a visit to Paris, expressed a desire to meet him.)

WHITE SOX AND MACKS DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER

Hose Win, 9-3; Then Lose, 13-4.

The American league pennant race was at a standstill yesterday, with both rivals dividing double headers. New York dropped the first game to Detroit and then took the second. By holding the Athletics even in two games the White Sox kept the Mackmen from reducing the Yanks' three game lead.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 25.—Forty thousand giddy Quakers came out to Shibe park this afternoon convinced that they would see the ambitious Athletics kick the White Sox around all afternoon. And the joke of it was the customers were obliged to wait until the second game of a double header before they gathered any substantial joy.

The score of the first game was Chicago, 9; Philadelphia, 3; and the triumph was made possible by a four run rally in the eighth and a five run foray in the ninth. The second game was purely anti-climax and was pretty terrible from a Chicago angle. The score of the debacle was A's, 13; Sox, 4.

Lyons' Error Helps Macks.

The first game was a one hit affair for both nines until the fifth inning. In the A's half of the fifth, Foxx and Miller were easy outs. But Haas came up with his second hit and the second of the game off Lyons. It was a double. Haas stopped at third when Boley singled to deep short. Ehmke took two wild swings and then sent a single out to right center, scoring Haas and putting Boley on third. Bishop singled to left, scoring Boley. The bases were full after Orwoll walked, but Cochrane relieved the tension by flying to Metzler.

An unusual error by Lyons led to the Macks' third run in the sixth. Simmons launched the inning with a double. Foxx grounded to Lyons, and Ted turned to find Simmons half way between second and third. He ran over to the base line and was about to tag Al when, apparently for no reason at all, the ball jumped out of his hand. Simmons got back to second and Foxx reached first. A couple of sacrifices then put Simmons across.

Going into the eighth the Sox boasted a grand total of three hits. Then things started to happen.

Barrett Fans in Pinch.

The bases were speedily filled on successive hits by Berg, Blackerby and Mostil. Hunnefield bounced to Ehmke, who threw the ball to the screen, Adkins, who ran for Berg, and Blackerby scoring. Grove then went in to pitch. On a miraculous play, Boley came up with Metzler's sizzler and threw to Cochrane to get Mostil. Hunnefield reached third and Metzler second. Barrett was sent up to bat for Shires and fanned in a most ama-

THE PUTT THAT CLINCHED THE TITLE

The putt which made Frank Dolp the 1928 western amateur golf champion. The Portland, Ore., player sinks his putt on the fifteenth green of the afternoon round for a four. He won the hole and the match, 4 and 3. Dolp held a lead of six holes at the end of the morning's play yesterday at Bob o' Link, and it was too much of a margin for Gus Novotny to overcome.

FOOTBALL ATTRACTIONS.

BIG TEN football teams have broadened their schedules to include more attractive intersectional contests this fall than at any time in recent years. Of course, the Conference title, so far as it may be determined, is the compelling incentive but the tendency of late years to round out the chart with outside affairs provides varied entertainment for gridiron fans.

Aside from the Notre Dame-Navy game at Soldiers' field Oct. 13, which is not, of course, a Big Ten contest, Stagg's Maroons will entertain at the Midway South Carolina, Wyoming, and Pennsylvania, the Quakers appearing Nov. 3. Northwestern at Dyche stadium will meet Kentucky on Oct. 20 and Dartmouth in the final game of the local season Nov. 24. Hanover alumni are planning to make this a gala two-day celebration with a meeting of the national alumni here at that time.

Illinois, conceded to have the best chance for the Conference honors, confines its 1928 schedule to Big Ten opponents and outside teams from this section. Ohio State has a Columbus date with Princeton on Nov. 3. Michigan goes to Baltimore for its annual fray with the Navy on Nov. 10. Indiana, highly regarded this year, has Oklahoma at Bloomington in an early game Oct. 6. Wisconsin, which has the temerity to tackle Notre Dame at Madison Nov. 6, engages Alabama at Madison Nov. 3. That's not picking any resting spot between Michigan and Chicago for Alabama, southern champions for three successive years until last fall, always presents a formidable front.

Of course it's too early to talk football, although official practice begins in three weeks, but we just wanted to tell you about this. Meantime, please pass the iced lemonade.

Flat Iron Wins Final Stake at Hawthorne

BY FRENCH LANE.

The curtain came down on the summer racing season at Hawthorne yesterday with the cheers of 24,000 ringing out for old Flat Iron.

For Flat Iron thrilled this record breaking Hawthorne throng when he staged a brilliant run down the stretch in the $5,000 Greater Chicago handicap and was the victor in a stubbornly fought finish by a head from the Kentucky Oaks winner, Easter Stockings. Sir Harry from the Seagram stable of Canada was third.

Old Flat Iron has brought joy to many big Chicago turf crowds in the last couple of years. He has often performed noble deeds on the western turf, but he never gave a better exhibition of his gameness and his running powers than he did in yesterday's struggle.

The race was marred by two bad jams. One came soon after the start. The other happened half way down the home stretch, when the battle was raging in all its fury. And Flat Iron was a sufferer in both instances in which a half dozen horses and jockeys were fighting for an advantage.

Easter Stockings Sets Pace.

Throughout the early part of it Easter Stockings made the pace, but was closely attended by Flat Iron and Martie Flynn, while Hydromel, the favorite, and Crystal Pennant were not far away.

The field began closing in on Easter Stockings as the horses hit the final turn. Garner, on Hydromel, tried to steal the lead by coming through next to the rail but the American Derby winner of a year ago didn't have enough speed to keep pace with the others in this desperate drive down the last furlong.

Flat Iron, coming in the middle of the track but hemmed in on all sides, gradually fought his way up until he was on equal terms with Easter Stockings. Then Chiavetta began a final drive on the big red son of Friar Rock, and the khaki striped maroon silks of Stuyvesant Peabody began to move toward the front.

Flat Iron caught and conquered Easter Stockings and got the decision in the final strides.

Sir Harry closed an enormous gap to be third, and Crystal Pennant also turned in a fine performance. In the betting Flat Iron paid $6.60, and he ran the mile and a furlong in the fast time of 1:51 1-5.

Nor'easter First in Commonwealth.

The Hawthorne season closed brilliantly, and according to John C. Shank, president of the association, it was the most successful meeting held since the track was built many years ago.

There were two other good races on the closing day's program, and the winning horse in each of them had to keep running until the last stride to get the verdict.

A great band of sprinters met in the Commonwealth handicap at 6 furlongs, which was worth $2,000. The Camden silks were carried to victory by Nor'easter in the fast time of 1:11 4-5. After T. S. Jordan and Illegitimate had raced each other into submission before reaching the stretch, Nor'easter came on the outside, took the lead a sixteenth out and beat Illegitimate by a length and a half. Solace was third and Jack Alexander fourth. In the betting Nor'easter paid $9.66.

Prince Pat, ridden by L. Hardy and from the Three D's stock farm stable, beat his stable mate Zacawelsta by a nose in the western Hopeful for 2 year olds. It was a thrilling finish with The Choctaw third, but beaten only a neck. Ben Machree was a nose back in fourth place. Zacawelsta made the pace until the last dozen jumps when Jockey Hardy brought Prince Pat up and got the decision in the last stride. The entry was at the prohibitive odds favorite paying but $2.90 in the mutuel betting.

Robert M. Cutting, president of the Western Golf association, presents Frank Dolp with the championship cup. Dolp regained the title he won in 1926.

Tilden's Reply on Expulsion Lashes Chiefs

Boston, Mass., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Big Bill Tilden, writer, actor and the greatest tennis player the world has ever seen, lashed out this afternoon at the officials of tennisdom who last night, in a session in New York, suspended him from amateur competition, but would not go so far as to brand him a professional.

Tilden, who is appearing in a vaudeville act in a theater near here, scanned the U. S. L. T. A. statement reading him out of the ranks of the sport in which he has been the most striking figure for more than a decade, and then expressed himself emphatically on the subject of the men who took the action. He denies what he terms their implication that he is a liar.

Will Ask Reinstatement.

"I shall apply for immediate reinstatement at the September meeting of the executive committee of the U. S. L. T. A.," he said in a statement.

"I am far more amateur in spirit than some of the men who have run tennis for years, with one eye to the gate, and have exploited me for its advancement," he added in a hot verbal shot over the net. "In this statement I am not referring to President Collum or Joseph W. Wear, chairman of the Davis cup committee, but to certain of their predecessors.

"I strongly resent the implications of bad faith which the U. S. L. T. A. imputes to me in their official statement. They claim they refuse to accept my statement that I did not intentionally violate or evade the letter or spirit of the law.

Resents Interpretation.

"This body of gentlemen is interpreting my motives against my interpretation. In other words, they are calling me a liar. This I deeply resent. I am willing to stand against any such statement for I know my intent and they do not. The publican can choose which of us is right. And I am willing," he added, "to stack my service in American tennis up against that of any individual official on the committee which barred me and let the public choose which has been and is of more value to the game."

Herb Gardiner Named Manager of Black Hawks

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin announced yesterday that William J. Tobin, secretary of the Black Hawks, had returned with the contract of Herb Gardiner, captain and star defense player of Les Canadiens hockey team. He will manage the Black Hawks, succeeding Hugh Lehman.

Gardiner was 38 years of age when he came out of the west, unheralded, two years ago, and made a record for durability which probably will stand for some time. He played the full sixty minutes in forty-eight games, which led to his selection by a committee of sport writers as the most valuable player to his team in the National Hockey league, his first year in big company.

TROEH WINS IN DOUBLES; TRAP SHOOT CLOSES

Vandalia, O., Aug. 25.—(AP)—With six more championships decided the 29th Grand American tournament was brought to a close at the permanent home of the Amateur Trap Shooting association at Vandalia today.

Frank M. Troeh, Portland, Ore., was crowned class A doubles champion, breaking 135 out of 200 targets. Casper Hoffman III. of Denver, Colo., broke 135, but lost out in the shoot-off.

Walter G. Warren of Chicago defeated Mark Arie of Champaign, Ill., in a shoot-off for the international hundred title. At the end of 100 targets these two star shooters were tied with 95 each.

Chicagoans Win First Place at Railroad Field Meet

Chicago athletes made the first annual track and field meet of the Chicago and North Western railway, held yesterday at the Evanston High school field in Evanston, an all-Chicago victory when the Chicago Shops team captured the team trophy with a total of 15 points and the Chicago General Office team won the half mile relay race and tied with Galena for second place honors with 13 points.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Frank Dolp, 24 year old six footer from Portland, Ore., won the western amateur golf championship for the second time at Bob o' Link yesterday. He defeated Augustus Novotny of Edgewood Valley, 4 and 3, in the 36 hole final. Dolp, no taller but slightly thicker than his toothpick proportions of 1926, when he beat Bon Stein in the final at White Bear, won yesterday by the process of piling up a long lead and holding it. In the 33 holes he shot 22 pars and 5 birdies.

Novotny tried most every kind of rough on the course in the morning, and to top it off putted badly, so Dolp, with steady golf and a couple of good putts, stood six up at noon. But on the second round Dolp continued his steady pars, while Novotny was as brilliant as he had been bad in the morning. He scored 34 on the first nine of the afternoon, gaining two holes, one of which he won with an eagle three to Dolp's birdie four.

Ends on Sour Note.

Novotny had won another hole and pulled up to three down with five to play, but the duel, which had sometimes hit startling crescendos, ended on a sour note when Gus missed an 18 inch putt for a half to keep the match alive. It was worse than Dolp's miss of a three footer for a win on the preceding hole.

Though the match ended like the club championship of the class C players, the brilliant spots before that final green more than made up for it.

One of those moments came on the twenty-fourth hole. They had halved the 545 yard 23d in birdie fours, Novotny sinking a six foot putt after Dolp had holed an eight footer. Both drove perfectly on the twenty-fourth, Novotny the longer, and Dolp slammed a shot to the left edge of the green, hole high but 50 feet from the pin.

The cup was at the right of the green, which is 495 yards from the tee, and Novotny's ball at the right of the fairway, so he had to carry the corner of a trap. He played a beautiful iron shot, the ball soaring over the trap, fading slightly toward the end, and curving in to roll on to within two feet of the cup. Dolp's putt for an eagle was short and he sank his second for a birdie, but Gus rapped his down for an eagle to the accompaniment of the pro-Novotny gallery cheers.

Dolp a Slow Player.

Dolp will stroll back to Portland—one can't imagine him doing anything faster than a stroll—escorting the ornate championship cup back to the Pacific northwest for the third successive year. Two years ago, after his first appearance in the tournament Dolp took it to Portland, last year Bon Stein moved it up the coast to Seattle, Wash., and once more it goes back to the land of the tall pine.

Dolp made his first bid for sporting page headlines on the public parks of Portland, really starting to play golf in 1926, though he had dubbed around in earlier years.

After becoming a member of a private club, which barred him from the parks tournament, he won the Oregon state championship two years, in 1925 and 1926, and followed his victory in the latter year by winning the western championship. He also was runner-up to George Von Elm in the California tournament in 1926. He was medalist in the Pacific northwest championship last year.

In this tournament he qualified easily with 151, though ten shots back of Johnny Dawson, the medalist, and has played the same steady kind of golf throughout the week.

Both Drive Well.

Both of the finalists were driving well, Gus being slightly longer off the tee on an average, but also somewhat wilder, and in the morning Dolp won most of his holes with fine approaches and good putts. Dolp's first win came on the fourth hole, after they had halved three, when he pitched to two feet of the pin for a deuce. He won the next two also, the fifth when Gus drove to the rough, pulled his third into the rough and slugged a couple without getting anywhere. The sixth Novotny lost by pitching his third over the green. Novotny won his first hole, the ninth, where both put their seconds in the trap, and Gus blasted to the green and Frank chopped out far over.

Starting two up, Dolp halved the tenth, lost the eleventh, and then won three. Novotny missed his tee shot on the short twelfth, while Dolp drove the green. On the next hole Novotny drove to the rough and was short with his second, missing a six foot putt for a half. A chip to three feet of the pin for one putt gave Dolp the fourteenth, when Gus' chip was 15 feet away, and he took two putts.

They halved the fifteenth in par, Dolp putting from a trap to five feet and getting down in one putt, and halved the sixteenth, both failing to reach the green with their tee shots. Dolp went five up on the seventeenth by sinking a chip shot from just off the green for a birdie, while Gus just missed his 18 foot putt for a half. Dolp's drive ran through a trap and his spoon second did the same, reaching the green, on the eighteenth. Gus was hole high to the right with his second, but he didn't get close enough with his chip to get down a putt for a half and Dolp went to lunch six up.

The afternoon was the same kind of golf for Dolp, but an exact reversal for Novotny, though Frank won the first hole by sinking an eight foot putt for a birdie and going seven up.

Both Sink 8 Foot Putts.

Dolp saved himself a half on the twentieth by chipping dead after going over the green with his approach and Novotny won the next, Dolp again pitching over and chipping back to three feet, but this time missing the putt. It was just about his first poor putt of the day. Gus snatched a half on the twenty-second, chipping to four feet after pushing his tee shot, and they rammed down six and eight footers for a half in birdie 4's on the 545 yard twenty-third. The hole that Novotny's great eagle beat Dolp's fine birdie came next, and Novotny won the next hole also, when Dolp picked up after putting his second in a trap and taking three blasts to get out.

Novotny now was four down with fourteen holes to go, but they halved five holes before Gus won another. He saved a half on the short twenty-sixth by chipping from the right of the green to ten inches of the cup, and Dolp took three putts on the twenty-seventh after Gus had pulled his second and put his third eight feet from the pin. They got par 5's on the twenty-eighth, Novotny playing another perfect chip to two feet and still another from sixty feet to two feet for a birdie on the twenty-ninth.

Short Game Improves.

His short game, which was bad in the morning, was beautiful now. Dolp also had a fine chip, from 80 feet to three feet on the twenty-ninth, which gave him a birdie also. The thirtieth was normal 3s, and Gus took the thirty-first, rimming the cup with a 60 foot putt for a three, while Dolp, his second in a trap, chipped up and took two putts for a five.

Gus had pulled up from seven down and seventeen to play to three down and five to play, and on the next hole it seemed as if Dolp, the imperturbable, at last might crack under Novotny's drive. Both were in a trap short of the green and Gus got out to 12 feet of the pin and Frank laid his up to three feet. Novotny's putt was wide and he had to putt again, sinking it, and then Dolp missed his wee one, giving Gus a half.

Dolp was three up and four to play now, and the unexpected sudden end came on the next hole. Dolp was thirty feet from the cup with his second shot and Novotny 35 feet, and Gus putted to 18 inches. Dolp's approach putt was two feet past the cup and he sank it and then Novotny rolled past the left side of the cup and the match was over.

TUNNEY SHOWS McCORMACK HOW HE BEAT DEMPSEY

Irishmen Cheer Him at Tailteann Games.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 25. —For the first time since he battered Tom Heeney into something resembling a pulp, Gene Tunney stepped into a ring tonight.

For the first time in his life, and probably the first time in the life of any world champion, he used it as a platform for a speech.

The occasion was the awarding of the prizes to the champion boxers of the Tailteann games. After the former heavyweight champion bestowed the medals on the beaming winners, he made a little speech extolling the virtues of amateur boxing—the only kind of prize fighting he is going to have anything to do with henceforth.

The mob of 20,000 Irishmen would have preferred to see him step a couple of rounds with the local pride, but they gave him a big hand at the conclusion of the speech.

Attends Horse Races.

Later in the evening he slipped over to Mansion house, where the "Cellidhe Mhor" took place. This, for the uninitiated, denotes the native dances, which are on tap during the Tailteann games.

Earlier in the day he motored in from Moore abbey, where he was a guest of John McCormack last night, and attended the races at Leopardstown. There was heavy betting among the party on Mr. McCormack's horse, Golden Lullaby, which won the feature race, but Gene denied he placed a penny, admitting he "didn't know how to bet."

Rehearses Dempsey Fight.

Last night's gathering at Mr. McCormack's lovely summer mansion developed into a weird party it was learned today. Over the after-dinner port some one wanted to know the real story of the Chicago fight with Jack Dempsey. So Tunney obliged by taking the great singer and the American minister to Ireland, who never saw a fight in his life, as opponents, and proceeded to shadow box the whole contest, including the famous seventh round knockdown. In evening clothes they fought it out again, until the dishes, which started to drop off the sideboard, reminded them that they were in Ireland, not Chicago.

teurish fashion. But Kamm walked and filled the bases. Then came Bib's big double, No. 2, which scored Hunnefield and Metzler.

Tommy Thomas went in and held the A's helpless in the eighth, and in the ninth the customers were treated to one of the most harrowing innings of the current season, from a Philadelphia point of view.

Five More Runs in Ninth.

Simmons made a shoe string catch of Crouse's drive. Thomas, Mostil and Hunnefield touched the great Grove for successive singles, filling the bases. This was followed with a double by Metzler, which scored Thomas and Mostil and put Hunnefield on third. Grove had enough, so a gent named Yerkes stepped in and got his in the form of successive singles by Clancy, Kamm and Falk. The net of the inning was seven hits and five runs.

Early in the second game the Sox seemed to be suffering from a sort of nervous reaction, which reached the peak in the third inning. In the first inning, the A's had made one run on the normal process of a triple by Cochrane with two out, followed by a single by Simmons.

Mackmen Jar Faber.

The A's third went like this: Rommel singled to left and stopped at third when Bishop doubled. Orwoll walked filling the bases. Cochrane lined to Mostil, who muffed the ball, picked it up and threw to the screen back of home. Johnny's error gave the Macks two runs. Two more came in, however, on a single by Simmons and Foxx's sacrifice fly.

In their fourth the Sox got their bearings a bit. After Hunnefield had struck out, Metzler walked and went to third on Shires' single. Kamm flied to Miller, but Falk singled to right, scoring Metzler and putting Shires on third. Redfern doubled, scoring Shires and Falk.

The A's added a run in the sixth. Earnshaw singled with one down. Bishop also singled, but Earnshaw was out at third, Bishop reaching second. Orwoll singled to center, scoring Bishop, but was out when he overran first.

Walsh started pitching in the seventh and was nicked for two runs. Cochrane walked. Simmons struck out. Foxx singled to center. Miller's sacrifice fly scored Cochrane and Haas' single put over Foxx.

In the eighth the A's made four hits for five runs off our boy from Notre Dame. Falk scored in the ninth, following his third double of the day.

Travis Jackson of Giants Named Best Shortstop in the Major Leagues

This is the sixth of a series of articles by Irving Vaughan, veteran baseball writer, selecting the ten greatest players in the game today. He has named Hartnett of the Cubs as catcher, Pennock of the Yanks and Benton of the Giants as pitchers, Bottomley of the Cards as first baseman, and Hornsby of the Braves as second basement. His remaining selections will appear on succeeding Sundays in The Tribune.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

In casting about for the reigning shortstop of the current major campaigns the choice is limited. This happens to be a period in the so-called national pastime when the men who once rated highly are slipping backward and newcomers have not yet reached the heights. Two exceptions to this period of transition are Travis Jackson of the Giants and Glenn Wright of the Pirates and there hardly can be any question about the New York star having a season's edge on the Pittsburgh infielder.

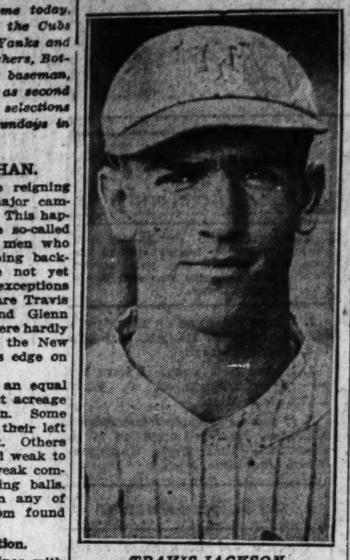
Jackson today is without an equal in the art of covering a vast acreage around his chosen position. Some shortstops excel in going to their left and are weak on their right. Others are strong on their right and weak to their left. Still others are weak coming in on slow, low bounding balls. Put Jackson to the test on any of these things and he's seldom found wanting.

Throws from Any Position.

The Giant shortstop combines with this ground covering accuracy the things that complete him as the ideal man for protecting the most hazardous sector of the infield. He gets a thrown ball away and with less effort than any outstanding shortstop in recent years. And even in hurried throws he is deadly accurate to first base. Anybody who has seen the Giants in the last few seasons has seen Jackson charge to his right, almost to the grass back of third, and throw out a runner. It is not an unusual feat for him. Getting the throw away without loss of motion is the answer. Average shortstops don't stop such balls in the first place. And if they did, they couldn't make the throw without straightening up.

It is an old belief in baseball that no team can succeed unless it possesses a couple of finished workman around the middle of the infield. Last year McGraw had Jackson and Hornsby, admittedly a formidable pair, and their defensive play had much to do with the late rush the Giants made for the pennant. Now, with Hornsby gone, the Giants again are favored for a belated rush and not a little of this is due to the stonewall Chief Jackson presence erects across his part of the infield. His speed and agility is a the right thing at the right time and undoubtedly have made a success of Second Sacker Andy Cohen and the Jewish lad would be if given alongside a shortstop of limited ...

Best at His Post



TRAVIS JACKSON.

Dangerous Hitter in Pinch.

As a hitter Jackson is not particularly impressive this season. In as averages go, but he is always a dangerous a batter as he possesses. He is the kind of fellow who will lay back and wait for the ball he wants. When he gets it, he is for it, and any time he connects who he thinks is the right one he's likely to knock it to the wall and break up a ball game. He's done that many a thing time and again, as pitchers who have opposed him can attest.

There are any number of shortstops in both majors who are well above the ordinary, but they lack the steadiness and all around skill of the Giant star. In this class you could include Dave Bancroft of Cleveland, Thevenow of the Cardinals, and Koenig of the Yanks.

Jackson broke into the major leagues in 1922 when he was purchased by the New York Giants from the Little Rock club of the Southern association. That year he appeared in only three games for the Giants, going to bat eight times without getting safely. He also was a utility player in 1923 but was installed as a regular shortstop in 1924. During his major league career he has maintained a batting average of .301. His record:

Year	Club	League	Games	Batting Average
1923	New York	N.L.	3	.000
1924	New York	N.L.	151	.275
1925	New York	N.L.	151	.302
1926	New York	N.L.	155	.317
1927	New York	N.L.	153	.337

Jackson came to bat once in the 1923 world's series and failed to hit. The following year he played in all seven games, going to bat 27 times and getting 3 hits for an average of .074.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question M. Miller, 1933 South Jefferson street, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Would you like to see the Sox and Cubs play the city series this year, and which do you consider the better team?

The Answers.

Jack Yorgan, Lake Shore Athletic club, golf instructor.—There should be a series between the Sox and Cubs every year. It is a part of our city festivities. The Cubs refused to play last year, though the Sox were willing. The Cubs undoubtedly would win this year, but in the interests of local baseball the series should be played.

A. W. Hoge, 5414 Maryland avenue, government employé.—I would like to see the city series played here this year and every year. The city series games have been of benefit to baseball in Chicago. It gives the north side and south side fans a chance to settle their disputes. I am strong for the White Sox, and they would win the series, of course.

J. J. Scanlan, traveling salesman; address: United States.—I will answer that question in the affirmative and in favor of the Cubs. The Cubs are good one day and no good the next. The same holds true with the Sox. The point I make is that cities having teams in both the National and American leagues should stage a series for the city title each year.

C. V. Stucko, 308 North Michigan avenue, president, Rapid Copy service.—I certainly would like to see the city series played this year. We missed this bit of excitement last year. I favor the Cubs, particularly because I know something about Mr. Wrigley and his fairness to his employés and to his fellowmen.

T. J. Haskell, 664 North Michigan avenue, salesman.—Why certainly; and I am pulling for the Sox. The Sox have a good team, but they are only beginning to find themselves. I believe the Sox have a better pitching staff than the Cubs, while the Cubs have strong fielders. I would bet on the Sox.

The four record-breaking Studebaker cars were driven continuously, day and night, by professional racing drivers—with stops averaging less than sixty seconds for tire changes, water, gas and oil.

30,000 MINUTES!

PENNZOIL USED EXCLUSIVELY in four Studebaker President Eights which broke all existing stock car records for distances over 2,000 Miles.

BETWEEN July 21st and August 9th at the Atlantic City Speedway—carefully watched by officials of the A.A.A.—four stock Studebaker President Eights each ran 30,000 miles in less than 30,000 minutes—with Pennzoil Motor Oil in all four motors—Pennzoil Gear Case Oil in all four transmissions and rear axles.

No oils ever endured such a test before.

Three years' normal mileage crowded into less than three weeks of continuous day and night running at an average speed of better than a mile a minute—and at intense summer temperatures, often over 100 degrees.

When motors and moving parts were torn down after the run there was no indication of unusual wear.

Nothing we can add is stronger than these cold facts. There is no better oil than Pennzoil—nothing "just the same".

RUTH RESUMES HOME RUN DRIVE AS YANKS DIVIDE

Hits 46th Four Bagger; Also Long Triple.

New York, Aug. 25. — (AP) — The Yankees and the Tigers divided a double header here today while the Athletics and the White Sox were doing the same thing in Philadelphia, thus keeping the American league race on the same footing, with the Yanks leading by a margin of three contests. The visitors took the opener, 9 to 3, while the champions came back to earn the decision in the nightcap, 7 to 6.

The second game was cut short by rain at the end of the seventh just after Babe Ruth had punched his forty-sixth home run into the bleachers with Dugan and Gehrig on base. Earlier in the game Ruth had helped a four run Yankee rally with an amazing triple, which hit the screen in front of the center field bleachers, some 475 feet from the plate. Scores:

LOTT CAPTURES TWO TITLES IN NEWPORT TENNIS

Newport, R. I., Aug. 25.—(AP)—When the smoke of tennis battle cleared away late this afternoon, it left George M. Lott Jr. of Chicago, member of the Davis cup team as well as third ranking player, the victor in the two finals of the twelfth annual invitation tennis tournament at the Casino.

In both cases Lott dons the robes worn last year by his fellow Davis cup player, William T. Tilden.

Lott won from John Van Ryn of Orange, N. J., in the singles in five sets, 2-6, 6-0, 3-6, 6-2, 6-0 and with John Doeg of Santa Monica, Cal., as his partner, won the doubles from John Van Ryn, Orange, and Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

Lott's victory over Van Ryn kept a pitifully small gallery mildly entertained by display of the most erratic tennis ever seen in the finals of this classic affair. Twenty breaks through service, six games of love and only seven in the entire match carried to deuce, runs of six games in a row by each player in successive sets, and a record run of eleven games in the last two sets by Lott, with numberless errors, featured the match.

PIRATES MAKE IT THREE IN A ROW OVER GIANTS, 7-1

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The Pirates handed the Giants' flag hopes another jolt by taking the final game of the series, 7 to 1, here today. It was the Corsairs third straight triumph over the McGraw forces. Sparky Adams completed his 25th straight game and 165th consecutive fielding chance without an error.

CARDS INCREASE LEAD; NOSE OUT PHILS IN TENTH

Alexander Allows Only 3 Hits; Wins, 2-1.

St. Louis, Aug. 25.—(AP)—"Old Pete" Alexander today disproved any declaration that he was slipping when he presented the Phillies with three scattered hits in a ten inning affair which ended in favor of the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 1. The triumph advanced the Red Bird lead to 2½ games as the Giants again lost.

TWO HELENS IN FINALS; NATIONAL CROWN IS PRIZE

Molla and Edith Cross Are Eliminated.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Two blondes from California, Helen Wills and Helen Jacobs, the one a figure of rather classical line, the other a chunky young party with the mouth line and jaw of a determined woman, played through to the final round in the woman's national tennis championship in the stadium at Forest Hills this afternoon.

Miss Wills, the champion, won from Miss Edith Cross, the third California girl in the quartette of semi-finalists, 6-0, 6-1, and Miss Jacobs frustrated Mrs. Molla Mallory, 6-2, 7-5.

Spectators Remain Calm.

As all this was strictly according to expectation and plan, the sport at no time pulled the spectators out of their seats. They were seen to hunch up toward the edges of the benches and wring their score cards for a time during the second set of the Jacobs-Mallory match, however, for here Mrs. Mallory suddenly came to a stand and fought for the set point only to weaken again and resume the slow course of her decline.

Leading five games to three, Mrs. Mallory ran the score up to 40-15 in the ninth game and then made an out. Helen then shot across two placements and Mrs. Mallory lost the game with another out. Helen won the next three games, 4-1, 4-1, and 5-3, taking the set and match and dismissing for another year a past champion whose combativeness and know-how are still the greatest in the game, but whose tendons have lost something.

Molla Exhibits Ferocity.

It may be hard to fancy the quality of ferocity in lawn tennis, but this is the quality that Mrs. Mallory has shown most of in her career, and the trait that made the patrons rumple their programs as she fought back momentarily this afternoon. She discharged in the gentle, mannerly game of tennis the same fury that Dempsey let go in the ring, and as she lingered for a moment in the second set the tennis people, under their discipline, felt a faint stir of the same emotion that brought the unseen mobs up yowling during the seventh round at Chicago.

This is a way of hinting that if Mrs. Mallory had torn into that young snip and knocked her sidewise the people would have been much pleased, and for once in the history of the game might have tossed their parasols, vanity jiggers, and straw hats all over the arena.

Play Finals Monday.

Now the two blonde Helens from California will meet in the final and championship match on these grounds Monday afternoon. They would have played off the championship today, but rain during the week retarded the program by one day and doubtless cost the lawn tennis association and the West Side club, which owns the stadium and runs the production, an attractive item of money. Played off on a Saturday, the championship might have filled the arena. But the semi-final drew no more than 1,500 patrons, and Monday is a poor day in the sport business.

Miss Wills attended to the ambitions of the Cross girl in just half an hour. Edith showed just one stir of might, winning the second game of the second set, 4-2, on her own service.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—When Mr. Curley was in Pueblo, Colo., some years ago with Fireman Jim Flynn racking pool balls and performing other light tasks to tide the pair of them over a routine financial crisis, he received a telegram from a promoter in Salt Lake City offering them a match with Mr. Tony Caponi.

"My athlete," Mr. Curley wired, "will kill Caponi."

"That will be great," the promoter responded, "as Caponi is a great popular favorite here and killing would make your bum a great drawing card. Please rush bum."

"All athletes and their managers were shipped f. o. b. in those days," Mr. Curley relates, "and it was three days before I could find a freight bound for Salt Lake City. We arrived about four days before the contest and I immediately picked out an exclusive saloon for my gentleman's training quarters and went into training myself in close proximity to the cheese crock.

"The only sporting editor in Salt Lake City was a friend of mine, so we received nice publicity despite the fact that the match appeared to be most uneven.

"Consequently, on the night of the contest there were a large number of devotees of the ring sport gathered in the opera house and the receipts were quite satisfactory indeed.

"But," says Mr. Curley, "there was a refreshment resort just across the alley from the theater and there was a door leading from the orchestra pit to the alley. The press seats were in the orchestra pit and my good friend the sporting editor had a seat about where the doghouse fiddler would be during the theatrical performances. That is, he was at the end of the pit, just a step from the door leading to the alley at the other side of which was the refreshment resort.

"Not to put too fine a point upon it," Mr. Curley related, "my friend became cemented, as I believe the old phrase went, and by the time the main event went on he was in a state of unconsciousness, which was just as well, in a way, because my fireman walked out and hit Mr. Caponi a slap on the ear and knocked him prostrate in the first round.

I immediately picked out an exclusive saloon for my gentleman's training quarters.

"Well, now," Mr. Curley goes on to assert, "the contest really was unsatisfactory from the artistic standpoint, but I had done my best, and therefore I collected our funds and started down to the hotel alone. On the way I passed the office of the newspaper and saw the managing editor standing in front. He asked me if I had seen his sporting editor, and I said, 'Yes, sir, but he seemed to be in poor health, so if you would like me to do so I will write an article about the boxing exhibition.'

"'Thank you for your kind offer,' the editor replied, 'and come right in.' So I composed an article," says Mr. Curley, "and while I was at it I thought I would denounce Mr. Flynn, Mr. Caponi, and myself for presenting such an unsatisfactory spectacle, and this I did in ringing language."

About five o'clock in the morning Mr. Curley's telephone rang and the sporting editor's thick voice asked permission to see him.

"Perhaps I had better send up the paper first, and after you have read my story you can see if you still want me to come up."

"O, fiddlesticks," said Mr. Curley, "I have seen the paper; come on up." Entering the room, the sporting editor said: 'My dear Mr. Curley, I did not think I ever would write anything so unkind about an old pal or an old pal's bum. I assure you that I have not the slightest recollection of writing this article and I can only conclude that I did it while I was not myself."

"O, that is all right," Mr. Curley replied, "it was a bad exhibition and you only did what a fearless journalist should have done. But tell me, my dear sir, who knocked out those two front teeth and gave you that black eye?"

"That?" said the sporting editor. "O, your gladiator, Mr. Flynn, did that to me about fifteen minutes ago for knocking the best manager he ever had. And I do not blame him, either."

3 TITLE MEETS ON POLO CARD IN SEPTEMBER

Blues vs. Whites Today at Oak Brook.

With three major polo competitions scheduled by the United States Polo association for the famous Oak Brook grounds in September, players of this club and the various organizations around Chicago will be getting in shape during the next week for the title games. These competitions consist of a twelve goal handicap tournament which starts Sept. 1 and in which the famous California Burlingame-San Mateo four is entered; the Chicago championship in which no handicaps are allowed and which begins Sept. 16, and the Central Circuit championship which is scheduled to start Sept. 23.

There are a dozen teams eligible for the twelve goal event in this section but not so many can make a showing in the Chicago championship event as there are two teams at Oak Brook and one at Onwentsia which are far stronger than any other teams than can be gathered in these parts. However, Grasmere is playing a great game and so is the first four at Leona Farms and these teams will have an outside chance to win. On the other hand the fourteen goal teams of Oak Brook, Cantigny and the Four Horsemen are the strongest in this section, and they are almost certain to be in the finals for the Chicago championship.

A new combination will be tried out this afternoon at Oak Brook in preparation for the September contests. Col. R. R. McCormick will lead his Blues against Paul Butler's Whites. The teams will line up as follows:

BLUES.	Position.	WHITES.
Crites	No. 1	Baldwin
Corpening	No. 2	C. Crawford
Col. Margetts	No. 3	Butler, Capt.
Col. McCormick, C.	No. 4	Turner

The game will start at 2:30.

GOOD WILL USED CARS

Amazingly Easy Way to get into ELECTRICITY

H. C. Lewis President

Thousands of Men in Chicago Earn $60.00 to $200.00 Per Week in Electricity

YES! And right here in Chicago there's a demand for thousands more like them—but they must be REAL ELECTRICIANS—who know all branches—fellows who know the business—NOT men who have learned all they know about electricity in a few hours—NOT men who call themselves "electricians" merely because they do some simple, routine work connected with electricity—but TRAINED men—men who know electricity in all its branches.

And—MAN!—right here in Chicago—at your very doorstep—you can get just exactly this training—in the easiest, simplest, quickest possible way!

You can fit yourself for a fine steady job, leading to salaries of from $60 to $200 a week—and you can do it in a few short months by working on actual electrical machinery, under expert supervision, three evenings a week—WITHOUT giving up your present job!

"Tell me what you do with your evenings and I'll tell you what you are."

A great man said that, and he was right! What are YOU going to do with your evenings this fall and winter? Will you WASTE them—will you use them to "kill time," or will you use them to lay the foundation of a BIG FUTURE? If you are CONTENT to be in the small pay, "never-sure-of-a-job" class, go ahead and spend your evenings any way you please. BUT—if you really WANT to get ahead, I invite you to drop right over to the Coyne School here in Chicago and see just how fellows like yourself are quickly fitting themselves for a wonderful future, and getting a great big "kick" out of it, too! Note how happy they look! And YOU'D look happy too, if you could see ahead of you what THEY see!

Three Evenings a Week—A Few Short Months—Will Put You in the Big Pay Class.

The COYNE WAY is the new, sure, easy, quick way, because it cuts out all waste motion, all "frills," all unnecessary theory, all mere recitation—and gives, instead, practical training right from the start on actual electrical machinery. You don't need an advanced education—you don't need previous experience. It's all so simple—so practical. You wind real armatures, build real batteries, wire real homes, operate real power plants. You do all this under personal, individual supervision of experts, so you CAN'T go wrong!

Keep Your Present Job Till You Graduate!

If you want to devote your days to Coyne, you can master this course in 90 days; but by taking a little longer time, you need only devote three evenings a week to the course, and so hold on to your present job. You can take your choice—but whatever you do, GET STARTED. Then after you graduate you can have the help at any time of our life-time employment service. And the very first step is to come down to Coyne and see for yourself—or, if you are not ready to do that right away, don't fail to send in the coupon below at once and get our big FREE 56-Page Book.

Easy Payment Plan—Especially for You!

I don't want any really ambitious fellow to be held back for one minute by lack of funds. So I have worked out an easy payment plan that enables every fellow who wants to amount to something to take Coyne Training and pay for it on terms he can easily meet. So, don't let finances stand in your way. Don't let ANYTHING stand in your way! Come over to Coyne and see how EASY it is to get started!

If You Can't Visit Our New $2,000,000 School—MAIL THE COUPON FOR BIG FREE BOOK!

Plan to visit the great Coyne School—or if you can't do that at once—by all means fill out the coupon below and mail it in. You will receive FREE our big 56-page book telling you all about Coyne, and showing you with 150 photographs, just how COYNE trains men for big pay. Mail the coupon TODAY!

Detroit Soccer Team Defeats Brickies, 3 to 2

The Holley Carburetors of Detroit yesterday successfully opened a two game series with Chicago's soccer teams when they trimmed the Brick layers, western titleholders, 3 to 2, at Sparta field. The Detroit team will play Sparta at Sparta field today.

The Brickies had only five of last year's championship players in the lineup, but they presented a trio of newcomers who looked promising—Hugh Davidson, formerly of the Thistles; Martin of Waverly, and Trends, a German player, who recently arrived in town.

Preceding today's Holley-Sparta game there will be a curtain raiser between Sparta seconds and the Slovak A. A., starting at 1:30. Holley lineup.

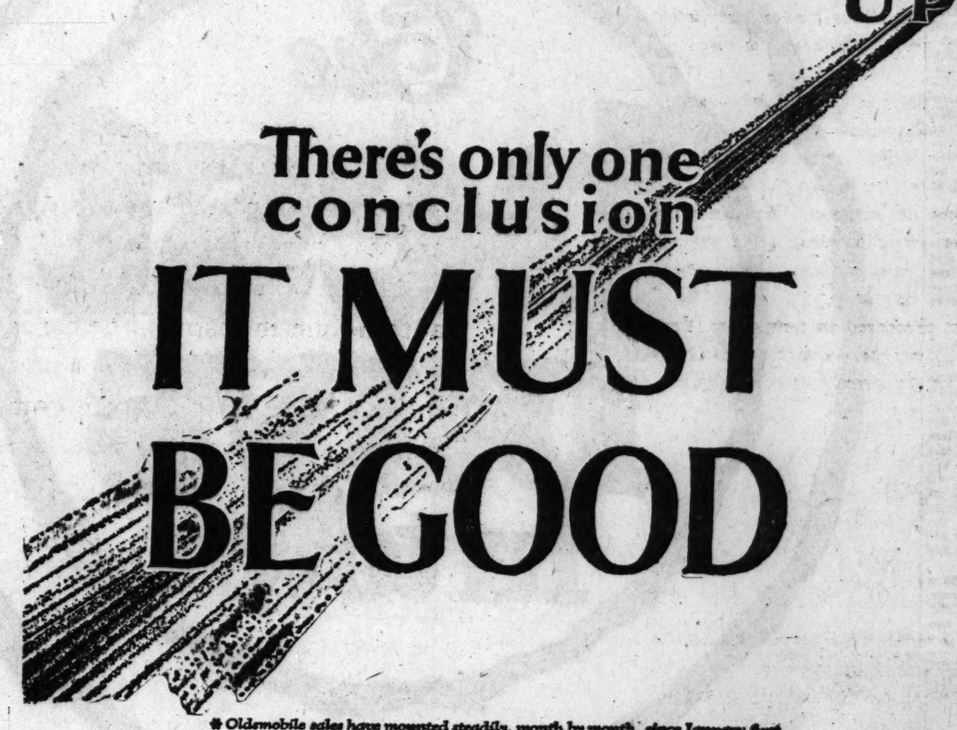
GOING UP*

There's only one conclusion

IT MUST BE GOOD



* Oldsmobile sales have mounted steadily, month by month, since January first

When a car wins success as quickly as this new Oldsmobile, there is only one conclusion—it must be good!

And the facts confirm this judgment.

Its magnificent new bodies by Fisher reveal the surpassing beauty and craftsmanship for which Fisher is world-famous.

Its great 55 h. p. engine provides high-compression performance without special fuels.

Its silenced chassis embodies every accepted principle of fine-car design and its complete equipment shows exceptional concern with owner satisfaction.

Four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, easy-acting, positive four-wheel brakes, bumpers front and rear, radiator shutters, gasoline gauge and temperature gauge are conveniently located on the dash—in fact everything that contributes to comfort, convenience and easy riding—are included in its low price.

When you consider these facts, it is not surprising that engineers and critics pronounce this new Oldsmobile "Two years ahead!"

Thousands of motorists acclaim it "The Fine Car of Low Price." Owners grow more enthusiastic with each mile of driving. Sales have leaped to a new high point. Even with increased factory facilities, it is difficult to keep production abreast of demand!

So the evidence rolls up—until your own good judgment tells you . . .

"I must see this new Oldsmobile. I must drive it myself. There's no denying, it must be good!"

General Motors presents

The new BUICK

This year is Buick's twenty-fifth anniversary, and the General Motors Family joins in the celebration.

What a remarkable place Buick has won in public affection!

In the past quarter of a century more than 2,000,000 cars have rolled out of the Buick factory. The first million Buicks were purchased in the first twenty years; the second million in the past five years.

And every year for the twenty-five years a better Buick has been built.

The consistency of Buick's performance has produced an owner loyalty which has few parallels in the history of business. Thousands of families are being served by their third Buick, their fifth Buick — indeed, many have never owned any cars but Buicks.

Buick has just presented its new series. You naturally would expect the occasion of thesilver anniversary to produce something especially fine —and it has.

The new CADILLAC —the new LASALLE

For twenty-six years Cadillac has been representative of America's finest in the fine car field. Cadillac introduced the eight-cylinder 90-degree V-type engine, a shorter, more compact power plant, which eliminated vibration. It was first to have electric starting, lighting and ignition. And then Cadillac and General Motors, out of their rich experience, introduced LaSalle, a companion car to Cadillac, which the public lifted to immediate leadership.

And now come the New Cadillac and the New LaSalle.

You already have been told of the important developments in the New Cadillac and the New LaSalle—the new transmission by which you can shift noiselessly, and without clashing, at any speed; the exclusive Fleetwood and Fisher Bodies; the luxurious enrichment of line and finish.

These and other features you will see in the new models now on display. That which interests General Motors most is not so much the detail of these improvements—impressive as they are—but the spirit which produced them. More important than making money, more thrilling than added sales, is the pleasure of taking something fine and making it finer. This is the meaning of the New Cadillac and the New LaSalle.

New Models

and THE OPEN MIND

THE public, with its healthy desire for the new and the better, insists upon continuous improvement, and will withdraw its patronage from any product or service which stands still.

Nowhere is this more true than in the automobile industry. The car is more than a utility. It is a personal thing, involving your convenience, your comfort, your safety, your sense of beauty and color, your pride of ownership, your complete environment for many hours of your life. Customs and habits of living change fast, and the past holds many warnings of how quickly your favor can shift when an automobile, for even a single year, fails to show progress.

Continuous improvement is, therefore, more than a policy with General Motors. It is a vital necessity. The public demands new models.

And the public is right. Out of that demand have come electric starting and lighting, the closed body, Duco finish, four-wheel brakes and hundreds of refinements, big and little. Improvements that might have taken a generation have been born within a few years because motorists want always more performance, greater beauty and greater comfort.

Equipped with the largest research laboratories, proving ground and body plants, and guided by an Open Mind which is ready to revise its thinking in response to new facts, General Motors believes that it is peculiarly fitted not only to sense but to anticipate public demand and to give the people better automobiles at better values year after year.

As evidence of that faith we offer, with genuine pride, the New Buick, the New Cadillac and the New LaSalle. Their models are now on display.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

SOLUTION FOR PARKING PUZZLE IS IMPERATIVE

Problem Grows to Face Traffic Experts.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.

Next in importance to the problem of providing adequate width of streets and highways for motor traffic and smooth paved surface thereon, is the matter of preventing the clogging of these arteries with parked cars.

Sufficiently wide streets, with grade separations that will permit rapid and continuous movement of traffic, undoubtedly stand as most essential if there is to be increased use of motor vehicles and as a result increased benefits from it.

Parking of cars along the sides of traveled streets is becoming to be considered as out of order, if not an obsolete practice. Such parking is shown, upon analysis, to be too extravagant a habit for even such a prosperous nation as this. Use of twenty feet of street surface for dead vehicles violates all economic principles, when it is considered that the twenty feet rendered useless to traffic may have cost millions of dollars per running city block—and is worth it when used.

Parking Defeats Objects.

The vast sums willingly paid for widening streets are predicated upon the benefits to be yielded in the provision of space for vehicular traffic. If immediately the portion gained by the widening is taken up by dead or approximately dead storage of cars, the object sought is defeated.

Thus disposing, by wave of the hand, the costly and objectionable custom of using, as outdoor garages, streets built for the purpose of providing means for moving traffic, the questionnaires as to what disposition can be made of standing vehicles if the streets are denied them.

A number of solutions have been put forward. Chicago, having the good fortune to reclaim a large area of lake frontage, has a place for immobile vehicles which is fairly fitted for the purpose and which does not outrage the sensibilities of the economist.

Expense Is Justified.

While the site of the parks has been acquired at considerable expense, it has been a public expense, undertaken for the relief of all citizens by furnishing space for rest, recreation, and relaxation. The streets have been provided for a wholly different purpose.

Loiterers on the streets are arrested for doing so; loiterers in parks are encouraged. Custom differentiates between the uses of accommodations.

Other cities have not Chicago's advantage. A large part of Chicago's business community cannot or does not take advantage of the Grant park solution. So Chicago is equally interested with other populous centers in meeting the parking problem.

Meeting the Problem.

Of the obvious escapes from this situation the following probably are most generally accepted:

Use of the roofs of business buildings in the business area for day storage.

Use of vacant property in and adjacent to business centers for absentee vehicles.

Use of selected streets and stub end thoroughfares which carry little traffic and seldom any through travel in the area surrounding the business center.

Use of vacant property adjacent to elevated stations or street car centers outside the business district, from which point motorists could proceed to town by rail.

Use of downtown garages, the development of which is now reaching extensive proportions.

Free Parking the Problem.

While huge garage buildings are being erected in many cities and provide for the storage of an increasing number of cars for a fee, the development of this utility does not answer the question of the mass motorist who uses this form of transportation as an economic measure.

The charge of a dollar a day for downtown parking puts that service out of the reach of the general run of motorists who use their cars to carry them to and from their employment.

Logically, then, the problem that faces the populous districts of the nation is how to store cars without specific charge. The average car owner who lives in apartment house accommodations is compelled to pay $15 to $25 a month for night storage. Add a similar amount for day storage near the place of employment and it places a liability of $30 to $50 a month merely to have a car. Operation is estimated at another $10 to $15 a month and the total amount to a sum which bars the wage earner from possession of and automobile for utility purposes. Transportation in other forms is available at from $6 to $10 a month.

Builders Awake to Situation.

Architects' associations and builders are awake to the situation and are making efforts to induce the construction of roof garages in congested areas, and the utilization of offset roof space in the case of tower structures.

That some success has been achieved thus far is indicated by the illustration reproducing a scene in New York City.

Parking yards near elevated stations in New York and Boston have sprung up in large numbers within the last two or three years. Traffic officials in New York stated that more than 500,000 cars are parked daily in yards adjacent to elevated or subway stations north of 72d street. In Brooklyn they say, a similar parking custom is in effect.

Not Worried About Centers.

Authorities of both New York and Boston express themselves as not being interested in caring for motor vehicles which penetrate to the centermost business areas. They hold that if people care to drive into this unwieldly mass of pedestrians and motor and horse traffic, they can do it at their own convenience.

Development of the roof garages, they say, has made some headway and will make much more, for already new buildings are alienating tenants of older buildings by offering this garaging solution as an inducement on leases. Some of the officials appear to think it is only a matter of time before all modern buildings will have provision for certain volumes of car storage as part of the building service.

In Chicago there have been a number of proposals for construction of new buildings with the roof garage feature, but as yet the inspiration has not reached the persons or concerns for whom designs are made.

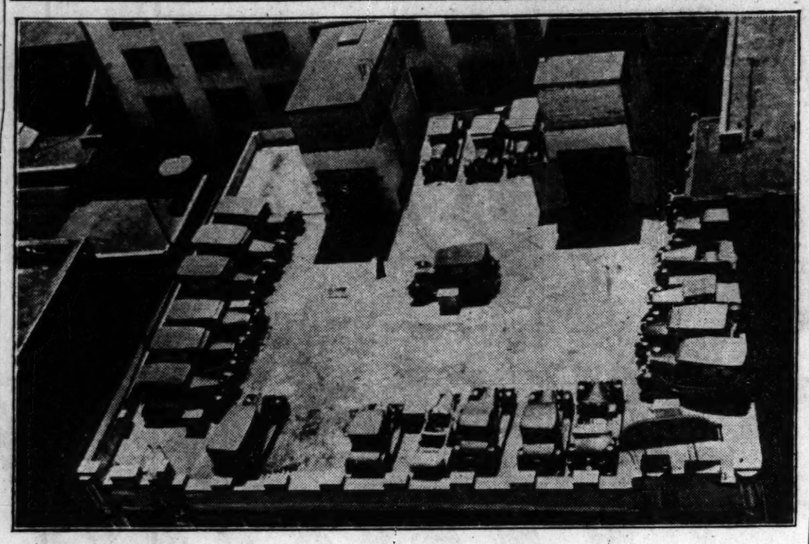
Park in the Streets.

Many streets in the areas just outside the loop are used in Chicago as parking places, in addition to Grant park, the lower level of Wacker drive, and certain spots beneath elevated structures, such as Market and Madison streets, and the center of Randolph street west of Des Plaines.

In addition to using streets which have little or no important traffic, the extra loop parking takes in through arteries like Ohio street, on the north, which is rendered useless for the purposes that caused its designation and improvement.

That this encroachment on street surface cannot go on indefinitely is admitted on all sides, and some uniform measure to care for parking is destined to be found and enforced within another five years.

PARKING IN THE AIR



Use of roof space in skyscraper areas is proposed as a practical factor in the solution of the automobile parking problem. It not only is proposed, but actually is being done in New York City as the illustration shows. Future building operations should take into consideration the parking problem and provide necessary strength of roof structures and the required elevator equipment. Elevator equipment for the purpose adds little to the expense of building and proper strengthening of the roof suspension and flooring is a mere architectural detail involving only nominal added expense.

SEES BIGGEST AIR MAIL FLEET REACH CHICAGO

Arrival of the largest mail consignment by air ever posted was the subject of comment by W. E. Butler, head of the Reo automobile distribution at Chicago. The mail fleet came from Lansing, Mich., and the cargo was distributed here to many air mail routes, taxing the capacity of the federal air mail service not only from Lansing but from Chicago as well.

"I went out to the field to meet G. A. Patten, Boston Reo distributor," Mr. Butler said, "who accompanied the fleet of eighteen planes carrying ten tons of first class mail which cost the Reo company $17,500."

This was the biggest single shipment of mail that air mail service was ever called upon to handle. The fact that it was sent to Chicago for distribution proves Chicago's claim to be "the air port center of the world."

It was an inspiring sight to see the eighteen planes flying in "V" formation coming toward the landing field. The first plane to alight carried Mr. Patten and his niece. Then, in regular and rapid order, the rest of the planes glided gracefully to the ground."

Charles Barlow has been appointed branch manager of Butler Motors, Inc., distributors of Reo automobiles, at 5710 Broadway.

TOURIST SPARED TASK OF FIGHTING BLAZES IN PARK

Motor tourists in Yosemite National park will not be pressed into service to fight forest fires under any circumstances, according to Horace M Albright, assistant director of the national park service.

At times in the past sightseers have been called upon for service when fires have broken out. However, experience has shown that fire fighting is a job for professionals and untrained persons are of but little use, if any. There is also the danger, it is stated, of motorists pressed into service becoming panic stricken or lost in the forest and causing more trouble to the rangers than if they had not attempted to help.

However, every motorist is asked to do his part in preventing forest fires and to be especially cautious this year when the rainfall has been light and the fire hazard thus increased.

LICENSE COLOR FOR WISCONSIN IS GREEN-WHITE

Wisconsin's 1929 automobile license plates will be medium light green with white numbers and letters. The position of the "Wis." and the letter and year designation has been shifted. The "Wis." is now at the left side of the plate and the year, number and letter designating the weight of the car at the right.

Motor Highways Link Main Points in Palestine

First class automobile highways now link nearly all points of interest in Palestine.

NEWS AND VIEWS

The reception accorded the new Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods during the few days that they have been on display indicates that owners of cars in this field are deeply interested in new engineering developments, particularly when the results have to do with riding and driving comfort and safety. This applies to the new type of quick and silent shifting transmission in both Cadillac and La Salle. The more powerful engines, the mechanical shoe type brakes, security plate glass, and improvements in bodies have all come in for close attention.

Beauty of lines and graceful poise are outstanding characteristics of the new Buick models, according to the expression of a large number of motorists who have been asked to give an opinion to the local branch. The new models have a somewhat altered appearance from the type of 1927 and the vote says that it is a definite improvement.

In keeping with its Spanish background the new Chrysler built De Soto has been provided with Spanish names for all body styles instead of the usual terms used by automobile manufacturers. The body styles are named as follows: Roadster español, faeton, cupe business, sedan, sedan coche, sedan de lujo and cupe de lujo. These bear a close resemblance to existing terms, and are pronounced in almost exactly as are the terms with which the public is already familiar.

An automobile show on wheels now making a tour of the western part of the United States, is a fleet of Oldsmobiles containing seven body types and a cut-away chassis. The demand for Oldsmobiles since the introduction of the new car early this year has been so large that dealers in the western section have been unable to have a complete line on display at any one time. Paul J. Feely, representative at San Francisco, is directing the caravan.

Four Studebaker cars have just completed a run of 30,000 miles in less than 30,000 minutes at Atlantic City. The cars were strictly stock model eights, two sedans and two roadsters. According to E. R. Preble, of the Pennzoil company, whose motor oil was used, this run is without question the greatest record in history, as far as speed, endurance and stamina are concerned. The cars were driven night and day, crowding three years' average mileage into approximately three weeks' time.

The development of the Falcon-Knight six to such a high degree that an owner may expect ten years of service from his car, is attributed chiefly by R. N. Harger, vice president of the corporation, to the exhaustive tests and experiments that preceded its introduction and in the selection of a Knight sleeve valve engine as the car's power plant.

DRIVERS OF BUSES AID PROMOTION OF COURTESY

An improvement in courtesy among automobilists and a lessening of automobile accidents in the future due to the example of the professional drivers who pilot buses over the highways is predicted by O. S. Caesar, president Greyhound lines.

"People learn by observation," said Mr. Caesar, "and the bus driver, because of the very nature of his work, is a conspicuous example. He is now in uniform and readily identified. His coach is different in appearance from other automobiles. He is required to make schedule time, but also required to bring his car through without even a scratch on his fenders or a scratch on the fenders of other vehicles which he has either met or passed. To reach this skill in driving he is required by his company to study driving.

"It is my belief that the example of these skilled drivers on the highway will raise the safety and courtesy standards of drivers of private cars. From them the public will observe how to make time without hazard to themselves or others. The public can learn from them what is safe driving practice and how to keep the traffic moving at a speed consistent with safety.

"One factor in safety that the motoring public must be made to see is the necessity of always having their cars in prime mechanical order."

Auto Busses Now Cross Country on Four Routes

It is now possible to cross the United States by motor bus at an average speed of from 25 to 30 miles an hour, and mostly in comfortable vehicles of the parlor car type. Choice of four transcontinental routes is to be had for the journey.

LOCAL MAN SEES RECORD OUTPUT IN 1928 AUTOS

Automobile production figures for the first six months encourage some students of the trade to predict that 1928 production records may equal or exceed those of the 4,503,531 of 1927, W. G. Tennant, one of the pioneers of automobile row, asserts.

The six months' figures for 1928, a mark of 2,326,800, were only 157,000 below the first six months of the record year of 1926, and sales for the last half year, if Ford production continues to increase, may well make up that small total, Mr. Tennant said.

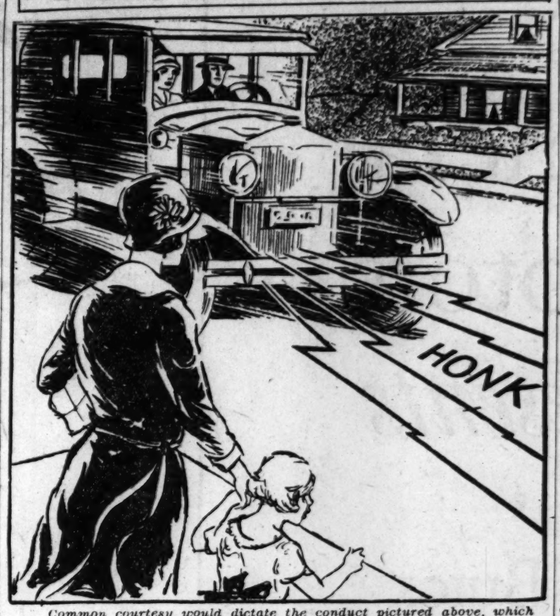
An important item in the automobile market today, said Mr. Tennant, is the two car family, which is rapidly increasing in numbers. Several factors are acting to influence this situation favorably. General business outlook, easier money situation which makes credit rather free, and closer prices on trade-ins are influencing many auto owners to retain their old cars when they buy a new one.

Taking the records of the Chicago Motor club as a fair criterion, three per cent of their members who carry insurance have two or more passenger automobiles, while two or three years ago the percentage of two car owners was negligible. That means that out of more than 60,000 policy holders in the Chicago Motor club, nearly 1,800 have more than one car in the family.

The development of consumer credit through the growth of the finance companies in the auto sales field has happened to coincide with the period of the greatest economic prosperity in our country. Economists figure that the tremendous expansion of the auto sales field, due largely to the installment purchases system of the finance companies, has reduced the cost of the average car by $200.

The vast number of cars in operation which were made almost obsolete by the introduction of four wheel brakes and consequent higher traffic speeds made this year's automobile production an uncertain quantity.

GOOD MANNERS FOR MOTORISTS



Common courtesy would dictate the conduct pictured above, which consists of sounding a warning to pedestrians before they have stepped from the curb into the path of an oncoming car. The practice by some drivers of waiting until a pedestrian is off the walk and then releasing a terrific blast is not only boorish and ill mannered but is dangerous. Persons afflicted with heart trouble have been known to have been killed by such actions. Persons have been known to become confused when thus startled and either stand rooted to the spot or rush blindly about until struck by a vehicle. Motorists should realize that pedestrians are not hunting for a chance to be run down; they are entitled to notice of oncoming traffic and to the slowing up of cars when drivers observe uncertainty in movements.

RURAL MOTORIST USES ROADS AS MUCH AS URBAN

As the country is forced to spend more time and more money on building and maintaining roads, the question arises: "Who benefits most by the roads? Is it the city man or the farmer?"

State highway departments in the United States are beginning to take steps to answer the question.

Tennessee is one among the states to investigate the matter. The first step in the process was to determine the number of rural and urban car owners. The method was simple. In a county having say, four thousand cars, every fortieth car was tabulated either as rural or urban, giving the number of rural cars per hundred, and the number of urban cars per hundred cars taken in this way would give a fair indication of the distribution. Check tabulations show that the variation may be as high as five per cent.

When the ratio of vehicle ownership was determined, a check was made on the actual service given by the roads to both urban and rural car owners. The investigation showed the approximate relationship between rural vehicle use of the state system and rural ownership. Although there is divergence, the tendency seems to be toward an equal ratio between ownership and road use. That is to say, given fifty per cent rural ownership, there will be fifty per cent rural vehicles on the state highways.

A great deal depends on the type of road, its condition, and its place in the state highway system, but in general the results of the data gathered show that there is a distinct general relation between ownership and rural travel.

The North Dakota state department of highways is now engaged in making such a survey. When the survey is completed the department will be able to attack the financial aspect of the road problem with a clear idea of the fairest sources of revenue, and it will have at hand such information as will aid it in solving road problems more efficiently.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

DU PAGE COUNTY FAILS TO IMPROVE ROAD SYSTEM

Registers Impatience at State's Inactivity.

The highway authorities of DuPage county, in which unit no road improvements of consequence have originated for some years, have come to the conclusion that the rest of the state is out of step with their marching.

They point to the fact that they have a new 40 foot road [which the state is building] straight across the county, while Cook county has no 40 foot connection to meet it at the east and Kane county has no 40 foot connection at the west.

Therefore Cook and Kane counties are permitting a bottleneck at their county lines.

The circumstances which they failed to mention is that when the new 40 foot state raod is completed it will connect the village of St. Charles on the west with the village of Elmhurst on the east, while in between there exist only the hamlets of Gretna and South Addison, with a possible total population of 100 souls.

Concern About Traffic.

Just what traffic can originate on this road is a mystery. If there is no traffic on the road, outside observers have difficulty in perceiving what would be bottled up.

On the other hand both Cook and Kane counties complain that their roads leading to DuPage county are met with either narrow highways or no pavement at all.

One instance is cited of the approach of Roosevelt road, a 40 foot highway, to Du Page county. As soon as the line is crossed it becomes a 20 foot pavement.

Another instance is the new pavement laid on 22d street. This has been built from the city out to the Du Page county line. At that point it turns to gravel, struggles a mile or two west and dies out.

Still another example is the widening of Ogden avenue from the Joliet road to the Du Page county line, which will give 40 foot pavement to the line and then Du Page furnishes narrow slab through the county.

Deal Fell Through.

Kane county complains that it made a definite deal with Du Page county to build an 18 foot paved cutoff from state highway 6, south of West Chicago, to the city of Batavia. The Kane county board ordered built the portion from Batavia to the Du Page county line and it now exists. The Du Page part of the enterprise is still a dirt road.

Irving Park boulevard also is a 40 foot road to the Du Page line, and from there a narrow pavement until it peters out at Roselle.

Lake street is another of the Cook county 40 foot projects, but at the Du Page county line it narrows to 18 feet, except through villages.

"We have no money nor bonding power," E. L. Gates, superintendent of highways, said. "This year we merely have busied ourselves with odds and ends—a mile or two here and a mile or two there. The state owes us refund money and the people will not stand for more bonds because we are very poor."

Funds for Courthouse.

Although Du Page county's immediate future prosperity depends materially upon the number and capacity of paved roads it can rake and scrape to encourage Chicagoans to establish homes or golf courses there, the county board has indicated that its next great adventure will be to build a million dollar courthouse at Wheaton.

The entire region is Chicago west suburban territory and large numbers of Chicagoans eye it longingly, in the hope that facilities for motor transportation to and from the city will be forthcoming. The county authorities, however, have determined that a million dollar courthouse would constitute a better magnet.

To offset its own shortcomings as a road building community, the county board last week expressed impatience and scorn of the state administration for failing to build state highways 53 and 59 in Du Page county. The board voted to send the road and bridge committee to Springfield to bear down on Gov. Small and see if the building of these two highways cannot be forced at once.

State Didn't Deliver.

The highways in question intersect the county from north to south, one connecting Lockport with Halfday and the other connecting Plainfield with Antioch.

"This county was promised a lot of roads by Gov. Small," Frank Ayres of Hinsdale, chairman of the county road and bridge committee, said, "but we don't seem to be getting them. So we are going down to the capital and see if we can't get some action stirred up."

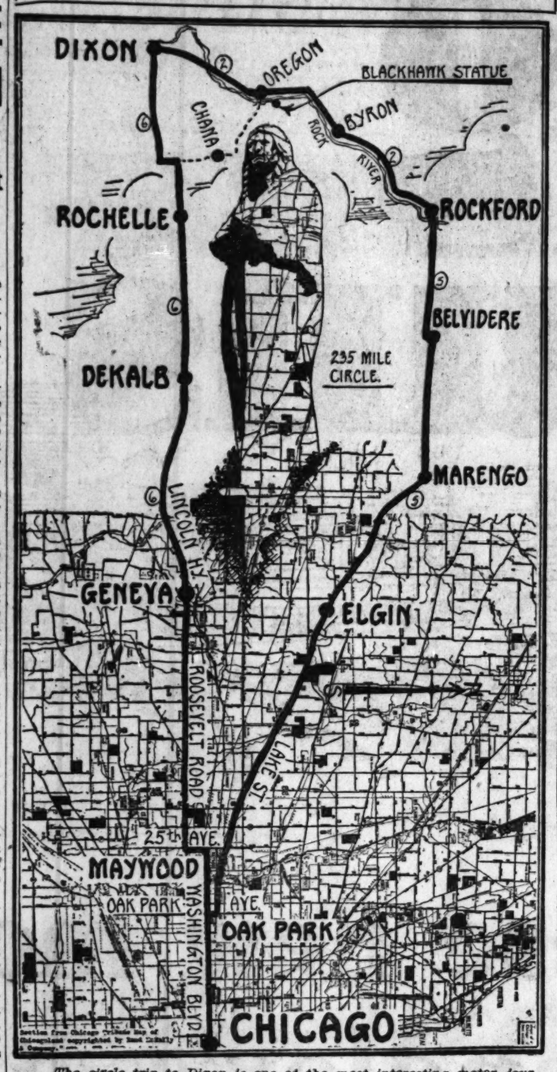
Du Page county has had a number of ambitious plans for superhighways and wide boulevards, but nothing has come of them, probably because of the disinclination of the county to pay for building them. Promises were obtained from Gov. Small for a lot of paved highways, but these have failed to come to pass, excepting for the St. Charles highway, which is to be 40 feet wide and has no direct Chicago connection, while at the west the proposed terminus is Sycamore.

It is still a mystery as to where traffic for this new and modern roadway is to be found. Roosevelt road to the south, on a direct through line, is still 20 feet wide and the Elgin road to the north is 18 feet. Over these two roads the main traffic has been and will be carried.

Application of Brakes Should Be Gradual

Remember always to apply the brakes gently. When brakes are jammed hard it puts a severe strain on the tires and may cause one wheel to lock and slide, wearing the tread at that point. Judge the distance and momentum, and stop by using brakes as little as possible.

CHICAGOLAND TOUR—XII.



The circle trip to Dixon is one of the most interesting motor journeys in Illinois—through the domain of the late Black Hawk and valleys of beautiful Rock river, "the Hudson of the west." It would be enjoyable, too, except for the congestion which affects the narrow concrete highways and makes difficult an outing ideal in comparison with anything in the country. Some day, some way, the state will provide forty foot pavements on this route, which will insure a fast journey and a safe one.

CINCINNATI BAN ON AUTO PARKING BEING EXTENDED

Cincinnati is moving in the direction of complete prohibition of parking in the congested area of the city. It is expected that within the next two months the ban will go into effect.

The elimination of all downtown parking in the city will be the result of gradual restriction of parking. By increasing the "no parking" spaces slowly, it is said, the public gradually becomes acquainted with the situation and is prepared for the complete prohibition in the whole congested section.

The Cincinnati police are tightening up on "no parking" areas already designated. Signs already in place which bear the legend "no parking, public building," will be replaced by straight "no parking" signs, because of protest against the enforcement of the first named signs, which had been placed in front of churches and theaters. Motorists had been in the habit of parking in front of these buildings when they were closed.

LAST OF KENTUCKY'S COVERED BRIDGES GOES INTO FINAL DISCARD

It no longer thunders when the sky is clear in Kentucky. The last covered bridge is gone.

Any one who has driven a horse or automobile through the old timbered tunnels that formerly spanned many rivers in the Blue Grass state is familiar with the roll of "thunder" that reverberated along the passage as iron-shod hooves pounded or engine hummed.

One of the last to go, the Camp Nelson bridge over the Kentucky river, was probably the best known. Its double driveways had carried their lines for nearly a century without sagging. Thousands of travelers had found shelter there when caught between towns after nightfall.

It was replaced recently by a slender steel structure which with "High Bridge," a railroad trestle a short distance away with girders more than 315 feet from the water level, is in vivid contrast to the older, clumsier span.

40-FT. RADIAL ROADS IN CONGESTED ILLINOIS AREAS

The next state administration will dispose of the question of the immediate widening of railway highways leading out of congested areas in the state. Both nominees for governor are pledged to push legislation to provide such widening. The next governor and the members of the next General Assembly want to know how Illinois motorists feel in regard to the enterprise. It is the duty of every motorist favoring this improvement to let the next administration know it. The Tribune is carrying out this informal referendum as an aid to the motorists of the state. Mail your coupon today, thereby enrolling in the huge petition to be presented both nominees.

MOTOR INDUSTRY APPROACHES AN ALL TIME PEAK

Activity by Ford Brings Output Figures Up.

Detroit, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Usually optimistic, automobile manufacturers and dealers have grown more so since Aug. 1, and are predicting that production records for all time will be surpassed in 1928 as a result of the results in the first seven months.

Automobile companies are now reporting production schedules equal to those of the first half of the year.

Reports to the department of commerce show domestic and foreign orders for automobiles and trucks are heavy and indicate sales for the final half of 1928 even greater than those for the first six months.

From the Ford executive offices comes the announcement that the output has increased to 4,000 daily. Demand for the new models continues to exceed the output. One third of the plant's capacity is still applied to the manufacture of parts for the old Model T cars. An idea of the volume is contained in the fact that parts are costing owners of that model nearly ten million dollars a month.

See Ford Record Ahead.

From the statement of Henry Ford it appears certain that production of 5,000 cars daily will be reached before the middle of September. December may see a new daily record for all time hung up in the Ford plant which will mean close to 10,000 units.

Prosperity in the light car field is one of the best indications of prosperity in the industry. Exceptionally big business is reported by manufacturers of such lines as Chevrolet, Overland and Durant, while night shifts are now working in the Buick plants at Flint and a schedule of 1,300 of the new models per day is within sight.

Plants of the Ford Motor company in the Detroit area are employing a total of 120,293 persons, approximately 10,000 more than when production of model T was at its highest point. This industrial army, however, is not employed exclusively on the model A output.

Following official figures show the output for several of the leading plants for the first six months of the year: Chevrolet, 756,657; Ford, 219,816; Willys-Overland, 195,523; Hudson-Essex, 179,868; Oakland-Pontiac, 146,573; Dodge, 134,795; Buick and Chrysler missed the 100,000 mark by about 600 units. In the higher price field, Lincoln, Packard, Cadillac, Marmon, and Studebaker showed substantial gains over last year.

The Ford output last year—the year known as the only one in which the plant ever experienced a slump—was 380,350, and in 1926 the output of Model T cars was 708,775.

Forty-four tire manufacturers, who produce 95 per cent of the total American output, have this week notified their 125,000 dealers of a revised warranty on pneumatic tires. When defects appear factories will either repair the tire or make a reasonable allowance on the purchase of new.

Provide Wire Wheels.

Among the 1929 models of automobiles which are being introduced this year by leading makers, wire wheel equipment has been featured particularly in the higher price ranges to an extent greater than ever before. Many models are carrying equipment of six wire wheels as standard.

Within the last two months fourteen factories have announced 1929 offerings, and the response by the buying public has been such that a majority of the plants have as yet been unable to get a sufficient number of cars into the hands of the retail trade.

The used car market is showing renewed strength, and the two car families are rapidly increasing. The population of the Detroit automobile plants and accessories shops was this week at its highest point for all past time, the total being 280,099. This total represents an increase over the preceding week of 2,059, and an increase of 75,090 over the corresponding period of 1927. The demand for skilled labor continues to tighten.

July production was 390,445 units. This is an increase of 46 per cent over the same month of 1927, within 1½ per cent of the 396,967 in June of the present year.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

"PASSEE" SELDOM OFFENDS.

Watertown, Wis., Aug. 25.—Would it not be well to repeat the picture of the car passing incident and show up the man who tries to pass when the traffic will not permit? I am sure there are many more in that class causing trouble than there are who speed up when being passed. My experience is that there are few who will speed up when I pass them, but there are many who will try to pass me when there is not time nor space—and I drive 15,000 to 20,000 miles a year. During the last week I had to turn off the pavement to keep from being side swiped by a car that was passing and cutting in.

There are a number who drive twenty miles an hour on highways heavily traveled by cars which seek to move at thirty-five or forty miles an hour. The slow driver is a pest and is often the indirect cause of trouble on the highway. OMAR GASTON.

CITY A DESTRUCTIVE AGENT.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Three months ago the water department tore up the pavement on a Wood street between Milwaukee and North avenues, leaving two large holes about a foot deep and four feet square. Up to date nothing has been done toward repairing the pavement. JOS. T. KUBASIAK.

CHICAGO'S SPHERE OF INFLUENCE IS BEING EXTENDED

Chicago, Aug. 20.—While bathing at Renehan's beach on Round lake on July 24, I noticed truck No. 24 of the department of gas and electricity parked there throughout the entire day. Since when does this department's service extend beyond the Cook county limits? TAXPAYER.

A WIDE ROAD GO-GETTER.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Enclosed find 22 coupons filled in by acquaintances I have sought out to express themselves for wider roads. You can enroll me as a charter member in the Wide Road association. Also the city should get busy and widen South Park avenue before the World's Fair.

C. O. LA SALLE.

NEED SIGNAL LIGHTS.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—I would suggest that stop and go lights be placed at Lake avenue and 43d street to prevent accidents and save human lives. Living in the vicinity, I observe motorists traveling at terrific speed along Lake Park avenue and violating the vehicle laws by not slowing down for 43d street. I believe signal lights are a blessing to humanity and should be placed where necessary, and I believe that every one should obey the speed laws in order to prevent accidents. VOLLMER EISEMAN.

BOUQUET FOR BUSMAN.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Yesterday I saw a motorist come south on the Michigan avenue bridge on the inside lane, with a big, heavily loaded bus occupying the outside lane, alongside. At the south end of the bridge, without visible signal or sign of intention, the motorist turned sharply to the right and ran ahead and across the bus' path. The driver of this bus, No. 1571, ought to have a medal. He managed to jam on brakes enough to save the motorist from being smashed up. The latter gave his car all the gas it would hold and shot west in Wacker drive and to the curb. Did he appreciate that the quick action of the bus driver saved his car and in all probability his life and the lives of others? Not he. He jumped out and sprang to the rear of his car to see if it were injured by the click of metal, made as he passed in front. He gesticulated and waved his arms. He evidently was trying to alibi for a damage claim. Besides his own car and the bus passengers endangered, pedestrians crossing Wacker drive were menaced as this man shot across the front of the bus. Query: Did this driver deliberately attempt to cause his car to be smashed by a bus, or did he not know enough to get on the right hand lane of traffic when he expected to turn right? His license number is 392,859. PEDESTRIAN.

TRAFFIC BAITERS.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—You published an article relative to the creation of one-way streets in the west park boulevard system. I don't believe it. I have yet to see any authority having to do with traffic which will act for the purpose of making motor transportation easier. On the other hand, they seem imbued with a spirit of hampering and annoying automobilists. I hope sincerely that Dr. Robertson will show a little backbone in ordering one way traffic on Jackson boulevard. I hope so, but my hope is faint. E. F. PALMER.

AIR POLLUTION BY MOTOR GASES AROUSES FRENCH

Tests conducted in Paris show that when traffic is heavy the gases emitted from motors cling low, close to the ground, and the air becomes toxic, which makes a trip to the country imperative in some instances. A movement has been started to protect the French public.

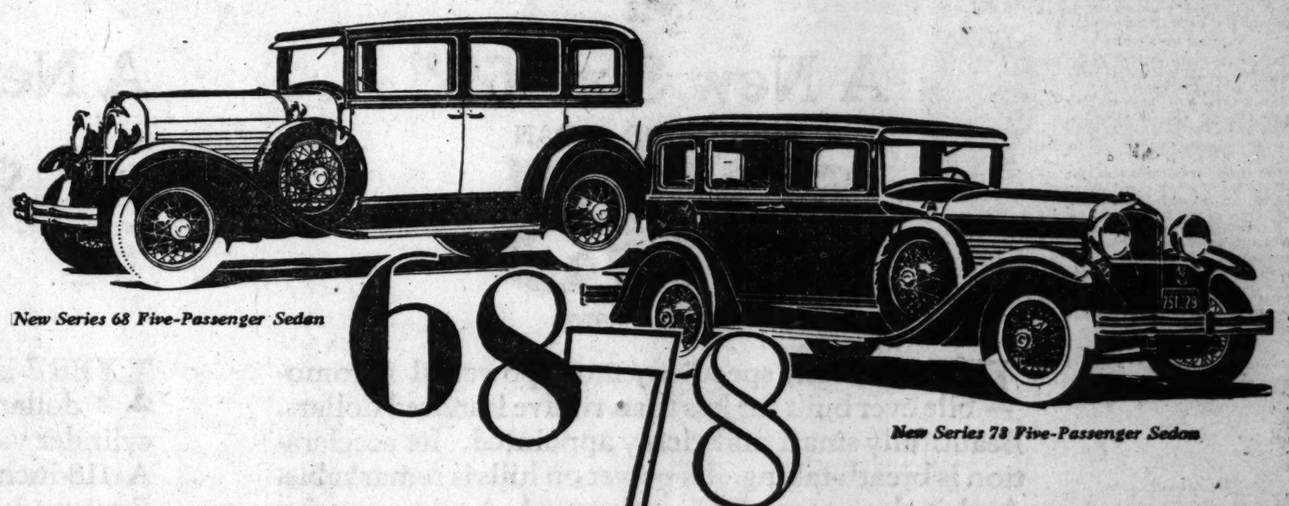
8 FIRING IN LINE



New Series 68 Five-Passenger Sedan

68 78

New Series 78 Five-Passenger Sedan

The New Series 68 and 78 are now on display. Beauty in flowing, sweeping lines. Performance made brilliant by Marmon straight-eight motors . . .

AFTER you look at these two new Marmons you, too, will think, "What more could there possibly be at this money?"

Those who look for beauty will find it in these new Marmons to a greater degree, we believe, than has ever been offered in these price fields. New lines. New colors. New, more luxurious interiors. New, more massive front end appearance. Double chromium plating of all exposed metal parts—radiator, bumpers, lamps, etc.

Those who look for performance will surely discover it in abundant measure. Both cars are straight-eights, now with even greater power and smoothness. New developments in carburetion have tendency to supercharge the gas mixture. Top speed in the "68" is 65 to 75 miles per hour and the "78" delivers 75 to 80.

Those who look for easy riding will find this famous Marmon quality even more pronounced. Now, more than ever, "the easiest riding car in the world."

Those who look for small refinements and fitments will find that Marmon has them all. New instrument panels, with larger numerals visible from rear seat. New coincidental lock (located on instrument board) which simultaneously locks both ignition and transmission. Interiors, lamps, hardware, bumpers and all other accessories in the height of good taste.

In fact there is hardly one thing that you might ask for to which the Marmon salesman cannot immediately say, "Yes, we have it."

Prices—New "68", $1465. New "78", $1965, f. o. b. factory. Wire wheel equipment extra. Liberal time-payment plan. Your present car will be accepted as cash.

Hotel La Salle May Be Replaced by Central Trust Tower

THE WALTONIAN NEW HOTEL FOR STREETERVILLE

Is Planned for Site Opposite Drake.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Streeterville's newest building recruit is to be an eighteen story apartment hotel which is proposed for the southeast corner of Walton place and Seneca avenue by the 201 Walton building corporation.

Mention that plans were being prepared for a notable addition to the district made famous by the fighting Capt. George Wellington Streeter was made some months ago, but details regarding the project have just been revealed by the architects, Alexander L. Levy and William J. Klein.

Following the trend of many of the latest skyscrapers to be erected in the city, the Waltonian, as the new structure is to be called, will be of modernistic architecture — a design which emphasizes sweeping vertical lines to enhance the idea of height.

All four walls will be of light colored face brick, with terra cotta used for the sills, lintels and general ornamentation.

Bungalow at Top.

The structure will contain seventeen floors devoted to hotel purposes, with the eighteenth floor constituting a bungalow of the type now popular among the city's wealthy folk. The Waltonian will have 712 rooms which will be divided into 433 apartments. Of these 265 flats will consist of one room, with service pantry, large dressing cabinet and concealed bed. Then there will be seventy-six two room apartments, thirty-one two and a half room apartments, and sixty-three three and a half room flats.

The larger flats will consist of large living room, dressing closet, concealed bed closet, bath, bedroom, kitchenette, and dinette.

Two courts in the structure will insure permanent light for all apartments.

Dining Room and Commissary.

The ground floor is to have a large lobby, ladies' lounge, smoking and card room for the men, dining room, coffee shop, drug store, commissary, and other features commonly found in an apartment hotel. Besides these amenities the ground floor will contain a number of apartments, some of which will be located in a raised portion seven feet above grade—entered by a private staircase from the lobby.

All dinettes in the structure will have French doors to assist the well known mechanical ventilators in keeping out of the rest of the apartment the fumes when the "boss" decides he'd like to have hamburger and onions for dinner. The kitchenettes will have receiving arrangements for the delivery of packages.

And, as in the finest homes along the north shore, the kitchens will all be done in colors, the ranges, sink and fittings harmonizing with each other.

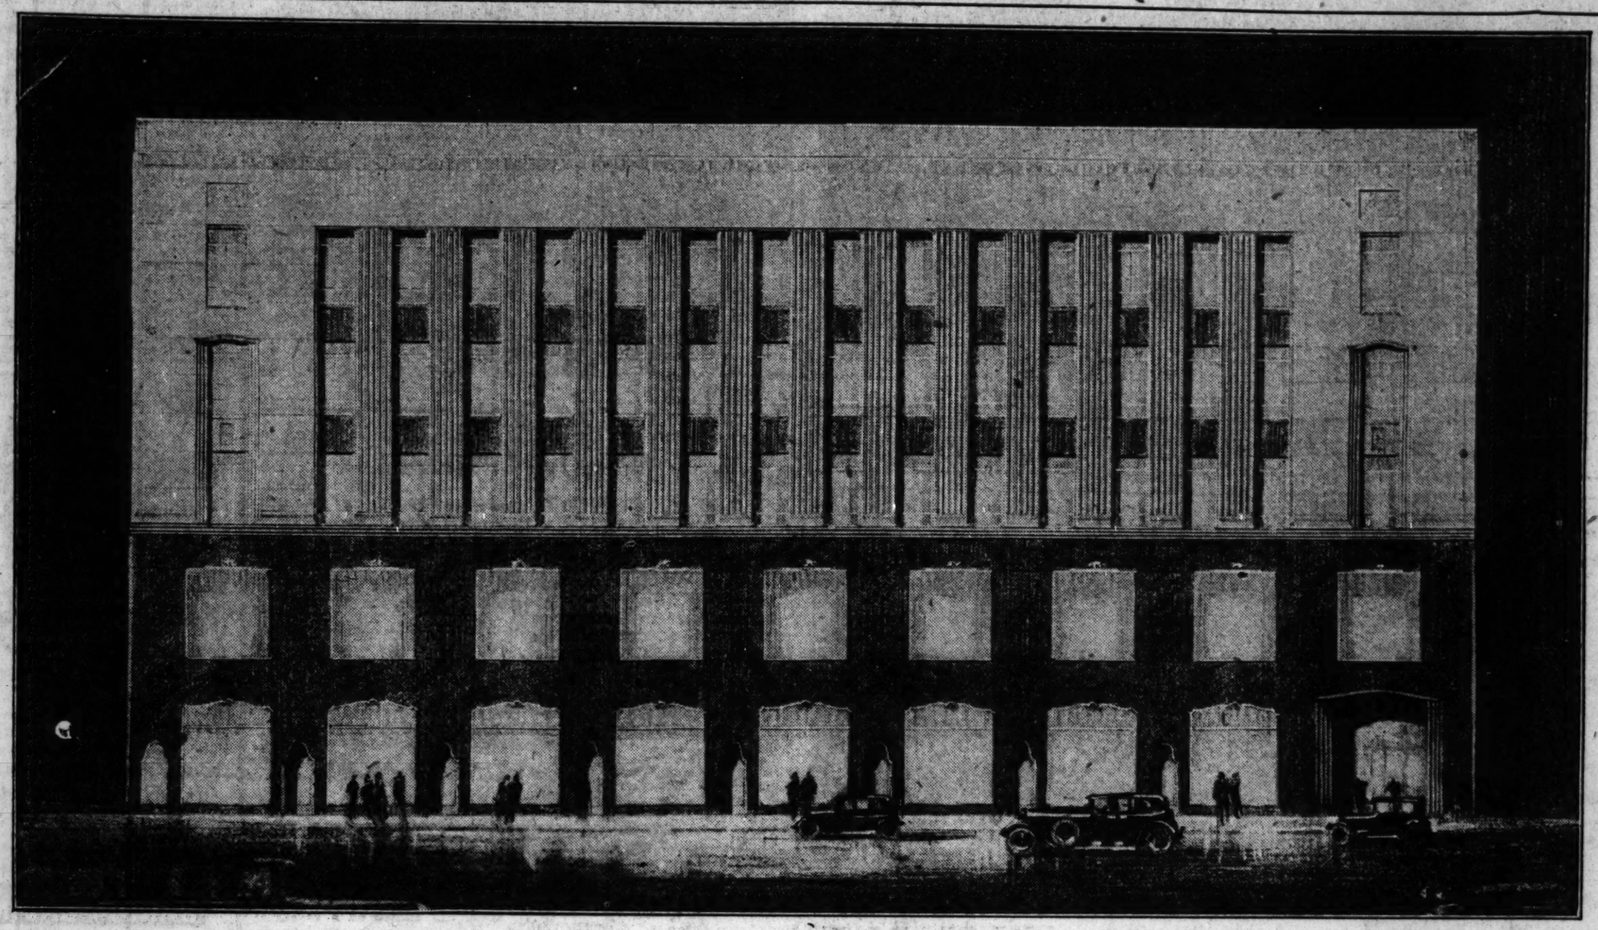
Concrete Construction.

As to the interior trim Philippine walnut will be used for the walls of the main dining room. And of course there will be a plentiful supply of marble for the lobbies, stairways, etc.

The Waltonian will rest on pile foundations and will be of reinforced concrete construction. Partitions around the elevator enclosure will be set double to prevent the carrying of sound.

The site fronts 200 feet on Walton and 167½ feet on Seneca, and is across from the Drake hotel. It is estimated that the investment in land and building will be $4,235,050.

TO BE ERECTED BY WIFE OF AMBASSADOR TO CUBA



Mrs. Noble Brandon Judah will build the above structure at the northwest corner of upper Michigan avenue and East Huron street, from plans by Holabird and Root. It'll be of polished granite exterior in the two lower floors with Alabama limestone used in the upper stories. The total cost is placed at $650,000. Completion is planned for April 1, 1929. Details are given below.

SKETCHES MADE FOR BANK SHOW IMPOSING SHAFT

Other Institutions to Enlarge.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

La Salle street may lose one of its most interesting landmarks, the Hotel La Salle, and gain another gigantic bank tower, to house the Central Trust Company of Illinois, if present tentative plans now being considered to replace the hostelry with a skyscraping office building are carried out. A picture of the proposed new home of the Central Trust now stands in the private office of Joseph E. Otis, president of the bank. The design, by Holabird & Root, calls for an unusually dignified and imposing structure, of the modern type instead of the packing case style of architecture.

JAMES W. STEVENS.

If this building project is carried out and the Central Trust company erects its own banking home, it is considered likely that the Harris Trust and Savings bank, its present neighbor on the east, at 111-119 West Monroe street, will purchase the present monumental structure of the Central Trust for expansion. The Harris Trust building occupies a 90x188 site with its twenty story building. The comparatively low structure of the Central Trust covers exactly the same area.

Would Have La Salle Entrance.

Purchase of the Central Trust quarters would give the Harris Trust and Savings bank an entrance on La Salle street through the Borland building, all of the first floor of which is now used by the Central Trust.

Most of the higher officials of the Central Trust were still vacationing yesterday. James G. Alexander, executive vice president, however, was at his desk. He admitted that the question of new and larger quarters was being considered, but said it might not be effected for some time. The bank, he said, had long since outgrown its present building, erected years ago.

He also admitted that the question of replacing the Hotel La Salle with a towering structure to house the Central Trust and other tenants also had been considered but no definite negotiations entered into with the La Salle interests.

Interlocking Directorates.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the Hotel La Salle and Central Trust directorates are somewhat interlocking. For instance, Ernest J. Stevens, president and treasurer and a member of the board of directors of the Hotel La Salle, is a director of the Central Trust. Joseph E. Otis, president of the Central Trust and also a director, is also a member of the board of directors of the Hotel La Salle. H. R. Moore, secretary of the Hotel La Salle company, is a vice president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois.

It also is interesting to note that the Illinois Life Insurance company, of which James W. Stevens, chairman of the board of the Hotel La Salle, is president, owns 1,000 shares of stock in the Central Trust Company of Illinois.

Admits Receiving Offers.

E. J. Stevens, president of the Hotel La Salle, being out of town when inquiries regarding the proposed new building were made, his father, James W. Stevens, chairman of the board, was talked with. He said no negotiations for the purchase of the Hotel La Salle property had been entered into with the Central Trust. He intimated, however, that with the rising value of frontage along Chicago's great financial lane, the Hotel La Salle eventually would have to make way for a more modern structure.

He also admitted that the company has had several offers for the property during the last few years from various real estate firms, but had not given any of them any consideration.

No Need to Go Homeless.

Meanwhile, as pointed out by Mr. Alexander, of the Central Trust company, no bank need go homeless for lack of quarters on La Salle street. If, when, by, but and ever the Illinois Merchants and the Continental ring those much talked of wedding bells, and the happy couple leave the present banking place in the Continental vacant, there'll be plenty of space for an old or new bank to occupy.

In addition there'll be banking quarters in the new Board of Trade building and large banking space in the proposed new No. 1 La Salle Street building.

Byllesby Denies Continental Deal.

Both the Northern Trust company and the National Bank of the Republic plan big additions to their present quarters within the next few years.

Meanwhile a rumor which started shortly after the Continental and Illinois Merchants stocks began to soar, and officials of those banks began to deny any knowledge of a merger, came to life again yesterday. This was the report that H. M. Byllesby & Co. were negotiating for the Continental National building. Officers of that concern denied any knowledge of such a deal.

Surety Firm Buys Building on Leiter Site

It is announced that ownership in the twenty-three story skyscraper now nearing completion at the southwest corner of Clark and Madison streets has been transferred by the Madison-Clark Building corporation to the Loop Center Building corporation. The consideration involved was not disclosed. The structure stands on a site leased from the Levi Leiter heirs.

The National Surety company of New York, said to be the largest surety company in the world, is the sole owner of all the stock of the Loop Center Building corporation. Louis L. Dent of Dent, Dobyns & Freeman, attorney in Chicago for the Gotham organization, is president of the holding corporation.

It is understood that with the passing of the structure into its new ownership its name will be the National Surety building.

Among the important leases consummated for quarters is that of the Morris Plan bank, which has taken the entire second and third floors for a long term of years at an undisclosed rental.

The real estate firm of Hooker & Slosson has been appointed exclusive rental and management agents.

SKY HOMES NEAR BUSINESS CENTER

Above is the Waltonian, an eighteen story apartment hotel which is planned for the southeast corner of Walton place and Seneca street—not far from the city's business center. Designed by Alexander L. Levy and William J. Klein, the structure will be of modernistic architecture. There will be 712 rooms divided into 433 small apartments. It is estimated that the investment in land and building will be $4,235,050. Charles Morgan made this perspective.

Work to Start at Boul Mich Huron Corner

Work is scheduled to start at once on the five story building announced some time ago for the northwest corner of Upper Michigan avenue and East Huron street. This site was purchased last year by Dorothy Patterson Judah, wife of Noble Brandon Judah, American ambassador to Cuba, and she will be the owner of the new building.

MRS. NOBLE B. JUDAH. [Hutchinson Photo.]

Plans by Holabird & Root call for a polished granite exterior on the first and second floors, with Alabama limestone used in the three upper floors. Plate glass will be used throughout.

As American walnut has been used in practically every new office building, theater and hotel erected in the last few years, Holabird & Root have introduced what is believed will be a novelty for the first and second floor lobbies of the 700 North Michigan building, as it's to be christened. Butternut wood will be used. The floors will be rubber. The upper floor corridors will be faced with marble.

The building will be of reinforced concrete construction, with unusually high ceilings in the upper office floors. These will be eleven feet high in the clear. These upper floors can be used by tenants of the eight first floor shops if needed.

The second floor will have ceilings practically as high as the first floor, with large show windows overlooking Boul. Mich. The basement also will have high ceilings so space there can be used for selling purposes.

The building will have a frontage of 164 feet on the boulevard, with a depth of sixty-eight feet along Huron street. It will cost approximately $650,000 and according to the architects will be completed by April, 1929.

"KEN-BOB" NAME OF NEW OAK PARK FLAT BUILDING

Completion is nearing on the "Ken-Bob"—an eighteen apartment building at the southwest corner of Garfield street and Grove avenue, Oak Park, from plans by H. W. Grugel. The owner is Bert Carey, and he has named his building for his two small sons, Kenneth and Robert. The lot is 60x138 feet, and the investment in land and building is a reported $110,000. William Wertz has the general contract.

LINCOLN SHORE HOTEL SOLD TO OUT OF TOWN MEN

The seven story Lincoln Shore apartment hotel, at 432 Belmont avenue, has been sold by Patra Madsen to Robert C. Shallbert, cashier of the Peoples Trust and Savings bank, of Moline, Ill., and Robert Moody, of St. Paul, Minn. George W. Stewart, associated with the Ira J. Bliss company, was broker.

MOTHER AND SON BUY FLATS AT 1430 LAKE SHORE

Mrs. Arica B. Glade, near north side real estate operator, who maintains offices with the Town Homes corporation, 715 North Michigan avenue, announces the sale of a number of co-ops on the twenty-four story apartment building at 1430 Lake Shore drive. Among those buying are the following: William P. Hodgkins, who is to marry Miss Louis Carr next January; Mrs. M. L. Hodgkins of Lake Forest and 229 Lake Shore drive, mother of William P. Hodgkins; W. A. Gilchrist, Chicago and New York capitalist, who has resided at the Lake Shore Drive hotel for the last five years; Frank L. Kidder, financier and board of trade operator; H. F. Johnson, vice president of Armour & Co.; David L. Bremner, president of the Bremner Biscuit company; Frank McNair of the Harris Trust & Savings bank, and W. C. Bannerman, the builder, who has reserved the twenty-fourth floor.

Apartments in the building are arranged one to a floor and contain from eight to twelve rooms according to the wishes of the owners. Mrs. Glade states that a number of apartments have been purchased by syndicate members, while several others have been bought by prominent financiers for investment.

SHERIDAN ROAD AND PINE GROVE CORNER IS SOLD

The southeast corner of Sheridan road and Pine Grove avenue, 100x140, improved with a twelve flat building, has been sold by the Northern Trust company, trustee, to Gustave A. Johnson for an undisclosed consideration. H. V. Glos of Sontag Brothers was broker.

GAGE HOMESTEAD IN WILMETTE IS LEASED FOR CAFE

The old Gage family homestead at the northwest corner of Sheridan and Chestnut, Wilmette, has been leased by Stanley K. Gage to Carl G. Fleig, Chicago restaurant man, who will open it as a café specializing in game and poultry. Mr. Fleig, who formerly was connected with Rector's, will call his establishment Ye Olde Style Inn. The Gage house was erected by Henry H. Gage about 1873. The Gage family owned a large part of the property between Wilmette and Kenilworth, commonly known as No Man's land. The present lease is from Sept. 1. Julius Altman was broker in the deal.

LINCOLN AVENUE TO HAVE 2 STORY BRANCH LIBRARY

A two story branch library building is to be erected on an irregular sized parcel of land with frontage at 4536-44 Lincoln avenue and 4529-37 Oakley avenue. This parcel has just been purchased by the city of Chicago from Fred W. Dobe for an indicated $58,000. The structure besides dispensing books will serve as the headquarters of all the city's branch libraries. The cost is estimated at $150,000. No architect has been named.

PAYS $325,000 FOR WINTHROP AVENUE FLATS

Meyer Katzman has sold Winthrop Mansions at 6145 Winthrop avenue, containing fifty-seven apartments, to Jacob Samuels for a reported $325,000, subject to $250,000, through Charles L. Keller & Co.

Sell 4 'Co-Op' Apartments at 1448 Lake Shore Drive

Sales in the cooperative apartment building at 1448 Lake Shore drive are reported by Baird & Warner as having been made to the following: Frank H. Barbour of Critchell, Miller, Whitney & Barbour, eight rooms; J. C. Belden, president Belden Manufacturing company, eight rooms; Gerhardt F. Meyne, building contractor, eight rooms, and J. W. Brewer, Nash Sales company, seven rooms.

J. Albert Campbell & Co. Open River Forest Tract

J. Albert Campbell & Co. announce the opening of a subdivision of both sides of Ashland avenue, between Greenfield and Lemoyne streets, River Forest, with homesites restricted to residences costing not less than $40,000. Lots varying in width from 100 to 200 feet and houses must be set back at least seventy-five feet from the sidewalk.

Plans Auto Sales Building at Glenlake and Western

Stanley B. Herbison of the Broadway Buick company has purchased from Daniel J. Coyne seventy-five feet of frontage at the northwest corner of Western and Glenlake for a reported $35,625. Mr. Herbison plans the immediate construction of a two story show auto sales structure similar to the Broadway Buick building at Broadway and Hollywood. William S. Barbee of Barbee & Co. was broker.

Metropolitan Realty Buys 12 Acres at Niles Center

The Metropolitan Realty company has purchased twelve acres at Harvard and Niles Center road, Niles Center, from Henry Koch, for an undisclosed consideration. The property will be marketed as the Harvard Niles Center Road Gardens. E. J. Vandekoi was broker. Albert Sabath and E. J. Fitch were attorneys.

SEES BIG FIELD HERE FOR FLATS AT LOW RENTALS

Apartment House Construction Falls Off.

One department of Chicago's real estate field that remains virtually untouched and should offer a good field for investment is that covering low priced apartment buildings according to a review of the city's building conditions for August made by the Cody Trust company.

"The current level of Chicago building permits," the review points out, "indicates a total for August of around that for August, 1924, or $21,944,550, although it is still possible for several big industrial permits to better the showing before the month ends. The total of last August was $27,059,100 August, 1926, $34,024,600; and August, 1925, $31,059,700.

"Inspection of the Chicago permit totals for the first nine months of the year reveals a succession of wide swings, with one record month followed by an indifferent one in comparison with previous yearly totals. The average, however, has been very close to the level for 1927.

Reason for Changes.

"The reason for the fluctuations is that there has been a marked slowing in apartment construction and the Chicago building industry has been forced to rely on office, industrial, and institutional construction for support. How marked the decline in apartments has been is shown by a comparison of permits for this group in 1928 and 1927:

	1928.	1927.
January	286	269
February	220	350
March	252	509
April	323	474
May	301	438
June	330	456
July	196	962
August [estimated]	175	240
Total	2,161	3,081

"The totals include both apartments and store and apartment buildings. In comparison with 1926, the decline is even sharper.

"There is a direct connection between the increasing number of vacancies in apartment buildings and the decline in new construction of this class. On the other hand, if the Chicago building boom is to be maintained at its recent high levels for some months to come, some method of reviving activity must be found.

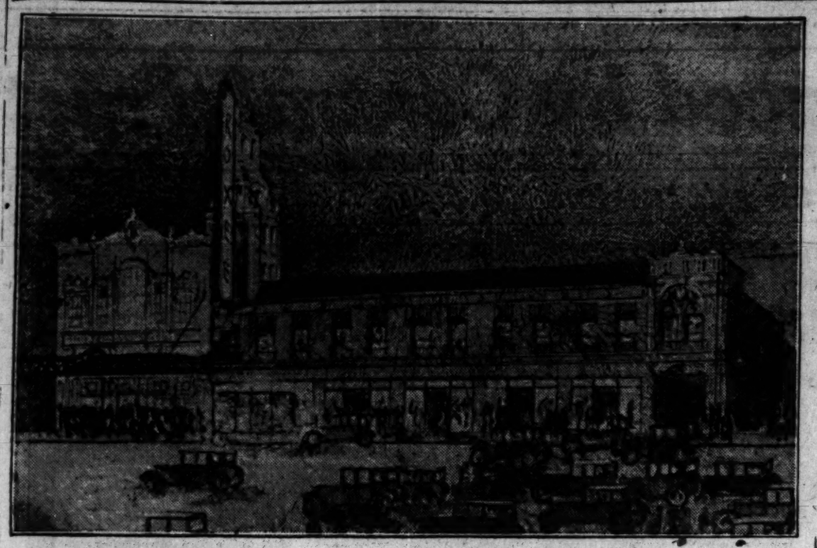
Suggests Lower Rents.

"The Cody review suggests that this revival can be effected on a financially sound basis if apartment contractors and property owners will concentrate on the erection of buildings which can rent at less than $15 a month per room and provide modern living quarters for those families which must subsist on a comparatively moderate weekly wage.

"A beginning has already been made in this direction by the huge Marshall Field housing project. The Julius Rosenwald apartments for colored families will soon get under way on the south side. Announcement has also been made of a $1,200,000 building on the near north side which will provide chiefly one room and kitchenette apartments at lower rentals than heretofore charged.

"This field has been virtually untouched by past construction. The builder who enters it now, particularly if he plans apartments of the three and four room type, will find a surplus of tenants awaiting him, and will have no trouble in filling his buildings when completed. Financing organizations will also look with favor on loans of this sort because the income from rentals over the next few years will be both steady and assured."

A HALSTED STREET MOVIE



Construction is in progress on a theater and commercial building at 3508-18 South Halsted street which will house the Rosee moving picture theater. The theater will contain 1,150 seats. There will be four stores. Jacob Maskalumas is owner. M. O. Nathan is architect. The Zemon Construction company has the general contract. Anthony A. Olis handled the legal details. Completion is scheduled for Feb. 1, 1929.

SOUTH SIDE AUTO INN

Picture of the Ritz Chicago garage being erected at 5017-31 Lake Park avenue from plans by Architect M. Louis Kroman. It is stated the structure will represent an investment of $436,000, in which connection Lackner, Butz & Co. are underwriting a bond issue of $290,000 for ten years at 6¼ per cent. E. L. Bloomster made this rendering.

EDUCATING NORTH SIDE YOUNGSTERS

Picture of a school to be erected by St. Henry's parish as a part of a $1,000,000 church group in the block bounded by Devon, Hoyne, Rosemont, and Seeley avenues. Henry J. Schlacks is the architect. B. C. Greengard is the delineator.

FOR FLAME FIGHTERS

Above is a fire station to be erected at the northwest corner of 42nd street and Sacramento boulevard from plans by City Architect Paul Gerhardt Jr. The structure is to cost $100,000. Miles Bater drew this picture.

$100,000 FIRE STATION TO RISE ON SACRAMENTO

A fire station to house Engine company No. 65 and Truck company No. 51 is to be erected immediately at the northwest corner of 42d street and Sacramento boulevard under the direction of Fire Commissioner Albert W. Goodrich. This station will cost $100,000 and will replace facilities long called obsolete.

Designed by City Architect Paul Gerhardt Jr., the new structure will be two stories in height and while following the general mode for fire stations will possess a certain individuality of its own. Both street elevations will be of face brick, ornamented with cut stone and terra cotta.

The interior rooms will be lined to the ceiling with gray enamel bricks. The structure will have a well equipped kitchen, a dining room, locker room, shower room and separate quarters for the officers.

Several new mechanical features have been adopted. One is a device which opens and shuts the doors after the vehicle has passed a certain point on the floor while going to or returning from a fire. Another is an arrangement whereby second floor windows are pivoted to permit of washing from the inside. Still another is an electrical device which when an alarm comes in causes a horn to blow, switches on the lights in the dormitory and opens the trap doors at the slide poles.

Finally we are told that the station will be fireproof.

CATHOLIC PARISH ON DEVON AVE. TO ERECT SCHOOL

First of $1,000,000 St. Henry Group.

Work is scheduled to start at once on a school for St. Henry's Catholic parish which will be the first of a group of buildings to be erected at a combined cost of $1,000,000. The parish headquarters occupies an entire block, 265x597 feet, bounded by Devon, Rosemont, Hoyne, and Seeley avenues.

The school building will be of collegiate Gothic architecture. Stone will constitute the material of the exterior, while the interior wainscoting and stairs will be of marble. Henry J. Schlacks is the architect.

There will be eighteen classrooms in the structure which will measure 72x175 feet. Construction will be fireproof and the classrooms will have the latest educational equipment. For the present the first floor will be used for church purposes. A church is to be erected later.

Mr. Schlacks has drawn plans for the church; a new rectory, new convent, and a community building. The community building will be a counterpart of the school structure and it will contain a gymnasium, auditorium, society rooms, etc. Six months will be required for the completion of the school.

12 FLAT BUILDING IN EVANSTON TO COST $150,000

John Bowman and Clarence Johnson, builders, are erecting a twelve flat building at 809-13 Forest avenue, Evanston, to represent a reported investment in land and building of $150,000. The structure, designed by Johnson & Anderson, is of English architecture. The flats will each be of five rooms, with two baths, and will have all the latest conveniences, including mechanical refrigeration. The lot is 50x180 feet. Completion is scheduled for Feb. 1.

Sherman-Reba Apartments in Evanston Change Hands

George W. Stewart of the Ira J. Bliss company reports the sale of twenty flats at the northwest corner of Sherman avenue and Reba place, Evanston for C. Fred Stewart to Louis Kastling for $175,000. John J. Junke was broker for the buyer.

WINCHESTER AVENUE DEAL.

B. Erasebnow sold the three apartments at 4207 North Winchester avenue to Richard A. Maake for a reported $26,000. G. A. Kuehle & Son were brokers.

300 CAR GARAGE UNDER WAY AT 5017 LAKE PARK

To Have Rest Rooms for Chauffeurs.

Work has started on a garage to accommodate at least 300 automobiles, and with crowding from 350 to 400, at 5017-31 Lake Park avenue to serve the south side's Streeterville district near the Chicago Beach hotel as well as Hyde Park.

The garage is being erected by the Ritz Chicago Garage corporation, and it is stated will represent an investment in land and building of $436,000. It will occupy an L shaped parcel fronting forty-six feet on Lake Park and will be located a short distance north of Hyde Park boulevard.

Designed by M. Louis Kroman the architecture will be modernistic; the front elevation being of ornamental polychrome terra cotta. The structure will be three stories high and will be of the ramp style.

There will be a number of features, including chauffeurs' rest rooms and private showers. And there will be mechanical ventilation and other mechanical features.

The owner is the Ritz Chicago Garage corporation, of which John F. Wellman is president and M. A. Brinker is secretary. The firm will operate a chain of similar garages now being erected in various parts of the city. Lackner, Butz & Co. have underwritten a bond issue of $290,000 at 6¼ per cent on the project.

TWO HOTELS OF ENGLISH DESIGN FOR SOUTH SIDE

If a part of Woodlawn avenue just south of 52d street doesn't look like a bit of London, or at any rate the Chicago idea of England's big town, it won't be the fault of Architect David Saul Klafter. For Mr. Klafter has just designed two apartment hotel buildings that are to be erected at 5210-12 and 5214-16 Woodlawn which will be of English architecture.

We'll take up the one for 5210-12. This is to be put up by Henry B. Mollner on a site 50x164 feet. The first floor will be of cast stone, with the upper stories of face brick, half timber work and plaster. The roof will be of slate in variegated colors.

As to the interior it will be divided into forty-three apartments of one, two and three rooms, all fitted with old English period furniture. The apartments will have mechanical refrigeration, in-a-dor twin beds, and other folding and disappearing equipment designed to make big apartments out of small ones.

There will be a lobby which will have English appointments to conform with the detail of the rest of the structure. A feature of the lobby is to be a big old-fashioned fireplace.

Work is expected to start on the project within a few weeks with the idea of having it ready for spring occupancy. Financing is in the hands of Nelson Brothers Bond and Mortgage company. George H. Sylvan has the general contract.

Then next door the 5214-16 Woodlawn Building corporation has purchased a site 50x164 feet from Lis and Fanny Rogers White on which it expects to start work shortly on a structure to contain forty-one one, two and three room apartments of a type similar to those in its neighbor.

The first floor will be of stone and the upper stories will be of pressed brick, cut stone, cement and heavy half timber work. On the main floor will be parlors, a lobby and a restaurant of English feeling to conform with the exterior. This building, too, is to be ready for spring occupancy. It is stated when completed it will represent an investment of $210,000. H. O. Stone & Co. are financing it.

BROKERS' NOTES

In last week's "brokers' notes" we stated that E. C. Harrell, formerly with George F. Nixon & Co., is now with the Harry W. Gahagan Realty corporation. The names are correct and the spelling is irreproachable, but unfortunately the statement is incorrect. Mr. Harrell moved from the Gahagan to the Nixon office, instead of vice versa. He is now director of sales of the Nixon north shore division.

CORNELL BUYS 170 ACRE TRACT IN DEERFIELD

An important development is announced for the north shore by the H. M. Cornell company, subdividers, who have purchased a tract of 170 acres in Deerfield from an undisclosed syndicate, for whom the Chicago Title and Trust company held title. The price was not disclosed, but the price is reported to have been in excess of $600,000, or at the rate of about $3,750 an acre.

The property has a frontage of 2,000 feet on Deerfield road, and it is directly across from the Briergate Country club. The tract is all located within the village limits of Deerfield, the west line of the land being about 500 feet east of the intersection of Deerfield and Waukegan roads.

Discussing the purchase, H. M. Cornell said:

"We plan to make this property our master development, and will start at once on a landscaping scheme to beautify each lot. There will be parkways and large stone and brick archways will grace all streets entering from Deerfield road.

"All improvements, such as sewer, water, sidewalks, and street paving, will be asked for immediately, so that the property will represent a finished product when offered to the public.

"In addition to selling lots to individuals who wish to build their own homes we will also inaugurate a building program wherein we expect to erect houses costing in excess of $500,000 within eighteen months. Our property is all zoned according to present zoning ordinances of Deerfield, which protect the lot and home owner. We have chosen Brierwood as a suitable name and expect to open the property to the public early in the fall."

B. W. Rosenstone was attorney for the purchaser and Leslie A. Needham acted for the syndicate. Henry F. Lawrence of Oak Park negotiated the purchase.

PENNY ARCADE LEASES AT 160 NORTH STATE

State street is including in its varied attractions a penny arcade—a type of amusement not seen in the loop part of this thoroughfare since the one operated by Jones, Linick and Schaefer on State, near Monroe—as a result of a lease entered into by the Middle West Photomaton company on a part of its quarter-in-the-slot photograph studio at 160 North State street with the Christopher Amusement company. The term is undisclosed but the rental is reported to be in the neighborhood of $15,000 a year. The Christopher Amusement company is a St. Louis concern, headed by J. A. Christopher. Earl J. F. Stein of the Bernard Stein Realty company was broker.

Official of Compton Co. Purchases Glencoe House

S. J. Gilfillan, vice president of the Frank E. Compton company, publishers, has bought the eleven room brick residence at the southwest corner of Washington and Greenwood avenues, Glencoe, from Mrs. Jessie W. Wulchet, through McGuire & Orr. The buyer now lives at 241 Fairview road.

HOUSE OF HAND HEWN LOGS BUILT WITHOUT PLANS

Picturesque Sweden and Yankee Conveniences.

(House designed and built by Harry Bengston, 975 Oak street, Winnetka, and located in Krenn & Dato's Highland Park Highlands, University and Hill street, Highland Park.)

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[Home Builders Editor.]

A ten room house, this, with three baths and a two car garage, built in the early Swedish style.

LOUISE BARGELT. [Hutchinson Photo.]

It was designed and built by a man who is a dreamer, an artist, and a builder, a man who constructs unique, artistic homes without a finished blue print, creating each room and detail as he goes along.

In this dwelling he has achieved a home which reflects in a measure the spirit of his native land: a house combining the simple ruggedness of a peasant hut with the subtle artistry of Swedish peasant handicraft, and at the same time incorporating all the comforts and conveniences of present day urban life.

The foundation is of field stone. The first story of hand hewn oak logs set in concrete. These logs demonstrate to what lengthens Mr. Bengston will go to secure just the materials he wants. In order to get them he had to tear down an old log cabin in Mundelein and haul them to the present site. When this cabin was built in the virgin forest of the north shore, Chicago was but a tiny village only ten years old!

The upper story is of rough plaster, while the roof is thatched with nine thickness of cedar shingles. The entrance to the garage is cleverly concealed. The doors are made of logs like the rest of the first story. The dominant note of the exterior, however, is the huge stone chimney of the living room fireplace, which extends from the ground level up beyond the roof.

Two Story Living Room.

Stepping into the two story living room, one is confronted with this huge fireplace, which is really the soul of the house. It is massive, yet graceful. The grate, which is large enough to hold six foot logs, is raised above the floor level. The fireplace and chimney are constructed of large granite boulders set in concrete.

The entire living room is finished in paneled cypress, burnt over with a torch and then rubbed down with a wire brush to bring out the hard grain.

The central lighting fixture consists of an old wooden wagon wheel, charred by fire. It hangs in a horizontal position. On the rim of the wheel are candle light fixtures of various heights into which electric lamps are fitted. All trimmings are of hand hammered Swedish iron.

The reception hall has a quaint little stone fireplace. The floor is of heavy random width oak planking. An old fashioned stairway of very simple design, with a hand made balustrade, leads to the upstairs. The entrance vestibule walls are finished in hand hewn antiqued oak planks.

Dining Room Walls Unique.

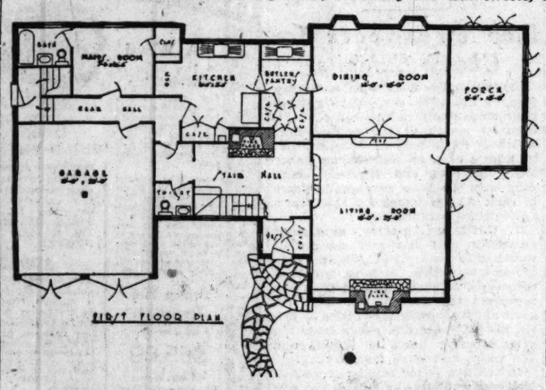
The dining room walls are decorated in a unique manner. Conventionalized Swedish floral patterns are employed. Colors and shades are beautifully blended in a style peculiar to old Swedish interior decorations. There is a mahogany panelled wainscoating and the floor is finished to harmonize with the walls. The central lighting fixture is made of four old fashioned kerosene lamps wired for electricity. In addition there are four single wall lamps.

The bedrooms mark a wide departure from the usual standardized design. Various slants and angles in the ceiling do away with the box-like, cubby-hole effect and lend to these chambers a cozy, intimate atmosphere. No two of them are finished alike. Each bedroom has an individuality in the color treatment of walls, floor and trim. The master bedroom looks down upon the two-story living room from a little balcony. The maid's bedroom is on the first floor.

The house is heated by a hot water system fired with gas. The basement walls and ceiling are plastered.

TEN ROOM HOME OF HEWN LOGS

The dominant note of the exterior is the huge stone chimney which extends from the ground level up beyond the roof. House designed and built by Harry Bengston, 975 Oak street, Winnetka. It stands on a lot 80x190 and is located in Krenn & Dato's Highland Park Highlands, University and Hill streets, Highland Park.



Living room is 18x25.6 feet. Dining room is 14x18. Kitchen is 100x11. Maid's room is 9x10.6. Garage is 18x20.

Stretch $47 a Week Into $5,500 Home

The Tribune will print experiences of home owners—letters telling how the home was financed, how the initial payment was gathered, how the mortgages were paid off, how the upkeep was managed. Thrift Wins Home.

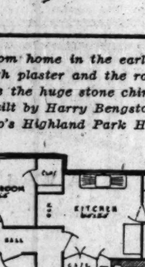
CHICAGO.—In June, 1922, when I was seventeen, and my hubby, some two years my senior, were married and as his wages were only $30 per week, I kept bringing my $17 every week. In the following spring, after paying for all the household things we needed, we had $100 to our name.



MRS. M. R. SEBASTIAN.

On fine evening as we were walking along Archer avenue, we noticed a cottage for sale, and just kidding each other, we went in to find out its price. It was $5,500, buyer to assume a $1,000 first mortgage, pay $2,000 cash and pay a second mortgage of $2,500 at $100 a month, plus the terest.

Our lone $100 looked so big to us and we seriously thought it a good buy, as Brighton Park was a growing section. We set out to borrow as much as we could, getting $800 from a friend, $300 from Uncle Sam on hubby's insurance policies, and another $800 from his brother, and with our own $100 it made up the $2,000.

The next problem was to meet the $100 payments. We had been paying $30 rent, and moving into our own home saved that much. We fixed up the basement and rented it for $25 a month. There was an old barn at the rear, so we made it a two car garage, renting it for $15. That solved the payments, and we paid back almost all the other debts. After having the house for almost a year, several called and offered us $7,500, but we did not wish to sell.

After two years of married life a baby arrived for whom I had to give up a position paying $23 a week. To make up hubby had to step up to get larger wages and he did all kinds of odd jobs, from fixing autos to building porches and painting houses so as to make both ends meet.

Now we have the house almost all cash and would have had it all had we not bought a piano and car which set us back $2,000. We did everything on a budget plan and must say it is the best thing if you really mean business. MRS. M. R. SEBASTIAN, 4104 Archer avenue, Chicago.

Washable Decorations in Vogue for Home

The vogue for the "washable" in home decorations continues and recent developments in the paint field have introduced a wall paper lacquer which, applied, makes no change in the appearance of the paper, but it makes it possible to wash the wall paper with soap and water. The lacquer can also be used on canvas.

TRIBUNE WILL GIVE $5 FOR LETTER ON XMAS GIFT TO HOME

Are you planning to give your house a Christmas present this year? Some new piece of household enquipment the entire family will enjoy; an oil burner or gas furnace, a mechanical refrigerator or kitchen ventilator, radiator enclosures or electrical features? Vast is the variety of gifts one may make the home—gifts deeply appreciated. THE TRIBUNE will pay five dollars for each letter published not exceeding two hundred words in length. Address Louise Bargelt, Home Builders Editor, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

GOOD FIREPLACE COSTS NO MORE THAN POOR ONE

It is not any added expense to build a "good fireplace." Not a dollar more, really, than it costs to build one which gives out barrages of soot and smoke and has faulty draft control. In fact, the good fireplace is the cheap fireplace, for many a high redecorating bill has followed in the wake of poor fireplace construction, or perhaps an equally high remodeling bill.

Equipment must be proper and interior construction accurate — these are the two essential safeguards to correct fireplaces.

Cost of Oak Flooring Is Little More Than Soft Wood

A campaign, it is stated, is underway by the oak flooring industry, to educate prospective home owners to the fact that oak flooring may be laid throughout a house at little greater cost than soft wood floors or substitutes.

Polychrome Awning with Vari-Tinted Background

A polychrome awning has been introduced recently which is an awning with a solid background in various tints. Upon this background is placed a painted design, which is prepared to harmonize with the surroundings.

ASSOCIATION TO AID INTERESTS OF HOME BUYER

Certifies as to Quality of Construction.

BY HOMER GRANT.

Have you heard of the "Certified Home"?

It is a home built by a member of the National Better Home Builders' association.

A home owner who buys such a residence receives with his purchase a loan and resale certificate, a document which, according to the association, guarantees that the materials and workmanship in that home conforms to its standards.

This "certified home" will spell safety, permanence, low depreciation, little upkeep, and high resale value to its owner. He is in no danger whatever of buying unawares a firetrap house, or one with sagging, cracking walls, high depreciation, and high upkeep costs, so the association asserts.

There are nine vital factors stressed in every home built by a member of the association. Regardless of its price, a simple bungalow or a ten room palatial residence, this certificate will mean that the house has been built according to the following standards:

1. Footings; that the house may not sag at the corners.
2. Damp proof basement.
3. Firestops for heating plant and chimney—including flue linings.
4. Wiring in accordance with standards.
5. Double floors; protection from cold and creaks.
6. Framing, bracing and bridging of beams, rafters and uprights in accordance with the code of the National Better Home Builders association.
7. Lathing [when wood lath is used] and plastering to be thoroughly dried out before woodwork or wall decorations are applied.
8. Good and approved design.
9. A purchase, loan and resale certificate with every home.

To the average family the buying of a home is a vastly important transaction, one of the most important it ever makes. Yet many a family buys a home without really knowing anything about its construction. Even experts cannot discover everything, once the hidden parts of a house are covered up. How much less can an inexperienced home buyer discover.

Expensive to Maintain.

Because of this fact, jerry builders have in too many instances built houses which appeared fine but possessed major faults. Hard to heat in winter, expensive to keep up, and with little resale value after a few years.

Through these jerry builders not only home buyers but conscientious honest builders have had to suffer. They could not build as cheaply as the unconscientious builder and they refused to build as poorly.

These conditions have resulted in the growth of the National Association of Better Home Builders. Honest builders organizing for fair, square deals and seeking to force others to deal the same way.

This association, national in scope, but with executive offices in Chicago at 332 South Michigan, believes that the market for homes is so normal and staple that nothing short of panic can stop it. And panic is no longer feared with our federal reserve system.

To Help Business.

But the association also believes that better builders organized to enforce better building could greatly stimulate this home building market, and that by establishing standards of practice which must be lived up to and building homes as it were, "in the open," there will be an even greater impetus to construction.

There are also associate members of this organization, and dealers, bankers, building and loan houses, realtors and subcontractors, such as lumber dealers, excavating contractors, carpenter contractors, and equipment agents, etc., are all eligible.

Every "certified home" will have a plate fitting into the door jam.

Home Building Trinity.

This association stands for the trinity of home building, good design, good materials, and good workmanship. Every home surely deserves that trinity. Each one is important, yet dependent on the others. The old idea of the chain being no stronger than its weakest link, holds true here as in most cases.

And, it is believed, the knowledge that all these things are guaranteed in a "certified home," will reawaken the desire for a home in many a family circle through the general establishment of mass confidence.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS ON HOME BUILDING

Taking Up Mortgage.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Can we obtain a second mortgage which will allow us to take it up whenever we want, if we happen to get the money, without paying interest for the entire period it was supposed to cover?

Ans.—Certainly. Be sure to read over your mortgage carefully to make sure that the above is stipulated therein.

No Down Payment.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Do you think it is advisable to buy a house without paying anything down? We never have been able to save a cent but have a chance to buy a home "nothing down." The monthly payments and interest, etc., seem high, and I am worried over the prospect, but my husband is determined to try, as he believes we can save something this way, where we never have been able to save before. D. R.

Ans.: Undoubtedly you can save in this way providing you have the determination and the payments and interest are not too high. Be sure that you are not shouldering too heavy a debt, however. Check over carefully all the attendant charges, and be sure that you have a bit of a margin left over, if possible, for emergencies. Here is wishing you luck on your adventure!

Payments to Expect.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Supposing we buy a house, assuming two mortgages and a small down payment. What other expenses can we expect to have "handed us." I would like a list of these expenses before I really make up my mind to buy. W. R."

Answer—You can expect semi-annual interest on both mortgages, also regular monthly payments to erase the second mortgage. Add to these taxes, water rent, fire insurance premiums on both policies to protect both mortgage holders, fire insurance on your household furniture, depreciation of 2 per cent a year which may be offset by repairs, painting, etc., gas, electricity, transportation, coal, and telephone. Some of these expenses you have doubtless carried in your apartment expenses.

LOOKING BACKWARD

WOODROW WILSON. [Copyright U. & U.]

The week's real estate market was undoubtedly the dullest since President Wilson asked congress for a declaration of war against Germany. What with the broadening of the nation's war activities, particularly in the multiplicity of its financial demands on its people, the gradual reduction of the country's business to essential war needs, including the practical suspension of building operations, the real estate market in practically every class of property is suffering acutely.

The southwest section of the city has been favored in the war plans by a big $5,000,000 shell plant at Ashland avenue and west 74th street and the enlargement of the plant of the Amalgamated Machinery corporation on Racine avenue, between 37th and 39th streets, for the manufacture of machinery for the making of shells and guns. The Calumet district, however, has been the scene of the greatest activities in the war industry field.

STORE BUILDING IS UNDERWAY AT WOODLAWN-63D

Completion is announced for Oct. 1 on a building under construction at the corner of 63d and Woodlawn. The structure will contain seven stores and ten sale shops. It is two stories high, of steel and terra cotta construction, and it is stated will represent an investment in land and building of $200,000. The lot is 50x140 feet. Loewenberg & Loewenberg are architects. B. and M. Feilchenfeld are owners. Financing is by the Woodlawn Trust and Savings bank. McKey & Poague, Inc., are agents.

BUY BROADWAY LAND.

Rupert F. Bippus, an attorney, and Grover D. Rose bought 60x150 feet at 5526-30 Broadway, near the intersection of Ridge and Bryn Mawr, from Henry T. Carr for an undisclosed consideration. The land is improved with a one story auto brake service station and a two story dwelling. The purchase was made for investment.

MRS. POTTER PALMER. [Steffens Photo.]

Record has been made of the lease to Mrs. Potter Palmer from Sebastian Wustum of Racine, Wis., for the property at the southeast corner of Michigan avenue and 13th street. The lease is for 198 years from May 1, 1908, at a yearly rental of $6,000 for the first seven years and at $7,500 for each of the remaining 191, the lessees to pay all taxes in addition. The land fronts 48 feet on Michigan with a depth of 130 feet, and has old brick improvements.

Bround has been broken for the new Blackstone hotel to be erected at Michigan avenue and Hubbard court by the Drake Hotel company. The contract for the wrecking of the old buildings has been let to the Garden City Lumber and Wrecking company and Fuller & Co. have the contract for the sinking of the caisson to test the nature of the soil.

LEON E. STANHOPE. [McNeil Photo.]

L. E. Stanhope has designed for John Uter nine flat buildings to be erected at 1708-20 Carroll avenue, 81-89 St. Lawrence avenue, and 1753 North Hamlin avenue. They will contain eighteen flats of five and six rooms.

Frederick M. Atwood last week conveyed to his partners, William H. R. Martin and Frank R. Chambers, of the firm of Rogers, Peet & Co., his interest in the ground and the Atwood building at the northwest corner of Clark and Madison streets. The consideration stated in the deed was "$1 and other good and valuable considerations." The ground is 80x88 feet and the building a 10 story fireproof structure.

Biltrite Construction
Biltrite Garages are insulated with a heavy cellular lining to keep out the winter cold, and the wide eaves are inclosed and tightly sealed. Patented Biltrite Hardware automatically locks the double braced doors, which are heavier and wider than standard. Door holders keep them from closing when driving out. Special wall construction and sheeting, sixteen inches apart, prevent the walls from ever leaning or bulging. Creosote is used to prevent rot and an extra heavy foundation to prevent settling. Either folding or standard doors—these are a few Biltrite features.

FARM AND GARDEN

HERE ARE NINETY OF WINNERS IN GARDEN CONTEST

Fourth to Seventh in All Districts Listed.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

After three weeks of work by various judging committees, the judges announce the names of ninety of the ninety-nine prize winners in THE TRIBUNE'S second home flower garden contest. The other nine, winners of the first, second, and third prizes in the three different divisions, will be published next Sunday.

In awarding the $3,075 of the $6,000 offered by THE TRIBUNE for the best gardens within approximately forty miles of the loop, the city and suburban gardeners shared about equally, except in the south division of the contest area. There the city gardeners dominate in the prize list. In the list of winners there are the names of several gardeners who took prizes in THE TRIBUNE'S home flower garden contest last year. Many winners in the 1927 competition who competed again this year failed to win prizes.

Profit by Experience.

With a better season and more experience the contestants generally have better gardens this year than last, according to the judges representing garden clubs. Hundreds of new names appeared on the entry list, making keen competition for the veterans of last year's contest.

The semi-final judges who ranked the ninety prize winners from the fourth to the thirty-third place, inclusive, found fine gardens both within the city and in the suburbs. Below are the names of the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh prize winners in the three divisions of the contest territory, with the amounts they won:

SOUTH DIVISION—S. W. Feck, 536 E. 10th street, Lockport, 4th prize, $150; Neil Vermoire, 517 W. 39th-av., Gary, 5th prize, $100; A. Lyden, 2212 W. 107th-pl., Chicago, 6th prize, $75; Mrs. A. W. Hardy, 4620 Ellis-av., Chicago, 7th prize, $50.

The judges who made the awards are chairman, Mrs. Arthur C. Watson, 2140 West 107th street; Mrs. B. E. Buttles, 9515 South Robey street, and Mrs. William O. Korten, 11303 Lothair avenue.

WEST DIVISION—Mrs. Oscar E. Brown, 6943 Oriole-av., 4th prize, $150; Anton Hahn, 4910 Melrose-st., 5th prize, $100; L. A. Goding, 5353 Blodgett-av., Downers Grove, 6th prize, $75; Mrs. E. V. Corff, 1421 Ridgeland-av., Berwyn, 7th prize, $50.

The judging was done by a committee from Lombard. Chairman, Mrs. Nora Wegner, 340 South Lombard street; Mrs. Louis H. Schafer, 57 North Lincoln avenue, and Mrs. Arthur Marshall, 325 West Grove street.

NORTH DIVISION—Mrs. E. L. Scheidenheim, 704 Lake-av., Wilmette, 4th prize, $150; Louise M. Graves, 570 Jackson-av., Glencoe, 5th prize, $100; Fred W. Kropf, 5615 N. Talman-av., Chicago, 6th prize, $75; Harry N. Wentworth, 933 Ash-st., Waukegan, 7th prize, $50.

The gardens were rated by Chairmen Mrs. Morris Woolf, 725 Waverly road, Highland Park; Mrs. Bertram Cahn, 315 South Green Bay road, Lake Forest; Mrs. Leo M. Steele, 250 Vine avenue, Highland Park, and Mrs. Jerome Delmel, Wayde avenue, Highland Park.

Some Won Last Year.

Niel Vermoire, fifth prize winner in the south division, won the sixth prize in the early and ninth prize in the late phase of THE TRIBUNE'S flower garden contest last year. Mrs. O. E. Brown, who was awarded fourth prize in the west division this year, took seventh place in the early and sixth place in the late contest last year. Mrs. E. V. Corff, a winner of the seventh prize in the same division, was awarded ninth prize in the late contest of 1927.

Fred W. Kropf, who rates sixth in the north division, was in tenth place in the early and sixth in the late prize winning list last summer. In the same division Harry N. Wentworth holds a unique record, having won seventh place in this year's competition and also the same rank in both the late and the early contests last year.

Following are the names of the contestants who won $25 prizes in the three divisions:

LAZY FARMHAND WHITTLES DOWN GROWER'S INCOME

City Hours Won't Do in the Country.

Waste is the tormenting cancer that is constantly eating away at the farmer's pocket book. Chemists estimate that the saving of waste would add three billion dollars to the annual income of American farmers. Their figure deals with the material things that go to waste and does not include the millions of dollars that are lost every year as a result of the waste of man labor.

Work is still the fundamental prerequisite of profitable farming. Whether a man is farming by choice of chance he must be willing to work if he is to succeed That goes for the land owner-operator, the tenant and the hired hand.

Engineers, chemists, and scientists generally have given farmers many new things on the farm but some one must be there to put them to work.

No Regular Hours.

It is unfortunate that a farmer's hours cannot be regulated as they are in the city. In factories, offices, stores and business houses generally the working day can be between certain hours, but not so with the farmer.

Pigs, chickens, cows, and horses do not eat and go to bed by the clock. They must be taken care of according to their natural sleeping and eating habits. Crops do not grow by the clock. They develop and ripen according to nature's scheme and must be taken care of at the proper time and not just when it suits the whims and fancies of a farmer.

For that reason the farmer's hours are toughest during the growing and harvesting season, but he often has a few days off at other times in the year which offsets, to some extent at least, the long hours during summer.

The farmer's working hours "come in bunches," but it is doubtful whether the average farmer puts in more total hours during the year than many city workers who work between certain hours day after day throughout the year.

Many Days Off.

Since the work on the farm must be done when the "time is ripe," rather than by the clock, it has been suggested that farm hands working by the year be hired to work 310 days a year—the average work days for the average factory worker—at the option of the farmer who employs him. The number of days would perhaps vary depending upon the general or local holidays that are to be counted out, including Armistice, Christmas, Columbus, Memorial, Independence, Labor days, and New Years, Thanksgiving, and Washington's birthday.

Advocates of the hired hand's new yearly working basis argue that a man who is working on a farm must make up his mind to work according to seasons. He has to work long hours during the long days and often seven days a week. In compensation for this he gets many days off during stormy weather and in winter, it is pointed out.

In a study recently made of 200 farms in central Illinois, eighty farms were singled out—the forty most profitable and the forty least profitable—and it was shown that in a difference of $3,000 a year in the earnings between these farms $215 of it was charged to man labor efficiency.

Experts who made the analysis explained that the total labor cost, including the operator's and family labor at hired man rates, was $6.27 per acre on the forty more profitable farms and $7.26 on the less profitable ones. This difference of 99 cents per acre applied to the average size of farms in the two groups amounts to $215.

"This is more significant when one realizes that the returns were nearly twice as high on the more profitable farms," add the experts.

FOURTH PRIZE GARDEN, SOUTH

S. W. Peck, 536 East 10th street, Lockport, has been awarded the cash prize of $150 in the south division of the Tribune's second home flower garden contest.

MANY ENTRIES PROMISE BIG COUNTY FAIR

Fine Prospects for Choice Exhibits.

Gardeners, live stock men, and dairy farmers are busy these days getting their crops ready to fill Cook county's horn of plenty at the annual fair, which is to be held at Palatine, Ill., beginning Aug. 29, and closing Labor day. Farmers and truckers claim they have the finest prospect in years to raise A1 specimens for this year's agricultural exhibits.

T. C. Hart, secretary, announced yesterday that the fair association would offer between $11,000 and $12,000 in cash prizes. Judging from the records of recent years and from the prospects this season, Mr. Hart expects approximately 400 entries of cattle, horses, hogs, and sheep from the prize winning herds of Illinois and Wisconsin and some from Ohio.

In addition to the regular live stock and crop exhibits the association officials are planning a special daily light horse show program to last throughout the week. More than $1,500 will be offered to attract the fast steppers of the middle west stables.

C. C. Hildebrandt, president of the association, says that for the second time the fair officials are going to offer a special cash prize of $25 at their horticultural show for the best display of flowers coming from any one of the hundreds of gardeners entered in THE TRIBUNE'S 1928 $6,000 amateur flower garden contest. It was won last year by Miss Grace Beutler, Palatine, Ill.

Finance—Commerce—Markets

NEW FINANCING TREND IS CLEAR NOW TO PUBLIC

BY HARPER LEECH.

Unquestionably the outstanding financial and economic news of 1928 has been the revelation to all of the extent to which our financial structure has been changed by the greater financial independence of industrial corporations.

For some years economists have been calling attention to the increasing amount of credits not eligible to rediscount, and last year this column published studies of management combination and of the new financial position of the manager class, due to the piling up of liquid corporation reserves and the increased facilities for self-financing caused by our tenfold increase in the number of security buyers.

It's Generally Known Now.

It is, however, that the new condition is generally known and commented on, the question arises as to whether it has not reached its peak development.

We have had two very powerful financial currents at work since the war. The policy of plowing profits back into business—a notable feature of the policy of steel, of the coppers, and of the car lines—has been carried to what seem to be a climax in industries with new show signs of saturated development. On the other hand the sale of these corporations to the public has been one form of taking money out of a particular business and diversifying investments of large personal and family capitals.

This year, with profits greatly declined as compared to the year before, many of the large corporations showed a trend toward greater generosity toward security owners, and less was paid to surplus.

Net Profit Smaller.

The Standard Statistics corporation, in an analysis of 543 leading industrial operations, exclusive of the two top leaders, Steel and General Motors, shows that comparing 1927 to 1926 the latter year resulted in a decrease of 13.7 per cent in net profit, an increase of 11.3 per cent in fixed charges, a decline of 13.3 per cent in net income, a decrease of 8.6 per cent in preferred dividends, an increase of 4.5 per cent in common stock dividends, a total increase of 1.7 per cent in payments to security holders, and a decrease of 56.8 per cent in the amount carried to surplus.

These companies carried to surplus in 1928 only 17 per cent of their net profit, which is a smaller percentage than some experts believe is desirable, in view of the vicissitudes of business and the increased intercommodity and interindustry competition of the times. The amount carried to surplus by these companies in 1927 was $363,000,000, against $341,000,000 the year before. We do not know what is being done this year.

Profits have been better for many corporations, as shown by the first quarter and the first half year statements so far made public, but the published aggregates of dividends and interest paid also have been indicative of considerable generosity to security holders. With such great liquid reserves already accumulated and with the difficulties of finding profitable investments so pronounced (prior to the entry of so many corporations into the call money market), the greater generosity to security holders is understandable. Management is just passing along to the owners the fruit of investment.

Shows Change of Policy.

Looking backward, it is interesting to see how the contrary policy of keeping money in the business went to great lengths. The Federal Trade commission report on stock dividends indicates that since the war the amount issued may have reached eight or nine billion. The policy adopted by some utility holding companies of paying all dividends in stock is an interesting result of this process, and appears to have been generally acceptable.

An analysis of 106 leading corporations in 13 industries by Stone, Webster and Blodgett shows that these corporations saved $586,627,000 at the close of 1927. At the close of 1927 their notes payable had dropped to $148,928,000. In the same period the 106 companies increased their cash and marketable securities from $707,574,000 to $1,718,492,000 and net working capital from $2,731,-[illegible] to $3,760,746,000.

Sales Grow Much Larger.

Complete records of 40 of these corporations show that in the same period there was an increase in sale volume of 8 per cent accompanied by an increase of only 26 per cent in inventories. As a clear result of the lessened demand for commercial credit, which has resulted from the increased speed and economy of distribution in recent years, banking from industrials to utilities and here we have the coincidence of profits limited by law and a fast growing industry, we see another picture. The gross revenue of the light and power companies this year may reach $2,000,000,000. But they will have to spend at least $900,000,000 on new plants and additions to meet the increased demand for service. Because of our policy of regulating rates—a policy which probably has contributed to the creation of the demand for service or at any rate has so intended—this money for new plant must come from the public, not from surplus to any great extent.

The power industry has to train its public to save for its extension in their own corporations. By providing attractive rights to buy new stocks, is managed with a great many of its security owners to get more money from them than it pays them per year.

Railroads Make Big Cut in Operating Expenses

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Railroads of the country reduced their operating expenses during the first six months of this year by $105,000,000 less than they were for the same period in 1927, according to statistics by the interstate commerce commission.

Transportation expense was cut $53,-[illegible], and maintenance of way expenditures were reduced $15,524,000. Maintenance of equipment expenditures were reduced by $26,311,000, making a total reduction for the cost of maintaining properties of a little more than $50,-[illegible]. The reduction in total operating expenses was the best made since

New Financing Banishes Fear of High Money

BY GEORGE HAMMOND.

The new bond market, practically dead throughout the summer, is coming to life. New issues to be publicly offered tomorrow total more than $10,-000,000, which exceeds the entire output of new financing last week, when the smallest total of any week of the year but one was registered. The total last week was $9,753,500 and compares with $3,360,000, the year's low, for the week ended Aug. 3 and $120,-500,000 a year ago.

The bonds to be offered tomorrow are believed to be the forerunner of other issues to come out later in the week and indicate the scare over a probable runaway money market is over. The credit situation has shown easing tendencies during the last week, and investment houses appear convinced that no great stringency will arise.

Oklahoma Utility Offering.

The Public Service Company of Oklahoma will offer, through a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., $5,000,-000 of 5 per cent first mortgage bonds, series "D," at 96 and interest, to yield 5.27 per cent. The bonds are due May 1, 1957, and part of the proceeds of the sale will be used toward the acquisition of the Oklahoma properties of the Southwest Power company.

New road and bridge improvements in Cook county will result from the sale of $2,700,000 of the county's 4 per cent bonds, which will also be offered tomorrow through a syndicate headed by the Continental National company and including the Illinois Merchants Trust company, First Trust and Savings bank, and the Harris Trust and Savings bank.

Florida Terminal Financing.

The Tampa Union Terminal Company of Florida will offer through a syndicate headed by Gillet & Co., $1,400,000 of 6½ per cent 25 year sinking fund bonds at 100 and interest, to yield 6.50 per cent. The bonds are due July 1, 1953. Several new foreign loans are in the making and probably will be announced in a week or two. A chain store loan is expected to reach the market some time this week.

New state and municipal financing scheduled to be sold this week remains low, the total being $5,598,507, the largest of which is for less than $1,000,000. This compares with $6,142,230 last week and $21,125,991 in the previous week.

EXPORTS OF U. S. MORE THAN HALF MANUFACTURES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Manufactured goods made up 55 per cent of the total exports of the United States for July, against a 49 per cent proportion for July, 1927. Imports of manufactured goods for the same month constituted but 23 per cent of the country's total imports and the largest figure in imports was assigned to crude materials for use in manufacturing which constituted 33 per cent of the total.

The unprecedented rise in the manufacturing exports has been noted in each monthly trade analysis by the commerce department and it now appears possible that the United States, instead of being chiefly noted for the export of raw materials, such as copper, cotton, wheat, and foods, will hereafter be distinguished in foreign trade by the predominance of its exports of finished goods.

The analysis of exports and imports for July, 1928, against July, 1927, follows: EXPORTS: Manufactured goods, $205,004,000, against $165,414,000; partly manufactured goods, $61,346,000, against $59,369,000; foods ready for consumption, $30,396,000, against $31,278,000; raw foods, $14,214,000, against $21,909,000; raw materials for use in manufacturing, $60,295,000, against $55,024,000. IMPORTS: Manufactured goods, $75,242,-000, against $67,244,000; partly manufactured goods, $60,044,000, against $61,523,-000; foods ready for consumption, $33,-314,000, against $35,076,000; raw foods, $43,174,000, against $34,269,000; raw materials for use in manufacturing, $106,-020,000, against $121,186,000.

Armour Finds Beef Trade Curtailed by High Prices

Armour & Co. in its review of general packing house trade conditions says:

"The beef business continues to be unsatisfactory. Consumptive demand has been curtailed and it is evident that live cattle prices are too high. Demand for ham and bacon continues to lead other packing house products, with further increased demand for bacon. Fresh pork continues to be in less demand than the smoked and cured product. Lamb receipts were somewhat heavier at a somewhat lower market. The dressed trade averaged about fair. The supply of live calves was lighter, the live market steady, and a fair demand for dressed veal."

Cuba Expected to Abandon Restriction of Sugar Crop

HAVANA, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The Cuban national sugar defense commission met today to consider the question of lifting crop restriction for the coming season, an action which has been virtually assured the growers by President Machado. Any delay in lifting restriction, it is said, will be because of existing agreements with European sugar interests.

LONDON STOCK TRADING BROADER DIAMONDS SHINE

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Stock exchange business showed signs of broadening this week. The holiday spirit, however, prevented any marked headway. There was a fair degree of cheerfulness, with plenty of optimists about prophesying a great fall revival. This always is easy towards the end of August, but there is more than the usual confidence, market men forecasting a big revival in South African mines, especially Kaffirs, and an early outburst would not be entirely unexpected.

There is much talk about India bonds coming back into favor again, and it is significant that DeBeers diamond mine shares was the outstanding strong feature of this week, closing with a rise of a point to 14. There are unconfirmed rumors of a second interim dividend here.

Reflects New York Market.

London's money situation still is dominated by New York. Sterling exchange is hovering at present above the point at which it would pay out gold from the Bank of England and ship it to New York. There is little doubt that America would take the gold from London immediately, if such an operation showed a profit on remittances compared with buying cable transfers.

The foreign exchange section is becoming particularly dull. There are indications that stabilization is reducing the general market activity.

Brokers are having a rather lean time. Even arbitrage business is slow. The fact is that a comparative succession of various stabilization schemes and preparations for currency reform in other directions have caused a diminution in arbitrage operations. Leading firms are engaged in adapting themselves to the new order of things. The exchange has gone back more quickly to normal than was generally anticipated.

Gilt Edged Shares Firm.

One of the best features of the week was the revived buoyancy of the gilt edged section, which received a fillip from the new treasury bond issue of £35,000,000 at 5 per cent. The average price obtained was £101 11.65d, slightly less than generally expected, the treasury's minimum price being £101. Considering the prevailing stringency in the short loan market, however, that result was satisfactory.

A strong feature in the foreign bond market was the demand for Chinese and Greek bonds. The former call was on the belief that conditions are gradually improving in China, the latter on the election results and the return of Premier Zenizelos to power. Brazilian and Mexican issues also were notably strong.

British railroad shares have given a better account of themselves, passenger receipts beginning to show an increase, though heavy freight earnings are not so good.

The outstanding feature of foreign rails again was the Canadian Pacific with a rise of 10 points in the week to 220.

Yankees Buy Talking Shares.

In the industrial section strong American buying was again boosting the talking machine shares. Victors jumped up to 105, Columbias to 15⅝, Hoovers to 13. Tobacco also showed a spurt with a sharp rise in British Americans to nearly 125 shillings, a record figure.

There are growing rumbles of discontent regarding the financial side of dog racing. Sharp falls in the leading greyhound racing shares is creating considerable anxiety as to the future of the undertakings generally. Under influences of extravagant profit estimates, the shares of many hastily formed companies rushed up to fancy prices. It is now evident that those estimates will not be realized, and investors are faced with serious losses. It is feared that further trouble is ahead for other similar ventures which have this year attracted much of the public's money.

Newspapers shares are strong, especially the Rothermere group. Oil is brighter. Rubber and tea are dull. Hydro-electrics of the Loewenstein group are improving on rumors that the holdings of the dead financier passed into strong hands.

Paris Market Erratic.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 25.—The bourse, although maintaining a firm undertone, opened weakly, rallying toward the end of the week. It sagged heavily Wednesday, with rumors that the bank rate would be increased the following day, but recovered when the Bank of France ended the ungrounded rumors and reports of an increase in the discount rate.

Monday's opening witnessed a decline, due to selling of speculators who had sent in orders over the week-end to liquidate their positions, although a rally later in the day brought prices almost to the level of the preceding close. Hesitation marked the early trading Tuesday, but the market recovered to some extent, although the business at no time was large.

The enthusiasm largely was checked by the uncertainty in New York. The weak market Wednesday picked up Thursday, with the issuance of the bank statement, and the tone continued moderately optimistic the remainder of the week, even though the volume of business remained small.

Do You Need Additional Capital for Your Business?

I have a way of raising it. I can get you the money you desire. I have had considerable experience in the selling of securities of high grade organizations. I will not consider your proposition if it's questionable or promotional—only those that have been established for some time and need additional financing for expansion purposes and whose earnings warrant additional money to be put in the business. References exchanged.

TOPICS OF FINANCE AND TRADE

Motor gasoline prices showed a steady tone during the week, says Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter. U. S. motor grade averaged 10.875 cents a gallon at four principal refinery centers, against 7.91 cents in the same period of last year. Gasoline at service station 19.05 cents last year. Crude oil at the wells in 10 principal fields averaged $1.58 a barrel, against $1.417 last year. Domestic crude production to date this year is estimated at 562,398,000 barrels, against 580,163,000 in the same period last year.

The New York Central railroad is planning to spend $2,500,000 on its Mott Haven yard in New York City in order to increase the capacity of Grand Central terminal. All freight will be eliminated from the yard save the handling of milk, and the new facilities will be devoted to the handling of Pullman cars and coaches.

The Ohio Oil company, the Prairie Oil and Gas company, and the George W. Crawford Gas, interested, are sponsoring a project involving a 300 mile 20 inch gas pipe line from the Hiawatha dome gas field in southern Wyoming to Salt Lake City and Ogden, Utah, and towns en route. The cost of the project is estimated at $20,000,000. It is understood there will be no public financing.

Class I railroad, on Aug. 8, had 257,212 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service. This was a decrease of 13,805 cars compared with July 31, at which time there were 271,017 cars.

The Western Power, Light and Telephone company called a special stockholders' meeting for Sept. 21 to vote on an increase in no par common stock from 20,000 to 300,000 shares and issuance of preferred stock in one or more series.

The automotive parts and accessory industry had another record month in July, and indications are that August and September will be busier than in previous years.

Price movement last week in the wholesale markets for the commodities of chief consumption were confined within a somewhat narrow range, but in the main were fairly steady, twenty-six declines in the list of quotations, collected by Dun's Review, contrasting with twenty-one advances.

The Canadian National railways is contemplating a substantial equipment order, it was officially stated today. The order will amount, it is estimated, to between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000.

Crude oil production in Mexico for the week ending Aug. 18 averaged 122,571 bris daily, compared with 123,000 bris daily in the preceding week. Light oil output averaged 54,425 bris daily, compared with 56,000 bris in the preceding week, and the heavy oil production was 68,142 bris daily, compared with 67,000 bris.

The Seminole area's crude oil production in the twenty-four hours ended at 7 a. m., Aug. 24, totaled 318,247 bris, against 319,243 bris in the last preceding day.

Class I railroads on Aug. 1 had 151,867 freight cars in need of repair or 6.7 per cent of the number on line. This was a decrease of 19 under the number reported on July 15, at which time there were 151,886, or 6.7 per cent.

Toledo employment in the week ended Aug. 24 totaled 33,623, an increase of 195 over the previous week and compared with 21,739 in the same week a year ago.

The New York Central lines announced today the purchase of fifty-five locomotives and five additional locomotive tenders of 15,000 gallons' capacity from the American Locomotive company. The total cost is reported to be about $5,400,-000.

Southern Furnace interests have advanced the price of No. 2 foundry pig iron 75 cents a ton to $16.25 a ton, furnace, for September and fourth quarter delivery.

The Coos Bay Lumber company, successor to the Pacific States Lumber company, following the sale of timber for $2,000,000, announced that it will clear up the accumulation of dividends on its first preferred stock in October. The company paid a year's dividend of $7 a share on July 25 and has still two year's accumulation.

What Form of Investment Suits You Best?

When one takes his money out of the bank to invest in a security, he does so with the purpose of putting it to work where it will bring him in a steady income.

At least that is the intention of the If he invests in high grade bonds that are well secured and where the margin of safety for payment of interest and principal (as evidenced by the issuer's past and present earnings) is large, he is practically assured of a steady income.

He knows that at certain definite dates each year he will receive a fixed sum of money and that on the maturity date the face value of the bond will be returned to him.

In the case of a callable bond, if redeemed before maturity, he will usually receive a premium over and above the face value.

Thus he is assured, not only of a definite income, but also of the return of his money at some definite time in the future.

And, while holding the bond, he has something which he can use as collateral for a loan in case he needs some ready money and does not want to sell the bond.

If the investor, on the other hand, puts his money into stocks, the assurance of a definite income and of the return of his money is lacking.

A company may be paying good dividends regularly on its stock, but if for any reason its business falls off and earnings shrink it may either reduce the amount of its dividends or discontinue their payment entirely.

A stock is not a secured obligation of the company nor is it a promise to repay a loan.

A bond is both.

A stock is merely a certificate of ownership in the company.

It is entitled to share in the profits of the company (if there are any) after all expenses and charges—including interest on the bonds—have been paid.

Furthermore, a stock has no maturity, except in the case of a few preferred stocks.

There is no date on which the company agrees to return the principal invested.

The money stays in the company and the only way to get it back is to sell the stock for whatever it will bring on the market.

It may bring more or it may bring less than it cost.

When a stock is paying good dividends it can usually be sold for a good price—but that is not the time one wishes to sell.

If the dividend is reduced or discontinued the stock ceases to be as desirable an investment and the owner is likely to want to get rid of it.

At such a time, however, the market price has fallen and he may have to sell at a large sacrifice.

In such a case, not only has the income on the investment dwindled or ceased, but the investor may not be able to get back anything like the amount of money he put into it.

The investor should bear these things in mind before putting his money to work for him.

Do you want an investment that is a secured promise to pay a fixed income regularly and to return your principal at a certain future date, or do you want to take chances on a security that may prove profitable or may entail loss?

Each kind of security has its place in the investment field and the desirability of each kind varies just as the resources, conditions, and requirements of each individual investor vary.

Panama Canal Operations Show Profit of $680,915

PANAMA, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Profits on business operations of the Panama canal for the fiscal year 1928 totaled $680,915. The annual report has been submitted to Gov. Walker by Elwyn Green, canal auditor. It shows a considerable increase of cash on hand which totaled $2,147,093 at the end of the fiscal year, compared with $1,983,725 the previous year.

During the period covered by the report employés at the canal earned $11,-899,168, of which $7,138,126 was earned by Americans. The book value of property used in connection with the transportation of vessels through the canal totaled $257,074,172 at the close of the fiscal year.

N. Y. Clearing House Banks Show Decline in Deposits

New York, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House association shows: Total surplus and undivided profits unchanged; net demand deposits (average), $11,384,000, decrease; time deposits (average), $7,-045,000, decrease; clearings week ended Aug. 25, $5,501,295,285; clearings week ended Aug. 18, $5,612,852,259.

STOCK MARKET ADVANCES AGAIN IN HEAVY TRADE

YESTERDAY'S AVERAGES

	High.	Low.	Last.	Net chge.
25 railroads	124.04	122.92	123.53	+ .44
25 industrials	273.61	271.15	272.59	+ .64
50 stocks	198.82	197.03	198.06	+ .54

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The stock market today followed up yesterday's wild trading and swift upturn in prices. There was no slackening of trading and total transactions for the two hour week-end session mounted to 1,986,900 shares, making the most active Saturday in many weeks.

A wide variety of recent speculative favorites pressed forward to new peak prices. Bull traders and pool operators staged demonstrations in several issues during the first hour and again attracted a considerable public following. There was considerable profit taking in the second hour but this was readily absorbed and closing prices of the market leaders were close to the best levels of the day.

Advance Follows Good News.

The cheerful character of the weekly mercantile reviews, prospects of active autumn business and larger earnings by many industrial companies and improvement in the brokers' loan situation were the chief factors in the continued advance in prices. Some easing in money rates in the last few days also tended to dispel fears of a runaway money market.

It was noticeable that these factors and the renewed advance in prices has brought a much broader public participation in the stock market after several months of slight interest. This factor contributed to today's movement, which resulted in twenty or thirty stocks being pushed up to new peaks and advances ranging from 1 to 7 points in a considerable list of issues.

General Motors resumed leadership of the market. It was taken in large blocks in buying attributed to the Du Pont and Raskob interests. The price moved up to 196½ and closed at 195⅝, making a net gain of 2⅜ points on the day.

Allied Chemical again surged forward, reaching 204 and finishing at 203½, up 6½ points on the day. Among the other standard industrials, General Electric rose 3¼ points to 161 and Radio was up 2 points at 193 after touching 194¼. International Harvester was off more than a point. American Can, American Smelting, American Telephone, Du Pont, Pullman, and United States Steel showed mixed fractional net changes.

Specialties Are Boosted.

Among the specialties, Diamond Match was run up 7¼ points, while Detroit Edison, Greene Cananea, Kroger Grocery, Rossia Insurance, and Woolworth were only a point or two behind the leader. Net gains of two to more than four points were made by American Locomotive, Borden, Broggs Manufacturing, Commercial Investment Trust, Drug, Inc., Electric Autolite, National Cash Register, Reynolds Tobacco B, Schulte Stores, Timken Roller Bearing, Underwood Elliott, U. S. Alcohol, the Warner Brothers Pictures issues and Warren Brothers.

On the other hand, the recent swift upturn in Montgomery Ward led to profit taking and it declined 2 points. Adams Express slumped 11 points on a single sale. Case Threshing declined 3⅛ points and losses of a point or two were incurred by Atlantic Refining, Butterick, Gillette, Savage Arms and Western Dairies B.

Industrial List Strong.

In the general industrial list, gains of a point or more were made by American Snuff, Bethlehem Steel, Brooklyn Union Gas, A. M. Byers, Coca Cola, Curtiss Aero, Fox Film, Graham Paige, Lehn & Fink, Loft, Loose Wiles, Sweets Company, Tobacco Products, U. S. Leather, U. S. Smelting, and White Motor. But losses of similar extent were incurred by Abraham & Straus, Air Reduction, American Radiator, American Tobacco B, General Cigars, Goodyear, Southern Dairies A, Sun Oil, Union Oil of California, and United Fruit.

The railroad group was generally quiet but strong. Western Pacific preferred advanced 3 points and smaller gains were made by Atchison, Rutland, Texas & Pacific, the Missouri Pacific issues, Kansas City Southern, New York Central, New Haven, and Union Pacific.

The BEST JUDGMENT?

Merger Plans Boost Stocks of Two Banks

Illinois Merchants Trust and Continental National Bank & Trust Co., continued in the limelight in the Chicago bank stock market last week, due to their prospective merger. After selling at 1135 the early part of the week, Illinois Merchants sold up to high sales of 1255 and closed 1255 to 1260. Continental National Bank & Trust Co., after selling at 618, rose sharply to a new high of 700. It closed at 685 bid, 690 asked.

First National bank was traded in at 873 and closed with offerings of 865 failing to attract any bids. State Bank of Chicago continued unchanged at 720 to 725. Chicago Trust was firm at 510 to 515. National Bank of the Republic advanced to sales of 590, at which price additional stock was offered with best bids at 585.

Northern Trust in Demand.

Northern Trust continued in demand at 805 to 815. Foremen National Bank was again offered at 835 without attracting bids better than 830. Central Trust Company of Illinois advanced sharply to sales at 495 and closed, 485 to 490.

Trading in the industrial group was quiet, due to the activity in the bank stocks. Winton Engine, after establishing a low of 39½ advanced to sales at 42 and closed 41½ bid, 42 asked. A. E. Staley common continued unchanged at 210 to 220, while the preferred continued in demand at 93 with best offerings at 95. Federal Electric common and preferred was in good demand with bids of 58 for the common failing to attract sellers; while the preferred was in demand at 130. Centinental Steel, after selling at 34, advanced to sales at 36, at which price additional stock was offered with best bids at 35¼.

Other Issues Irregular.

Dodge Manufacturing B per cent preferred was in demand at 22½ at the close, with sellers at 24. Great Lakes Transit preferred moved up several points to 87 bid. National Gypsum class A was in supply at 25, with no buyers near this price.

Godchaux Sugars first preferred advanced to high sales at 70. It later reacted to 65, but closed 67 bid, 68 asked. W. C. Foster preferred ranged between 80 and 83. American Stove was weak at 115 bid, 120 asked. Northwestern Yeast, after declining to sales at 181, improved, selling at 186 for small lots. Standard Cap and Seal resumed activity, with sales ranging from 39 to 40. Elgin National Watch ranged between 64½ and 66, with last sales at 65.

Fewer Business Failures; Bank Clearings Increase

New York, Aug. 25.—The insolvency record this week shows an improvement in comparison with the statements for the two immediately preceding weeks. Totaling 377, failures in the United States this week, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., are 27 below last week's number, and 93 under the aggregate two weeks ago. There is, on the other hand, a small increase over the 369 defaults of a year ago.

Bank clearings again show improvement, the total this week at all leading cities in the United States of $9,025,140,-000 exceeding that of the corresponding week of last year by 8.2 per cent. At New York City, clearings for the week are $5,734,000,000, or 9.6 per cent larger than those of a year ago, and at centers outside of New York the total of $3,291,140,000 shows a gain of 5.8 per cent.

CHICAGO STOCKS GAIN IN ACTIVE WEEK-END MART

There was a good deal of activity in Chicago stock trading yesterday, considering the usual week end two hour session. The market leaders were mostly higher, while the quiet issues displayed irregularity attributed to week end profit taking.

Campbell, Wyant & Cannon Foundry stepped in the foreground with a jump of 3¾ points, based on reports of increased earnings. Keystone Steel sold up 3¾ and North American Car advanced 3 points. Pines Winterfront gained 2 points and Libby, McNeill & Libby was 1¾ higher on good activity. Oakes receded 2 points and Atlas Stores was off a major fraction.

Borg-Warner Will Expand.

Borg-Warner closed unchanged. The directors deferred action on increasing the annual dividend rate, stating that plant facilities will be increased to take care of large contracts. July net earnings totaled $365,111, which brings net earnings for the first seven months of this year to $2,650,786, equal to $6.38 a share on the common stock.

On small sales Bendix "B" sold up 3 points, while gains of 1 to 2 points were made by Yellow Cab, Celotex common and preferred, Armour of Illinois preferred, Beatrice Creamery, Wrigley, and Art Metal Works. Public Service of Northern Illinois was down 14 points, and losses of a point or so were felt by Commonwealth Edison, A. M. Castle, Super Maid, and Middle West Utilities.

Review of the Week.

The market again showed an advance in prices for the week just closed with total sales of 515,000 shares, about the same as the previous week, but a gain of 267,000 shares over the corresponding week of last year, when total sales were 248,000 shares. For the year to date, total sales stand at 17,201,827, compared with 5,784,750 shares last year.

The biggest gain was established by Sears Roebuck, which soared 19⅝. Quaker Oats was second with a net advance of 10 points on small activity. Oakes Products "A," a newcomer, advanced 6½, as also did Campbell, Wyant & Cannon Foundry, and A. M. Castle.

Other Issues Advance.

Tennessee Products and Midland Steel Products each finished 6 points higher and Middle West Utilities was up 5½. Atlas Stores and Stewart-Warner climbed 4¾ each and gains of from 3¼ to 3¾ points were made by North American Car, Keystone Steel, Northwest Engineering, Balaban & Katz, Celotex, Godchaux Sugars, Foote Bros., Gear, Swift International and Wrigley. About a dozen other issues finished with net gains of from one to two points.

Great Lakes Dredge featured the soft side with a drop of 15 points. Sonatron Tube sold off 5 points and Spiegel, May, Stern declined 4 points. Losses of around one and two points were felt by ten or twelve other stocks.

Ford Motor Raises Output to About 4,500 Cars a Day

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 25.—The Ford Motor company to date has produced 300,-000 of its new model A cars and trucks; domestic assembly is averaging around 4,000 units a day, with Canadian production of 500 units daily. The aggregate output of other foreign assembly branches of new Ford models now probably exceeds 5,000 units a day.

Employment at the Detroit Ford plants is at a record high, totaling 120,293. The Fordson plant now employs 31,481, the Highland Park plant 34,902, and the Lincoln plant 3,910.

Bond Salesmen

A well known bond house, participating in all leading syndicates in large amounts and dealing exclusively in well secured general market bonds (no real estate or stocks) is looking for several men to represent them in territory where offices are located. Only bond men of the very highest type can qualify for drawing account of $300 per month or more to apply against an unusually liberal commission system making this position worth at least $6,000 per annum and upward to a producer. Absolutely no attention will be paid to replies not giving full information as to names of securities sold, approximate volume, etc., during the past year, which will be held in strict confidence. Offices in St. Louis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Chicago and New York. Our own organization has been informed of this advertisement.

Hogs yesterday showed the usual week-end decline, top falling 20c and general average 15c at $12.80 and $12.05 respectively, against a top of $12.50 and average of $11.80 the previous Saturday. Supplies were meager and only 3,000 were left at the close, some being held off of the market in hopes of a recovery early next week.

Hogs Return to $18.

Continued light supplies brought the $13.00 hog back on the market last week and elevated the week's general average 25c at $12.05, against $10.85 two weeks earlier and $9.10 a year ago.

Arrivals during the last two weeks have been smallest since September, 1927, the week's total at eleven points at 360,000, standing 100,000 under the six year average. The year to date movement at eleven markets at 20,327,000, compares with a six year average of 21,064,000. As usual, with a big crop of corn in sight, farmers will hold hogs as long as possible in the winter and next spring.

A slight increase in cattle receipts last week had little effect on the strong position of the trade, the week's general average at $15.05 being within 10c of the highest since 1920 and compares with $11.80 a year ago and with $9.85 two years ago. Arrivals at 46,000 were 5,000 more than the preceding week, but compare with 59,783 a year ago, and with 80,551 two years ago. Yearlings sold upwards to $17.00 and heavy steers at $16.85, highest prices of the season. Western cattle are coming slowly, the season to date at 8,700, comparing with 9,200 a year ago, which was the second smallest since 1916 and with 20,800 two years ago.

Lamb Market Erratic.

Lambs in mid-week were pounded to the lowest level of the season and attracted a deluge of eastern orders, resulting in a reaction in prices. Sales at the lowest point were $2.50@3.00 under early last month and more than $5.00 lower than early June. Outsiders on some sessions took more than half of arrivals. Daily top westerns fluctuated within a range of $14.25@14.50 and natives $14.25@14.75. The week's average figured $14.05, against $14.50 the previous week and $14.95 two weeks ago.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 19,000 cattle, 30,000 hogs, and 15,000 sheep, against 17,764 cattle, 35,142 hogs, and 20,091 sheep a week ago, and 21,200 cattle, 39,665 hogs and 9,362 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 47,000 cattle, 100,000 hogs, and 85,000 sheep, against 56,010 cattle, 120,600 hogs and 82,653 sheep a year ago.

COTTON TRADE NERVOUS

A nervous feeling exists in the cotton trade owing to uncertainty as to the outcome of the crop which has reached a critical stage.

It is said that mills have bought a lot of cotton for forward delivery, as they expect a revival of business and many do not expect to see prices much lower.

Liverpool started mostly lower and closed unchanged to 1 point higher, with spot sales 4,000 bales. American markets were quiet and had a small range with no significance to the trading. The Khiah futures in Chicago were 4 to 8 points higher, and other markets unchanged to 5 points higher. Spot cotton was unchanged with New York, 18.10c; New Orleans, 18.75c; Houston, 18.55c, and Galveston 18.60c. An estimate of a 15,000,000 bale crop is made by the Daily News Record. A report from Austin, Tex., says that state is estimated at 5,025,000 bales, by the commissioner of Agriculture of that state, based on condition Aug. 15. Last year the crop was 4,227,750 bales. The government made the crop a year ago 5,137,000 bales. Prices follow:

NEW YORK CURB STOCKS STRONG; BONDS VARIABLE

New York, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Price trends were generally upward in moderate trading on the curb market in today's short session, but the market lulled notably to respond to the strength of the "big board," and week end liquidation caused some irregularity in all groups.

Cuban-Dollar Tractor was still in demand, inspired by reports of impending acquisition of a midwestern concern, and gained 1½ points. Bullard Machine Tool and U. S. Asbestos went to new highs in 2 and 3 point gains, and Sidney Industrial crossed its previous high in small advance. Campbell Wyant and Cannon Pen made 3 point gains, and Midwest Sugar shot up 8 points in a small turnover.

Other Groups Strong.

Chain stores were still strong, Melville Shoe, Piggly Wiggly and Schiff extending their recent gains fractionally. Neisner Brothers gained more than 2 points. Fox Theatres showed group strength, Newman advancing 2 points, while Hudson Motor, Consolidated Copper and Noranda followed fractionally. Comstock Tunnel was an exception, dropping a point.

Oils were irregular, Standard of Ohio yielding 2 points, while Gulf of Pennsylvania dropped a point. Humble was weaker, while Standard of Indiana and Sequan eased fractionally.

American Superpower A and B lead the utilities with gains of 2 and 3 points, respectively, and United Gas Improvement up 2 points. Electric Bond and Share and American Gas and Electric encountered profit taking.

Weak spots in the industrials were Penn Crucible at a new low at 170 and Delaware at a new low at 53¼. Banoway and Columbia Graphophone were agitated at the close after small gains.

Bond Market Irregular.

The bond market heeded week-end profit taking more than stock market optimism today and price movements were erratic. Utilities, oils and some rail and industrial obligations sagged. Rail, foreign and United States government bonds were irregular.

Public Service of New Jersey 4½s, which have been the strength of the utility group during the week, closed fractionally lower. Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s were an exception, advancing a point. Coppers held firm, although gains were small. Steels yielded despite favorable trade reports. Oils, rails and most of the more speculative issues slumped under profit taking in the week-end.

Some Rail Liens Strong.

Some railroad obligations reflected the strength of railroad stocks. Atlantic & Danville 2d 4s advanced 2 points, Georgia Carolina and Northern 5s showed slightly greater gain and there were numerous smaller advances. Interborough Rapid Transit convertible 7s and 6s sagged in sympathy with the drop of the stock, but the registered bonding 5s soared nearly 4 points. St. Paul 5s of 2000, Seaboard Air Line 6s, and a few others also sagged.

Foreign exchange closed steady, with sterling cables quoted around $4.85 9-32. Exception was the rise of 20 points in Japanese yen.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE

Money in Chicago firm at 6 per cent on call; commercial paper, 5@5½ per cent; 5@6 per cent over the counter. Bankers' acceptances, 4⅝@5 per cent. Chicago clearings were $105,100,000 a week ago, and $89,800,000 a year ago. New York banks totaled $908,000,000.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Prime commercial paper, 5@5½ per cent; bar silver, domestic, 56c; Mexican dollars, 44½c. Call money in all loans, 7 per cent; closing bid, 7; offered at 7. Time money, collateral, 60-90 days, 6; 4-6 months, 6½. Bankers acceptances, unchanged.

"No more fuel waste in our home!"

"For many years we were troubled with high fuel bills. Moreover, life in winter was just one long series of trips to the basement.

"Then we bought a Weil-McLain and changed it all.

"This boiler is certainly a wonderful fuel saver. Besides, it heats perfectly and needs less firing attention.

"In fact, I don't think there is another boiler like it."

Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boilers are designed with one single thought in mind—to give more heat and save fuel. They are built to fight fuel waste, because the principal cost of home heating is the year-after-year cost of the fuel consumed.

They are popularly priced, of course, due to modern manufacturing methods. But above all, they are efficient—assuring warm rooms, health protection and a generous saving in your fuel bills.

Scientific combustion ends ashpit waste

Probably never before has there been a boiler in which the factors of costly fuel waste are so completely conquered.

Among the Weil-McLain advantages, which insure warm rooms and a saving in fuel, is scientific combustion.

Due to scientific design, the fuel in the Weil-McLain Boiler is more thoroughly burned. The fire burns bright and clean. It lasts a long time and requires only infrequent attention.

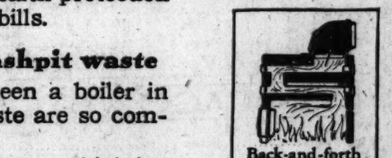
Costly waste down into the ashpit is ended.

Fuel-saving corrugations and back-and-forth fire travel prevent waste up the chimney

The Weil-McLain Boiler has more heat-absorbing surface directly above the fire, due to a corrugated crown sheet section.

All other vital heating surfaces too, have fuel-saving corrugations. You can see for yourself that corrugations like this ∿∿∿ permit crowding more heat-absorbing surface into the same space.

Weil-McLain long back-and-forth fire travel eliminates all short cuts to the chimney and is a final safeguard against waste. Not only do these two Weil-McLain features end waste of valuable heat units up the chimney, but they give further assurance of warm rooms and fuel economy.



Fuel-saving corrugations absorb more heat from the fire

Back-and-forth fire travel ends waste of heat up the chimney

Weil-McLain Self-Feed Boilers

...the highest standard of clean, hard coal heating

The Weil-McLain Self-Feed is a new and more convenient boiler ... a boiler you can leave for long periods without thought of adding fuel ... a boiler that assures home heating luxury ... yet a surprisingly priced boiler of cleanly habits and amazing fuel savings.

The Weil-McLain Self-Feed Boiler costs comparatively little more than regular type boilers, because its simplified design effects savings in manufacture and installation.

It saves fuel because of corrugated heating surfaces and long back-and-forth fire travel and because it burns inexpensive small sizes of clean, hard coal, there is a further year-after-year saving in fuel cost. A handy ash-pit spray adds to its cleanliness.

Write for our Self-Feed Boiler Catalog, giving complete details.

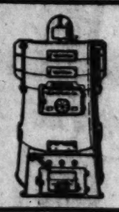
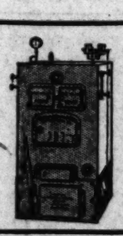
Round Type Boiler
For Steam, Vapor and Hot Water Heating in complete range of sizes for all types of small and large buildings. Write for catalog H-23.

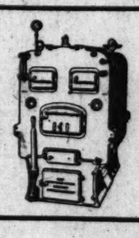


Jacketed Type Boiler
Colorful beauty is combined with operating economy and convenience in this modern new boiler. For steam, hot water or vapor; in sizes for small and medium size homes.



Self-Feed Boiler
You can leave the Weil-McLain Self-Feed Boiler for long periods without shoveling coal. Burns clean, hard coal and saves $3 to $7 on each ton. Assures heating luxury at low cost. Write for catalog.

Square Type Boiler
For Steam, Vapor and Hot Water Heating in complete range of sizes for all types of small and large buildings. Write for catalog H-24.



Smokeless Boiler
With long-firing periods; used where soft coal and smoke is a community problem; in sizes for apartments, factories, theatres, schools, etc. Write for catalog H-25.

Oil Burning
Weil-McLain Boilers are unexcelled for oil burning because their extra heating surfaces and longer fire travel absorb more of the quick, intense heat produced by modern oil burners.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

August 26, 1928

THE KING OF GOLF, Bobby Jones, appears again on a Chicagoland course this week as leader of the American team in the Walker cup matches. On Thursday and Friday he and his compatriots will combat the invasion of Great Britain's best amateurs in defense of the international trophy at the Chicago Golf club at Wheaton. Here's a striking likeness of the young Atlanta lawyer who has twice been national open champion, three times national amateur champion, and twice British open champion.

(Color-photo by Godfrey Lundberg.)

Madam, You'll Marvel...

. . . Sandwiches stay fresh so long

A DAY'S outing . . . a picnic luncheon. There's nothing more fun in the world! But that basket luncheon! What a problem . . . to have everything dainty and fresh.

Our advice, Madam, is to follow the example of thousands of others and insist on Wonder Bread for the sandwiches. Then you can count on their being delicate and delicious . . . fresh and tender . . . when it is time to eat.

Chicago's most particular women are changing to this remarkable bread by the thousands. Just as we suspected, the difference was too great to go unnoticed.

So, if you are one of those who haven't tasted it, please try a loaf at once. It is really far too delicious a product for any woman to overlook!

Here's why!

The secret of this marvelous bread is really wonderfully simple. We use only the finest, purest ingredients . . . and we slo-bake every loaf. That is how we seal in the delicate flavor . . . prolong the original freshness so much longer.

You will taste the difference the first time you try it. A new freshness. A delicate new texture. A delicious new bread flavor.

You will marvel, too, at the way it slices. It cuts quickly, easily and smoothly . . . there is never the slightest danger of crumbling.

Our flour is specially selected . . . scientifically blended. Only the heart of the wheat berry is chosen. It is a far better flour than most women buy in the stores. And our recipe calls for double the usual quantity of milk.

Please make a test

Madam, if you baked Wonder Bread yourself . . . right in your own kitchen . . . you couldn't take more pains than we do to have every loaf just right.

YOU CAN'T BRING TOO MANY sandwiches when you make them with Wonder Bread! This slo-baked bread slices so easily you can serve sandwiches just as thin as you wish. It keeps nice and fresh, too!

You couldn't use any purer ingredients or measure them one single bit more carefully.

So if you pride yourself on serving good wholesome food at your table, please try this delicious bread at once! Order your supply tomorrow morning. Serve it at every meal.

Notice how firm and tender it is . . . how smoothly and easily it slices . . . how long it keeps its original delicate freshness. But, most important of all, notice that wonderfully delicious flavor that has won so many friends.

Now just this one word of warning. Always insist on getting the genuine Wonder Bread.

Make 3-minute test. Take a slice of Wonder Bread and a slice of ordinary bread. Toast each slice for 3 minutes . . . 1½ minutes on each side. The Wonder Bread toast will be browned evenly. The other slice will be only partially browned.

For only from this one bread alone can you expect the remarkable delicacy of flavor that we have described for you in this advertisement.

Two convenient sizes. One for large families. The other for small. Now at your grocer's . . . fresh twice a day.

[A Product of the Continental Baking Company]

SEE HOW children take to Wonder Bread. It is really amazing how quickly they notice the difference. It is wonderfully good for them, too! It contains calories for energy . . . and calcium to build bones and teeth.

WONDER BREAD

IT'S SLO-BAKED

POLICE DAREDEVILS thrilled 75,000 spectators, the largest crowd jammed into the stadium at Soldiers' field since the Notre Dame-Southern California football game, in the annual games of the department which closed last Sunday. This "pyramid" which risked life and limb on roaring motorcycles displayed the daring of eight of Chicago's finest. (Tribune photograph.)

Makes Life Sweeter

FOR WHITER TEETH

People like Phillips Dental Magnesia—the perfect toothpaste—because it actually whitens and brightens teeth like nothing else. Dentists say there is nothing better for mouth and gums than daily use of

Phillips Dental Magnesia Toothpaste

IT is not enough that children be soap-and-water clean. Keep them sweet inside, with Phillips Milk of Magnesia. When youngsters' stomachs sour, and tongue or breath tells of this condition, correct it with this perfect anti-acid.

Most men and women know how quickly Phillips Milk of Magnesia relieves indigestion, and all ailments arising from hyper-acidity. More mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant way to bring about a happy, healthy state of inner cleanliness. One spoonful will neutralize many times its volume in acid, so it is more effective than the harsher things too often employed.

No household should ever be without this first-aid for all ages, and every stage of gastric disturbance. Phillips is the genuine product physicians prescribe, and endorse for general use; the name is important.

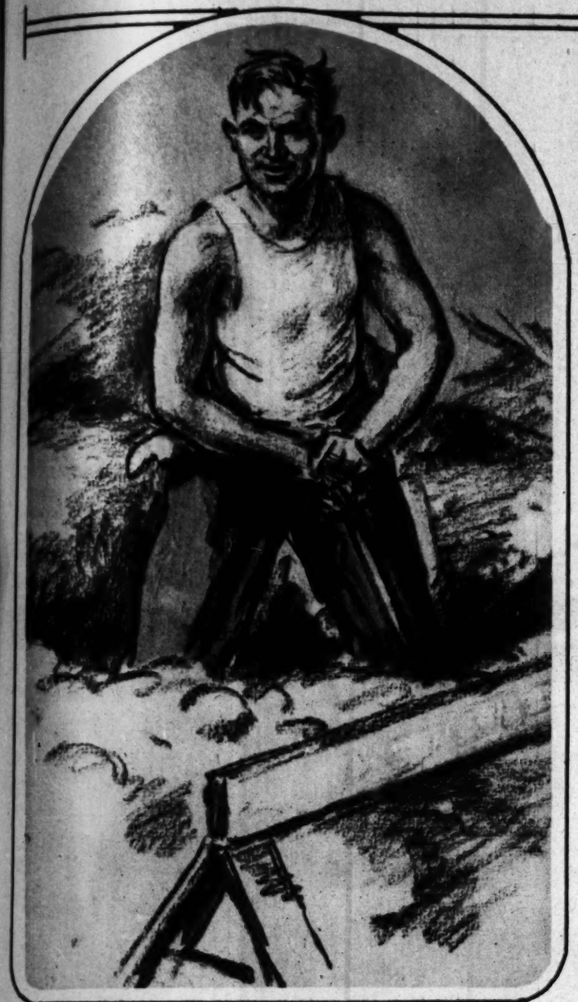
"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

STATE ROAD STUFF

By W. E. Hill

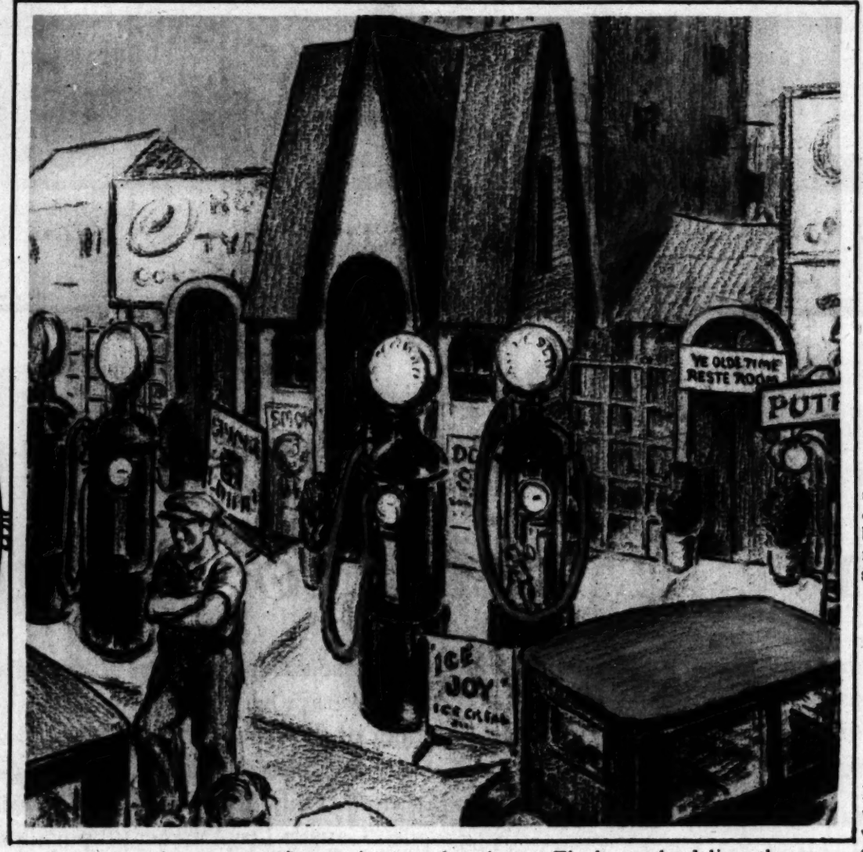
[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]



Mike, the genial road mender, is exerting great personal charm for the benefit of a lady motorist who probably won't return the compliment.

A general exodus at the end of the bus route, with the local ball team and two village shebas in the foreground. Ralph, the second baseman, has gone over big with Leola, the jazzy brunette. "I wouldn't have believed a ball player could be so gentlemanly and refined," says she to her pal, Jewel.

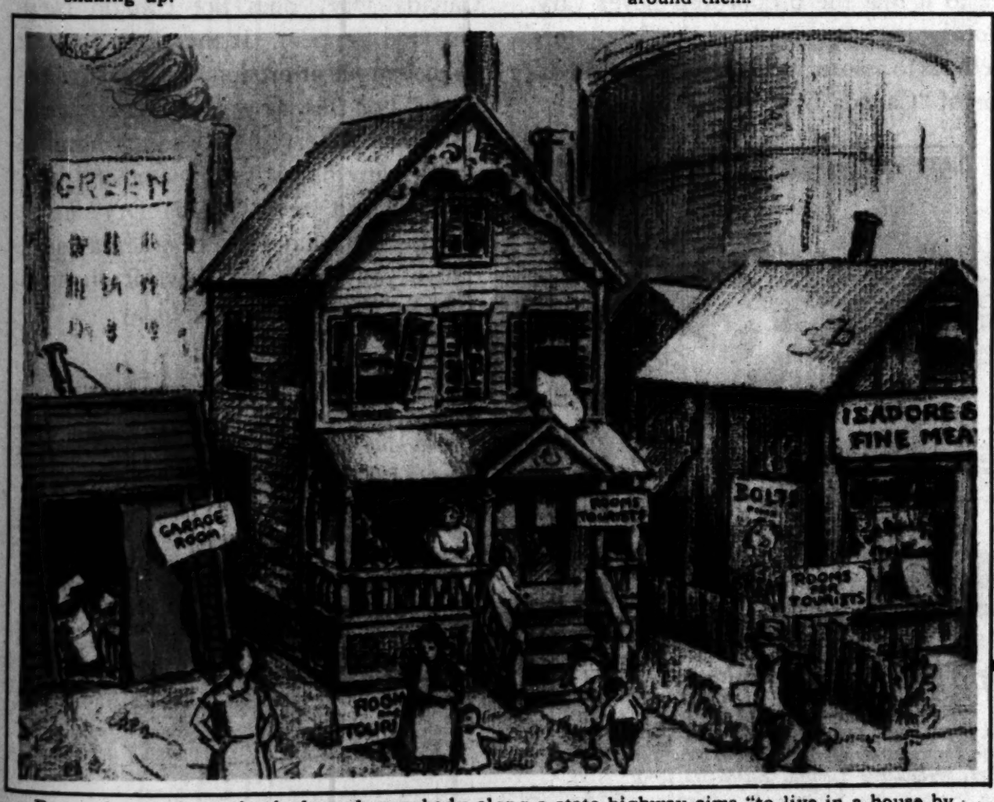
When there's a crowd there's always the rumble seat, unless, like Dottie here, you bruise easily. Dottie and the baggage are getting a terrible shaking up.



Service stations are getting quainter and quainter. The boys who deliver the gas are just as undecorative as ever, which is a pity, considering the fancy settings around them.

Meet handsome Herbert Lather, the greeting card salesman, rolling along from one hick town to another, thinking how much prettier the little scenes on the greeting cards are, taking them by and large, than the natural scenery one sees nowadays.

Benny, the snappy traffic cop, is doing very plain clothes duty this afternoon. They need a few fines down at headquarters and Benny is just the boy to pounce on unwary speeders.



Rooms for tourists. Anybody and everybody along a state highway aims "to live in a house by the side of a road and be a friend to man" at, of course, a slight remuneration.

Here is none other than Miss Binks, the district school teacher, taking home the report cards to fill out. She's waiting for a bus and wishing a big limousine would drive up, with Adolphe Menjou or Ramon Novarro in it, and give her a lift.

The rollicking tourists and the southern chicken and waffle dinner served on the bumpy lawn of "Ye Olde Blue Buzzard." Aunt Gracie and Aunt Mamie are afraid the cow will come out of the pasture and snap at them.

¶ Last year, the International Cup Matches were played between the British Four and America's Four. "The big matches" went to the Americans by scores of 13 to 3 and 8 to 5.

INTERNATIONAL POLO MATCHES — MEADOWBROOK

WHEN America's "Big Four" thundered down the turf to victory

THE stands cheered and applauded. Many a hoarse throat felt the refreshing sparkle of "Canada Dry." Between chukkers, as the spectators moved about to greet their friends, this fine old ginger ale suited the life and gaiety of the event. But the crowning touch of all was when a toast was drunk between the American and British players in the club-house. As hands were clasped and keen eyes met in friendship's gaze, that toast was drunk in "Canada Dry."

The matches this year, from Meadowbrook to Del Monte, will carry on the calm traditions of this oldest of sports, first played in England in 1143. And whether you watch the Argentine Four this year at Meadowbrook, or the matches at some army post far off on the plains, you will note that "Canada Dry"—the champagne of ginger ales—often graces the occasion.

"Canada Dry"—a distinctive beverage—because of its careful methods of making

It is the same the world over. Wherever people gather in the name of sport, friendship or society, there you will find "Canada Dry." This fine old ginger ale is drunk in exclusive clubs in New York . . . London . . . Singapore . . . and back again to San Francisco. It is served on limited trains . . . in great hotels . . . at famous watering places . . . and in countless homes of this country and Canada.

"Canada Dry" becomes such a distinctive beverage because it is made with something of the same care as a rare old wine. Only the finest quality of Jamaica ginger is used. Only the purest ingredients go into "Canada Dry." Exact proportions prevail. Everlasting watchfulness is kept to see to it that the proportions never vary. Hourly tests are made under laboratory methods to assure purity. And the carbonation of "Canada Dry"—so invigorating, so "just right" in its degree—is achieved by a secret method. This correct carbonation helps bring about the proper flavor of "Canada Dry."

No capsicum (red pepper) mars the fine flavor of this fine old ginger ale

"Canada Dry" does not contain capsicum (red pepper). It therefore does not bite the tongue or produce unpleasant after-effects. For this, as well as for other reasons, it is served in leading hospitals and many physicians recommend it.

You can buy "Canada Dry" in the Hostess Package of 12 bottles, a convenient way always to have it on hand. Order from your dealer today.

¶ FOR LABOR DAY — The Hostess Package —what a convenient way to have 12 bottles of "Canada Dry" on hand, whether you are entertaining guests, planning a motor trip or going on a picnic!

¶ This year, the International matches for a new cup will be played between the Great Argentine Four and America's "Big Four." Which will win?

The New EVANS AUTOMATIC

Here is the Lighter of tomorrow, made for the smart people of today. Its smooth, automatic action and superpower bring the flame into being magically, unfailingly—at a press of the thumb.

A fascinating lighter — distinctively EVANS in its mechanical refinements —concealed from the eye but manifest to the judgment of every discerning buyer.

There's a hidden spring, unique in design, that makes misfiring practically impossible; there's a hidden tube that protects the wheel and flint from moisture when filling; there's the wick itself —not of fuzzy cotton but of durable asbestos.

These are a few only of the striking improvements that make the EVANS Automatic the greatest advance in design, construction and performance ever embodied in a lighter.

THAT NIGHT

She Stepped From Among the Wallflowers

She'd made a discovery—found new beauty she never dreamed she had!

By Mme. Jeannette de Cordet

YOU can have the same joyous thrill as the girl whose letter lies before me. All the new-found charm and beauty that now enrich her life are within your reach. "It was wonderful," she writes. "I had always looked just like other girls . . . But what a change when I learned how to bring out my type!"

This Way—to Greater Beauty

I wish I could say to YOU and to every other woman . . . Find your type. For you are a type. Never mind the old blonde and brunette divisions. There are so many more than these. For type, you know, is determined by skin tone and not by color of hair and eyes.

Then be your type. Emphasize it in every possible way. Please, please don't disguise it with the wrong powder and rouge. Sounds difficult? But it isn't. With the help I offer below, you can know in ten minutes exactly what type you are, and the exact shades of powder and rouge we have blended in the Pompeian Laboratories to bring out your greatest beauty. Can you imagine anything more helpful?

You've Longed For Just This Help

Women everywhere are finding admiration . . . happiness . . . love . . . through these two amazing little guides to beauty. In the booklet are enchanting colored drawings of all the varied types. Yours is among them . . . In the Sampler, glittering glass tubes contain the five exquisite shades of Pompeian Powder. One of these shades—the booklet tells you which—holds new beauty magic just for you. Examine it. Feel its smooth richness. Made from the finest ingredients, Pompeian Beauty Powder is textured to give a satin finish and cling for hours. Your shade, with a glowing touch of Pompeian Bloom, will bring out your type—add to your skin a translucent loveliness . . . a new beauty . . . a radiance . . . you never dreamed you had.

For You—This Booklet that Shows Your Type

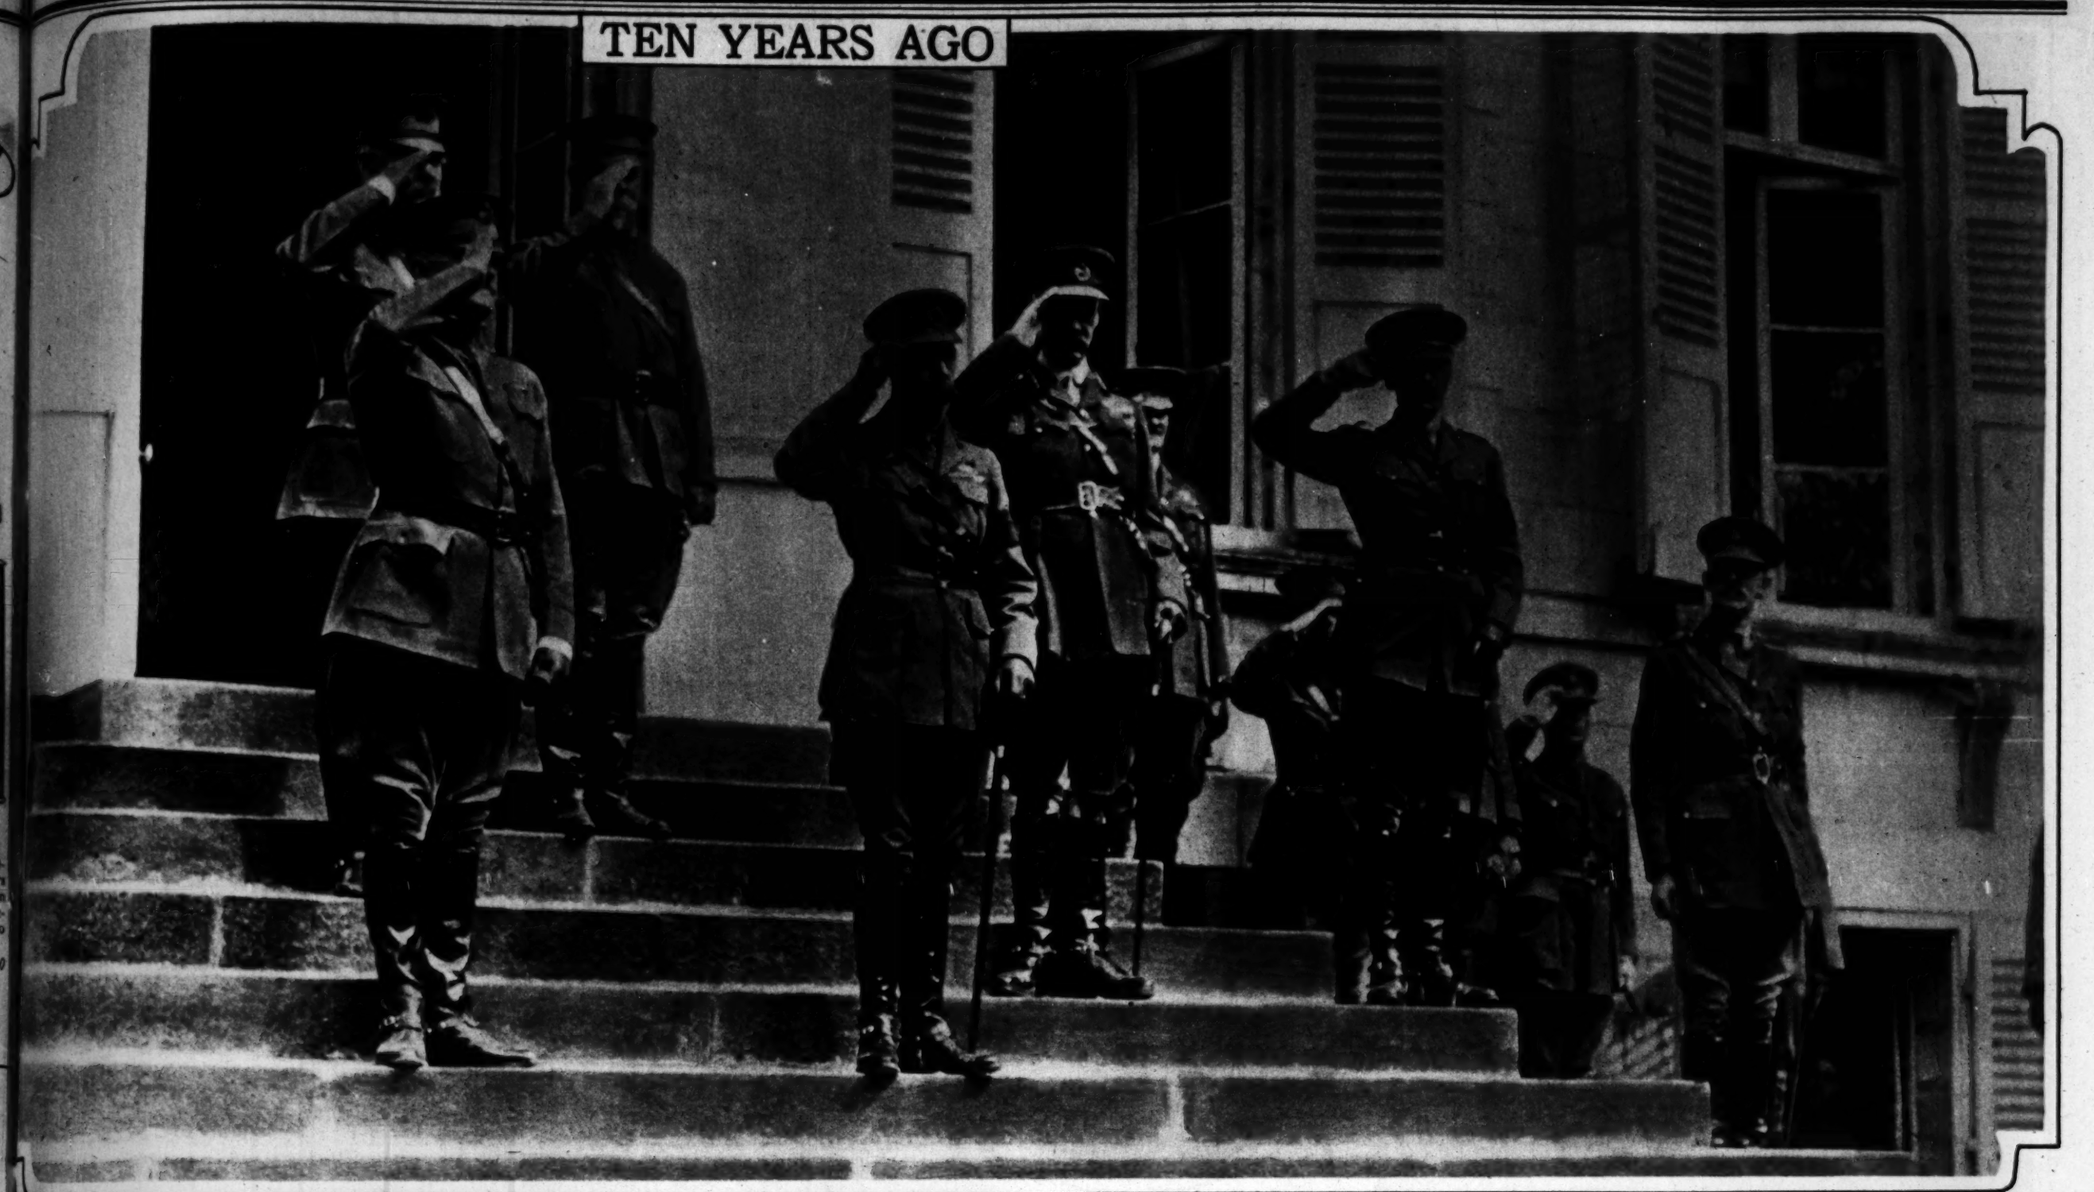
TEN YEARS AGO



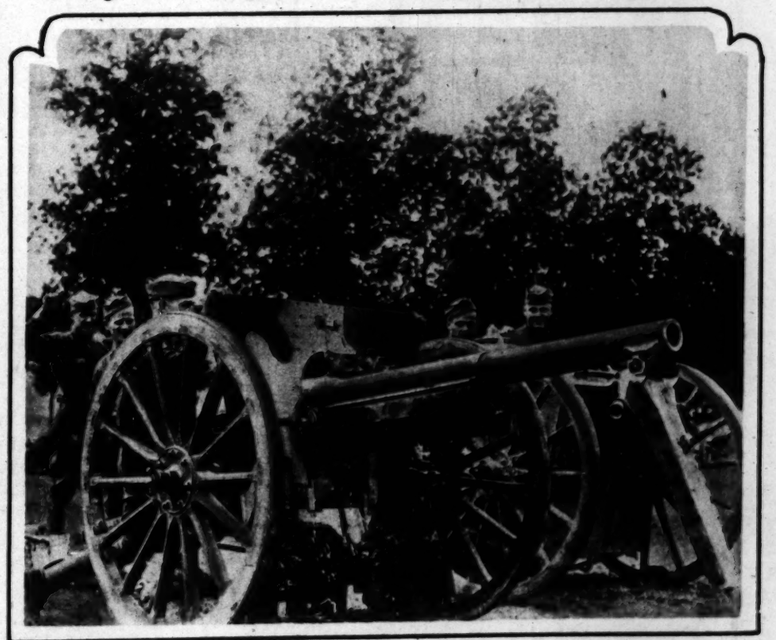
KING GEORGE VISITED THE 33D DIVISION in August, 1918, and distributed honor medals among the Yankee heroes. Here the official party was standing at salute at Molliens-aux-Bois, France, as the national anthems were played. Reading from the left, Gen. John J. Pershing, Maj. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, the late Maj. Gen. George Bell Jr. of Chicago, King George, and Gen. Holman and Maj. Ford Hamilton of the British forces.

IN A SYLVAN RETREAT at Molliens-aux-Bois, military leaders of two great nations gathered for the awarding of the decorations. King George and General Pershing stood at the table used for the ceremony.

HONORED BY THE KING—For his gallantry in the advance from Hamel on July 4, 1918, Lieut. Harry Yagle was decorated by the British monarch in the picturesque proceedings at Molliens-aux-Bois. The lieutenant was one of a number of men from the 33d division—composed of Illinois and Virginia national guardsmen—to receive the medals on that occasion.

THE "SUICIDE SQUAD" in this instance was the first squad of Company C, 150th machine gun battalion. The scene was Verecourt, France; the time, Aug. 27.

MARIE AND HER LITTLE LAMB—The "adopted" American soldier did not always have a mademoiselle for a godmother. Here an old Frenchwoman filled the bill by mending the blouse of a member of the 131st infantry (formerly 1st infantry, Illinois National Guard). The only trouble with the official photograph was that it cut off the face of the befriended youth.



ALL SET FOR A BIG BERTHA—On Aug. 27, 1918, the crew of No. 4 gun, 149th field artillery, was at drill at Bourg St. Maris, France.

This foursome of matrons appeared at a Lake Forest horse show: Mrs. John Borden, Mrs. Laurance Armour, Mrs. Fred Letts Jr., and Mrs. Edward Cudahy Jr. (Tribune photograph.)

OTHERS PRESENT—At the same function with the group pictured above were these three spectators, Mrs. Byron Harvey, Mrs. Chauncey Blair, and Chauncey Blair Jr. (Tribune photograph.)

THE NEWEST MRS. VANDERBILT—From the studios comes this new portrait of the second Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. She is the former Mrs. Mary Weir Logan of Chicago, divorced wife of Waldo Hancock Logan. (Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)

Ask at any counter where Phoenix is sold for a new booklet, "The Mode and the Mannequin," in which eight famous models discuss the matter of correct dress.

"Stunning" declares an enthusiastic audience

When..in the fashion parade at a great couturier's..murmurs of admiration greet a mannequin's appearance, then is tribute paid not only to a lovely costume, but to an ensemble in which all parts artfully combine to produce a delightful effect. ¶ Because sheer flawlessness of weave and exquisite delicacy of hosiery color are so vital to a costume's success, mannequins in New York's leading houses of fashion have adopted Phoenix. Regularly they use it in their exhibition of the mode. ¶ The lustrous beauty of its texture, the softly blending tones and wide variety of shade, enable Phoenix to meet perfectly the mannequin's exacting requirements. These same qualities make it the most desirable choice for you.

Three reasons for serving this delicious whole-milk food

Superb flavor—wonderful texture—the balanced nutritive value and easy digestibility of whole-milk—three reasons why you want Pabst-ett, the new whole-milk food, for any lunch. Pabst-ett is unlike any other dairy product. Lovers of cheese say it's unsurpassed. Those indifferent to cheese are quickly won by the appetizing tang that's distinctive to Pabst-ett.

In texture, it's as smooth as butter—spreads as easily as butter—makes the daintiest of sandwiches. When used for cooking, it never becomes lumpy or stringy. Instead, Pabst-ett melts completely. The fine flavor spreads throughout the dish. Once used for cooking, nothing but Pabst-ett will do, most women tell us.

Pabst-ett has won widespread recognition as a health-food. It is used in many hospitals and is recommended by doctors and dieticians. Children, elderly persons, even invalids may eat Pabst-ett to their hearts' content. It is the only food in which is conserved every health-giving element of whole-milk. It is as digestible as milk. It retains the milk sugar, proteins, valuable calcium, and other minerals lost in cheese making — all the nutrition that goes to make milk our most perfect food.

New Fabrics Distinguish the Autumn Styles

From Paris Come Beautiful Materials, Soft and Colorful, That Create the Latest Frocks and Coats.

By Corinne Lowe.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—From all indications it would seem that the story of fall fashions is going to be manufactured out of the whole cloth. That is to say, it is new fabrics rather than a new line which are destined to make the wardrobe of the coming season look absolutely different from that of a year ago.

And what new fabrics we find in the treasure house of fashion! First of all, there are the velvets. Yes, this is going to be another velvet season, but into this old time material we have installed all the modern conveniences. Verily, it is hard for us brought up in the old velvet traditions to recognize in the modern products any affinity with those stiff, unyielding materials of another day.

The chief of these modern conveniences is transparency. But, you say, we had that last season. True enough, so we had. But last winter velvet was a mere amateur. This season it has become so diaphanous that it has only one rival in consummate transparency. This is the screen door or perhaps the compliment which one beauty pays to another.

But, aside from an insubstantiality never before attained, one which goes, of course, hand in hand with the most marvelous pliancy, there is another important innovation in our hereditary fabric. The newest of transparent velvets do not crush. You can flop around in them all you like and it has no more effect on that placid countenance than have years on that of a stage grandmother.

Next to velvets, broadcloths are assigned a new and tremendous importance. These, too, have acquired a new finish of manner, and among the varieties one must mention that with a zibeline surface.

But it is perhaps in the broad group called woolens where one finds a most complete revolt from tradition. Space prevents any detailed account of the experimentation which has been going on in this field. Nevertheless, one is obliged to mention a few novelties which are bound to have a tremendous influence on our winter fashions.

One of these is the reversible coating. This is worked out in numerous ways, but the most familiar interpretation of this double faced cloth is a tweed exterior with an interior which is either in basket weave woolen or in wool crêpe. Incidentally, one must refer to the immense vogue of all the basket weave effects in winter materials.

Now, such reversible woolens have encouraged a new form of the ensemble, one which we show in the center of today's page. Here is an autumn sports costume achieving its cape of a two faced woolen. The outside is a beige tweed and the inside a self color woolen in close basket weave effect. Very well, then, here is where the innovation takes place. For the skirt, together with a sleeveless jumper, is made of the same light weight and closely woven basket weave woolen that represents the inner life of the cape.

It goes without saying that "woolen" is today a term of courtesy. For wool is mixed with so many foreign materials—rayon, metal, silk, angora, cotton, and what not—that the original strain is sometimes almost obscured. The latest of such admixtures is feathers. Yes, nothing more nor less! It is white feathers which Mayer, one of the greatest of French fabric fanciers, has woven into a new woolen called duvelia. The result is to make some unsophisticated friend cry, "O, look, you've got lint all over your frock!" For, indeed, these fine bits of white sprinkled all over the surface of a dark cloth encourage the supposition.

Jersey, too, has been having its adventures, and among the novelties of the autumn one must speak of a jersey with zebra like lines of multi-color interwoven throughout its surface. Some of these new materials have as many as twenty-one colors introduced.

Second from the left in a model inspired by Chantal we encounter the application of the new many colored jersey. A simple one piece sports frock with flaring skirt, its wavy lines of vivid color are reconciled by a wide belt of beige leather and by white pique collar and cuffs.

The one piece sports frock is quite as firmly ensconced in our autumn sports fashions as is the jumper, and second from the right we give another interesting exploitation of this theme in a brilliant red woolen crêpe frock inspired by Jane Regny. The scallop theory is one reverenced by both designer of fabrics and designer of clothes, but this model from Regny gives a new version of those long wave lengths, for here scalloped bands broken by a narrow belt of gray suede are complemented by a choker collar made of the same band. This collar, buttoning at the side, pays tribute to the asymetric ideal by dropping a single scalloped band at the left side.

In autumn coats we are especially struck by two details. One is the yoke and the other the dropped shoulder line. Indeed, one cannot truthfully limit these features to the province of sports. For in all autumn wraps, even those of the most formal character, the influence of these two details is of striking significance.

At the extreme right of the page we illustrate in a gray tweed coat from Jenny a correct observance of both the yoke and the dropped shoulder line. In this case, too, the celebrated partners are combined with unusual ingenuity. Observe how the yoke which, as you see in the back view, dips into a point is brought down into similar points on the sleeves and you are introduced to the very essence of autumnal chic.

The flare of this sports wrap, which is introduced by popular slanting pockets, is exceedingly interesting. And so, also, is a use of black breitschwantz, which is eloquent of the manner in which the French designer is making the most of tiny bits and especially tiny bands of fur.

To go back to the yoke which forms such a recurrent theme in the domain of autumn coats one is impressed by the almost inexhaustible fertility displayed by the Parisian houses in introducing this feature. One thinks, for example, of a yoke which makes one of Premet's models absolutely individual. This is rounded in the back exactly like a capuchin hood, and the fact that it is in one with the standing collar makes it the more arresting.

Collars of the new coats are worthy of a separate chapter in themselves. Foremost in importance are those which deck the more formal models with a high ruch like effect of fur in the back. This high, upstanding collar of the back is often crossed in front in surplice fashion, and in the back it is occasionally emphasized by being attached to the garment in a deep point. Whatever its form, this collar marks the autumn coat as being of the latest vintage. Incidentally, one encounters it often on the new fur coats themselves.

Speaking of fur coats, one points directly to the model from Heim at the extreme left of our page. Here you will find one of those shaved lamb sports coats which are bound to be so much in the autumn fashion picture. But the familiar pelt an absolute novelty of appearance is furnished by—yes, enter again the collar motif. For it is due almost entirely to that collar of self fur which is crossed in suspender fashion to button to a belt of matching leather that one exclaims, "Well, here at last is something really new!"

Calf is another material of which the designer of sports coats is availing himself widely, and it is from the creator of this same unusual shaved lamb model that we get fresh inspiration anent the calf bound book of fashion. In this latter model Heim uses two tones of the calf—beige for the upper and brown for the lower—to achieve a coat with jacket like top and flared skirt.

[Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.]

"A perfect lamb"—thus one might refer to the shaved lamb sports coat designed by Heim in beige tint and shown at the extreme left. The crossed collar buttoning to a matching suede belt is a feature of unusual interest.

Next, one of the new jerseys rivaling Joseph's coat of old is exploited in an autumn sports frock inspired by Chantal. Twenty colors are represented in those zebra stripes and are reconciled by white collars and cuffs supplemented by a beige suede belt.

In the center the reversible suitings of the autumn are utilized in a sports ensemble, making skirt and sleeveless jumper of the same, basket weave woolen lining the tweed cape. The jumper is orange silk.

Next, Jane Regny designs a stunning red wool crepe sports frock with effective wave lengths.

Last, Jenny's sport coat in gray tweed indicates the new dropped shoulder line and yoke. This is trimmed with breitschwantz.

MAIDEN MEDITATIONS by Sara Moore

LET 'EM REACH!

"A bear, no matter how he tries, grows tubby without exercise."
A. A. MILNE.

A male, though naturally wise,
Can never know until he tries
To test his wit by real endeavor
How wise he is, how very clever.
So I'm against the modern school
Of flirts, who think man is a fool
Who has to be pursued, trapped, caught,
And made to woo—when well he ought.
I don't approve brash wiles, at all,
That ease the way for man to fall.
For skill improves with exercise
Man ought to use enterprise.

MARY, STILL MORE CONTRARY.

I'll love you, dear, tomorrow
And miss you with regret,
And cry
And sigh
And wish that I Might blissfully forget.
But how my heart is laggard
While time is yet today!
With zest,
You pest,
I love you best,
When you are far away.

OLD TIMER KNOWS.

Old Timer confides, in a low, lonesome moan,
"Man never did thrive on ambition alone."
And young recreations, wine, women, and song,
Once lightened his heart when his labors were long.
Now—who can SING jazz—with its note wild and sour?
Grow gay on the grape that is fresh made the hour?
Of lasses who dress more like a him than a her,
He whispers, "E'en women are not what they were."

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

Softly Rounded Cape and Capelet and Flowing Stream Lines Replace the Discarded Straight Line.

By Bettina Bedwell.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—While Paris is sweltering in the hottest summer since away back in that mythical time known as "before the war," she is also preparing fashions for fall and winter.

Fortunately, acceleration of our already overheated temperatures is avoided by the secrecy of these preparations that are going on behind locked doors, so that we need not be overcome by the sight of woolens, furs, and velvets that are being manipulated to change the map of the mode.

However, this approaching alteration of style geography is already indicated in what is being worn at the moment by ultrasmart Parisiennes and by the advance autumn clothes that Paris created in the so-called demi-saison for wholesale consumption only. I have had enough glimpses to know that the Paris style makers are going to give us a much prettier mode than was mapped out for us last fall. All of the rigidity that characterized the "stern and rock-bound coast" of the straight line has been finally, and for some time to come, eliminated. Such graceful geographical items as the softly rounded cape and capelet and flowing stream lines replace it.

Fashion is bounded on all sides by grace and it behooves us to keep within these lines if we want to be à la mode from now on through the fall and winter. No angles. The curved and flowing line is the only line of style. The State of Fashion will have a long and slender silhouette, with no extravagant billowing nor any cramping narrowness. And the map of modes will show a great number of new capelets.

There is a reason for this. Since the idea of chic is that of gracefulness within slender outlines, there are necessarily a great many details which are added to coat and frock to take any suggestion of stiffness out of this somewhat restricted silhouette. Capelets serve this purpose in softening the shoulder lines more satisfactorily than any other sartorial device so far invented.

And for this same reason of increased grace, scarfs, ties and handkerchiefs, cleverly applied to dress, jacket, or coat, will continue to have an overwhelming importance in fashion.

A smart version of the capelet is shown in this Paquin coat of basket weave woolen in soft, smoky gray.

This Martial & Armand frock of black crepe satin illustrates the shoulder and hip yoke treatment favored by the new mode.

Drecoll makes this frock of navy blue lace, with a small rounded cape covering the square decolletage at back.

Vionnet selects beige duvetyn for this coat, which has a caped shoulder line.

In selecting your fall clothes see to it that your shoulders bear their proper proportion of chic by being rounded and gracious in outline. No matter how nature has treated you in this respect, fashion is ready with a sure remedy in the treatment of the shoulder line. The brief capelet placed around the shoulders is becoming to most women, but where the shoulders are too bulky to support the cape or capelet, then the rounded shoulder line is achieved by some version of the raglan sleeve or by the dropped shoulder seam.

A form of the capelet that is both novel and smart, and that is becoming to every woman, is shown in the first figure of our sketch. This coat comes from Paquin, who is the creator of more world-wide fashions than any Paris couturier. The lines of the coat, which is made of thin basket weave woolen in soft smoky gray, are slender and the sleeves are loose.

The capelet is no more than a wide bias band of self-material, this band being stitched flat to the front of the sleeve and brought around and down to a point in the back. The upper edge is stitched to the coat under a narrow band. The collar of this Paquin coat is also of importance as a style detail. It begins in the front in narrow revers, but instead of lying flat in the usual way it is stiffened so that it stands up and flares a bit around the neck. A highly becoming collar and lacking the severity of the ordinary tailored collar. A narrow band of self-material begins at the shoulders in back and extends down to the hips, then horizontally forward to the side front and up to the shoulders again.

Another version of the caped shoulder line which is so extremely smart is shown in the sketch at the opposite side of our illustration. This Vionnet coat is made of beige duvetyn, and Vionnet has given to both the coat body and the sleeves a loose and flowing line. Over the shoulders she has placed a small capelet of self-material, bordered with a bias band, this capelet being stitched flat to the body of the coat and loose over the sleeves. The long rever collar has an overcollar of sable that is high at the back of the neck—a collar line which will have an important place in fall fashions. The flaring sleeves are also banded with sable.

These shoulder treatments of which I have been speaking are in harmony with the increasing feminity of fashions, and the squared shoulder line with its masculine air is definitely out.

A somewhat different treatment is given to the shoulder lines of new frocks seen in Paris. The handkerchief is frequently used to soften these lines, and in many cases it is made part of the dress, as is shown in our second sketch. This frock is from Martial et Armand, and is made of black crêpe satin, a material which will be increasingly important as soon as autumn clothes are worn. The simple blouse is given the newest lines by the large handkerchief of self material which is attached around the shoulders and tied in a large bow on the right shoulder. The skirt of this dress is straight at the right side and circular at the left. The wide sash is draped snugly around the hips and tied in a large soft bow on the left hip. It is characteristic of the latest Paris fashions that the shoulder and hip lines are given this type of treatment.

Our third figure illustrates the capelet vogue applied to the evening dress, and it also shows the newest of evening décolletage, which is simply no décolletage at all in the back. Drécoll makes this frock of navy blue lace, color and material being extremely smart for evening. The upper part of the frock is fitted in a modified princess line, and the skirt is both circular and shirred, so that it is unusually wide around the bottom. There is a slight—very slight—droop of the scalloped hemline toward the back. The girdle and its large bow are made of navy blue chiffon. The small lace cape of navy blue falls to the waist line in back and it tapers to two pointed ends in front, these ends being attached to the shoulder straps of the square décolletage.

MY GREATEST THRILL

Write and tell us about the greatest thrill you ever experienced and if we print your letter we'll pay you $1. Make your letters short and snappy. Address them to "Greatest Thrill" Editor, The Chicago Tribune.

An Understanding Teacher.

As a small child I was rather plain looking and it was my misfortune to have for my closest friend and constant playmate a beautiful and talented child. With the thoughtless disregard which elders often exhibit toward the feelings and intelligence of children, I frequently heard myself compared, always to my disfavor, to this exceptional little girl.

One day, however, the tables were turned. A teacher for whom I had a great admiration, was speaking of both of us and gave me the benefit of the comparison in every way, including looks. No thrill of later years ever contributed so much to my happiness, I believe, as the thoughtful remarks made by that understanding teacher. H. M. W.

His First Big Fish.

It is thirty years ago since that thrilling moment and not one detail of it is forgotten. I was fishing. I had spent most of a morning extricating my line from the most puzzling tangles. I had given no thought to a big quarry, but when I saw a large fish jump not ten yards from where I sat, it suggested possibilities beyond my wildest dreams.

With my trembling fingers I launched my line into the broken water. As my bait drew near the spot where I had seen the fish, I think I knew that something wonderful was about to happen. It happened like a flash. I shall never forget that tremendous tug. My line was borne downward and in my ignorance I burned my fingers in trying to check the rush. To add to my terror, the fish leaped, shaking his powerful jaws. But the hook held.

Now I was able to wind in some slack and after many minutes of work and breathless suspence I was able to reel in my first large fish. Then I was sitting on the river bank holding a pickerel that weighed nine and one-half pounds, and that contained all the happiness any boy ever experienced. J. T. S.

An Awful Scare.

One hot summer day when I was about 10 years old, I stood barefooted in our strawberry patch, eating a handful of the luscious fruit [that I had poached] I felt a movement on my feet and on looking down I saw a large snake crawling over my bare feet.

I stood there, rooted to the spot with fear, and watched that snake pull its entire length across my feet and slide away into the tall grass. I cannot imagine myself surviving a thrill more terrifying than that. E. M. S.

Witnessing a Suicide.

I experienced my greatest thrill on a fast express train on our way to California. Several of us were on the observation platform.

We were soon to cross a cañon. While awaiting that great thrill we were shocked by a greater thrill when a fine looking young man suddenly jumped up from his chair and leaping upon the railing deliberately threw himself off.

I am still thrilled at the memory of it. C. B. T.

Target Practice.

In our school woodshop I was shooting at a target with a steel pointed dart. At the bench back of the target my friend Albert was bent over a piece of wood he was planing. Just as Albert stooped to test his job my toy weapon completely missed the target. For an unmeasurably brief instant I stood transfixed with fear as I watched the steel pointed dart fly straight for my friend's face. It seemed to have pierced his eye.

He recoiled in fright, dropping his tools as he did so. As he straightened up I noticed that the stock and feather of the weapon which projected were still quivering. But the dart had not entered Albert's eye. Its point had buried itself in the bridge of my friend's nose, and it hung there until we pulled it out.

I discontinued my target practice right there. S. S.

Careless Pedestrian.

I was driving along the highway and turned out to pass a car, first sounding my horn. To the left a man was walking along the road the same way I was going, but he was on the dirt. As I turned out to pass the other car he deliberately stepped over on the cement directly in front of my car.

I jerked the steering wheel, swerving the front wheels away from him enough to avoid hitting him, but he was still on direct line with the back wheels. Gosh! Some rapid fire thinking, then I reached out and actually pushed him out of the way, and out of danger.

That thrill stayed with me all day. It all happened quicker than I can tell it, but had I been driving over twenty-five miles an hour I couldn't have done it. F. E. W.

For Freckled, Tanned Sun-Spoiled Skin

To reveal the exquisite loveliness hidden beneath a freckled or tanned complexion, use Pure Mercolized Wax. Applied nightly to the face like a cold cream, the wax gradually peels off all particles of scorched and half-dead cuticle. The under skin, then revealed, is clear, smooth, white and youthful. Procure an ounce at any drug store and keep your skin young. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and restore facial contour, use as an astringent 1 ounce powdered Saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THIS smart coat dress, pattern No. 3132, has a novel effect carried out by its diagonal closing, with the pressed in plaits giving a one-sided treatment, that is so well liked now. The back is cut in one piece, is unadorned and the lines are perfectly straight, and the front is cut in two pieces.

Care will have to be taken if there is any right and left or up and down to the material used to see that you are cutting right and left sides instead of two for the same side. Never cut until each piece has been carefully looked over, and you are certain no mistakes have been made. The right front extends well over to the left side at a low waist line and is cut in a chic manner to allow for a two button closing. This preserves the desired close fit about the hips, too. The plaited inset is set on under this extension. A psettily shaped collar that extends to the end of the opening finishes the dress at the neck, and a vestee with rather a deep point fills in the opening. The long, close fitting sleeves are finished with small, turned back cuffs, and these, with the collar and vestee will look well made of something contrasting.

The dull and lustrous surfaces of crêpe satin, gray flat silk crêpe with a deeper tone for the contrast, printed and plain silk crêpe, beige angora jersey, sheer tweed, washable flat silk crêpe and faille silk crêpe are suitable and chic materials.

Directions that come with the pattern tell exactly how to lay the plaits on the inset, and how to place it in position on the right front. Cut two pieces each for the collar and cuffs and stitch them together on the outer edges, turning and pressing carefully before basting them to the dress. It will look well to work buttonholes and really button the dress together, but if you prefer, the buttons may be sewed on the right front and the actual fastening done with small snaps. If these are used be sure to set them well back from the right edge of the dress so that the fastening will be invisible. Put them on three-quarters of an inch apart.

Pattern No. 3180 is for a dress that will make young girls feel important and well dressed by wearing one of the new grown-up styles. It is a simple design, but ever so smart. The dress is a one piece style with circular flounces attached to the front to give the desired front flare movement. It is cut in from the armholes at either side of the front, the lower slashed edges are gathered and joined to the upper edges, forming a yoke and giving extra fullness to the front of the waist.

The sleeves may be made long or short, but the full length ones are smarter.

The back of the dress is straight and cut in one piece, and perforations show where the hem is to be laid. However, the pattern will have to be held up to the figure to see if the length is right, or else measure the length by some dress. The dress is slashed down from the neck in the center front and the edges are bound. A prettily shaped collar finishes the neck.

Wool crêpe, printed crêpe de chine, printed linen, printed sateen, plain and checked gingham, cotton broadcloth, voile and pique are among the interesting materials that may be chosen for this dress.

Pattern No. 2531 is for a pretty apron. It is cut in one piece, and the bottom of the waist in the back extends out a little at each side and finishes in a rounding edge. A buttonhole is worked on each edge, and these ends button on each side of the front. The apron is slashed each side of the front at the waistline, and this fullness is disposed of in the same manner as is done on the one piece dresses.

A large patch pocket on the right side of the skirt adds to its convenience. Rick-rack braid will make an attractive and strong finish for all edges, and there is quite a range of materials from which to choose for the apron. Percale, broadcloth, gingham, and sateen are among the best. Baste the rick-rack on the under side of the apron, after first turning in and basting all the apron edges, basting it on so that half the width of the braid shows from the right side. Then stitch it on close to the apron edge, and put a second row in, stitching this time close to the turned in apron edge. This will hold the braid well in place.

3132—Woman's and miss' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 40 inch material with ⅞ yard of 20 inch contrasting.

2531—Woman's and miss' apron. Small, medium and large sizes. The medium size requires 2 yards of 36 inch material with 7 yards of binding.

3180—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 40 inch material with ¼ yard of 27 inch contrasting and 1⅛ yards of binding.

Sad News: Sally's Parties About to End for Season

By Sally Joy Brown.

GOOD MORNING, girls a nd boys!

Since the coming week is the last we'll have until school begins, our party to see the Cubs play the St. Louis Cardinals next Wednesday will have to be our final one.

You couldn't ask a better party for the boys, though, than the one we'll have to top off the season. With the race for the pennant as close as it is, and the Cubs and the Cards standing where they do, we can be certain of seeing a royal fight, a battle from start to finish.

It may even be one of the turning points of the entire season, and we'll be there in the thick of it. So the boys whose names are listed below will have a splendid time to remember throughout the school year.

As a last word, I think all of us owe a vote of thanks to the many persons who have made our summer possible. All together we've had nine parties—at White City, the State Lake theater, Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey's circus, Ravinia, the Rodeo, the Uptown, and Roosevelt theaters of Balaban & Katz, and the Central States fair at Aurora. This week we shall be guests of the Cubs. And there's the North Shore line, that gave us cars for our party at Ravinia. I am sure every one who shared in our summer's fun will join me in feeling grateful to the officials and men of these companies for all they did to make every minute of our parties enjoyable.

So now I'll say goodby and the best of luck to all my little friends for the coming year.

Below is the list of winners for the baseball game at Wrigley field on Wednesday, Aug. 29. Invitations and a letter telling our plans for meeting will be mailed to you on Monday.

BOYS.

A FRIEND IN NEED
by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friends in deed and the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Summer Dresses Needed.

"Do you think through your corner you could get a few summer dresses for my daughter, 14 years of age? She hasn't a thing to wear back to school and she hasn't had a new dress in two years. There are five other children and my son, 16, and I are the only ones working. We both earn so little it is impossible to buy clothing. MRS. L."

Have you a dress or two for this girl who hasn't had a new one in two years? She'd be delighted to have some of the things your young daughter is outgrowing.

A Battery for the Blind.

"I am a blind inmate of this hospital, with no money of my own and few friends. My radio is the only diversion I have and I am unable to use it now because I cannot afford to buy the batteries it needs. Has any one a 6 volt automobile battery which I could use as an A battery, and a 45 volt dry cell B battery I may have? W. K."

Deprived of his only enjoyment, life must be very dull for this poor fellow who writes to us from a state hospital outside Chicago. Won't you send him one of these batteries, which will put his radio in working condition again?

Who Wants It?

"Have you in your big family a small boy or girl who would find a scrapbook enjoyable? And is there a girl of 7 or 8 who would like a doll? I have both, which I should like to give away. J. R."

What a joy this letter will be to our young readers! Write me immediately and let me know which of these lovely gifts you'd like to have. Please do not telephone.

Asks for Linens.

"Will you please try to get me some white cloths? I am an invalid, badly in need of a great many of them, and we can't buy new material. Perhaps some one will give me their old linens. M. W."

Here's a request which most housewives should be able to fill. The linens which have become too worn for further use and which you are about to discard would be most helpful to this invalid. Won't you send them to her?

Wants Play Pen.

"I am 9½ years old and have three sisters and two brothers younger than myself. I've been reading in THE TRIBUNE of the good you do and I have been wondering if you could get a play pen for our baby, who is a year old. I have a hard time taking care of him. T. F."

Well, we'll certainly have to do something about this, so that all of our young correspondent's time will not have to be taken up with his charge. I am sure the play pen your baby no longer needs would solve his difficulties.

History Offered.

"I have Macaulay's History of England in five volumes which I'd like to give to one of your readers who would call for them. They are in good condition. MRS. E. G."

Here's an interesting set of books to add to the library of the history lover. If you'd like to own it, I shall be glad to have you write me for it; please do not telephone.

Needs Ear Trumpet.

"I am writing to you to see if some one of your many readers has an ear trumpet no longer in use. I am a widow and unable to buy one. I am very deaf and a trumpet would help me a great deal. MRS. A. L."

Can you supply the trumpet which is going to be so helpful to this widow? I know she'll be most grateful to receive the one you are not using.

Croquet Set Offered.

"I have a croquet set to give away if some children's home or one of your readers would care for it. "M. S."

There's a lot of fun to be had with this amusing and simple game and it should keep a large family of little ones busy for many hours at a time. Write me if you are interested in getting this; please do not telephone.

Cycle for Ex-Soldier.

"Do you think you could put a letter in your column which might result in securing the use of a motorcycle and side car, if possible, for an ex-soldier and veteran of the world war? He has been ill and depressed since coming home and feels that if he had the use of such an article he could get out in the air and possibly earn a bare living at least. "MRS. G. W."

This is an unusual request, but I am hoping that one of you can fill it. Perhaps there's an old motorcycle in your garage which a little labor might put in fairly good condition again. It would help to lift this ex-soldier's spirits a bit.

Seeks Reclining Chair.

"Could you help me to find a folding canvas reclining chair or the frame for one? I am a semi-invalid and the mother of three children. The doctor has advised me to spend more time resting and out of doors. If I had such a chair it would help me immensely. MRS. J. B."

If you have a chair of the type Mrs. J. B. needs, I am sure you'll not mind passing it on to her. It would be a most comfortable and, in her case, healthful piece of furniture to have.

A Treasure for a Small Boy.

"I have a boy's coaster wagon and few other such things for a small child which I shall be glad to give to any one who will call for them. "MRS. F. F."

Here's a treasure for some small boy who'd like to ride right through the summer on a fine, new coaster wagon. I am sure Mrs. F. F.'s "few other such things" include more toys equally desirable and we'll be glad to have you write us if you want a share of them.

My Most Embarrassing Moment

A Showdown.

I had told my beau that I was private secretary to the big boss of the firm I work for. I held but a minor position, however.

At the picnic I introduced my beau to the boss, and after shaking hands with him he turned to me and said, "Now what is your name again?" L. P.

Looked Like Larceny.

As I was just about to enter the "L" station the other morning, I thought I heard a train coming, so I hurriedly opened my purse, gave the woman what I thought was a dime, and ran up the stairs as fast as my legs could go. Imagine my embarrassment when, on reaching the top a man came up to me and said, "Thought you'd get away, eh? Come across with a dime."

I looked at him in astonishment, and there he held a penny in the palm of his hand. Everyone stared at me, and it seemed like eternity before a train came. T. B.

Pride Goeth Before a Fall!

When getting gas the other day, the service station man noticed the poor condition of my tires and tried to sell me new ones.

After a heated argument, during him there was considerable slipping in the old tires, I left. I had gone about ten feet when bang went a tire. M. A.

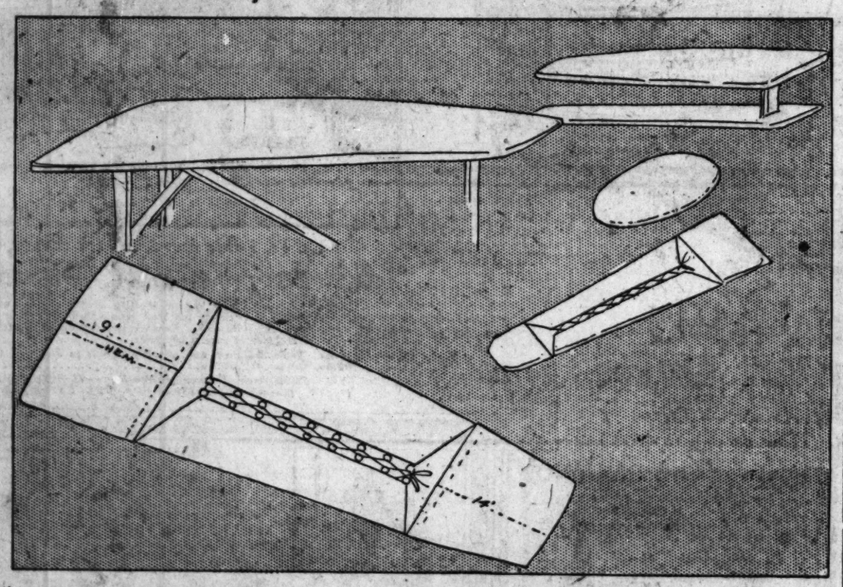
Practical and Fancy Needlework — By Clotilde

It's a Joy to Work on an Ironing Board That Has a Cover Made Especially to Fit It.

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework, write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.



WOMEN who do much sewing should have ironing boards and sleeve boards well covered—not with any old piece of cloth that is bunched under at the corners and fastened with innumerable tacks, but with fitted covers made of heavy unbleached muslin. It wouldn't take long to make two of these covers for the large board and two for the sleeve board. The muslin must be thoroughly shrunk and smoothly ironed before cutting out.

Lay a length of the muslin on the board and cut out, being careful to allow for the thickness of the board and a good seam besides. The wide end of the board should have this muslin cut to fit to a depth of nine or ten inches, and at the narrow end cut it to fit to a depth of about fourteen inches. In between these places let the cloth be wide enough to reach well to the under side.

Cut a piece to correspond with the broad fitted end, and stitch it to the cover around the outer edge, first hemming it across the bottom. At the narrow end of the board, instead of cutting one piece, cut two, making each one about one inch wider than half the space. Besides, you must allow for a narrow hem where the pieces lap, and of course hem the pieces across the bottom.

Then pin them in place, lapping them where they meet and stitch around the edge as you did at the opposite end. Turn right side out. The wide length through the center should be finished with a hem down each side and to these hems sew small rings that can be bought at any notion counter.

Slip the cover over the board, holding the lapped pieces at the narrow end together with one or two thumb tacks, and lace the long ends together. Make similar covers for the sleeve board. Of course, these directions are given, assuming that you use the boards that are on stands. It only takes a few minutes to put on or remove one of these covers, and by making two you can always have a fresh one ready to use.

Another useful thing is to have a pad to press the tops of sleeves on. This can easily be made of the unbleached muslin, cutting two rather oval shaped pieces and stitching them together except for the space that you must leave open to fill the pad with cotton wadding. Then overhand the open space. Cut the oval pieces about nine by thirteen inches, or larger if you wish.

LEAP YEAR PROPOSALS

Do you know of any girl who invited a man to leap into matrimony with her? Was her proposal met with eager acceptance or graceful refusal? If you'll send us a brief account of the affair we'll pay $1 if we print it. Address Leap Year Proposals, Chicago Tribune.

A Determined Woman.

Widow Blaine, having been left a large home and a generous life insurance and being a wonderful cook and housekeeper, opened her home for the board and lodging of railroad men.

She was wise enough to shun the proposals of lazy men in quest of a home and good meals, but when an educated, refined young bachelor came to reside in her home she made up her mind to have him and no one else, much to the amusement of the other lodgers, who joked about the noticeable attentions she bestowed on this innocent fellow. No one believed he would fall for her wiles, although she could overweigh her plain countenance with staunch friendliness and a big heart.

The man in question seemed in need of a manager, especially in money matters. One day, while chiding him for the loss of a large sum, she said with determination, "Mr. Dean, I feel like handling your money for you." Without hesitation he made answer, "All right, I'm willing. You may handle it for life."

She replied in a cut and dried manner, "I certainly will," and they were married that day. I have yet to see a more congenial couple. W. F. D.

He Knew the Answer.

There was a joyful party going on in my friend's home. Later, my girl friend suggested some riddles. She was the first to ask, "When will there be but twenty-five letters in the alphabet?"

He hesitated a while and said, "When you and I are one."

"Right," said she.

They were married last month. L. N.

Willing to Find Out.

He was my best fellow and I had been going with him for over two years, but he still was bashful in my presence after all that time of acquaintanceship.

One evening we were discussing the case of a young couple whose marriage had been a failure.

"I wonder if modern married life is as bad as it's stocked up to be," my boy friend began.

"Let's find out, John," I suggested quickly. Needless to say we did, and certainly do not regret the step. C. N.

A Hanky Plays Cupid.

Trying desperately to find something different for the boy friend for his birthday, I decided on a hand made batik handkerchief with odd designs and curleycues all over it. I selected a gay one and sent it to him. In acknowledging it, he said, "And I love you, too."

When I asked, "Where do you get that 'too' stuff?" he unfolded the handkerchief and for the first time I realized that the curleycues in the center of the handkerchief were not merely a design but words and they were "I love you."

Anyway I'm not sorry that I hurried him up a little in his declaration. T. E.

An Important Guest.

As the engaged couple were leaving the announcement party in their honor they laughingly called after them, "Don't forget—you're all invited to the wedding!"

Bob whispered to Anne, "Will you invite me to your wedding?" "Yes," she replied, "As groom!"

They were married the following week. B. L. D.

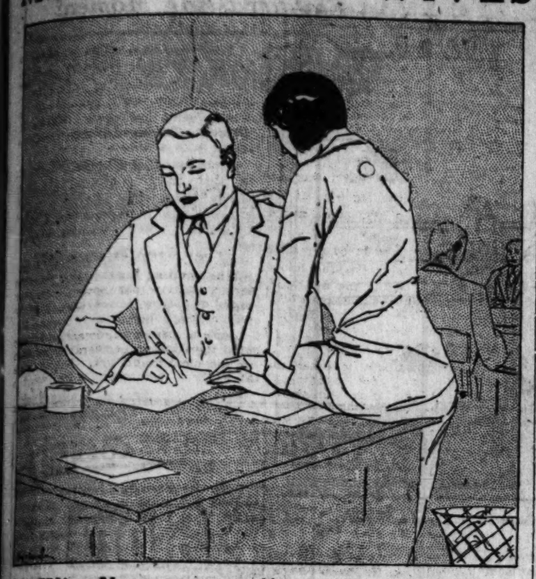
MORE TIPS TO WIVES



It's Wise Not to Meddle in Your Husband's Business Affairs; Let Him Run Them Himself.

By Persis Standish.

ONE of the chapters in the book of etiquette for wives should be a warning to them of the many pitfalls they will meet if they enter the business world whose circles impinge with that of their husbands. Even a most casual contact with business associates of one's husband needs careful handling.

Now, the reason for this is a beautiful and tender one. It is because a wife looks at her husband through eyes biased by love and the rest of the world sees him pretty much as he is. It is the easiest thing in the world for a loving wife to make her husband ridiculous simply by showing her affection for him at the wrong time and in the wrong company.

To a wife her husband is a great, big, strong man with a mind as good as any captain of industry, and the reason he is not just as successful as John D. Rockefeller is simply that Mr. Rockefeller has had the breaks and hubby's are still to come. Added to this quality of being a potential genius in his wife's estimation, the husband is also a dear little boy with all sorts of delightful little boy ways that must be humored as well as laughed at. Having this view of the situation, a wife finds it hard to understand why so many men, less brainy and less attractive and less hardworking than hubby, are preferred by his boss for responsible positions.

Wife Hurts Husband's Chances.

Sometimes she voices these sentiments, much to the chagrin of her husband and perhaps to the annoyance of his superiors, and even to his disadvantage financially.

I recently witnessed a case in point. A certain young man working for an up and coming firm, introduced his rather young wife to several of his business associates and a small group of men all about the same age and all of about the same importance in the office and they became, with their wives, a jolly little coterie meeting every Saturday night to dance or go to a play or have a game of bridge. Of course the men talked business now and then, as men will and the young wife took everything in, hanging on the words of her oracle.

Presently one of the older men in the firm moved to New York and it was apparent that one of the members of the coterie would be chosen to fill his rather important position, at least temporarily. Now, it happened that the young wife said in the hearing of a number of persons that of course her husband would be chosen as he had been with the firm longer than any of the rest of the coterie, and she implied that there were other reasons, which she no doubt believed. This was her first misstep, for naturally she antagonized every member of the coterie, wives as well as husbands—particularly wives.

He Began to Hope.

Then, unfortunately, something of her hope got over to her husband and though ordinarily he was a sensible man, he began to take it for granted that he would be appointed. The junior member of the group was appointed. Many of the other members felt, in fact, except two, acknowledged that he had shown unusual industry as well as ability and that in all of them deserved the post.

The young wife was bitterly disappointed. She was shocked, she was angry, and she finally influenced her husband so much that he, at her insistence, left his post and took a position with another firm at a smaller salary. You will say that he was a fool to allow a woman to influence him. Perhaps, but he is also very human and after his wife had infected him with her confidence and her hurt pride he no longer found any joy in his job or in its associations. She had made him ridiculous with his friends and he could not bear to be among them any more.

A wife's attitude in such a case should be one of extreme caution in speaking her mind. No wife ever really knows her husband's worth or limitations in a business office. She is an incompetent judge.

Tells Everyone Her Troubles.

Another wife I know has a most industrious and conscientious husband who is very successful in his position of department manager for a great industry. He loves his work and it only for him but for all the other members of the big organization. But his wife only sees her husband; she does not look at the case of the others.

She makes him ridiculous by declaring all over town that he is the hardest worked man in the place; that he is underpaid for the amount of service and self he gives. Her husband would be furious if her silly talk ever came to his ears, but fortunately he lives among kindly folk who do not tell him. Obviously he would hate his wife's allegations, because if he were working too hard and underpaid (which he is not) it would be he and not the organization who was at fault. Nobody is bound to stay in any position in this country.

Still another wife of my acquaintance works in the same organization with her husband, but in a different department. But she does not hesitate to go gamboling into his department and call him pet names before his underlings, or, worse still, does not hesitate to accept his assistance in her own work. Of course, she would be fired if she were caught, and so would he. But aside from that, what sort of name does she give those of her sex who have entered the business world as conscientiously and as efficiently as any man?

The husband is at fault here, too, you will say. Of course, he is, but that is beside the point. What I am endeavoring to do is to enlighten some women who may be only thoughtless, or at worst silly about the incalculable harm they can do their husbands if they do not maintain the strictest of "business etiquette."

Here Are a Few Rules.

Here are a few rules never to be transgressed:

If you work in the same office as your husband, treat him during business hours just as you do your other male associates.

If you know any of your husband's business associates, let them talk while you listen. Make no comments, even though your husband confides every detail of office gossip.

If you are associated with wives of your husband's business associates, make it a rule never to talk business with them.

Never tell what a superior financier your husband is.

Allow his business acumen to speak for itself.

If he tells you what the boss said about his good points, keep it to yourself.

Make up your mind that you have married a man who can take care of himself and not a little boy who needs to be mothered.

Let him see that this is your attitude and he will find it more helpful than any other one thing you could do for him.

Why Procrastinate with Deafness?

THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY to find hearing, and the health and happiness that go with it. And that's to look for it. Each day that you put off the search is only another lost day of nervous irritation and social embarrassment.

So why not look for hearing today? And why not start the quest in the private consultation rooms of the

New Acousticon

We honestly believe that you will find it there, as so many others have, through the medium of the new and finer Acousticon—a scientific hearing aid with a tiny receiver, or earpiece, no larger than a silver dime.

TEN-DAY FREE TRIAL

Take the instrument home with you if you wish. Test it for ten days. Be sure that it's the sort of hearing aid you've always hoped to find. Learn how clearly, how distinctly it transmits sounds to subnormal ears. Probably you'll keep it, but if you don't you may return it without charge or obligation.

If you find a call impossible, merely send your name and address to Dept. 73 for a free home test.

FACING LIFE SQUARELY

By Doris Blake

If You'd Keep Your Mental Health Unimpaired, It's Wise to Look at the Necessary Facts Squarley, Without Attempt at Evasion.

ARE you the sort of person, who, confronted with an unpleasant responsibility or a disagreeable task, chooses to deny its existence or tries to escape it by postponement?

Are you one who gets into the habit constantly of dodging the uncomfortable but necessary facts of life?

Yes! Then, do you know what is waiting for you just around the corner? If you will take the word of a noted mental hygienist, Dr. George K. Pratt, around that corner lies some form of mental ill health.

"More than one person known as nervous and irritable has been made so because he has refused to face and digest the facts of certain unpleasant situations that confronted him. In such instances the so-called nervousness should be regarded as the outward evidence of an inward conflict between a duty on the one hand and a desire of a hope on the other. This struggle may be lightened by the necessity for actively doing something about an uncomfortable obligation or a responsibility in the face of a strong desire to run away from it and to do just the opposite."

No Evading Life.

There are people in the world who appear to escape the responsibilities and duties that are the common lot. In a discouraged mood perhaps you wish you had their secret of avoiding responsibilities. But mental hygienists agree that if you wish to get the best out of life you have to face life, face it squarely and play the game through honestly and without make-believe.

You must face the facts of life as they are—not as you'd like to have them.

If this principle were applied to married life think of the confusion that would be spared—men and women accepting each other as they are—not as they dream they might be, husbands and wives accepting each other's faults as philosophically as they accept their virtues.

It would be a nice old world if that state of mind were more generally achieved.

Outside of marriage we manage to come closer to this healthy mental state in appraising our close companions. Outside of marriage, of course, we think more with our intellect and less with our emotions, which makes the difference.

Use Reason, Not Emotion.

"Emotional thinking," says Dr. Pratt, "leads to mental ill health if indulged in excessively because it gradually gives a false picture of life.

"When a man thinks with his emotions instead of with his reason, he deceives himself as to the nature of the real problem he is endeavoring to solve. He should use his intelligence to do his thinking. He should not jump at conclusions and form prejudices for or against anything until he has some real knowledge on which to base his attitude. He should strive to make his decisions calmly, undistorted by purely emotional likes or dislikes."

Women are more given to using the emotions to solve their problems than men are. Man has conquered the extraordinary difficult habit of avoiding prejudices by contact in his business world where emotion plays comparatively little part. In woman's world emotion keeps on dictating her tastes, her prejudices, her ambitions and her life. Often she is a creature at the complete mercy of her emotions.

The folly to which she may let emotion rule her is exemplified in the countless instances in which she is victimized by a suave tongue selling her worthless stocks. Or, again, in the numbers of women who accept worthless men in marriage, men whose characters are so obviously wrong that only a blind emotion could permit the futile sacrifice. These women are doing anything but facing the realities of life.

A Little Dreaming Is Plenty.

Of day dreaming, Dr. Pratt says every one day dreams a little, but when day dreaming becomes excessive a person loses contact with what is going on in the real world, and this naturally unfits him for healthy competition or for success.

There are scores of young women in whom day dreaming should be discouraged. Women who dream of a lover who will come to claim them, in spite of their own inertia to go out and attract one, are day dreamers. They're not facing the reality that if you want anything in life you have to make some effort to get it. There is a decided weakness in the makeup of a person who retreats to a little fantastic world and substitutes wishing for doing. Usually fear of criticism is present, or perhaps there was one disappointment that couldn't be met with reasoning. One slight, perhaps fancied, sent the girl back to her lazy world of dreams and wishes, where her self-esteem is in no danger of another injury.

Take an Inventory.

It is questionable if the psychoanalyzing habit of trying to know yourself through and through to the last infinitesimal detail is good for the soul. It has turned out not to be a successful solution of many women's mental difficulties, as they themselves will attest. But without turning the searchlight into every tiny crevice, one can look at herself in relation to life, her hopes, her opportunities, and her chances and take an honest inventory. And then go ahead and face the realities from this new appraisal.

Day dreaming is a small part of the life of the busy person. For introspection she substitutes activity. And having once acquired the habit of activity she also learns to submerge her emotions for the better part of the day, and is a more contented soul for the mental training.

Not that the mental hygienists would rule emotions out of lives. But there are healthy emotions and sickly ones, the latter being present, chiefly where the attention is turned inward instead of outward.

HEREDITY VS. INFLUENCE

Study of Foster Children Proves That Environment Can Work Wonders.

Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

"SOMETIMES I think children turn out just as well if you don't devote so much attention to their bringing up," said a nervous and discouraged mother to me one day, after she had seen her model children demoralised, as she called it, by playing with youngsters whose ways were nothing for hers to emulate.

And many people have that feeling—especially people of an earlier generation or two.

"They'll come out all right. Don't take them so seriously. Aren't you going to give their heredity any credit? That tells."

And it does, in a measure. To observe the variations in children's appearance and character and talents, and to account for them visibly by inheritance is fascinating. To see boys and girls develop into fine men and women in spite of disadvantages and because of inherent force is interesting. They may suffer unnecessarily as children and struggle as grown-ups to do so—but still it is interesting and it demonstrates to our minds the power of heredity.

But those who win against odds are the rare ones, the ones we notice. And those who succumb to disadvantages — physically and mentally and spiritually—we don't see. Or if we do, we are not apt to attribute their failure in life to environment but to heredity.

Influences Are Stressed.

And right here is where we make our great mistake. Judges of children's courts, social workers, those interested in the placing out of children in homes, or their actual adoption, place the greater emphasis on the influences that surround a child as he is growing up, not on his heredity. By influences they mean everything — the character of his home, how he is fed, his physical care, his education, the treatment he receives, and the treatment and example of his parents.

One very interesting way in which the power of environment in the development of children has been graphically shown is in the conclusions of a professor in the University of Chicago—Frank N. Freeman. His opinions are based on the result of an extensive study of foster children made by the university.

The conclusions Prof. Freeman has reached have a two-fold interest for people in general. First, they are such as to encourage parents to redouble their intelligent efforts to give every sort of material and un-material advantage to their children. And by the former I do not, of course, mean luxuries, but intelligent care for their physical well being and attractive and wholesome surroundings. The findings of this study make us realize that while heredity plays its part in the creating of individuality, environment can make or mar that individual.

The other group of people who will be seriously affected by Prof. Freeman's opinions are those who want to adopt children, but who are deterred by misgivings as to what mischief may sometimes be wrought in a child by his heredity and what grief may result to themselves—in a word, those people who, planning to adopt a child, are anxious to know whether he is "going to turn out well."

Putting aside the fact that adoption in babyhood is most successful because then the benign influences begin early, here are some facts which can not help prove interesting to you if you are interested in children.

Food for Thought.

First, the definite statement was made as a result of the investigation that "children taken from degraded surroundings and placed at an early age in good homes have intelligence as high as the average child, and that their progress in school and their conduct are as good as the progress or conduct of children in general." Here is food for thought based on records scientifically made.

On the whole, the foster children who were studied came from inferior homes and their own parents were not fitted to care for them. They came from a social order whose children "do poor work in school, progress slowly, drop out early, enter a lowly occupation and ultimately fill our jails, our poorhouses and charitable institutions," when they grow up in their own homes with their parents by blood.

But put into foster homes, these children showed a tremendous gain. It was possible to find a large group who had been tested before they were adopted and a certain length of time after. Their gain was made in spite of handicaps, too. One of these was the fact that the children averaged 5 years of age at the time of their adoption and that is an age at which a child's mental habits are pretty well set. The other handicap was that they were not placed in the best of the foster homes. In spite of that their gain was great.

Beter Home, Better Children.

Now here is another interesting conclusion — and in interpreting the terms poorer and better homes you naturally realize that they do not refer only to the material status of the home.

It was supposed that children put into the better homes gained faster than those in the poorer homes. To test this theory the group was divided into two smaller groups—one made up of the children who had been taken into the better homes and another made up of those who had been taken into the less favored homes.

It was found that the children in the better homes had gained just twice as much as those in the poorer homes; showing the great influence on a child of an attractive, interesting, intelligently run home and congenial, loving companionship.

Pictures Are Proof.

Some of the photographs that accompanied the report were a study. Eliminating as much as possible superficial improvements like clothes, cleanliness and well tended hair, there was a striking difference in expression and posture. In some of the earlier pictures there was shifty or on-the-defensive, withdrawn expression in the face and even in the body—while in the later pictures taken, some time after adoption, the lines in the face were gone, the expression was relaxed—yet more intelligent, and the gaze direct.

What miracles can be worked by those who, having no children of their own, are ready to lavish their love and interest on a baby or a child whose own parents either do not want it, or should not have it. What happiness we who have children of our own have it in our power to bring to those born to us if we only care enough. And how comforting it is to know that this, like most happinesses we create for others, is a boomerang—it comes back to us again.

The Home Harmonious

Walls Make a Room Look Large or Small, Light or Dark; Hence Their Treatment Is Important

Willella de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Willella de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped addressed envelope for personal reply.

(The walls of this charming room are covered with pink tea-box paper, s pattered with silver.

HOW much of a room's character and interest depend on the handling of wall surfaces? That is a question which is not always given serious enough consideration. Walls, because they are already there, are often sadly neglected when it comes to furnishing and decorating. Nevertheless, if we pause to consider the totally uninteresting and unimaginative effect of a home with perfectly blank walls in every room, we may realize the importance of this particular feature.

Four squares of vertical surface, plain and colorless to begin with, may be fascinatingly transformed by any number of means into the most delightful backgrounds for the furnishings which they are to complement. It is shameful to neglect this opportunity.

Treatment of walls, too, greatly affects the apparent space and lighting effects of any room. A room may be made to appear higher or lower, longer or shorter, lighter or darker by use of the proper patterns, divisions and colors. Always, too, the walls must be in keeping with the type of furniture in conjunction with which they are to be used.

It need not be costly to decorate them, as there are many excellent papers on the market at satisfactorily low prices, as well as methods of rough plastering, painting, and paneling by means of wood moldings.

Pleasingly restful is the dining room in a city apartment. The walls, divided into panels, are painted a light, soft green, with panelings picked out in gold. Upon this basis the whole room is built up. Repeating the gold note are topaz colored draperies at the windows. These hang straight to the floor from scalloped lambrequins made of the same material over buckram. All are edged with narrow, twisted fringe. Pane curtains of ivory gauze reach to the sill.

Furniture is walnut with chair seats and backs upholstered in green damask, a little darker than the walls. By the way of contrast, at one side of the room is a lovely lacquered cabinet, decorated with medallions in black and gold with deep red backgrounds. Red glass accessories are kept on the buffet, and there is a wide lipped red glass bowl on the dining table. The floor is carpeted in deep walnut brown.

In a small card room, which is done in art moderne, the apparent size of the room is appreciably increased by the wall treatment. Walls are painted a dull silver, as are the doors and woodwork. Panels in the doors are decorated with modernistic designs, and depressions in the woodwork are accented by a fine line of flamingo red, so that all is in keeping with the general character of the room. Long draperies at the windows are of light flamingo red. The card table has a steel frame and a black glass top. Comfortable chairs are upholstered in deep turquoise leather. Steel side lights and lamps have shades of lemon yellow, bound with flamingo. Black chenille carpeting is speckled all over with silver gray.

Rough plaster walls in a charming little sun room are tinted a lovely apricot shade, so that there is always a sunny glow about the room. Woodwork is painted cocoa brown. Heavy, square meshed net in ivory, makes glass curtains. Draperies of apricot colored sateen are finished with a band of cocoa brown. These are hung at the extreme ends of the window and groups of narrow, cocoa brown lambrequins extend all the way across each group.

Stick willow furniture is enameled in a shade a trifle deeper than the walls, with decorations in light yellow and brown. Cushions of blocked linen, in a modernized floral design, repeat the colors already embodied in the room, with added touches of green and black. A rug is made of fiber, in large squares of ecru and brown.

Today's illustration shows a delicately feminine bedroom which enjoys a color scheme of pink and green. The walls are done in "tea-box" paper in a soft Chinese pink, spattered with tiny flecks of silver. Woodwork is painted sage green, with a fine line of silver in the depressions of baseboard and door panels. The furniture is in the same tone of green, decorated with lovely floral medallions. Bed covers are of soft rose taffetas, piped and bound with green. Window draperies of green taffeta are bound with rose, and there are ruffled pane curtains of Chinese pink silk gauze. The floor is covered with deep green, jaspé carpeting.

Even the bathroom has its walls interestingly decorated. To begin with, everything was blankly white, but a delightful transformation has been effected. The walls and ceiling are covered with a pink marbleized wall paper, over which a coat of waterproof varnish has been applied, so that it truly resembles the soft polish of real marble. On the floor is black marbleized linoleum.

All of the fixtures are enameled white. Face towels are of pink linen—bath towels are white—and all are monogrammed in black.

There is a bath mat in squares of black and white. The pink of the walls is repeated in shower and window curtains.

The Outlook for Those Born This Week

Marion Meyer Drew's weekly articles are presented solely for the entertainment of readers. Separate answers to individual questions cannot be given.

By Marion Meyer Drew.

SPLENDID health and favorable material rewards will characterize the coming year for those born on this date in preceding years, the slight difficulties which may arise from time to time being purely temporary and bound to end well for the native of this date, if not for the other fellow. The winter months will bring our astrological harbinger of good fortune—the planet Jupiter—to a so-called "stationary" position in the heavens, meaning that the planet is apparently motionless as viewed from the earth, and this position at this time just happens to include the sun's point of all those born today in an aspect of great expansion and progress.

So look for great opportunities about you at this time, if your anniversary comes upon this date; no one says you are duty bound to accept these advantages even when they present themselves. But they will be there, and the daily run of affairs during 1928-1929 will be profitable. There may be some difficulties in connection with writing or correspondence around the month of October—don't leave your love letters where Martha-by-the-day will find them.

The twenty-seventh of this month is a date which introduces a series of mildly interesting events throughout the fall and winter months, while the spring of 1929 will be quite pleasant, favorable and probably rather advantageous as regards money and business matters. The twenty-eighth of August is an anniversary which also presages a favorable year to come, although slightly disposed to accident or operation of a very minor nature. The reader who is making his or her first step along the highways of astrology must remember that precisely the same aspect of the planets marks out both the cut finger and the removed tonsil—we can also include the filled tooth and the sprained ankle—an injury being an injury as viewed from Mars or Venus, regardless of whether the surgeon's knife or the kitchen can opener inflicts the wound.

This birth date—Tuesday of this week—is somewhat subject to accident during 1929, and I advise the native to be careful in handling any dangerous articles or tools during motor trips. If being careful is out of the question, then carry some form of insurance!

Wednesday will be a birth date which will prove a trifle strenuous before the year following it has entirely passed, due to its aspects of Mars and Saturn which form and reform during the whole period, and also due to its tendency to feel strange influences from Neptune through its lunar positions. This will bring peculiar experiences in which women will be involved—regardless of the sex of the native—likewise difficulties during travel and many obstacles to surmount in the course of any planned changes or removals. November and February will be thrilling times.

Thursday and Friday are both rather fortunate dates, particularly in regard to money matters, medical affairs, and housekeeping or entertainment, if perhaps a trifle uncertain where the affections are concerned—this last being especially true for the anniversaries of those who were born early in the mornings of these two days. A little inclination toward colds or inflammation may mark the year for the others who entered the world later in the day. Regardless of the hour of birth, however, these two dates show a slight strain in family ties, and February and March seem the dull months. April and May, 1929, should be wonderfully good.

Saturday of this week opens up a year for its children in which surprising changes will take place—most of them beneficial—and during the spring, particularly, it would be wise for you, if your birth date falls today, to prepare for sudden and unprecedented twists to all business and personal matters.

For the rest of us this week is—or ought to be—a rather fortunate one, with the rays from Jupiter influencing our mental attitudes so that our own readiness to bestow favors upon others will result in bringing smiles and sunbeams in our direction. Professional men should find this a good period, as well as newspaper men, athletes, entertainers, or dealers in household commodities. This, of course, is generally speaking, for individual birth dates might show some aspect which would present difficulties at this time.

Those born around the first ten days of December will not be past their troubles yet, nor will those born on the last weeks of November or May. Men and women born on the last few days of February or the first days of March of any year will find this week a time of unsettled finances and some delays in business; so will those born the last of April and the first of May.

In the various groups are to be found the birth dates of William S. Hart, Corinne Griffith, Rod La Rocque, Douglas Fairbanks, Al Jolson, Gene Tunney, Geraldine Farrar, Paul Althouse, and Newton D. Baker. Watching the effects of these aspects upon the lives of these famous persons whose doings illustrate the front pages of the papers will often show us how the same aspects work out in the schedules of less spectacular folk like ourselves—the aspects are exactly the same; the effects vary according to our circumstances, and that is where we astrologers have to develop our judgment and our ability to determine in advance.

Answers to Love Queries

Gift Suggestions.

"Dear Miss Blake: My boy friend's birthday is coming soon and I would like to give him something. What would you suggest? JEAN."

A cigarette case, a pipe or tobacco pouch if he smokes, books if he is fond of reading, an umbrella or a bill fold.

New Interests Will Help.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a young man. He is going to marry a friend of mine, and I can't bear to see him marry her. I am 18 and soon will go to college. J. H."

When you enter college and become interested in your new life and studies you'll forget all about him, dear.

She's Sensible.

"Dear Miss Blake: The girl I'm crazy over wants to go out with other fellows. What would you advise? "W. B."

It is the only way she can make up her mind as to whom she likes best—and that's what you want to find out, isn't it?

Snubbed Her.

"Dear Miss Blake: My boy friend made a date with me and didn't show up. I haven't heard from him since. Shouldn't he be the one to take the first step? STENOG."

He's the one. You have been properly snubbed and can do nothing, other than look about for a more reliable companion.

Love Chooses One.

"Dear Miss Blake: The fellow I love says he loves some one else, but that he still loves me. Is that possible? WORRIED."

It is possible to care for two people, but when it comes to love there can be but one, Worried.

Apologize for Your Rudeness.

"Dear Miss Blake: I made a date with a girl and I did not show up and she is sore. How can I gain her friendship again? BARBER."

Send along your apologies by early mail—and hope she has a forgiving nature.

Saw Her Mistake.

It was my first position as stenographer in a law office and since legal work was new and unfamiliar, I worried about it greatly, wanting to succeed.

One night I dreamed that in transcribing a rather difficult and complex letter, I had omitted an entire line of notes. The next morning, when back at the office, I immediately looked up the carbon copy of this letter and compared it with my shorthand notes and was amazed to find my dream so true.

As I recall, the line I missed was a phrase and could easily be filled out, as the content of the sentence was not changed. J. J. P.

Her Brother Was Hurt.

Several years ago, a brother of mine worked in Detroit in an auto shop at night. One night I dreamed he came to my bedside, took hold of my hand, crying to me to help him. I woke up saying, "O, what is the matter?"

I was rather frightened, but jumped up and turned on the light and looked around, as I almost felt his presence.

The next morning I received a telegram saying something had fallen on his leg and he had to be operated on. Before losing consciousness he said, "Please wire my sister."

He was hurt at the same hour I woke up. The dream was so vivid I have never forgotten it. C. W. T. D.

Re-enacting Her Dream.

I was engaged and in due course invited to my fiancé's house. Wishing to impress his relatives, I bought new clothes and had my hair marceled.

The night before I was to pay the visit, I dreamed I made the most terrible blunders before his astonished relatives. I seemed to see myself spilling food all over a clean white cloth.

The following day as I sat at table with some twenty-five of my fiancé's relations, I reached over my cup to pass a dish, when the hem of my sleeve caught, and over went my cup into the lap of my future mother-in-law. C. V. H.

A Heeded Warning.

One night I dreamed I was sitting at my desk in geometry class, when our teacher pointed to me and said, "Give me the next proposition."

I struggled to my feet in horror, for I didn't know my lesson.

The next day my dream was so vivid. I got up early and studied my lesson, especially that one proposition.

I had been seated in my class but a moment when the teacher, as in my dream, pointed to me and said, "Give the next proposition."

However, unlike it, I promptly rose to my feet, and gave it.

I considered it very lucky that I took heed of my dream. J. B.

Alice is no longer guilty of "B. O." (Body Odor)

He used to avoid me ... now we're engaged

ENGAGED? It seems like a dream to me. I thought for a while it could never be. I still remember the night we met at the club. I was thrilled. He, too, seemed fascinated at first, eager to meet me. But he danced with me once—then never again. We met at other parties—but he ignored me.

I'll never forget the day when I first suspected the real reason why Tom was avoiding me.

How I cried to think that I could have been guilty of "B. O." (you know, body odor). But soon after I found the easy way to overcome this fault, Tom's feelings toward me started to change. Let me tell you how it happened.

I offended—unknowingly

I know it seems strange for me to say I didn't realize I was guilty of "B. O." But I didn't. You see, we perspire a great deal—even as much as a quart of odor-causing waste a day, our doctor says. We get so used to the odor that we fail to notice it. But it's always offensive to others.

Yet it's so easy to be safe—with Lifebuoy. Since I've changed to this wonderful toilet soap, I never worry about "B. O." With its antiseptic lather, Lifebuoy purifies pores. It keeps one so clean, so fresh.

I love it for my skin

My skin is very delicate, but Lifebuoy is so mild, it agrees with it perfectly—keeps it soft and smooth. Lifebuoy lathers wonderfully, too. Everybody in our home enjoys using it. Because it also removes germs, it makes us feel safer. Its pleasant and clean smell is enough to tell you that Lifebuoy purifies, yet it rinses away completely.

Try Lifebuoy Free

ONCE TO EVERY MAN

by COSMO HAMILTON

Once in a Blue Moon Fortune Comes Right Up and Hits You Over the Head; You're Made in Spite of Yourself. Read What Happened to Jimmy.

"Are you suggesting that I should live there—all alone with you?"

UNREMITTING and conscientious toil is often laid down as the unfailing recipe for success.

But that is merely a generalization, and, like the infallibility of statistics, must be taken with a grain of salt. Persistent effort usually gets one somewhere, but many a man goes through life, working like a barge horse, without acquiring a single bond. Opportunity misses his door. Insidious temptations may come to raise his hopes, only to give him a swift kick.

Captains of industry, seated comfortably in their overstuffed, revolving chairs, tell the young man that if he only stamps harder than any one else and licked 'em, saves his dimes, works twelve hours a day, and goes to bed at once, the top of the tree, or the Ritz Tower, will certainly be his address. They never say anything, oddly enough, about that odd little bit of luck. And luck plays a big part in the game of life—a bigger part than the complacent coupon cutter is ever prepared to admit.

Take, for example, the case of Jimmy Goodwin—James Palmer Goodwin as you can see through the dirt on his mail box card. A hundred per cent boy for fifteen years, he might, like many another good fellow, have gone down to his grave an industrious failure but for luck, which he had hitherto never had, had not butted in at last and given him a friendly shove. And, incidentally, the piece of good fortune that made him dormy was responsible also for his marrying one of the prettiest and most adorable girls that ever drummed a flat.

When Jimmy Goodwin came out of college his father, who owned a big artificial manure business, wanted him, as fathers do, to go into his office. It wasn't because he was snobbish and had anything against that useful, harmless if somewhat smellful, commodity, but simply because he didn't like business of any kind that the boy refused. He just wasn't cut out for toiling and moiling in the city marts. He had a consuming urge to write stories, with an occasional play for fun.

Well—the old man said that he didn't think it respectable for his son to go through life without doing any work, and the upshot of it was that, after an argument which lasted a couple of months, Goodwin senior ended the old fashioned "Don't darken my doors again" stuff at the very top of his voice. Literally ordered Jimmy out of the house; cut him off without so much as a single bag of bone meal. He was a fine, old fashioned man.

Young Jimmy wasn't a slacker. He took a cheapish and sheepish room on the west side of the city and started in to manufacture great literary gems. The usual thing followed, of course. Occasionally he turned out something good enough to get by with an editor, but so rarely did he actually sell that there was no fear of his developing over a swollen head or stomach. It wasn't that his work was horribly bad, for it was not somehow quite smooth enough to be singled out from the general mass of material that the countless army of other inexperienced writers were submitting every day.

AFTER a couple of years, during which he sweated day and night, Jimmy decided that if he travelled and saw the world he might eventually become better acquainted with something worth writing about. But Aquitanias and Aquitanias were not in his line. And, luckily for him, he preferred the smaller ships.

He worked his way from place to place on freighters, to tell the truth. He got in a stretch on a station in Texas, saw sheep die by the scores of thousands during a drought, and for months worked in Papua for a gin soaked trader who had been a recruiter of "blackbirder" in the old slave trading days.

In the blistering sun of Borneo he ate cocoanuts. He spent some time in China, Japan, Russia, and India, for the New York Times in Paris, and acted as guide to frightened ladies through the London fogs.

He worked as stoker, billiard marker, bookkeeper, reporter, bottle washer, cook—anything and everything that came nearest to his hand. And during all the years he spent abroad he continued to write with that dogged earnestness which sometimes carries one to the presidency or puts them in jail. But his stories, like the proverbial black cat, invariably came back.

The man was fairly tall. He had a humorous mouth and whimsical china-blue eyes. He was not as good looking as a matinée idol, which was all the better for him, but he was the sort of person you looked at and broke into a grin. There was something sincere and wholesome about him that made him liked by children, dogs, typists, and chambermaids. And even in old clothes—and his were always ancient—he somehow looked cleaner than the band box men.

When he returned to settle again in New York he was nearing his middle thirties. And all he had with which to set up in business was a complexion tanned to the shade of an old briar pipe, a mass of mixed experience, a battered portable typewriter, and fifty hoarded bucks.

He managed to keep himself this side of the earth by selling an occasional story and, if industry alone had counted, would have been a millionaire. Every night he sat up till all hours pounding out plays, moving picture scenarios, and yarns about the people and places that he had stored up in his mind. And most of them were tolerably good. But . . .

On one of those bleak, snow threatening afternoons of which February is so fond, this dogged lad emerged from a Broadway cafeteria in which he had partly refreshed his inner man. He saved considerable money by combining breakfast and lunch.

Across the street a huge electric light sign proclaimed the fact that a film called "The Jeweled Sinner" was being shown to an eager world. This picture had made a big hit and Jimmy felt that he ought to see it if only for the purpose of keeping in touch with the type of thing that was meeting with the approval of the crowd. He had written many movie scenarios, but none of them had sold. And, anyway, it would be warmer inside the picture palace than in his hole in the wall.

Taking life in his hands, he pluckily crossed the street, and walked in safety on shoes that make that slithery sound when their soles are paper thin.

A long queue was lined up at the box office. Jimmy joined on at its tail. "There's an awful lot of money in the picture business," he said to himself as he oozed up step by step. "Look at this crowd. Gosh, why don't my things click?" He considered, and probably rightly, that he had turned out many that were quite as good as most.

ARMED, at last, with a ticket and thus minus an excellent meal, here made his way over the marble foyer towards Italian doors. A clean cut attendant, decked out in a uniform which a general would never dare to wear, directed him which aisle to use. There he was received by another smart and resplendent person who conducted him to a seat.

"Everything done regardless of cost," said Jimmy to himself. "Money, money everywhere, but not a nickel for me." He smiled—not bitterly, but as an honest man who is just a little tired of plugging and never getting there.

Though he never would have believed it, because his optimism was thin, he was stumbling full steam ahead toward an undreamed of stroke of luck. He was about to step with both feet into the circle of success.

The orchestra, almost a hundred strong, played something from 'Lucia di Lammermoor" for no reason, but did it very well. Then came a Russian ballet—quite good in its way, and a recently discovered operatic soprano from Goshen, Ind.—not so good. The audience chewed relentlessly on peanuts and aromatic smelling gum through this part of the performance while Jimmy dozed a bit.

Rather as an afterthought the picture was flashed on the screen, and those who were not sleeping were informed by a series of captions that "The Jeweled Sinner" was an original story, a Hugo Bortsch production, directed by Hugo Bortsch, and further, as if it were a matter of really deep concern, that it had been made under the personal supervision of none other than Hugo Bortsch.

This momentous information failed, or seemed to fail, to stir the audience. In fact to be strictly accurate, it made no impression at all. Captions followed which gave the names of those geniuses who had directed the art, made the continuity, manipulated the camera, and edited the film, of those who had assisted these people, and of those who had assisted them. The names of every one who had been remotely connected with the concoction of this epic, with the lamentable exception of the man who had polished the second photographer's shoes, were duly and lengthily shown.

It is difficult to believe that not even the galaxy of talent took the house by storm. The audience was restless and impatient for the picture itself to be shown. How ungrateful people are!

Jimmy missed seeing the cast of characters. Just as that appeared unfortunately two heavily winter fronted women were crawling over his feet, followed by their male escort who trailed his topcoat leisurely across Jimmy's face. He wasn't frightfully upset at this loss, although he by no means relished the taste of the man's fur coat.

As soon as the picture started Jimmy sat up straight. A few minutes later his eyes bulged from his face like a pair of boiled onions. And soon after that he was perched gymnastically on the very edge of his seat, his body taut and rigid, his back hair standing on end. Had it been possible, in that dim light, for Jimmy to have been seen it would have been noticed that, for some reason, he was doing strange things with his throat. He was indeed emulating a lusty eater who had swallowed a chicken bone.

The cause of all this emotion was naturally brought about from the fact that Jimmy was watching a picture of his own, one that he had submitted to the film companies during the previous year. They had all rejected it. And now it was appearing before him like a very familiar ghost. Every foot of the darned thing was his by right of birth. Even the names of the characters were those that had leaked from his pen. Nothing except the title belonged to some one else.

But—but why hadn't the man who had stolen the thing taken the precaution to alter it here or there? Why not at least have given the characters new names? It took his breath away. He was gulping as the picture wound its way towards the close—every bit of it his.

AT last speech came to save him from an apoplectic seizure.

"Well, I'll be damned," he said, uttering this homely phrase in a loud and ringing voice.

The woman on his left, a person with one of those fat, unfinished faces, looked at him as if an unpleasant aroma had been suddenly thrust under her nose. "Young man," she said, with thirty-nine years of reluctant rectitude behind her tone.

"I must be dreaming," he said, addressing himself again. "I must be."

"Well, you'd better stop if you can't do so without using such language as that."

"Did you speak to me?" The man came back to earth.

"Yes, I said . . ."

The rest was drowned by the admonitory requests of "shush" and "dry up," that were issued by annoyed spectators in the near vicinity.

Jimmy felt his neck and ears grow hot. He sat well back in his seat and tried to make himself almost as small as he felt.

But he found himself completely and painfully enthralled by that picture—his picture—again. The rancorous glances of his outraged neighbor were wasted from that time on.

The film concluded with a necking bout in an airplane—just as he had written it.

Scrambling over people's feet toward the aisle before the lights went up Jimmy failed to hear the stereotyped wisecracks about the building being on fire and making trade for shoe shiners that were hurled at him. At that moment he was a man with a fixed idea. He was bent on lowering the record for speed between the theater and the offices of the company which had made that film.

Suspicious looks were leveled at him as he raced out of the building, and once on Broadway he did the eel trick. The north and south traffic was making hay while the green light shone, but he didn't let that interfere with his progress east. Taxi drivers invented new curses as they applied their squealing brakes or swerved at the risk of overturning their cars.

With a heaving chest, he dived into the elevator of the office building of Regal Pictures, Inc., and, after maddening delays at unimportant floors, stepped boldly out at the top.

A ravishing but vacuous blonde—the type for whom gentlemen are said to have a preference in their more human moments—inquired about his business. Then, with coral colored plugs, she played a game that looked like chess on the telephone switchboard, screamed a few words into the receiver, and languidly informed Jimmy that the president of the company was in conference and might be there for a week. He might write in if he liked. It made no difference to her.

But instead of returning to the elevator and home to kill a week, he pushed open the swing doors that led into the main office and walked, with tightening nostrils, to the president's private suite. He knew the layout of the office—he'd often, far too often, been there with manuscripts.

Pausing no longer than it took to rap on the door marked "Mr. Etzberg," Jimmy stalked into the room. That gentleman, deeply occupied with other, though less important, officers of the company, regarded the unwelcome gate crasher with amazement through a fog of smoke. He uttered an appropriate greeting almost without a thought.

"What the devil do you mean by pushing your way in here? He could barely believe his eyes.

"What the devil do you mean by using a scenario of mine without handing over the boodle?"

An exasperated frown clouded the president's brow. "What are you talking about?"

"'The Jeweled Sinner,' of course."

THE gasp from Mr. Etzberg was echoed by every man there. They gazed at each other with what their tamest title merchant always called "meaning looks." And then the frown on the president's face gave way to a seductive smile. "Sit down," he said, with a graceful wave, "and try one of these cigars."

As Jimmy applied a match to that prodigious Corporation Corona, Etzberg massaged the end of his nose between an artistic forefinger and a financial thumb. Whereafter, draping one plump leg over the other, he managed to find his voice. "It's the custom here for visitors to make an appointment with me, Mr.—Mr.——"

"Goodwin."

"Glad to know you, I'm sure." The great man shook hands cordially and introduced his staff. "I'm glad you dropped in," he added as they all resumed their seats. "To tell the honest truth, we've been expecting you for rather a long time."

"O?"

"That's an absolute fact," chimed in the alert looking little man who directed Regal Pictures' publicity. "We've been too astonished for words that you haven't come in before." The other officers confirmed this with many nods.

"Mr. Goodwin, when did you see 'The Jeweled Sinner' first?" Etzberg asked.

"Today. I left the theater a couple of shakes ago."

"May be said to have hurried, eh?"

"Hurried isn't the word. I came like the Spirit of St. Louis on a diplomatic rush." The assemblage enjoyed the phrase.

"Had you heard before seeing the picture that there was any similarity between it and a little story of yours?"

"No. And it isn't a matter of similarity. It's my story word for word. I've got the carbon copy over at my room."

"That's lucky," said Mr. Etzberg. "Very lucky, indeed. You were just a little surprised to find we'd used that little story without consulting you, eh?"

"Consulting and paying," said Jimmy. "I couldn't have been more surprised if it had rained ten dollar bills."

Mr. Etzberg disclosed his teeth. "Tell me, Mr. Goodwin," he said, "did you ever hear of anything unusual about the making of 'The Jeweled Sinner?' Anything at all?"

"Not a word. But I'm going to hear all about it before I leave this place."

"A very curious thing happened." The president spoke lightly and brightly, while he flicked a crumble of cigar ash from the sleeve of his coat. "We've all been quite amused."

THE onlookers gave nice imitations of people who had enjoyed a joke.

"It was like this, my friend. Something over a year ago we commissioned Rodney Scoville Betters to do an original story for Rosalie Delight. Well—about a month later he sent the manuscript in. He was sailing the next day for a long vacation in France."

"O?"

"By the time we'd all read it Betters was half way across the Atlantic. Anyway, it was quite a fair job of work so we shot it out to the coast and paid the author's check into his bank account. The only thing we didn't like was the title—which we changed, if you know what I mean. Our contracts always give us the right to a little thing like that."

"O?"

"Yes, Mr. Goodwin, indeed. Well, then in due course the film was shot, cut, fitted, sent east, and after I'd said 'O. K.' was put on in this burg. It's doing—well, fairly so-so—not making what we call money, but sort of holding its own."

"In its twenty-third week," said Jimmy. "The advertisements give it that."

"I don't know the exact number of weeks, offhand, if you know what I mean. It's been here some time, I think, according to what I've heard. But to get on with the story—which is a movie in itself. When Betters returned from abroad I made an engagement with him to see the picture with me. For some queer reason he's mighty fussy about having his stuff doctored up. He raised hell because we made a few changes in a previous picture of his. Now 'The Jeweled Sinner' had been done exactly as he wrote it, and I wanted to have the pleasure of proving that that was so."

"O?"

Etzberg had begun to dislike those "Ohs." "Well, sir, we went along together and I shall never forget that night." He slapped his meaty thigh by way of emphasis. "Betters just sat there without saying a word. And all the time there was an odd expression on his face that I didn't know what to make of. I couldn't tell whether he was pleased or sore, or what the hell he was. I was keen for him to like it because we wanted another story from him as soon as possible."

"But what has all this got to do with——"

"Just one minute, my friend. I'm coming to that right now. As I mentioned before, Betters didn't utter a syllable until the run was over and I asked him what he thought. 'Damned good,' he said. And with that he pulled on his sloppy felt hat—he always wears that kind—and we blinked out into the light. I was saying this and that about the picture for a bit, but he didn't seem to listen, though I didn't take notice of that. Half the time he doesn't hear what any of us say in this office."

JIMMY held on to his nerves and asked himself, with wonder, how much more of this irrelevant tosh he could stand without a go of the willies.

Mr. Etzberg twigged his expression but smiled amiably. "When we got into this room and he'd lifted a cigar he whipped round on me with a flash and spoke at the top of his voice. 'Here,' he said, 'what do you mean by putting my name on that picture?'"

"You mean he—he denied having written the thing?" asked Jimmy.

"I didn't know what he meant. How could I? I thought he was mad about something we'd done and I asked him what was wrong. And in that dry way of his he said, 'O, nothing, except that I didn't write a word of the dog-gone thing.'"

"And then what?" Jimmy's pulse began to hammer.

"I told him he was crazy. You see, I'd read his scenario myself and knew the picture was his. And that I told him in no uncertain words. But I didn't get uneasy till he put his hand on my shoulder and said, 'Etzzy, there's something phoney about this business. Either there has been an extraordinary mistake or something's been put over on you. I assure you on my word of honor that that whole story is absolutely new to me.'—Mr. Goodwin, you could have knocked me down with a daisy when he sprung that one."

"I suppose so." Jimmy's eyes were gleaming. They were getting somewhere at last.

"Well, sir, after a lot more talk we got into my car and drove over to Betters' apartment, where he gave me the carbon copy of the story he'd sent in. And sure enough, there wasn't a thing in it like 'The Jeweled Sinner.' I was on the point of having a couple of hemorrhages when I'd finished reading it, but Betters, by this time, seemed to see something funny about it all and chuckled till I could have crowned him with a chair. At last I asked him what we were going to do. And all he had to say was, 'You can do what you damn please so long as you take my name off the film before you show it again.' A nice crack that. Huh?"

"Not very helpful," Jimmy admitted. "But he couldn't honestly have allowed——"

ONE of the FOLLIES

by ALLEN RAYMOND

Preceding Today's Chapter:

MOLLIE STRATFORD quits a Broadway revue to marry a struggling writer, Norman Perrin. Indolence is Norman's besetting sin; it results in pinching times following the coming of baby Norma, and Mollie goes back to the stage. Then, spurred by pride, Norman writes and sells several stories and persuades Mollie to give up dancing. They go to live with Norman's mother in the old Massachusetts town of Greenford. An old rival for Norman's affections, Marian Graeme, becomes omnipresent, interfering with Norman's work. The baby is endangered by a prankish struggle between Norman and Marian over a cookie jar.

INSTALLMENT III.

Anthony Grange.

NORMAN and Marian separated, laughing to each other with the guilty air of two schoolchildren caught in a mischievous prank by an elder. Marian snatched the cooky jar with an impish insistence, but Norman stepped over and held out a tempting morsel to his little daughter's chubby hand. The little one clutched it, delighted.

"I guess it won't hurt her," concluded Mollie. "Did you get much writing done?"

"Im going right back to it," he assured her, toying with the baby's hand and trying to get a portion of the attention that was riveted upon devouring the cooky.

"Does it go along pretty well?"

"Just fairly."

"He shouldn't be seduced from his honest toil," put in Marian, tantalizingly. "Should he, Mollie?"

"He certainly shouldn't."

"Trot along home, then, siren," Norman mocked the girl.

"And tennis this afternoon?" she teased.

"I'll get in a set or two. It depends upon the work."

"You'd better get back to it," Mollie suggested pointedly.

"Righto." He strode away toward the house.

"O, darn!" exploded Marian. "Why can't Norman be rich? He wouldn't have to work."

"Maybe he wants to," Mollie demurred.

"He'd much rather play with me, and you know it," said her visitor flatly.

"You're fond of Norman, aren't you, Marian?"

"What if I am?" the girl flashed defiantly. "You're not jealous, are you?"

"Not a bit. I'm glad his old friends are fond of him. But I just wondered whether you liked him well enough to let him get his work done without interruptions in the mornings?"

"Norman's an adult, isn't he? He can take care of himself."

Mollie laughed coolly. "We take care of each other," she warned the girl lightly. "That's the way it is, you'll find, when you're married."

"I see," snapped Marian "you're warning me off the breadwinner."

"In the mornings," Mollie admitted firmly, "something like that."

"Don't be so worried, dearie," drawled Marian with intentional rudeness, "if I wanted Norman, I'd have taken him long ago."

WITH that she turned on her heel, reclaimed her racket, and walked slowly toward the Perrin house, leaving Mollie to ponder over the realisation that she had acquired an enemy. Mollie shrugged her shoulders and returned to her play with Norma. It was just as well, after all, she felt, that she and Marian should know exactly where they stood. Norman's wife assured herself once more that she wasn't jealous of the girl a bit. She was too confident of Norman's love and her own to fear their next door neighbor. And where there's no fear, she reasoned, why should there be any jealousy? But thinking of how many years Marian and Norman had known each other, how comradely they played together, how pretty the girl was, if you liked that type, and how obvious her adoration for Norman, Mollie shivered. She could not help it. She had to confess the first pang of fear. Marian's suggestion that Norman's wife need not worry was in itself a betrayal of how the girl felt. So was her hot accusation of jealousy and the revelation of her enmity. Mollie realized that she had a competitor for Norman's time and for some of his affection, if not actually for his love.

"I won't be a jealous wife," she insisted to herself. "I just won't be. It's too petty."

But she would watch very carefully that Norman's affection for her should not slacken, and she would certainly protect him from that other girl.

The other girl came out of the house. She ran to the hedge and disappeared in her own yard. Mollie had to repress an impulse to point the tip of her little red tongue in that direction. She giggled nervously.

"That's what I'd have done back on 3d avenue," she chuckled inwardly, "before Maschwitz, the stage, and Norman began my education."

Life, it seemed, was unending education. Mollie took little Norma into the house.

"I don't know what you said to Marian," Mrs. Perrin complained, as her daughter-in-law entered the kitchen "She seemed very offended."

"She'll get over it, mother dear," Mollie assured her.

"I hope she will," said Norman's mother. "You really mustn't be jealous toward Marian, my dear. She's been a member of the family—or almost that—for so long that of course she's fond of Norman, and Norman is fond of her."

"I'm not a bit jealous," protested Mollie, heatedly, "but I won't have Norman's work interfered with."

"Of course not. We must none of us interfere with that. Aren't those Norma's best clothes she's wearing?"

"She's darling in them," evaded Mollie.

"I know, but with laundry bills what they are!"

"That's why Norman mustn't be interrupted," laughed his wife. "He likes to see his wife and baby looking their prettiest—and it takes his money."

"Of course, I don't want to appear to interfere, or to offer suggestions when they're not invited," Mrs. Perrin rattled on. "If there is anything I won't be, it's an interfering, fussy mother-in-law. But I do think the blue rompers would have been more appropriate for an ordinary morning's play. And perhaps if the baby wore them more, Norman's bills wouldn't be so high. The blue or the brown ones look real nice, I think."

MOTHER PERRIN was busy with the perpetual motion of a consciously admirable housewife about her kitchen—and as she worked her words flowed on almost without interruption.

"I know Norman would like to see his wife and his baby dressed up always—he is just as impractical as any other man—or more, perhaps, being an author and temperamental. And that is where your part will be, my dear—to be the practical part of the household. Now, Norman is just a young, comparatively unknown author at present, and his income can't be very large. I remember how it was when his father and I started housekeeping. We had to watch our pennies, I can tell you, to get ahead. We saved. But I am afraid young people nowadays haven't been taught to have the same ideas about thrift that we had. Lord knows, I won't be one of the old fogeys who are always complaining about the younger generation. 'Let the young folks alone,' I always say. 'They'll get along.' I hate to see older people picking on them. But, at the same time, it seems as if young people today never heard of real economy."

"We have to practice it sometimes," Mollie demurred.

"I know. I know it seems as if you were practicing it. And perhaps you are. I wouldn't have believed Norman ever was capable of saving up money enough to buy an automobile, even if I am his mother and proud of his genius. I do hope you haven't bought it on the part payment plan."

She paused with an expectant poise which demanded reply.

"We haven't," Mollie assured her; "it's all paid for."

"I'm glad of that. People nowadays, young people especially, think they have to have automobiles at an age when their mothers and fathers were saving for the future, putting their money into a home, for instance. Well, I suppose they knew what they were doing. Different age, different standards. I never was one to criticize young people. But I always notice things, even when I don't talk about them And knowing Norman, I do hope you'll keep your head level. He's naturally an extravagant thing."

"O, Mother Perrin!" Mollie's tone was a mild reproof.

"Now, I know!" That emphasized "I" expressed finality. "After all, my dear, I'm the boy's mother, and I've watched him grow. We do our best to bring up children in the way they should go, as the Bible says, but it seems that in some instances they never get into the proper way, no matter what you do. Not but what Norman isn't a good son. He is. But we were talking about extravagance, and that is one of his cardinal sins."

"He hasn't been extravagant since he married me," interjected Mollie in her absent husband's defense.

But Mrs. Perrin was not to be denied her point. "Of course, I can't say as to that, but you know the old adage, 'The leopard cannot change his spots.' Does Norman keep an account book?"

"Our finances wouldn't require a ledger," laughed Mollie.

"It would be a great help to you," Mrs. Perrin advised her. "It would show you where your money was going, and then you could plan more definitely for economy."

"Can't I help you with luncheon?" Mollie asked, by way of changing the subject.

"You might set the table."

MOLLIE set about it with what she felt was a pardonable sense of exasperation. After all, the only recent incident of extravagance with which she and Norman could be charged was the buying of the cutaway, and it was Mrs. Perrin who had suggested that.

In the few weeks they had been at Norman's home Mollie had come to feel that she and Norman were not regarded as adults, capable of managing their own affairs, but had relapsed into the status of children, subject to Mother Perrin's admonitions. Of course, Mrs. Perrin always was careful to disclaim any intent to interfere with them, and launched her criticisms chiefly at her son when talking to her daughter-in-law. But these were also so phrased that Mollie understood she would be deemed responsible if Norman were not held to Mrs. Perrin's standards of what was proper for him. If Norman was a backslider from the right, it would be because his mother's control had given way to his wife's and Mollie had not measured up to her responsibilities.

As Mollie was setting the table, rattling the silver with some vehemence, perhaps, she was startled by a crash and a wail from the kitchen.

"Gracious!"

Little Norma was in trouble. Mollie flew to the scene of disaster. It proved to be as bad as she feared. Mother Perrin had mixed the batter for cookies in an earthenware bowl. She had let some of the mixture stand on a table at a distance from where she was working. Little Norma had reached up and tipped the pretty yellow bowl, perhaps to see what was in it, perhaps just because it stood so attractively shiny above her curly head that she thought she would like to play with it. Whatever had been the child's motive, the result was disaster. She had tipped the bowl over. It had fallen to the floor and smashed. The child was liberally bathed in stickiness, sitting in it, smudging her weeping face with it, and wailing protests at the unfairness of fate. Mollie dived for her, but Mrs. Perrin was before her.

She held the child at arm's length and rushed with her to the sink.

"I'll start taking off her clothes, Mollie, while you're getting her others," she commanded in a tone of exasperation. "You'd better take off that pretty dress you have on and get into a house apron. And Norma had better have one of her little play suits, as she should have had in the beginning, now that she's shown what happens to a child's good clothes in playing about a kitchen."

Mollie ran obediently to make the change herself and to provide for little Norma's. But while making speed she had to grapple with mortification and resentment at her fate. That such a crash should have justified Mother Perrin's criticism of her way of dressing herself and baby and spoil what was to have been a sunny, happy morning!

NORMAN'S wife began to learn that back of all Mother Perrin's disclaimers of any intention to interfere in the affairs of her son and his wife was that very determination. In going back to his mother's house Norman had returned once more to his status of a son, to be admonished and guided, advised and ruled. His wife perforce must share in his lot. Norman was not in a house of his own, but in his mother's home, and therefore Mollie could not be mistress of her own domain. She had no domain, she realized, except in the fleeting hours when she and Norman were in their own room and Mother Perrin had retired for the night.

"Let's go away, Norman," pleaded Mollie when she learned at last that her mother-in-law was very critical of her.

"You're not jealous, are you?" Marian flashed defiantly.

"Why, sweetheart," he protested, "you know it wouldn't be sensible, when we're living so cheaply here. And this is the ideal atmosphere for me to do my writing."

"You're not getting much of it done."

"O, I'll get more, pretty soon," he assured her. "It will be better stuff because I am not always pushed by the fear of getting thrown out of a rented home for being broke."

"That's all right from your point of view," Mollie conceded. "You're in your own home, where everybody is fond of you. But it means that I haven't any home and am in a place where nobody is fond of me."

"Now, that's not so," he contradicted her flatly. "I'm sure mother likes you, and you ought to hear Marian rave about you."

"Yes, indeed, I ought," answered Mollie, grimly. Knowing that both her mother-in-law and Marian realized how Norman loved her, she could understand that they would flatter him by praise of his wife. But she could not help wondering how many concealed barbs were in Marian's eulogies of her. The girl had shown so patently how resentful she was that another woman possessed the man she once had marked for her own.

"What does Mother Perrin say about me?" she inquired, curiously.

"Why—I—don't know as I can think of anything she's said. Not offhand," Norman floundered. "It isn't so much what she says as her attitude. Little things. She knows you're beautiful and that you make me happy. She's said as much. And, of course, every mother likes to see her son happy. That's bound to make her grateful to you."

"How little you know for a writer." Mollie accused him, silently, to herself. "When your mother adores you the way she does it only makes her jealous to see I can make you happy without her."

But she did not tell Norman that. What she said to Norman was an involuntary question that surged past her lips in token of an insatiate thirst.

"Do I make you completely happy, Norman?"

"Perfectly, honey girl."

"Tell me more. Tell me how much."

That was the way their arguments and discussions ended. Mollie realized it with a sense of futility and helplessness, mingled with a trembling that life could be so sweetly exasperating.

SHE wished she did not love Norman so much. She would be more free if he did not have that strange, inexplicable power over her. He was like an obsession, she thought. There must be some force like hypnotism in the way his very presence, close to her, stilled her protests at conditions of their daily life which she resented. She would try to view him impartially as some one not his wife would consider him. She would magnify his faults. Somehow she must help him to overcome them.

Every time she got this far in her rebellions, so that there was a barrier between them, the one invincible force would batter at it. A clasp of the hands, a tone of Norman's voice, a careless word, like "you make me perfectly happy," would be flung at it. She would hold the barrier up for a moment only. The undeniable power would push it down; all sober thought of the future would be dissipated and vanish like a cloud before blinding sunlight. Not the future but the present joy was all that mattered, and she would be clinging to her husband, helpless.

"Tell me more! Tell me how much!"

Afterward, wide awake in the night, while Norman slept, she would be angry with herself for being such a fool. If life was to go at all as she wished there must be decisions made, changes made, there must be talk between them calmly and dispassionately. They saw each other so little during the day, she mourned. If Norman was writing, she would not interrupt him. If he was riding with Marian, she could not. His mother accompanied them on their automobile rides.

That was one difficulty in their living at Mother Perrin's. They were seldom alone together as a unit, except at night. Such meetings were only chance minutes, too quickly gone. A strenuous day at the typewriter and at outdoor sports would send Norman off to the soundest sleep. Little Norma would be fractious for a day, and Mollie would be too weary for talk. And on the nights when they were wakeful there was only the blessed futility of passion.

Mollie was furious with no one but herself in the hours that followed. "You fool! You fool!" she would upbraid herself. She had been married two years. She was a settled matron of twenty-one. Husbands were only husbands, after all. There was more in life than husbands. Out in this terribly silent village she recalled the gay uproar of Broadway and her very own triumphs. She remembered Mr. Maschwitz and his dictum:

"Love for you is folly."

If all of life was to be living in Mother Perrin's home, without one of her own, subject to the older woman's supervision and criticism; if it were to know he won't be here always. He'll have a home of his own."

The glance that followed between them then was the first definite declaration of war. Mrs. Perrin had got her son back beneath her own roof. Her darling boy! To have him, she had to have the woman who had supplanted her in his affections. Mollie had not supplanted her completely, said her silent challenge.

Norman's wife picked little Norma up on her shoulder and danced with the baby out of the house.

"Two enemies," she whispered to herself. "Two other women, but here are two. Norman's baby and his wife. He's ours."

And then she apparently made a friend.

He arrived on horseback, jumping the hedge from Marian's residence, a direction which must have warned her, had not his entrance been so spectacular. Mollie and Norma were sitting in a hammock underneath a tree some fifty feet from the hedge when she heard a man's shout, and saw his mount come thundering over into the yard. The rider's seat was unsure. As he came down from the hurdle he came somewhat faster than the horse, straight over its head, in fact. But he clung to the reins and avoided disaster from the threatening hoofs.

"O!" Mollie gasped.

She jumped to her feet and set her child down.

The dismounted horseman seemed barely to touch the ground before he was up and tugging his horse's head, bringing the animal to a stop. As an example of hurdling his jump had been a total failure, but he was not hurt.

AS man and mount righted themselves the rider looked over to where Mollie was standing, palpitantly regarding them. He laughed and came walking over, leading the horse. A slender, hatless young man in riding habit, with yellow hair, blue eyes, and a smile of boyish appeal. A closer observer than Mollie might have noted that his mouth was weak and that a slight puffiness about his eyes was the mark of dissipation. Mollie was too relieved that he had not been killed before her to notice it.

"Just like the prince of Wales," he laughed to her, exulting in the thrill of a close escape. "Simple little hedge, too, but I could never take them. Always come a cropper—over hedges, love, and everything else. You must be Mrs. Norman Perrin."

"I am," Mollie answered.

"You're beautiful," he said, admiring her frankly. "I've seen you somewhere—some show you were in, I guess. I'm Anthony Grange, Marian Graeme's cousin. Don't like her, though, do you? Norman was lucky to escape her for you, I think. I always liked Norman. Good egg! I hope you'll like me. I'm staying next door for the rest of the summer. Hello, pretty baby!"

HE turned his attention to little Norma, who from her vantage among the cushions of the hammock had been regarding him and his horse with round eyes of wonder.

Mollie was somewhat taken aback by the youth's apparently amazing conduct. A rattle brained, likable college boy was her diagnosis of him. She planned to take him at his face value.

The newcomer did not look directly at her again until he had cajoled the favor of her child. When little Norma was cooing and smiling in charmed response to his advances he turned once more to the mother.

"The baby's going to like me, anyway," he said. "What's Norman doing? Writing away on his masterpieces? I've heard how he was emoting through into literature. He always did have talent."

Mollie liked the boy. Before she realized it they had been chatting half an hour or more. His blunt directness of opinion was audacious, but seemed to be respectful. She found what he said was an amusing phrasing of her own opinions about the folk she had met in Greenford, particularly Marian and Mrs. Perrin, the dullness of a rural town after Broadway, and her own admiration for her husband's gifts. He courted her favor deftly, and after her unspoken but implicit break with her mother-in-law she was grateful to luck for bringing Mr. Grange over the hedge to her side. He made her feel more sleek and important, like a cat stroked soothingly after an unfortunate encounter with cold water.

By the time he remounted and rode back to Marian's house, Mollie found herself looking forward to dancing with him in the aftermath of the women's club tea, where Norman was soon to deliver that literary paper for which his fashionable afternoon clothes had been bought expressly.

"Anthony Grange?" Norman chuckled when Mollie told her of their encounter. "Just like him. He's a nice enough boy, but a featherweight. Marian supports him, along with other poor relations. He makes a good dancing man for all her affairs and entertains her guests. A little wild, from all reports, but he's just a kid and I suppose he's harmless.

THE woman's club tea was a great success—for Norman and his mother. It was strategically turned into a minor triumph for Marian, too, partly because it was held in her beautiful mansion and partly because she insinuated herself into the rôle of Norman's sponsor—a kind of exhibiting a tame literary lion who had been her friend for years. Mollie soon saw that the village dowagers were gracious but patronizing. From chance bits of gossip that caught her ears, and made her flame with embarrassment and anger, she learned that the village considered Norman, the brilliant young author, had made a youthful misalliance in marrying her. His neighbors considered he had wed beneath him in marrying "merely a pretty Broadway show girl."

After these feminine murmurs ceased her had raked her like catty claws, it did not help her pride that the group of men, young and old, who attended the tea should cluster about her, solicitous to dance, and speaking gallantries. It was with sinking heart that she danced with them, though she tripped as always, with the music and rhythm of the band.

A "mere" Broadway dancer! Well, she loved to dance. These boys who caught her up, one after another, were gathering some small flowers from the garden of grace she had been growing since first she stepped naturally into swaying motion to the music of hurdygurdies, as a child beneath the shadow of the Third avenue elevated, had home in New York. The boys were wild about her, she could plainly see, just as her audiences in the theater had been fond of her. But she knew that their very enthusiasm for her slender beauty and dancing grace would make the feminine tongues of Greenford wag the harder. She would have more hostile critics in the town than if she had been less obviously sought after by the village young men. It was with sad bravado, therefore, that she kept her chin high and her smile as bright as possible through the early evening.

"Having a good time, chicken?" whispered Norman, when he cut into a dance with her and caught her close.

"Not very," she admitted, reluctantly, loath to spoil his glowing triumph, "but you did awfully well, dear."

"Did I really, do you think? Are you proud of your husband?"

"I've always been. I've known long before these people."

"Aren't they nice to me? The home town boy!"

Norman laughed ironically at the sensation he was in his native village, but Mollie could see that his depreciation was only a veil to disguise his pleasure at honor by his fellow townfolk. Mollie recognized then that she was not only an intruder in Greenford because she was a "Broadway show girl," but from the very fact that she was from another section of the country. All these people would have felt much happier if Norman had married one of his own New England people, instead of an outlander from distant New York. She had not realized how few miles could create that sensation of distance. She felt as far from her Broadway home today as if she had been in Hawaii.

"Isn't everybody nice to you?" asked Norman, sensing a little of her inner tumult. "You seem to have gathered quite a train of courtiers."

"The dancing johnnies," she laughed. "Of course, they like me." She would not spoil his great day. "I'm all right."

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Blueberries Are Typically American and Have Been Popular Since Indian Days.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

By Jane Eddington.

THE beautiful blueberry is a late season berry. It really has a romantic personality which we can account for by enumerating its traits, its botanical and geographical and even geological traits, with its folk interest and its humble gastronomic complexes. We would prefer to spell it in two words, in order to emphasize its beauty characteristic, for at its primest state, when in heavy clusters on the tips of the bushes, the true blueberry is a dark blue completely frosted over with an almost baby blue. Unfortunately for us people who must know blueberries only from the markets, this bloom is easily rubbed off in the picking.

To call the blueberry a sugar berry, as has been done in some localities, is a way of calling attention to one of its notable characteristics. It has been up all its acid to its cousin, the huckleberry. Because it is sweet, the honey loving bear dotes on it, and in a sense it belongs to him, for it grows luxuriously in his natural habitat. But the bear lives there, too, and while he daintily nibbles off the berries, leaving the branches, it is said that the bear, like the big, frightful creature he is supposed to be, strips the fruit with one bite and does not mind getting branches, too, in the mouthful.

Nine Species Listed.

The blueberry is one of the spicy foods. A writer on the useful wild fruits speaks of this berry and its relatives as too well known to require his attention, which grieves us greatly as he adds, provocatively, that these berries are "touched with a special grace of spiciness." With such a start, it seems as though he might have made some more lovely remarks like that.

If we turn to our old Gray's botany, we learn that he knew—ever so many years ago—nine species of blueberry, some growing in swamps and moist woods—I have picked blueberries on bushes growing out of a bed of moist moss—on dry hills and high mountains, in other dry places and even in sandy soils, which accounts for blueberries in dune countries, even by the great lakes.

Then by studying the geography, and also the geology of the blueberry, we find that it is most particularly a mountain berry, and its greatest distribution is to be found on the worn down mountains and hills of the Appalachian chain, yet last year there were, on account of thousands of acres of meadowlands of the high footlands of the mountains in the state of Washington which were covered with blueberries. Mountaineers there filled buckets of them of unequaled delicious flavor. Which reminds us of the fact that there are now cultivated blueberries, as well as wild ones, and that the growers are hoping to get some as large in comparison to the wild berries as the cultivated strawberry is in comparison with the wild strawberry—a great difference.

Maine is considered one of the natural blueberry states, and it used to have one of the largest wild blueberry bogs perhaps in the world, but the blueberry means even more in northeastern Canada, where one gets it in hotels at every meal, etc. There is a rather beautiful description of it in that famous novel of the Quebec country, "Maria Chapdelaine," which shows what the blueberry is to the "habitant." It says:

"The forests of Quebec are rich in wild berries; cranberries, Indian pears, black currants, sarsaparilla, springing up freely in the wake of the great fires, but the blueberry, the bilberry or whortleberry of France, is of all the most abundant and delicious. The gathering of them from July to September is an industry for many families who spend a whole day in the woods. . . . Others only gather them for their own use, either to make jam or the famous pies national to French Canada. But whole families used to camp for a week or more, about the first of September, at the great blueberry bogs, only a short ride away from that great Maine summer resort, Bar Harbor."

The paragraph in "Maria Chapdelaine" preceding the one quoted gives the folk interest of this berry in Canada. It reads: "Where the fire had passed, on rocky slopes, wherever the woods were thin and the sun could penetrate, the ground had been clad in almost unbroken pink by the laurel's myriad tufts of bloom; at first the reddening blueberries contended with them in glowing color, but under the constant sun these slowly turned to pale blue, to royal blue, to deepest purple, and when July brought the feast of Ste. Anne the bushes laden with fruit were broad patches of violet amid the rosy masses now beginning to fade."

Indians Knew Its Use.

We have reason to believe that the American Indian taught all comers to these American shores to dry the blueberry, as is extensively done in Canada, and perhaps to use it in other ways. We know where the wild rice grows, and what the Indians have done with this, and one book on wild fruits has this to say: "Mr. Jenks reports a wilderness soup made of wild rice and blueberries that sounds as if it ought to be good, even in New York."

So American is the blueberry that it is entertaining to go to a very comprehensive English encyclopedia of foods and find ourselves referred back to "bilberry," which, it says, is not a "very tasty berry." Then it tells of all the different names by which it is "dubbed," including these which no good Yankee would ever apply to this berry, because these other berries do not taste like blueberries, and only in shape and size resemble them.

Its final bit of description is this: "The shrub from which the berries are gathered grows wild in North America and northern Europe. They are chiefly used to make a rich wine." The bilberry may be, but have you ever heard of any blueberry wine?

One writer of recipes says, "Blueberries are the national American berry and need no recommendation to those who have tasted them in Maine pancakes, muffins, pie, or the delectable hot biscuits served with sweet butter." This is not mentioning the blueberry tea cake, which in some parts of Maine is as much used as blueberry pies and muffins.

Buying Them in Boxes.

Mostly a box of blueberries in the market is rather forbidding because harder to pick over than other berries, and twice as expensive nowadays, but it will go much farther and is useful even in jelly making, since it contains valuable pectin—a recent discovery.

There are poor ways of picking over blueberries of the ordinary sort that soon make them seem poor and poorer. A good way to pick them over for any service is to spread a handful on a white dinner plate. This keeps the mass from getting mussed, and it is easy to pick out and reject the imperfect ones when they are spread on a white surface. We like the substantial or firm plate, but white paper can be used.

Glazed Blueberries.

One of the less common uses of the blueberry is to have it hot, but not cooked. Glazed blueberries are interesting and even charming, and we recommend them to persons who cannot eat cold fruit for breakfast.

Pick over and wash the berries and let them drain well or long enough so that the sugar, when added to them, will not lump. Then just sprinkle them with sugar and put them into a frying pan in which there is a little hot melted butter. Shake them for about two minutes or until a sirup forms, and each berry looks like a little dark round mirror.

It is perfectly reasonable to eat cream with these if you want to, and they may be used in various ways for desserts, such as piling them on a sweet timbale, or garnishing a cooked cream with them, or putting them in small tart shells to have some whipped cream with them. Exceedingly attractive little desserts can be made thus.

Blueberry Pancakes.

It seems the woodsman makes blueberry pancakes to please the huntsmen he guides, and particularly himself. These used to be made as big as a dinner plate, buttered and generously sugared while hot, and piled high one on top of another, and then the pile cut down through to get layered sector servings. But a batter that will produce better results than that of the old fashioned sour milk pancake batter, so often used for blueberry pancakes, is this: One cup flour, two tablespoons sugar, one-fourth teaspoon of salt—these all mixed together. Then beat one egg, then a cup of sour cream with it, with one-half teaspoon of soda. Save out a little of the flour mixture to flour the blueberries, then combine the two mixtures.

Add to the batter thus prepared from one-half to three-fourths of a cup of floured blueberries, mixing them carefully into the batter so as not to break them. Heat a large griddle slowly, oil it and bake pancakes of the size made by one tablespoon of the batter, getting at least six to the baking. These may be buttered and sugared a bit immediately.

If they are to be kept hot, even for a little while before they are served, they should be buttered lightly or they will dry up. We think they are fine enough for an afternoon tea of real character.

Blueberry Muffins.

These popular tidbits, if small enough, may be made just like the above pancakes, but larger ones require more flour.

Pick over and wash one cup of blueberries and put them to drain several hours before making the muffin batter, so that they can be rolled in flour without wetting it or gumming. The following will make a fluffy batter about the thickness of a cake batter, when most exactly compounded, which means that flours vary in behavior and we must use judgment: One-fourth cup butter or a bit less if economizing, one-fourth cup sugar, two eggs, one cup milk, two cups of flour or vary amount to the need in making a fluffy batter, four level teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt. Have muffin tins buttered and hot when this batter is put into it.

Method: Cream the butter and blend the sugar with it. Separate the eggs, beat the yolks with a little of the cold milk from the cup used, add these to the worked up butter and sugar. Add the well sifted dry ingredients a little at a time. Beat the whites stiff and fold them into this batter, then fold in the floured blueberries. Two tablespoons of flour from the two cups are sufficient for this.

The time to bake will depend on the size of your muffin tins, but at least a four hundred oven is needed so that a nice seal brown crust may be secured. The wet blueberries delay and keep down temperature. Small shapes, for this reason, are best.

Berry Tea Cake or Sally Lunn.

Either of these batters may be baked as a tea cake, but some people like a real blueberry cake to eat with butter for this, one with a sugary crust which is practically a cup cake with berries, and one containing one cup of sugar, one-half cup of butter, two eggs, one cup of milk, two cups of flour or less, two to four teaspoons baking powder and a cup of floured blueberries.

Divide the sugar, butter and number of eggs and we get the regulation muffin, and with one egg gone we can use a little more than two cups of flour, but always avoid getting a stiff fruit muffin of any sort.

Blueberry Batter Pudding.

The old fashioned blueberries and rich milk with no sugar was a way of serving these berries that can be recommended for breakfast or luncheon. In cooking the berries the sugar used in the batter is almost needed to sweeten them and make them more agreeable, but they may be used in little batter pudding without sugar. These, however, almost demand sugar with the cream when served.

Our favorite batter for this is: One cup flour, three-fourths cup sweet milk, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, fruit, or add two tablespoons of sugar with a fresh fruit and a little melted butter.

Blueberry Tea Cake.

One-half cup sugar, a little butter which can be spared, one-half cup of well whisked sour milk, one well beaten egg, one cup sifted flour added to wet one-fourth at a time, one-half cup or more of washed, dried and floured blueberries—require but one teaspoon of flour.

This small amount of batter will make a sheet seven by ten inches in size which will cut into a dozen nice squares of cake. It makes one-half cup of blueberries go a long way. It can be baked in tiny muffins. It is as good or better cold than hot.

Blueberry Pastries.

We have recommended the glazed blueberries for little pastries, but at the present market prices it is not much use to recommend blueberry pies. It really takes a basket or more to make a fair pie. Some one smartly exclaimed last year—in print, "Think what a French chef would have done had he invented blueberry pie!"

We have seen above that the French Canadian may have been the inventor.

ONCE TO EVERY MAN By Cosmo Hamilton

"Well—however, a fine night's sleep I had thinking about the mix-up." Mr. Etzberg heaved a sigh. "The next morning I questioned every one in the office who'd had anything to do with the script, but couldn't find out a thing. It wasn't until the afternoon that one of the girls came in and gave me a sort of a clew. It appears she'd knocked a bottle of ink over on her desk and made such a mess of a couple of manuscripts that were lying there at the time that she had retyped the first page of each of them. One, she remembered, was Betters'. And she thought that in retyping those first pages she might have transposed the names of the authors—put Betters' name on some one's else story and the other person's name on Betters'. A very strange thing—if that is what did happen." He regarded Jimmy with a very searching gaze.

"Do you suspect collusion between this girl and me?"

"My dear sir!" A protesting hand went up.

"IN the first place, I don't know any girl in your office, and in the second I haven't the brains to work out such a bright idea."

"I'm quite sure of that," said the president of Regal Pictures. "I mean sure that there was no collusion." Jimmy's tone and manner had convinced him at once on that score. Just the same he would make careful inquiries later. "But what I would like to know, Mr. Goodyear," he added, "is why you didn't return Betters' scenario which you must have seen had been sent you by mistake." He narrowed his eyes again. Perhaps from force of habit.

"That's simple," Jimmy said. "When what I took to be my manuscript came back I glanced over the covering form letter without looking at the inclosure. You see, it had been to half a dozen other companies before coming here, and when you turned it down I concluded it was a fliv and tossed it into a trunk with a lot of other rejecteds. I didn't even take it out of the envelope. That story of Betters' must have been eating its heart out all this time among my unwanted stuff."

"Yes—yes. Now there's one more thing, Mr. Goodbun. As soon as we discovered the mistake we sent out letters to every one who'd had manuscripts returned to them about that time asking if they had received some one's else story. Did you receive such a letter?"

"No. I change my address fairly often. The letter you sent me has probably found its way back."

"Several of them did. We kept 'em. And while they are being looked up (Mr. Etzberg nodded to one of his officers to go and see about it) we might as well save time and arrange what you're going to be paid. We want to be as fair as we always are up here." He beamed and endeavored to glow with avuncular benevolence. "Mr. Braham can draw up the contract and you can sign it while you're here. And as soon as things have been checked up we'll mail you the money. Now then, what shall we say? Three thousand?"

Jimmy regarded the cuspidor, and tilted his head a bit. And there was an awkward pause.

"Three thousand's a heap of money for something you never expected to get a solitary dime for." Etzberg rubbed his nose with a diamond ring.

And Jimmy passed his head nervously over his mouth. "I don't consider three thousand to be . . ."

"Come now, Mr. Goodboy. Tell you what I'll do. Four thousand and a complete settlement, see? We don't want you to go away dissatisfied. We don't do things like that."

"For a picture that's already run twenty-three weeks in New York——"

"O, why split hairs?" This from Mr. Braham. "Let's make it five thousand and close the thing right out."

This suggestion seemed at first to shock the president, but after a moment he gave a nearly generous laugh. "Very well, then," he said. "Let's do it. It's the company's money we're throwing about, not ours." The other officers joined him in his amusement over that.

"I'd rather think it over and let you know," said Jimmy, retrieving his hat from the floor and standing up.

"But why?" asked Mr. Etzberg, who was palpably shocked. "Why say no to good money when it's staring you in the face? That's no way to get on in the world."

"I'd like to brood for a bit. I'll go and get the carbon copy of my story and the one by Betters that you sent in error and be back here in about—well, half an hour. How's that?"

"Just as you say," said Etzberg, spreading out his hands and raising his shoulders in the usual financial way. His gesture clearly said: "I am a little hurt by your attitude. And your stupidity in refusing good money is something new to me."

"I'll be back quite soon," said Jimmy, striding to the door.

"What would you say to six thousand?" But Jimmy was gone by that time—which was well for him. He might have fallen for six.

Down in the elevator, along Broadway, and then west to his room in 56th street, he legged it with prodigious strides, though he wouldn't have taken a bet that his feet were touching the ground. It seemed to him that he was gliding over a golden path on skates. The people he passed looked happier than usual, and the lights in the stores shone with a most unwonted warmth, he thought.

HE took the stairs of his dingy lodging house four or five at a time, and as he turned the handle of his door one of those gentle German dogs with a long, low slung chassis yapped a welcome at him, and his English accent was good. Like a burglar working in a hurry, James pulled papers out of an old trunk and flung them all over the room. Presently he came upon the carbon copy of his own story and paused to glance at it. Then the search was renewed. Again the manuscripts went flying like frightened birds until at last he found the envelope of Regal Pictures, Inc. It contained a scenario with his name on it, though he had never written the story. Betters' work, of course.

His next move was to call up the honest Betters and confirm this blessed change. Rodney Scoville Betters was the author of a string of best sellers. And he received large sums for his moving picture rights. In spite of which he was mighty decent to Jimmy and went to the trouble of giving him some very sound advice.

When Jimmy returned to Regal Pictures' office Mr. Etzberg received him with a smile which would have done credit to a nurse. And having examined the two scripts as if he didn't want to do so, glittered his diamond ring. "Seems no doubt but what you're the man we've all been looking for," said he, tilting himself back in his chair.

"None whatever," said Jimmy. "And there never was."

"Well, then, all we've got to do is to come right down to it. I want to get it all settled and out of the way, right now. Suppose we say seven thousand five hundred and call it a pleasant day? You couldn't ask more than that and be a gentleman."

"Betters could."

"Meaning?"

"That you were quite satisfied to pay him thirty thousand for my scenario when you thought that it was his."

"Thirty. . . . How do you know what we paid him?"

"He told me just now."

Etzberg looked as though he had been kicked rather hard on the shin.

"And what I feel," said Jimmy, as firm as a two days' loaf, "is that if you were willing to pay Betters that much you can pay the same to me."

"But, my dear Mr. Goodfellow," cried the president, "think of Betters' name! One of the very best! Can't you see, in fairness, that we can't afford to pay his price to an almost—pardon me—unknown writer?"

"No, and I never shall," said Jimmy, going strong. "That picture's making a fortune. Betters told me so."

Etzberg closed his eyes in an agony of shame. It wasn't decent to take any notice of a young man going mad.

"My price for that job," said Jimmy, "is thirty thousand dollars. And what's more, by tomorrow my name as the author must be up in larger letters than you use to advertise Bortsch." He was on the box seat, and knew it. And Etzberg knew it, too. "And there's another thing," he added, "which I will mention before I forget. Betters told me that you can make a front page publicity story out of this affair that'll be worth twice as much to you as the sum I'm asking now. Big headlines. 'Struggling author has riches thrust upon him.' You know the sort of stuff."

Mr. Etzberg brightened. He saw silver lining. "We might make something of it," he conceded. "But, O, Mr. Gooday, O!"

WITHIN an hour Jimmy collected that check for thirty thousand and signed the contract which Mr. Braham very gracefully drew up. Realizing thereupon that Jimmy's services would be competed for by rival firms as soon as the story in headlines appeared in the city's press, Etzberg signed him up for three more stories and blotted his signature.

The president of Regal Pictures, Inc., was too long headed a man of business to allow a favorite to depart on anything but the very friendliest terms. He congratulated Jimmy warmly on both his commercial and literary ability and, after several hearty rounds of handshakes, guided him with great reluctance to the door. And at this point Jimmy turned.

"Don't you bother," said Jimmy, placing a restraining hand on the presidential arm. "I'll ask as I go out."

"Eh? How's that?" Yes, the ravishing blonde knew where Kay Baxter could be reached. And she gave Jimmy the telephone number as well as the address. No, so far as she knew, Kay hadn't found herself another job. Jobs weren't so plentiful as people seemed to think. Righty—righty. Good-night.

Turning over in her mind the nearer and nearer probability of having to give up her flat, Kay Baxter was jerked out of gloom by the ring of her telephone. Like the man who had acquired her number ten or so minutes ago, she had begun to think that luck had turned her down.

"Miss Baxter speaking . . . yes? Mr. Goodwin? Yes? . . . a job? I've never wanted anything so badly in my life . . . Dictation and typing manuscripts? I was born for that . . . Where did you get my name? . . . Regal Pictures, eh . . . Well, that was pretty decent of 'em. When do you want me to start? . . . How's that? . . . Have dinner with you somewhere and talk it over there? . . . That sounds fair enough. You'll call at seven-thirty? Right . . . O, you needn't worry about that, sir. I shan't be too dressed up. So long then. And thank you."

A sort of Indian war whoop startled the neighborhood. With a gorgeous running dive at the bed the girl turned head over heels, landed on her feet, and made a series of excited grabs at bloomers, a frock, and shoes.

"If our Mr. Goodwin is as nice as he sounds," she said to herself in the bath tub, "things have taken a turn."

PROMPT to the dot of seven-thirty the door bell rang. Kay hurried down to the hall. They couldn't make out more than a rough idea of each other in the dimness of the cab, but on entering the blaze of the restaurant Kay decided that her new employer, though not a sheik, was nice. Very, very nice. And had a mind reader been present he would have been able to tell the world that Jimmy was not at that moment thinking about the way his companion typed. Steady gray eyes with absurdly long lashes. Chestnut hair that curled on its own account. An oval face. A straight little nose. Small teeth. And a mouth—however, he was hungry, too.

And having been lonely so long, hanging on to the ragged edge, and because of the part she had played in it, what more natural than that he should tell her, during a wonderful dinner, of his astounding bit of luck? She proved her ability as a good secretary by the raptness of her attention and charming sympathy.

After dinner they danced. In short, they danced until it became almost unnatural to be out of each other's arms. During those necessary moments when the orchestra recovered itself, Kay accepted the proffered job and Jimmy announced his plans. He was all for a furnished apartment in which there was room for his brain. He was not only seething with great ideas, but there were piles of unsold stories which would come in useful now. They demanded considerable space.

And then they drove back to Kay's flat through a world that was flooded with light. It was cold, and perhaps for that reason they sat rather too close. It was a mutually kind idea. "What do you say," said Jimmy, "about an even larger apartment? . . ."

There was something in his voice that sent a thrill through Kay. You must remember that she was in the habit of typing scenarios. "Why?" she managed to ask.

"Well . . . if there was space for two in it, you could bring your things along."

Kay edged away a little and looked up into his face—a rather pathetic look. "Are you suggesting that I should live there—all alone with you?"

"That was what I thought," he said, and bit his lip as all his heroes did. "I can write love scenes with any of 'em," he added, with a nervous stammer, "but I don't know anything about actually doing them off the screen. The caption I should use at this point is, 'Will you be my wife?'"

The resentment on Kay's face gave way to a beatific smile. Whereupon Jimmy took her hand. And as she went on smiling the taxi driver, a kind man, who was a movie fan, wasn't surprised to see the reflection on his wind screen of a good man and a dear girl in the attitude of the hero and heroine of the sort of picture that made him kinder to his car. Decent soul that he was, he steered round a nasty hole in so sympathetic a manner that undoubtedly he earned a red mark in the recording angel's book.

It's a weird thought . . . but stranger things happen in life than ever take place on the screen.

"Five Hunnert Dollars . . ."

"Five hunnert dollars that director feller offered her—five hunnert dollars to jump off'n the reef in a storm! To kill herself, maybe!" . . . Such the setting of a racing, exciting story of heroism and love next Sunday:

The Storm Scene
by Oscar Schisgall

ONE OF THE FOLLIES - By Allen Raymond

honey," she assured him with a surreptitious squeeze. "It was just—just a little bit—the feeling of how happy it was for you to be home, and that I couldn't be quite with you in it, because this place didn't use to be mine."

"But it is now," he insisted, "with me and Norma."

"Anywhere," she protested desperately, more to herself than her husband, "with you and baby."

"I love you," he whispered into her ear, as if that were a talisman to make everything right.

THEN Anthony Grange claimed her.

"No fun dancing with your wife," he chattered, laying his hand on Norman's shoulder to cut in. "What an old fashioned couple you appear," he said, more to Mollie.

"We are," she admitted brazenly, as he took her into his arms.

"Wonderful!" he eulogized. "The pride of Broadway turned model housewife. The more I've watched you the more I've marveled at you. You're not having a bit of a good time, but you appear to be the life of the party? What is it? Camouflage? So the cats won't see their scratches?"

Mollie was startled at his understanding. "I'll have to be very careful of you," she mocked him. "You know so much, you're dangerous."

"Harmless as a dove," he contradicted. "But I like to keep my eyes and ears open. It's so entertaining. You've danced every dance. And only three with me. Don't I interest you at all?"

He deftly separated her from the throng of dancers and steered her through the wide doors leading out upon his cousin's broad veranda. Mollie threw a sop to his obvious craving for compliment.

"As a dancer," she told him, "you are perfect. As a horseman, very entertaining."

"Don't you ride?" he laughed. "I'll teach you."

"We'd better go back to the drawing room."

They were dancing in the farthest corner of the veranda, isolated from nearly every one.

"Right away," he conceded, "or you'll be talked about."

"Even more than I am already," she capped him.

"That's why I brought you here," he informed her calmly. "To talk about you—and to you. You mustn't mind the village dowagers. You could be as pure as a saint, and as circumspect as Caesar's wife, but they'd gossip about you still. A former show girl in our Massachusetts town, married to one of its leading lights. I've watched you and listened. I just wanted you to know that you'll have at least one ardent defender."

"Don't be too ardent," Mollie warned him. "You're being very nice to me."

"You're the one spot of joy in all this crabbed old town," he burst out. "I hate it. But as a poor relation, I have to live here much of the time. Now I've found you, it's endurable. You're kind of a link to New York, and I'm crazy to get back there. Since I can't, I can look at you, once in a while, can't I? Talk to you quite a bit as next door neighbor?"

"Why, of course," Mollie assured him. He certainly had struck a chord of mutual sympathy. She, too, was wild to return to the great city, where one could lose one's self from gossip, and live in freedom. Where one's next door neighbors neither know you nor cared to. Where she had grown up in the carefree camaraderie of the theater folk, and had friends and admiring audiences, instead of critics and gossiping fellow townsfolk.

Therefore she was sure she had found a friend. A wave of liking for him swept her, so that unconsciously she clung more closely to him as they danced in perfect unison, and gave some strolling women of the village a chance to nod their heads meaningly together and lift their eyebrows.

"It wasn't so bad," she confided to Norman when he took her home; "a pretty tea and a triumph for my husband."

"But you didn't have a very good time at first."

"It made me homesick for New York," she explained. She could not tell him of her discovery that some of the town regarded her with distrust and others patronizingly. She could not even tell her husband that his neighbors believed he had married beneath him. All she could do was say: "I do hope we get prosperous soon, so we can afford to go back."

"The very next check," he promised her, "we'll go back for a blowout. We'll take in all the shows and have a continuous party."

They would go back for a visit only! Mollie decided that the next objective for her matrimonial diplomacy was to get Norman and Norma back to her beloved city and to hold them there. It all depended on her husband's writing. Given the funds, she would know how to exert the necessary pressure.

She would have a home on upper Broadway. It always had seemed to her that the sun shone more brightly there than downtown, she recalled. On upper Broadway, where the dense impeding traffic of Longacre thinned out to a pleasant scurrying by taxis, and street cars, and pedestrians, which made a continuous spectacle for her entertainment, and where the air above the sidewalks was filled with the music from radio shops. But before she got back there Norman left her for a surprising journey, around the world.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

My Bib.

By Eleanor Jewett.

It isn't much to look at,
Just a square of cloth with strings;
But, gracious! how it saves my clothes!
When soup or milk nurse brings.

That square of cloth—its name is bib—
Is a good friend to me,
For dad says friends are those who help,
And bibs help me, you see.

But, wouldn't it be quite a joke—
I'll tell you what I mean—
If nurse forgot my bib some day
And still my dress stayed clean!

$5 APIECE FOR BRIGHT SAYINGS

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune.

One day while a group of relatives were visiting in the living room of our home, we heard Betty, aged 3, laughing loudly on the front porch.

I stepped out to see what was the cause and, seeing nothing, I asked, "Why, what is the matter, Betty? What are you having such a good time over?"

Holding up a warning finger she replied: "Don't talk out loud, Aunt Minnie. I'm not having a good time. I'm lonesome and want Maxine to come over. If she hears me laughing she will surely come when she thinks I am having such a good time."

M. T.

Little Nancy, aged 3, was still awake one evening when her mother's sorority sisters started to arrive. She was still until they were all seated in the living room and were all talking at once, which raised quite a chatter.

Finally she called to her mother and when the latter went in she said, "Why do they all talk so loud?"

Her mother, trying to explain, told her that they had not seen each other for a long time and they were all telling what they had been doing since the last meeting.

Nancy looked up very seriously and said, "Why don't some of them listen?"

Activities of Women

ENGLAND and Wales claim to have more than 30,000 women farmers.

The Nicaragua Railroad hospital, owned by the Nicaraguan government, is supervised by Miss Ruie Ginn, an American nurse.

In a recent election held in Berlin, Germany, the number of ballots cast by women was 1,310,011, against 1,171,137 cast by the men.

Queen Marie of Roumania has turned her attention to horse breeding and cotton growing. She is also a farmer and gardener of no mean note.

Mrs. J. Livingston Taylor of Cleveland, O., has returned from a trip abroad where she toured 9,000 miles by airplane. She is past 67 years of age.

Dr. Martha Robert, one of the seven practicing women physicians in Porto Rico, is head of a large maternity hospital in San Juan.

Miss Eleanor Weymss, a young woman of Adelaide, Australia, is the first of her sex in that country to receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Senorita Zoila Sota, recently appointed a judge at Matanzas, Cuba, is the first of her sex in that country to hold a national office.

Miss Lucy A. Goldsmith is the only woman export trade analyst in the world. She acts as a consultant and adviser on foreign business for business firms.

Miss Gladys A. Taylor, recently made assistant advertising manager of the United Fruit company, has charge of all the passenger traffic advertising of the company.

Miss Madge J. Reese of the extension service of the United States department of agriculture will visit Hawaii for the purpose of teaching Hawaiians American methods of home making.

As a rule student flyers are not allowed to do solo flying until they have had 10 hours in the air. Miss Kathryn Fall, 16 year old school girl of Alliance, O., flew alone after two and one-half hours.

Ileana, the 19 year old daughter of Queen Marie, is conceded to be the champion girl runner in Roumania. She also has been pronounced the most nearly physically perfect young woman in that country.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition enforcement, was the only woman to take a conspicuous part in the Republican national convention which chose Herbert Hoover as its standard bearer.

The queen of Afghanistan has engaged a Polish girl manicurist to fill the post of court manicurist at Kabul. The girl, Felice Sawicka, attended the queen during her visit to Warsaw, and she liked her so well that she promptly engaged her for the court job.

AUGUST 26, 1928.

Final Curtain Near for Ravinia Opera

By Edward Moore.

NINE more nights, and that lively, exhilarating, and highly artistic opera company at Ravinia will disperse for another forty-two weeks. Wherefore the chances for attendance are steadily growing fewer, but it would seem that performances will keep up at the same high level until the end. This column has frequently urged attendance at the north shore park upon those who like their operas well done in the most delightful operatic surroundings in the world. It continues to make the same representations.

ELISABETH RETHBERG during the title rôle of "Aïda" at Ravinia tonight.

Details of what is nearly the final week's repertoire will be found on another page of this section. For purposes of classification it divides into five Italian and two French works, though "Martha" can be considered Italian only by virtue of its being sung in that language. They cover a wide range, in time about a century; in character from the stateliness of "Aïda" to the farce of "Fra Diavolo." Of the French pair, the best news is of a repetition of "Marouf," a joyous bit of fantastic humor that has made the hit of the present Ravinia season. Incidentally, it will have had its fourth performance on Friday night, and, considering that the season is ten and one-half weeks long and that thirty-three operas have been given during that time it is considerably above its mathematical average.

Elisabeth Rethberg is to sing the name part in "Mme. Butterfly" on Wednesday night, for the first time this season, and, looking a bit further ahead than the actual course of the week, will do the same as Nedda in "Pagliacci" a week from tonight. She has both a great voice and great vocal art; in fact, looking the situation over as accurately as possible, there would seem to be about two perfect soprano voices in the world, three at the most, of this generation, and she has one of them.

Nearing the Final Curtain.

"Marouf" has not only been one of the summer's joys, but it has served to confirm the opinion that Mario Chamlee is a notable comic singing actor. The work has just about an ideal cast. So, by the way, has "Fra Diavolo." And Tito Schipa will make another appearance in "Martha" as a member of another cast capable of attracting your attention, not to mention "Lucia di Lammermoor" at the end of the week.

The concert this afternoon will be of Swedish music, with Eric DeLamarter conducting the Chicago Symphony orchestra in a program designed for the occasion, and with Julia Claussen, the contralto, and Alfred Wallenstein, the cellist, as soloists. The program is dedicated to the Swedish National society of Chicago, and Charles S. Peterson, chairman of the organization, will make the address of welcome.

The final Sunday afternoon concert, one week from today, is to present a large array of orchestral soloists, among them Jacques Gordon, violinist; Mr. Wallenstein, Edward Llewellyn, trumpet; Alfred Barthel, oboe; Theodore Yesche, flute; Robert Lindeman, clarinet; Hugo Fox, bassoon; Joseph Vito, harp; Clarence Evans, viola; Pellegrino Lecce, horn; Frank Napolilli, English horn, and Gustave Stange, trombone. Mr. DeLamarter will conduct. The program is announced as special, but with no national label, for which reason it probably will be considered American. It has the remarks.

Announcing the New Civic Season.

Three elaborate new settings, which surpass in their lavish detail even the magnificent scenic effects already shown at the Auditorium, are in preparation for the 1928-29 season of the Chicago Civic Opera company. They are devised for revivals of works—formerly presented by the Chicago Grand Opera company, the Chicago Opera association, and the Civic Opera—which are scheduled for the repertoire of the coming season.

Mozart's beautiful opera in four acts, "The Marriage of Figaro," which was last done in 1911-12 with a cast including Carolina White, Alice Zeppilli, Maggie Teyte, Gustave Huberdeau, and Mario Sammarco, is being restaged in accord with strictly modernistic ideas. Brilliant colors and conventionalized lines have been combined to produce stage pictures of unusual and striking beauty. In them the Civic Opera company has gotten entirely away from the old conventional settings without losing the suggestion of historical accuracy in setting and stage picture. Costumes are being designed on an elaborate scale to harmonize with the general picture.

The opera was composed by Wolfgang von Mozart and was given its first production in Vienna on May 1, 1786, with Mozart conducting. The first American production was in 1823. Some notable revivals were in 1889, with Nordica, Eames, and Jean de Reszke; in 1902 with Sembrich, Eames, De Reszke, and Campanari; in 1909 with Sembrich, Eames, Farrar, and Scotti, and in 1917 with Hempel, Farrar, and De Luca. Among the interesting European revivals of recent years was that of the Opera Comique in Paris in 1919 and the Vienna State opera in 1924, where it was given in the famous Redoutensaal of the old imperial palace, which serves as an intimate theater for the productions of the Vienna opera.

New Setting for "Norma."

A new production likewise is being built for "Norma," which was last given during the 1919-20 season. The scenic artist, Julian Dové, has outdone himself on this setting. It went into production July 25 and should be ready for its preliminary setting on the Auditorium stage about Sept. 1.

In Rosa Raisa and Claudia Muzio the Chicago Civic Opera company possesses two of the great Normas in the world today, and for the other rôles it likewise is peculiarly rich in talent. Chase Baromeo, Virgilio Lazzari, and Alexander Kipnis have all done the rôle of Oroveso, and Charles Marshall and Forrest Lamont know thoroughly the leading tenor rôle of Pollione.

A third new production now being prepared is that for a revival of "The Tales of Hoffman," last done by the Chicago company in 1924-25. This opera was first produced by the Chicago company in 1910-11, when four performances were given. In 1911-12, three were given; in 1912-13, two; 1913-14, two; 1916-17, two; 1918-19, one, and 1920-21, two, making a total of sixteen performances since the establishment of permanent opera in Chicago. The new set for "The Tales of Hoffman" also is being built from designs by Julian Dové. The opera will be sung in French.

Another revival, which will be sung in Italian, will be "Don Pasquale," first produced here for the 1919-20 season and not given since that time.

On the Repertoire.

Among the operas not heard last year and included in the standard repertoire from which the 1928-29 productions will be chosen are:

In Italian—"The Love of Three Kings," first produced in Chicago during the season of 1915-16 and included in the standard repertoire beginning with the season of 1920-21; "Boris Godunoff," first given during the season of 1923-24 and repeated three successive years; "La Bohème," which has been in the standard repertoire of the company since its first season, but was not given last year; "Don Giovanni," first produced by the Chicago company in 1914-15, repeated in 1915-16, and revived for the season of 1926-27; "L'Elisir d'Amore," first produced by the Chicago company in 1919-20, repeated in the season of 1920-21, and revived for 1926-27; "The Jewess," which has been included in the standard repertoire since 1922-23, but was not given last year, and

Again the Late War Is Brought Back to Earth

"OUT OF THE RUINS."

Produced by First National.
Directed by John Francis Dillon.
Presented at the Oriental theater.

THE CAST.

Lieut. Pierre Daumont	Richard Barthelmess
Serg't. Paul Gilbert	Robert Fraser
Yvonne Gilbert	Marion Nixon
Pere Gilbert	Emile Chautard
Mere Gilbert	Bodil Rosing
Volange	Eugene Collette
Mere Gourdain	Rose Rione

By Roberta Nangle.

WOULD that I could bring you news on this bright Sabbath morn of a picture extraordinary, a cinematic knockout. It would give me great pleasure to fill this column with cooing phrases and rosy adjectives aimed at the Richard Barthelmess latest film offering, somberly titled "Out of the Ruins." However, being addicted to speaking the truth even though it be painful, I am forced to say that this film is far from being a worthy vehicle for Mr. Barthelmess' talents.

RICHARD BARTHELMESS, who does what he can with an inadequate vehicle.

The story is a banal hodgepodge about the late war. Mr. Barthelmess plays Lieut. Pierre Daumont, one of the gallant French Blue Devils, beloved by his men and highly esteemed by his colonel. While on sick leave in Paris he is introduced to Yvonne Gilbert, the sister of one of his fellow soldiers. Yvonne and Pierre are mutually smitten and when he is called back to the front his only hope is for an early injury which will send him to Paris again.

A letter comes from Yvonne saying that her parents are forcing her to marry a profiteer who has kept the family from starvation during the wartime upheaval. Denied a leave by his colonel, the desperate Pierre manages to get his hand in the way of an enemy bullet, thinking the wound would win him a trip to Paris. But the colonel sees through this plan and remains firm in his refusal.

His Crime of Crimes.

Then, driven by the odious thought of Yvonne wedded to his fat and prosperous rival, he commits that crime of crimes for a soldier—deserts his regiment and escapes to Paris and his lady love. His foster mother brings Yvonne to the apartment where he is hiding and he makes plans for an immediate marriage, only to learn that his status as a deserter would make a legal ceremony impossible.

The following day the streets of Paris are filled with a procession of wounded men returning from the front. Among them Pierre sees men of his own regiment, men that he had deserted on the eve of one of the most terrific battles of the campaign. Conscience stricken and remorseful, he realizes that not even love should take a soldier from his duty, and he hurries back to report to his colonel.

Just Another Movie.

He is court-martialed and sentenced to die. To all appearances the execution is performed at sunrise, and Pierre is dispatched to another world. The producers, however, would not permit this tragic and plausible ending, and the last scenes jump to post-armistice days, with the world trying to adjust itself to peace after the four ruinous years of war. It won't stretch your imagination to guess the finish of the picture.

Richard Barthelmess' performance is entirely commendable, but it hasn't the tremendous pull and vitality which distinguished his former rôles. Marion Nixon, who plays Yvonne, is a lovely heroine. There's no fault to be found with the incidental rôles, but the picture as a whole is weak and unconvincing. You can't forget while you're watching it that it's only a movie, and never once throughout its length do you feel you are observing persons of flesh and blood.

Bits aBOUTem.

Harold Lloyd has fallen into line with the rest of moviedom and started work on a sound picture. Formerly the comedian began his comedies with only a vague idea of the plot and developed it gradually with the help of his staff of gag men. Now the sound accompaniment makes this haphazard procedure impossible, so Mr. Lloyd and his company have been forced to map out a completely detailed story before calling for the camera and the microphone. The picture will be directed by Ted Wilde.

Predictions about television are growing louder and more insistent all the time. In discussing the possible effects upon the film industry of recent experiments of broadcasting pictures by radio, John W. Considine Jr. of the United Artists studio commits himself thus:

"Under the present system 150 or 200 prints of a feature picture are made and shipped in tin cans to exhibitors throughout the country. Five years from now, I believe, just a few prints will be made and shipped to important distribution centers. An exhibitor will write, telephone, or telegraph his order for a certain picture. On the specified day the exchange will project that picture by means of television upon the screen in that exhibitor's theater. It sounds radical, but we are living in an age when the seemingly impossible of today is an accepted fact tomorrow."

What do you think of that?

The Tiffany-Stahl company is producing a series of pictures to be made in natural colors and synchronized with sound.

The title of Gloria Swanson's next picture has been changed from "The Swamp" to "Queen Kelly." Eric von Stroheim, who is to direct the production, is also the author of the story.

Lya de Putti, they tell us, has just completed a strenuous round of diet and exercise which resulted in making her net weight 108 pounds instead of 132. She says she did it to comply with the American demand for a slim silhouette.

* *

Mexican exhibitors have taken in so many shekels with Cecil B. De Mille's productions that they've gone and given him a gold medal and a parchment in testimony of their admiration and esteem.

We don't hear much about serials nowadays, but they run on and on and make friends for themselves in the smaller movie houses. Pathe is planning to produce five serials of 10 episodes each next season. They will be directed by Spencer Bennett, who has 22 successful Pathe serials to his credit.

* *

Warner Brothers appear to be patting themselves on the back because the temperamental John Barrymore has signed a contract to make talking pictures for them.

According to her press agent, Corinne Griffith is the possessor of 5 black velvet hats with white ostrich plumes, all exactly alike. She got them for her new film, "Outcast," in which they figure prominently in five distinct stages of dilapidation.

* *

Charlie Chaplin's next picture is to be called "City Lights." It will be directed, written, produced, and acted by Mr. Chaplin, as were "The Gold Rush," "The Circus," "The Kid," and his other successes.

Dog Days in Revolution

By Clifford Raymond.

MAX EASTMAN'S collection of Trotskiana, put out in a book known as "The Real Situation in Russia, by Leon Trotsky," would suggest that the Red revolution of the sovietized proletariat has come to its end, that it is through and done for. The Thermidorians have it. Inasmuch as the Thermidorians get almost everything fantastic, violent, and distracted, it is possible that they have the Red revolution already and actually in the icebox. If not now, later.

Thermidor was the eleventh month of the French revolutionary calendar, beginning July 19 and ending Aug. 17, a warm if not hot and enervating period of the year.

On the 9th Thermidor, 1794, the French moderates regained control by overthrowing Robespierre and his adherents. The Terror came to an end. In July and August there is more or less impatience with insanity, or even innovation. July 4 is about as late a summer date as can be given real revolutionary activity. If Jefferson had been delayed until Aug. 4 he would have been more repressed in his expressions. George III. would have fared better. Lexington and Concord were in April.

Thermidor inclines the body to repose and the mind to doze. The Thermidorians will return to Charles II. They will swing from Roosevelt to Harding. They will kill Cæsar as the easiest way out. They may have to take Napoleon, but they will be glad to get rid of him. People are entertained by ideas and amused by action, but they tire of them, preferring pork chops and restful sleeping. Revolutions are dissipated in boredom. An enthusiast, even a successful one, becomes a nuisance. Robespierre goes to the guillotine. When his head is off the fall of the Bastille is compensated. There is quite as much general satisfaction in one event as the other.

Thermidor is the political state of compensating balance. It's the recovery from extremes. Stalin represents it in Russia. He may not be final, Trotsky thinks he isn't, and, with the confidence of a revolutionist who has been exiled but who has not lost his head, he thinks he himself will come back. Thermidorians are more specific and definite when they take off their opponents' heads. Then they never come back and never plan to do so. People who like finalities approve the method.

It may be premature to consider the Russian Red revolution of Lenin as finished. Mr. Eastman, who gives unabridged texts of documents suppressed or distorted by the Stalinites, is convinced that it is only retarded. Trotsky, who is in exile with his supporters, thinks it will be resurrected. Both concede it is now done in. If their estimate of its present condition is accurate, it is flat as a communist revolution. Russia is merely a feeble capitalistic state staggering around in a perplexity and trying to find the way back to the private owners and away from the comrades.

Communistic Russia proved once again that the human race is impressionable to systematic madness. If the communists were not mad, the world of private ownership was. One system or the other of necessity was quite insane. We've had the impression that the communists were the Bedlamites. A disposition toward Bedlam is historically human. The Dukhoborists take off their clothing and march over the wheat plains of western Canada until the police round them up. There was the children's crusade. An American state was founded in the belief that a goatish oaf had dug up a gold testament planted by the Lord for his discovery. An American citizen is in the penitentiary for life because the law found one too many pints of gin on him. Whole peoples have been exterminated because they did not believe that the actual body and blood of the Savior of mankind was in the communion service tendered in His name. Certain Americans who have political prejudices against the Jews insist in some states that the law shall prescribe the Jewish records of the old testament as scientific texts for the education of Gentile children.

Soviet Russia has been merely an extraordinary extension of human madness into a wilder flight than usual.

Trotsky, in the speech he tried to make before the central committee on the proposal to expel him in October of last year, named some of his reactionary enemies. He couldn't make the speech. He was howled down by the Thermidorians; but in the text as reconstructed or presented for publication in his book he damns "Chang Kai-shek, Feng Yu-hsiang, Wan Tin-wei, Purcell, Hicks, Ben Tillett, the Kusinens, the Shmerals, the Peppers the Heinz-Neumans, the Rafieses, the Martinovs, the Kondratievs, and the Ustrialovs."

Trotsky's roll call of his enemies is important to him as an impeachment, as an indictment of betrayal by capitalistic Judases in the party; but otherwise it is a chart of mental disorders. Generally a revolutionary junta, directorate, committee of correspondence or safety, tribunal of justice, or commission of works, likes or requires homogeneity in the comrades. They then derive their ideas from the same fund of experience. They have some basis for common thought and desire. They have arisen out of the same past. Even when they are red eyed they can sit about the same table sharing the intangibles. Psychologically and historically they are akin. They have the makings of a combination.

Trotsky's list of betrayers includes cockney Englishmen whose revolutionary past goes back to Wat Tyler, and Chinamen who could find their revolutionary forefathers among the Tai-pings of Teen Wang, the Heavenly King, or, less gloriously, among the river pirates, the banditti, or the Boxers. With a mixture of Teutons, Slavs, and Jews, with Hindus, Hottentots, Malayans, and Max Eastman, the composition was to produce a state which would require more intricate adjustment, correlated effort, compromise, and submergence of the individual than any other human society ever had in its hopes or requirements. For this reason, which is merely incidental to a hundred others, many occidentals who may be benighted economically, dull socially, hopeless intellectually, and impervious to the piercing cry of suppressed humanity have thought the Russian scheme was the largest achievement of human madness. That it has prevailed so long as any kind of a government and any kind of a productive system has been attributed to the Asiatic fatalism of subjects who take what they get, whether from czar or commissar.

But the real madness has not been with the central committee of the revolution. From Lenin to Stalin it has been an irresistible temptation, an incredible Marxian opportunity of a country prepared by war for seizure and communist experimentation. Whatever unpleasantness may have been suffered by most of Russia, there has been a miracle of enjoyment for the comrades. Even Trotsky, now in exile in rage, humiliation, and disgust, must contemplate it all as something unbelievably gratifying. No, the madness has been in other lands, where the comrades taking their pleasure have been regarded as humanitarians devoted to a general redemption of the human breed.

The comrades may well resent this intellectual and liberal estimate of their purposes and their work. They should be given the credit of never having explained themselves in this fashion. They have not qualified their phrases. It was a dictatorship. It was of and for the proletariat. It was to get by force a distribution of wealth which could not be obtained without coercion, suppression of other people, denial of liberty, and confiscation. It wisely concluded that murder was the easiest way of clearing the ground and of avoiding natural competition.

There was no pretense that the proletarian dictatorship was humane. It did not derive anything more from humanity than did the czaristic system of serf owning nobility. The reception by intellectuals, liberals, and humanitarians of a scheme of special privilege, supported by military force, secret police and summary execution, confiscation, and forced labor, as an advance in the direction of sweetness and light and nobler manhood in a better world, was the real insanity, and Lenin, Trotsky, and Stalin would unite, in their realistic fashion, in regarding it as such. They would have despised such credulity.

"The Front Page" Is Sordid and Profane

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Two years ago the first hit of the new theater season was "Broadway." Last year it was "Burlesque." This year it is a Chicago newspaper play called "The Front Page."

They are all of a piece, these three, in that they are dramas cut from what we are thrilled to assume is the true stuff of life as it is reflected in their respective locales.

CHARLES MACARTHUR, one of the authors of Broadway's newest hit.

We knew that "Broadway" crowded a lot of color and drama into the life of bootleggers and night club workers that did not always obtain, and that "Burlesque" clothed the people of the tougher circuit shows with a glamour that was truer to the theater than to the facts. But they were both stripped of the more irritating artificialities of popular drama and we liked them a lot as entertainment.

"The Front Page," crossing the satirical quality of "Chicago" with the bold frankness of "What Price Glory," is as exciting a piece as has been done in years. Also, the most utterly abandoned. The determination of its producers to reproduce exactly the sordid and grimy atmosphere of a press room in the Criminal courts building of Chicago and to expose as they work the hard boiled, free cursing, two fisted drinking lads who are supposed to make the best police reporters is startling.

Profanity Its Chief Asset.

The play was written by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur. Their scheme of reproducing a life which both have had superficial contacts has been to multiply one character into a group to string profanities, intimate vulgarities and wisecracks through three acts of excitement.

Percy Hammond insists that he heard more smart talk from reporters in twenty minutes at the first performance of "The Front Page" than he has heard in seven years in the offices of the Herald-Tribune. Heywood Broun adds his bit to the observation by agreeing that in eighteen years' newspaper experience he has never met so flip and salty a bunch of press men.

My own journalistic contacts go back some thirty years, and these witty lads are mostly strangers to me. But there is this excuse for such license as the dramatists have taken: There is in every sizable town one or two bright boys who have gone in for newspaper work and been toughened by their police assignment contacts.

Not on High Class Papers.

"The Front Page" authors suggest that there is at least one of them on every newspaper and that they all talk all the time like a composite Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur-Jed Harris-George Kaufman. Harris is the producer and Kaufman staged the play.

Incidentally the only reporter in the play boasting a clean shirt and a clean speech is THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE man, and he is not quite bright.

In the action you meet a half dozen of these bored news hounds killing time in the press room of the Criminal Courts building while they wait for the early morning hanging of a "Red" convicted of having killed a Negro policeman. You have the Hecht touch in the fact that the "Red" is as mild mannered as a nursery governess and protests that he is not a bolshevist, but an honest anarchist.

A dumb sheriff, driven by the political organization ruled over by a tubby boss who is also the mayor, is keen on getting the "Red" hanged before election. He wants his party to rally to the slogan, "Reform the Reds with a rope." When the governor sends a reprieve for the prisoner the mayor and the sheriff bribe the messenger to lose it.

Furnishes a Grand Curtain.

Suddenly the quiet atmosphere of the press room, thick with smoke and wisecracks, is rent with a succession of revolver shots and the shriek of the prison siren. The "Red" while being examined by the state's alienist, has borrowed the sheriff's loaded revolver to reënact the crime, and shot his way to freedom. Which furnishes a grand curtain for the first act.

Next act the prisoner, sliding down a rain pipe, slinks into the press room when everybody is out except a Herald-Examiner man who has just quit his —— —— job and told his —— —— —— —— —— managing editor just what kind of a —— —— he is. With a news beat in sight this boy forgets a waiting bride, a suspicious mother-in-law, and a train for New York, to jump back into action. He hides the prisoner in THE TRIBUNE man's rolltop desk and dashes for the telephone to tell his editor the story. Which provides another kick for the second act finish.

Then the search, the threatened discoveries, new excitements stirred up and new streams of profanity created by the managing editor, who takes personal charge of the story, the exposure of the trick, the arrest of the newspaper man for conspiracy in harboring an escaped criminal, and the final adjustment, with the prisoner reprieved and the excited newspaper man off for New York with his bride.

Public Takes to It Avidly.

I appear to be the only man hereabouts who does not believe in a lasting popularity for "The Front Page." It has started with a tremendous rush, but I am suspicious of newspaper plays in the first place and, secondly, I do not believe there is a very big or very dependable public inter-

ENGLISH WITHOUT A DON'T "As To"

By Wallace Rice.

WRITING today is cluttered up with "as to'a." Many, including school teachers, have abolished most of the other prepositions in its favor. Bernard Shaw, always a pedagogue, in his latest textbook, "The Intelligent Woman's Guide," writes on page 1, "Socialism is nothing but an opinion. . . on that point." On page 13 he says, "Socialism is an opinion as to how, etc." On page 3, "I take the opinion of the first person I meet as to the way to the railway station." We usually have an opinion "about" this or "on" that. "As to" has another necessary place to fill.

The Dictionary of Modern English Usage calls this use of "as to" "a slovenly substitute for some simple preposition or entirely otiose." In an astonishing number of cases it can be left out to advantage, and it would be worth any writer's while to think before setting it down whether it has any significance or is merely a habit.

The same work also says "'As to.' This has a legitimate use—to bring into prominence at the beginning of a sentence something that without it would have to stand later [As to Smith, it is impossible to guess what line he will take]. A spurious imitation of legitimacy occurs when 'as to' introduces what would even without it stand at the head of the sentence, as in: 'As to how far such reinforcements are available this is quite another matter'; omit 'as to' and 'this,' and the order is unaffected; the writer has chosen to get out of the room by a fire escape when the door was open."

Prof. Krapp says in his "Comprehensive Guide to Good English": "A legitimate use of 'as to' occurs at the beginning of a sentence when something is to be specified, as in 'As to the source of this statement I know nothing.'" Otherwise it would read "I know nothing of the source of this statement," which is plain English.

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

OCCASIONALLY, I have the combined opportunity and pleasure of writing at first-hand about an impending play ere it is shown in Chicago: of writing about it, that is, in praise and with enthusiasm that are a reaction either to having read the play or to having seen it elsewhere in performance. That "The Trial of Mary Dugan" is about to be shown here makes an occasion; and the most facile wording for what I think of it is to say that it is the best out-and-out melodrama shown in this country in the last fifteen years. Of course, I call it a melodrama in the accepted sense of that classification—the sense in which "Alias Jimmy Valentine" was a melodrama, or "The Deep Purple," or "The Shanghai Gesture," or that "Othello" is one, and "Macbeth" is one. To name the best native piece for comparison, I must go back through the fifteen years to "Within the Law," which merely happens to have been by the same writer, Bayard Veiller. That "Within the Law," recently revived in New York, would not click if brought out today doesn't take from the circumstance that it was the best of its period, and that the intervening years down to "The Trial of Mary Dugan" ware marked by no other piece in general kind nearly so effective. Mr. Bayard's new piece was the most satisfying of all the songless shows I saw last October and November in two weeks of intensive playgoing in New York; and that was at the very height of the stage-year there. That the season was subsequently marked by other plays that took a deserved high rating didn't detract from Mr. Veiller's achievement. The popular success of the piece, in this country and abroad, may or may not be taken as a measure of its quality: many bad melodramas have been equally successful at the box-office; but I have no reservations or qualifications when I call it what I called it above—the best out-and-out play of violent crime, intrigue, and resultant contention I have seen since "Within the Law" was new.

NATHANIEL WAGNER
He's the singer of the hero's rôle in "My Maryland."

Much attention has been paid in print to Mr. Bayard's device of not using a curtain for the beginning, the end, or the act-climaces of his play: of having the curtain up on the set stage when the audience assembles, and of treating the two entr'actes as if they were recesses ordered by the judge in the taking of testimony in a hotly-contested trial for felony. The device is immensely effective as employed in "The Trial of Mary Dugan"; but it is, after all, a stunt, as it was a stunt when Reinhardt used it in his staging of "Œdipus Rex," "The Miracle," and other works. It is as well that I add what I feel about the use of it in this play—that is, that Reinhardt has never made better employment of the scheme for the working-up of the spectater's interest before the beginning of the actual play. But "The Trial of Mary Dugan" would still be what I say it is if the routine of the performance were run off in conventional style as to curtains, intermissions, act-ends, etcetera. With the trimmings and the furbelows and the happy little tricks taken over and adapted from Reinhardt, the value of the show, as distinct from the play, is profitably heightened.

And it is easy for me to commend Miss Ann Harding for her way as Mary when I saw the play; while there is no reason to assume that she will not be just as good all but a year afterward. The late Rex Cherryman, too, was just right in the principal man's part; but that part calls less for especial skill than for charm and appeal in the personality of the actor. Given malleable performers, the matter of a good performance in this case is largely one of good direction; and when he has the essential authority Bayard Veiller is one of the most exacting directors I have known in my contacts with the theater.

My idea in writing the foregoing, it may be necessary to explain, is to persuade you to see "The Trial of Mary Dugan."

Letters About One Thing or Another.

Communiques from readers have piled up in weeks of absence from the desk. Some are brief, and some are long; some, in themselves, are clever, but not of general interest, and some are of no importance save to those who sent them in; some will be answered by post, and some will be held till space is available. Some may have sufficient attention here, as when George A. Schiller, the eager veteran of "Good News," writes to say that Figaro McGee, in his comments on the late Dan Daly, erred in calling "Sunny Jim" a song of Daly's in "The Belle of New-York" that was called "Lucky Jim." Mr. Schiller is right. He was of the original cast in "The Belle." . . . And as when M. D. calls attention to Frank Daniels' having been credited by the Signor McGee with having sung about Angeline, the Human Fly, in "The Wizard of Oz" instead of in "The Wizard of the Nile"; but that was what might be called a self-correcting error because of the context. . . . And as when James G. H. Hyde expresses the belief that I "erred grievously in permitting THE TRIBUNE to make no especial note of the death of the great Ellen Terry," although I thought that the account in this paper of her career, run in conjunction with the news of her death (which occurred in my absence), was complete and sufficient in all ways. . . . And as when Lewis Young, Lewis T. Pearsall (of Cleveland), Jason Hartman, Thomas V. MacFee, and some others assert that, in his article on Henry E. Dixey, Mr. McGee was ever so far from fact when he wrote that Dixey was a member of Weber and Fields' famous travesty-casts. Mr. McGee was right. . . . And, again, when A. A. Hildreth tells me that, so far from being the first successful play about baseball, "Elmer the Great" is not better than the second, and explains that Charles H. Hoyt's "A Runaway Colt" was an immense success before my time, I saw Hoyt's play, and shared the general belief that it was fierce; and I know that it was a quick failure.

Miscellany.

Louis Calhern is to be with Miss Florence Redd in "The Legacy," which is what the French piece named "La Riposte," by François Nozière, will be called in this country. The adaptation is by Sidney Howard, author of "They Knew What They Wanted," "Ned McCobb's Daughter," and "The Silver Cord."

Miss Jeanne Eagels' appeal to the Actors' Equity for a review of her case is not to be heard until she is able to meet with the committee appointed to pass on the matter. She is still performing for high wages in the two-a-day.

Jack Dempsey's conveyance as an actor, "The Big Fight," is put off as to its premiere from Monday till Thursday, "due," according to the press-agent, "to the enormity of the production"; and I think that is good language concerning a play with Jack Dempsey in it.

Allan Dinehart and Miss Georgette Cohan are to be in a piece named "Girl-Trouble," by the author of "Applesauce" and "The Patsy"; but Mr. Dinehart is filling in by reviving in the two-a-day the sketch named "The Meanest Man in the World," in which he and Mrs. Dinehart used to appear in the Majestic and the Palace as headliners. Mr. Cohan elaborated the sketch into a three-act play; and that wasn't too good.

Final Curtain Near for Ravinia Opera

By Edward Moore.

"Mephistopheles," produced for three seasons beginning with 1922-23.

"L'Heure Espagnole," which will be the revival in the French wing, was produced in Chicago during the 1919-20 season and has not been given since. Other performances in French which probably will be resumed are "Judith," first produced in 1926 and not given last year; "Lakme," originally produced during the 1911-12 season for Tetrazzini, revived for the 1917-18 season for Galli-Curci, and repeated in 1920-21, 1921-22, 1923-23, 1923-24, and 1924-25, for a total of fourteen performances; "Pélléas and Melisande," given four performances during the first season of the Chicago Grand Opera company in 1910-11, revived for the season of 1917-18, and repeated in 1919-20, 1921-22, 1924-25, and 1925-26, and "Thais," long in the standard répertoire of the company, but not given since 1924-25.

To Repeat Strauss Opera.

The tuneful and beautiful Strauss opera, "Der Rosenkavalier," which was a sensation of the season of 1925-26 and repeated in 1926-27, again will be on the repertoire.

The répertoire will be chosen from the following operas to be sung in Italian: "Aida," "L'Amore dei Tre Re," "The Barber of Seville," "La Boheme," "Boris Godunoff," "Madame Butterfly," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Don Pasquale," "Don Giovanni," "L'Elisir d'Amore," "Gianni Schicchi," "La Gioconda," "The Jewess," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Mephistopheles," "The Marriage of Figaro," "Norma," "Otello," "I Pagliacci," "Rigoletto," "La Tosca," "La Traviata," and "Il Trovatore"; in French, "Carmen," "Faust," "L'Heure Espagnole," "Lakme," "Judith," "Pélléas et Melisande," "Romeo and Juliet," "Samson and Delilah," "Sapho," "Tales of Hoffman," "Thais"; in English, "Die Fledermaus," and "Hansel and Gretel"; and in German, "Lohengrin" and "Der Rosenkavalier."

Of Orchestral and Other Music.

The trustees of the Orchestral association announce with pleasure the thirty-eighth season of concerts by the Chicago Symphony. Not stated, but presumably with less pleasure they add that this season there must be an increase in the price of tickets.

The orchestral pay roll, with the new advance as an agreed minimum scale for the players, will run approximately $100,000 more this year than it did six years ago, when the last scale of season ticket prices was established. The time has now come, says the announcement, when subscribers must be asked to share the increased burden by paying a little more for their tickets, and it is hoped that the response will be such that no further increase will be necessary next year.

Under the new scale season tickets for the twenty-eight concerts of the Friday afternoon series will run on the main floor $65, $60, and $48, depending upon location; the balcony, $48, $36, and $24; boxes, $600 and $480. The Saturday night series, of equal length and with the same program, is slightly cheaper, since the main floor prices will be $55, $50, and $40, the remainder of the house taking the same scale as for Friday afternoons.

The Tuesday afternoon series of twelve concerts will be priced $30, $24, and $18; the balcony, $18 and $12; the boxes, $216. For individual concerts the prices will run from 60 cents in the gallery to $3 on the main floor for concerts without soloists, and from 85 cents in the gallery to $3.50 on the main floor for concerts with soloists.

The announcement concludes with the remark that the time consumed in negotiations with the musicians' union has seriously retarded the routine of season ticket subscription details, and the plea that subscribers will kindly cooperate by giving a prompt expression of their wishes regarding renewals.

It was told some weeks ago that the winner of the $10,000 prize offered by a phonograph company for a centennial symphony in homage to Franz Schubert has been won by Kurt Atterberg, a young Swedish composer. It is now told that he did not finish the "Unfinished" symphony, but that he was awarded the prize because in the simplicity and beauty of his melodies he did not essay an equal stature with Schubert, but laid a wreath on the monument of Schubert's genius.

Atterberg is 31 years old and already has written six symphonies. They are saying his prize winning work may be performed by Willem Mengelberg and the Philharmonic Symphony orchestra in New York during Schubert week, Nov. 18-25. Whether other American conductors, Mr. Stock, Mr. Koussevitsky, and the rest, will take an equal interest in it has not yet been made public.

Francis S. Moore has been engaged as organist and choir master of the First Methodist church of Oak Park. For thirty-one years he was the organist of the First Presbyterian church of Chicago, resigning when that church merged with another. He is now presiding over a new four manual organ of the most modern construction.

Charlotte Boykin, Chicago coloratura soprano, who has been singing in Italy under the name of Carla Stuardi, has been engaged by the Philadelphia Civic Opera company for the coming season. Among other parts that she will have will be Zerbinetta in Richard Strauss' "Ariadne auf Naxos," which most singers keep away from because of its high range and difficulty. She is 22 years old.

The Schubert trio, Sara Schatz, violinist; Olga Sandor, pianist, and Beulah Rosine, cellist and director, will give a program at Hotels Windermere tonight.

ANOTHER NEWCOMER

MARGHERITA SALVI

SHE will sing coloratura soprano parts with the Civic Opera company this season, and they say she is good in voice, clever as an actress, and even slender. The picture represents her as Rosina in "The Barber of Seville." She is American by birth and has had much of her training and all of her professional appearances in Italy.

"Hello, how's fishing?" he asked.

"O, not so good today. I've caught nothing so far, but yesterday I had quite a few good big bass."

"Hm! Do you know who I am?"

"No. Who are you?"

"I'm the game warden."

"Well, whadya think o' that, and do you know who I am?"

"No. Who are you?"

"I'm the biggest liar in the state."

Ten Years Ago in Chicago Theaters

SUBJOINED are news of and comments on the plays and the shows in the Chicago theaters of a decade ago, as printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of August 25, 1918—the date most nearly corresponding to today. The excerpts are verbatim, and not rewrites or summarizations.

Miss Alice Brady has deserted the films to return to the stage. Miss Brady has a war piece, subject to the approval of Washington audiences, called "Forever After," in which the action begins in the trenches and then has frequent flashbacks to scenes at home, leading up to the presence of the hero at the front.

Miss Brady had what was, perhaps her most popular conveyance in "Forever After." She has since 1918 been back in films, and has acted in many other pieces in the theater; but she is one of the unfortunates as a picker of plays.

William Hodge comes to the Studebaker on Saturday night in "A Cure for Curables," a comedy evolved by Earl Derr Biggers and Lawrence Whitman from a short story by Corra Harris. Mr. Hodge will be seen as a young Kentucky physician who has inherited a rest-cure sanitarium from an eccentric uncle. There is a provision in the will that he must effect ten cures within thirty days or the property will pass into other hands. When the young physician takes charge of the institution he is confronted with violent opposition, aggravated by his refusal to dispense medicines and drugs to the inmates. His mandate that every inmate can be cured by a simple dose of prunes angers his fashionable patrons, who vote unanimously to desert the sanitarium in a body. He adopts drastic methods and succeeds in retaining a major portion of the patrons, whom he fools into curing themselves.

Lawrence Whitman was Mr. Hodge's nom-de-plume when he gave a hand at providing his own plays. "A Cure for Curables" was not among the most successful of those he has written.

The newly renovated and remodeled Colonial Theater will open Saturday night with Fred Stone in "Jack-O'-Lantern," which played for forty weeks in New-York last season. The comedy is by Anne Caldwell and R. H. Burnside, and the music by Ivan Caryll, the Belgian composer. These three provided Montgomery and Stone with many of their successes, notably "Chin-Chin." The cast of "Jack-O'-Lantern" numbers over 100, and includes Aileen Crater as the nurse, the Six Brown Brothers and their saxophone band, little Violet Bell, the dancer, and a liberal chorus.

"Jack O'Lantern" served Mr. Stone as well, perhaps, as anything he has appeared in since the death of David Montgomery. It is interesting to note that the authors of the piece had given to Montgomery and Stone "many of their successes," in view of the fact that they didn't write "The Red Mill" or "The Old Town," two of the four in which the "team" appeared.

"The Rainbow Girl," a musical show founded on the comedy "The New Lady Bantock," by Jerome K. Jerome, will be the offering at the Illinois tonight. Rennold Wolf adapted the farce and wrote the lyrics, and Louis A. Hirsch composed the music. Miss Beth Lydy has the title-rôle. Billy B. Van is the principal comedian.

Miss Fanny Ward, now a celebrity because of her insistence that she is years older than she really is, starred briefly in "The New Lady Bantock," which the author, himself, named "Fanny and the Servant Problem." Jerome K. Jerome, Renold Wolf, and Louis A. Hirsch are dead. Mr. Van was recently here in "Sunny Days!"

Twenty Years Ago

GOING back through the files of twenty years ago, or to the corresponding Sunday of 1908, the interests of theatergoers were catered to in THE TRIBUNE of August 23 by the paragraphs of news and comment and the entries of current entertainment that follow. The excerpts are verbatim.

Two plays new to Chicago will be added to the list of current attractions this week. These are "A Broken Idol," with which the Whitney has started its season, and "The Girl Behind the Counter," which Lew Fields brings from a season's run of forty weeks in New-York. It makes no special pretensions as to plot or story. The book of "The Girl Behind the Counter" was written by Leedham Bantock and Arthur Anderson, with music by Howard Talbot. It was adapted and Americanized by Edgar Smith, and was staged by William Mitchell and J. C. Huffman.

"A Broken Idol" is remembered as a bad show with Otis Harlan in it. The Whitney (now the Central) was in those days seeking to rival the old La Salle by selling home-made song-and-dance shows at a dollar for the best seats. . . . "The Girl Behind the Counter" was of better quality, and easily the most successful conveyance Mr. Fields has had since his parting from Joe Weber. Vernon Castle, not then a celebrity, was in it.

A third change of the week will bring "The Volunteer Organist" to the Great Northern. This play is a practical dramatization of the one-time popular song that told of a poor sinner who had fallen by the wayside and also the keg, but was finally reclaimed. Incidentally, he is an organist, and is able thereby to save a dramatic climax, volunteering to lead the service.

"The Volunteer Organist" was one of the snivel-plays regarded as simply grand by the clientèle of the Stair & Havlin theaters, of which the Great Northern was then one. It held up season after season.

"A Girl at the Helm," the new musical play by Robert H. Smith and Raymond Hubbell which will be revealed for the first time here at La Salle Theater on Saturday, September 5, will be given a week of preliminary performances in Milwaukee.

There was great excitement in Chicago's so-called Rialto because Mr. Smith and Mr. Hubbell, who had written "Fantana," displaced the collaboration of Adams, Hough, and Howard, who had written "The Umpire," "The Time, the Place, and the Girl," and "The Girl-Question."

Next Sunday Mabel Taliaferro will open the Illinois with "Polly of the Circus." It is a story of a little girl who has spent her life in the atmosphere of the sawdust ring and through an accident is thrown into a different environment.

The piece was immensely successful: and Miss Taliaferro was profitably popular in it wherever she appeared as the waif. She was at the time the wife of the late Fred Thompson, who had built Luna Park in Coney Island and the Hippodrome in New-York, and was held to be some fellow because, turning to the theater, he had scored with his first production, "Brewster's Millions."

"Ticey," William Gillette's new play, which will have its first presentation in the Chicago Opera-House Sunday evening, September 6, under the direction of Frederic Thompson, is a story of life in London, and in a measure deals with the life of the people of the stage. Mary Ryan and Frederic Lewis are to play the leads.

"Ticey," which bore few indications of Gillette's workmanship, was a quick flop. The writer of these memoria recalls that Winchell Smith acted in it, having replaced somebody or other at short notice, and that Frank Craven, then an unknown, made a personal hit in an incidental rôle.

RETURNS IN A NEW FARCE

MISS GEORGIA CAINE

SHE has the principal feminine character in the Chicago cast of George M. Cohan's farce called "Whispering Friends," to be made known here tomorrow night in the Illinois, "dark" since Miss Beatrice Lillie's engagement in "She's My Baby!" . . . Miss Caine was in Chicago as recently as the run in the Blackstone of "The Baby Cyclone," wherein, although she took part in the last act only, she was capital.

CHICAGO'S PLAYBILLS

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage-Patch": Kedzie: this afternoon, for a week.
"Whispering Friends": Illinois: tomorrow night.
"The Trial of Mary Dugan": Adelphi: Thursday night.

"Manhattan Mary," with Ed Wynn: Grand Opera-House: September 16.
"Burlesque": Harris: September 16.
The Theater Guild of New-York: Blackstone: September 17.

Sousa Sticks to Strauss.

John Philip Sousa continues to transcribe the tone-poems of Richard Strauss for use by his famous band. He began with "Don Juan," continued with "Macbeth," and now puts into his Chicago programs for September 23 "Death and Transfiguration." And in the programme for the same date here is something by another Strauss—the great Johann: his immortal "Blue Danube" waltz.

"My Maryland" Breaks In.

The Chicago cast of "My Maryland" (which includes numerous members of the original cast) is to appear next Friday and Saturday in Fort Wayne. The Chicago opening is to be next Sunday night, in the Great Northern

RESUMES ART

MISS BERNICE GAZZOLO

She's again heeding the call of her public; and she may be observed this week as Lovey Mary in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage-Patch," the world's play in the Kedzie. . . . It says young Miss Gazzolo, art influence with culture, so much the worse for culture!

HELPING OUT

MISS GENE PAUL

She's in "Elmer the Great," wherein her task is to speak some cuelines as a hotel-maid; but, then, as Miss Paul probably argues, it is something to be in a success, which the play in the Blackstone assuredly is.

New in Manhattan

These are the novelties listed this week in New-York theaters:

"Gentlemen of the Press," by Ward Morehouse, with John Cromwell and Miss Helen Flint.

"Caravan," by Clifford Demper and Ralph Cullinan, with Miss Kate Mayhew and Barry Macollum.

"Eva the Fifth," by Kenyon Nicholson, with Miss Claiborne Foster, Miss Lois Shore, and Al Roberts. . . . This is the comedy about Uncle Tom actors shown last season in the Cort as "Fly-by-Night."

"Ringside," by Edward E. Paramore and Hyatt Daab, with Robert Gleckler, Richard Taber, John Meehan, and Miss Suzanne Caubaye.

"The Money-Lender," by Roy Horniman, with Herbert Clark, Grant Stewart, and Miss Isabel O'Madigan. . . . The play was known in England as "Love in Pawn," a title used for an . . . story.

The Armchair Playgoer

By Fanny Butcher.

For those who do their theatergoing in the armchair, or who like to read the plays they see.

CHICAGO.

ANY ONE who wishes to be prepared for the opening of "The Trial of Mary Dugan" on Friday may be doubly so, for the play, which was one of last year's most conspicuous successes, has been published not only in the script of the play by Bayard Veiller, but as a novel made from the play by William Almon Wolff.

If one were going to read only one, not both, I should recommend the play without hesitation, for there is something intensely dramatic about the trial which gives, sentence by sentence, the whole history of the life of the heroine.

The novel, of course, tells of her life in the regular chronology in which her rise from poverty to the limelight of a murder trial took place, explains, justifies, a little, everything that she did. The play makes no such diverting statements. There are the facts of her life, the facts of the death of the man who was paying her rent, and your interest in the plot is in the plot alone, not in the social justification of Mary's method of earning caviar and peche melba to supplement her daily bread.

Come to think of it, however, it you are hastening to see the play, save your reading of it until after the curtain has gone down on the surprising solution of the mystery. It is grand theater so far as keeping you tense is concerned, and if you know beforehand that Mary Dugan is going to the electric chair or that her great-aunt from Hoboken drove into town for the day in her 1923 flivver and finding Mary in the arms of a gentleman neither young nor good looking, and therefore not meaning no good by Mary, whipped out the little pistol that Greatuncle Joshuy had brought back from the civil war and plunked a couple of holes in the old tom cat—if you know those things or anything like them, you'll miss the thrill that comes at the moment when you, being so much more intelligent than Janet or Esther or Bill or Steuben of your party, guessed all.

Tomorrow evening the Drama House of Chicago will present Oscar Wilde's "An Ideal Husband" at the Chicago Art theater. "An Ideal Husband" is one of the characteristic Wilde plays which were so extravagantly received by the passionately adoring London audiences of the nineties. "Lady Windermere's Fan" and "The Importance of Being Earnest" won the most gaudily ornamented brown derbys of their time, but "An Ideal Husband" was almost as prized. It may be had—and read—with "A Woman of No Importance" in one of the modern library books.

PUBLISHED.

"Short Plays from Great Stories" by Roland English Hartley and Caroline Marguerite Power [MacMillan]. An excellent method indeed of teaching the young to appreciate literature through plays and the drama through literature is this chosen by two Californians. They have put into dramatic dialogue some of the most memorable of the episodes in great literature. For those students who find novels and short stories dull, they have given a taste of their real drama, and for those students who love to play act, they have provided some of the great works of all literature. One of the most discouraging things about the production of short plays by young amateurs is the fact that most of the stuff that is available—and easy to learn—is tripe, pure and simple, and the most extravagant waste of youngster's time to learn it. This book is a treasure chest for those who have such productions to make. It is, besides, excellent and alluring reading for grown ups. There are chapters at the end of the book on production and the little theater. Come to think of it, this book sets down in type what many of us were wont to do when we were young—act out the books we read, one of the most delightful diversions in the world.

"The Front Page" Is Sordid and Profane, Mantle Finds

By Burns Mantle.

ested in the free cursing drama that centers a considerable part of its humor on the close proximity of a gent's retiring room. Such distinction as may attach to the production of what New York will soon be calling the "teriet" or lavatory, drama, will be awarded the play. But I don't believe it will be far reaching in its sustaining popularity.

The piece has been expertly staged by George Kaufman, playwright, who makes his debut in this field. It is vigorously and authentically acted by a cast headed by Lee Tracey, who made a good job of the hoofer in "Broadway."

Nude Girls and Coarse Jokes.

I have seen only one other new entertainment since I came down from the pleasant valleys. That is the new Carroll "Vanities."

His earship has spent more money than drunken sailors dream of, but I fear he has not managed to achieve the kind of entertainment revue followers demand, save in the matter of flesh display and coarse anecdotes.

The girls are as generously stripped as they ever have been. The Carroll bill for hip and shoulder straps must have been enormous. Just why he should have bought new sets of straps for each change of scene I can't figure. A sheer waste. One set of straps is much like another when the same model is wearing them. No one looks at the straps anyway.

W. C. Fields is the featured comedian and has evidently staged the broader and coarser anecdotes. There are a number of these and it is rather a pity that Fields, a genuinely amusing individual and a perfect pantomimist, should waste his time with them.

Joe Frisco, become a talking comedian since his hit some years ago as an eccentric dancer, is not much of a bargain as a funmaker, and Ray Dooley is reduced to her burlesque baby répertoire, which is much too familiar in this territory.

Novel "Machinery Ballet."

There is a novel "Machinery Ballet" with the chorus in gunmetal getups, serving as the grinding cogs and gadgets in an endlessly rhythmic dance. There is a bizarre beauty in most of the scenes and Vincent Lopez furnishes the orchestra and the music, which is loud and stringy. Still I came from the "Vanities" with the feeling that it is rather stupid entertainment. But this may be the vacation reaction.

More About Talkies.

Dear Miss Tinée:

Have seen "Lights of New York" last night and thought you'd like to know this lowly person's humble opinion of the "talkies."

I was to meet my girl friend, so I waited in front of the theater—and I had a good wait, too—so I had time to listen to comments on the picture from the people coming out of the theater.

I heard a woman say "It was poor," referring to the picture, of course, as she had just come out, and I wondered how I would like it. Well, I didn't—much.

The picture might have been all right if it wasn't for the "talking" business. The best part of the movie-tone was the whole scene in the night club, the chorus girls and music, especially the man singing "At Dawning."

Otherwise I didn't give a whoop for the "talkies." It is a wonderful invention and experiment, I must admit, and something different for a "change," but I'd rather see a silent movie and let the orchestra supply the suitable music.

I'd hate to hear a man say "I love you" via the movietone, imagining a creamy voice, when, lo! a sound like a horse spoils our sweet opinion of the movie hero.

You must think I'm an awful pessimist, Mae, but I can see good points of a movietone, too, and every picture can't have a night club or cabaret scene, with good music to make up for the rest of the picture.

Does any one agree with me?

BESS.

Against the Talkies.

Dear Mae Tinée:

I was very interested in those letters on the "talkies." I surely do not like them. In the "Street Angel" there was only whistling, and the picture could surely get along nicely without that, I am sure.

I know the public will in time get dreadfully tired of the talkies. Take the victrola, for example. It was great until the radio with human voice and music came into view. Canned music a tiresome and boresome.

I saw "Glorious Betsy" at the Granada and sat in the third row. The music was so loud that I actually had to hold my ears. Before, when you sat in front, it was some people's eyes that bothered you, but imagine having trouble with eyes and ears when you are supposed to be having enjoyment.

I have heard that in time they expect this to take the place of the stage, band and entertainment. Never! The people of Chicago will fight for our orchestra, orchestra leaders and stage band type of entertainment.

Why the big mistake of putting the Vitaphone into all the loop shows? Leave it in McVicker's and Roosevelt. Leave Chicago and Oriental alone and bring Paul Ash back.

MAXINE.

More About "Drums of Love."

Dear Miss Tinée: I always read with interest your motion picture critiques whenever I am in the city, and also on the road, whenever I can get a TRIBUNE, and I am particularly interested in your "Drums of Love" article of this date for the reason that the picture is the old play of "Francesca di Rimmini," itself founded upon historical facts, which was produced years ago, before your time, even before Percy Hammond was your boss.

But the producers have changed the locality from Italy to Portugal and have given new names to the characters and a happy ending to the story. So, if you see Doré's great picture of "Hell," where Francesca and Paolo are shown clasped in each other's arms, superimposed in the air in that final resting place of some of us, you must ignore it if you wish to retain your memory of "Drums."

In the play, Lawrence Barrett had the part of the Duke, Marie Wainwright that of Francesca, but I have forgotten the name of the man who played the younger brother and was the third party in the triangle.

I say the "Drums of Love" some weeks ago in some eastern or southern city, and that induces me to inquire why so many pictures are shown in other cities before they are shown in our own cinema synagogues in the loop.

I await with great interest your opinion of "The Girl on the Barge," when it is released, with Sally O'Neil, Malcolm Macgreggor and Jean Hersholt, for the company spent forty days making it in my old town of Whitehall, N. Y., selecting this location because of the beauty of the village and its essential requirements of Champlain barge canal, harbor, locks, barges, etc. I happened to be there for a week-end in June and saw a few scenes shot.

Yours very truly,

GEO. H. WATKINS

Editor's Note: An interesting letter, Mr. Watkins!

COMES BACK AS A STAR

MISS ANN HARDING

SHE'S the actress of the accused Follies girl in "The Trial of Mary Dugan," to be made known in Chicago Thursday night in the Adelphi. She originated the part, and acted it for months in the New-York run of the play. . . . Miss Harding, who first won Chicago attention in some, tripe named "The Horse-Thief," has since been here in "The Green Hat," wherein she was Venice, and in another bad play, "A Woman Disputed," wherein she appeared for a few weeks early in 1927 in the Olympic.

This Seems to Be It!

They're a strange, gruesome form of entertainment,—these all-star revivals! Perhaps, it's the same feeling which always kept me from liking the Zoo which withholds my enjoyment from them—a sentimental distress at seeing creatures thrust in inappropriate cages simply because they're unusual specimens.—Charles Brackett in the New-Yorker.

Stars Leap from Studio to Seaside

By Rosalind Shaffer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.[—Special Correspondence.] — Hollywood is ideally situated for the convenience of picture folk during the hot months. Twenty minutes' ride takes the tired star from the studio to the seaside. Hence, seaside colonies are plentiful along the shore and one of the delights of visiting tourists is to tour the beaches and look at the summer homes of the film stars.

Marion Davies possesses the most pretentious of many such homes. It is at Santa Monica, the beach nearest to Hollywood, and is a beautiful example of southern colonial architecture, with its two story white pillars and its bricked terraces with urns of blooming plants running down to the very breakers. It has forty rooms and elaborate, authentic furnishings.

On the same beach is the home, formerly belonging to Joseph Schenck and Norma Talmadge, which the Schencks recently sold to George Bancroft. It is English cottage style, with its own outdoor sea water pool, all inclosed by glass wind breaks, and its own private pier with dancing floor, rustic tables and chairs.

All Shipshape.

Bebe Daniels has three places. She rents them as investments. Her own is built like a ship, with bunks along the walls of a huge room and the veranda designed like an upper deck. Every bit of the furnishings is designed with comfort in view.

Norma Shearer and her husband, Irving Thalberg, are members of the Santa Monica colony, where they take a huge establishment for several months in the season.

They are expert swimmers and have a diving raft, to which they swim, a quarter of a mile from land. Only real swimmers go on Norma's parties.

Greta Garbo, with the characteristic Scandinavian love of the sea, maintains her apartment the year 'round at the Miramar hotel, a rather old fashioned, rambling, frame structure on the top of the high bluffs overlooking the beach houses. Greta and her mother going out on the pier with their baskets to buy fish are one of the sights of Santa Monica.

James Hall keeps a snug bachelor bungalow at Santa Monica. Carmel Myers has a lovely villa on the side of the cliffs, with an outdoor dining room shaded with ruge eucalyptus trees. Carmel's mother, before her death a year ago, planned it all for her, even to the peach trees in the yard and the old fashioned bricked walks through the flower beds.

Buster Keaton, with his wife, Natalie Talmadge, and the three Keaton children, maintains a house on the sands near the former home of Norma Talmadge.

Where Romance Rides the Waves.

The newest and most popular of the colonies, however, is at the Rancho Malibu. This is a romantic tract which has been jealously guarded by the owner, Mrs. Mary K. Rindge, who opened it last year to lessors. Most of the lease purchasers are motion picture folk, who have built on the spot in large numbers.

Malibu beach surrounds a bay which is sheltered by the rocks of Point Dume to the north and it is a most romantic site. In early days it was part of an old Spanish land grant. Later it was owned by a Spaniard who bought it because of the deep caves and smooth waters sheltered by rocky promontories. They made it ideal for smuggling. From these lawless hands it finally came to Fred Rindge, husband of the present owner and a settler from Marblehead, Mass. His widow has guarded it zealously, even refusing county officials permission to enter to survey for a road. Barbed wire entanglements and hard eyed cowboys armed with shot guns kept off all intruders.

A Comedienne's Quarters.

The movie colony on this romantic beach includes some sixty cottages. Louise Fazenda and Hal Walters have built an eight room bungalow, furnished with bright hemp and straw rugs, east Indian chairs and curios of all sorts, gathered from many lands. A red brick hearth, with brass kettle on the hob, and a Quimper ware tea set are ready to dispense hospitality of a cool evening around a grate fire of seawood.

Herbert Brenon has bestowed the name, Peter Pan's cottage, on his quaint English beach cottage, reminiscent of the highly successful picture he made several years ago. It is painted yellow and has neat red brick walks edged with English daisies and ferns and huge window boxes of petunias. An old row boat drawn up in the front yard behind the yellow paling fence overflows fern and flowers onto the sand. Nearby and in the same enclosure stands Ronald Colman's cottage, Beau Geste, with the same color scheme and design on a smaller scale.

Little Red Homes in the West.

Richard Dix, Clive Brooks, and his family, and Ernest Torrence and his family, have three little red cottages, as alike as three peas, all in a row at Malibu beach. Tod Browning, who has directed most of Lon Chaney's successes, has a beautifully artistic home planned by his wife, Alice Wilson, formerly an actress with D. W. Griffith. The Browning place has a huge studio window overlooking the sea. A tiny fence restrains the over-friendly Browning wire haired terrier from taking off after each passerby on the beach.

Alice Joyce has a red cottage with enclosed yard for her two children, whom she has with her.

4 New Orchestras Make Bow in N. Y.

By Alfred Frankenstein.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—[Special Correspondence.] — New York concert goers will face four new orchestras when the symphonic season opens in October. There has been a complete reshuffle. None of the old organizations remain as it was. Each of the orchestras will fuction in a different sphere.

The Philharmonic Symphony orchestra, formed last year by the merger of the New York Philharmonic with Damrosch's New York Symphony, will be what may be termed the "official" orchestra of the town. The Philharmonic conductors, Mengelberg and Toscanini, will preside, with Sir Thomas Beecham and Walter Damrosch making short guest appearances.

One Hundred Concerts Planned.

The Beethoven Symphony orchestra, which, in its two years' existence, has presented only nine programs, suddenly springs into things with a schedule of a hundred concerts for the coming season. Sixty-five of these will be given outside New York. There is particular interest in the Beethoven's plans, because it has offered itself as a laboratory for the American composer and has organized a national committee of composers, critics, and teachers for the purpose of bringing American orchestral music to light. This laudable purpose is not original with the Beethoven, but the orchestra seems to be going about it on a much more elaborate scale than it has ever been done before.

Georges Zaslawsky remains conductor of this orchestra, and there also is announced as guest conductor a name to conjure with, a name to enthuse over, a name to knock your eye out—Arthur Honegger, composer of "Pacific 231," "Judith," "King David," and other masterpieces of contemporary music. The composer's wife, the pianist, Andree Vaurabourg, also will appear, presumably playing Honegger's Concertino.

Minus a Conductor.

Another experimental group will be the American Symphonic ensemble. This orchestra will function without a conductor, in the manner of Persimphans, the famous conductorless orchestra of Moscow. The bolshevik ideology behind the formation of Persimphans is obvious, but its artistic results have, according to those who know, been worthy of imitation. It is claimed that the elimination of the starred personality of the conductor results in bringing the intention of the composer more clearly forward. Interpretation is arrived at by discussion among the participating players. It is said the players therefore feel a greater freedom and importance and the result is a greater finish and spirit in performance than can be obtained by orchestras dominated or carried by a single baton artist.

It also is said by those who know that the repertory of Persimphans is most conventional, because the orchestra is unable to play compositions its members did not learn under conductors. If this is not a libel it may be only a temporary truth. It is obvious that if the statements of the paragraph above are true a new school of orchestral virtuosity is being developed. One cannot expect it to achieve everything at once. If it persists it in time will develop players capable of attacking the most complex scores for the first time without rehearsals under a conductor. If it does not develop such players it will not persist. The establishment of this American symphonic ensemble may therefore have far reaching effects on our musical life.

Popular and Classical.

The fourth organization announced is the Polyphonic Symphony orchestra. A reticent management has allowed little except the name to leak into public hearing, but it seems that the orchestra will confine itself to popularly priced, though not popularly programmed, concerts under the direction of guest conductors.

Called Superb.

"The Noose"—have you ever seen a film like it? Richard Barthelmess, and no other, could portray such a rôle. Alice Joyce, as his mother, is compelling—the tears trickeled down my cheeks.

"The Noose" is a superb performance of mother-love. Let's have more like it and more of "Dick."

E. W. G.

A Charming Love Story.

Yesterday I saw the moving picture "Ramona" for the second time, and I must say that I enjoyed it as much as I did the first time.

It is such a charming love story, beautifully and simply told, and with excellent photography.

The sheep shearing scenes were exquisite, like the lovely pictures of Manve.

The groupings and individual pictures of each character were perfect; all told, it is a fine picture. I. L.

Patriotic.

Of the many war pictures I have witnessed "The Patent Leather Kid" rather than the perhaps greater pictures is the one I like best, appealing as it does to varied emotions, leaping from humorous situations to truly pathetic ones. Above everything was the naturalness of the fear expressed by the "Kid."

This strange yet not uncommon terror, which is not cowardice, is in strong contrast to the splendid courage displayed by his associates, White and Black, and the enthusiasm of his sweetheart, the impulsive Molly O'Day.

The suspense is painful in the closing act, which depicts his agony in being helpless to salute the flag passing by, something he had once pettishly refused to do. This, final effort, eloquent in patriotic devotion, brings a deep breath of relief from the audience.

Truly, "Lovin' your country is like lovin' your mother—you just can't help it." H. M.

More Letters from Movie Fans

Thumbs Down on Talkies.

My dear Miss Tinée: I've just thought up a good hot weather suggestion—write a letter to you. My "darling" boss should know this. I wrote to you once previously, but it appeared never to have claimed attention. However, I am not a "from-day-to-day" reader of THE TRIBUNE, reading generally only the Sunday issue [you see, I am somewhat Scotch in the pocketbook].

Now to fulfill my mission, so to say! Last night the Roosevelt theater let me enter for the price of one ticket. Thus I gazed upon "Sunrise." And right now, Miss Tinée, I'll express my opinion on the movietone and the talkies. Boring, positively! Not at all soothing upon the ears. Most people are more or less crouched into uncomfortable positions, straining to get each word of the speaker in the picture. A cough pops from one of the audience, somebody lets out a merciless titter or some such thing happens [gee, I sound like a terrible crab, but really I am one of these "very good natured plump people"].

The movietone sounds as bad as the efforts of some amateur; in fact, I think, worse. You notice here, more than you would listening to an orchestra, how some of the pieces break off to go into another piece, and somehow they don't seem to rhyme as when the visible orchestra tunes in. It hurts the finer sense of listening to good music—jazz or otherwise.

The talkies are annoying inasmuch as one finds one's self noticing the mouth of the speaker as the words come forth. Actions are hardly noted and the picture seems to drag. Furthermore, not all types of voices are pleasant. One grows just as tired listening to well modulated voices as to jerky, nervous ones. Then, too, the words don't seem to impart the same meaning as a good actor's actions. Last night, as I sat in the show, I felt just as though there were a large party, everybody was merry-making or at least doing something more or less exciting, and I sat with a couple of wall flowers, and, gosh, I find that that is not a nice feeling.

"Sunrise" did not come up to my expectations. Believe you said you found it fascinating, though not just what you like. Gee, Mae, how could you find it even fascinating? Such a hulking, clumsy, overdrawn picture. No particular location of the story, that is as to where it was taken, no particular goal aimed for, no firm plot to the story, and, gee, what not. I love Miss Gaynor and Mr. O'Brien, and enjoy seeing Miss Livingston. Each of the actors did what was expected of them, and well, though their parts were not suitable.

This letter is much too long already, so I'll let you guess how upset I was about it all, and I'll say again that I entered the theater in a jolly mood, as per usual. B. W.

Here's an Idea.

Dear Miss Tinée:

Today for the first time in my life I write a letter in expectation of publication. In your "Voice of the Movie Fan" I notice an appeal by fans addicted (as I am) to Dolores Costello.

Now, I am also a fiend for stories by Jeffery Farnol and would like to have you ask them how they would like to see the greatest combination in filmdom (Dolores and John Barrymore) play a Farnol story. If either you or the said D. C. fans have never read Farnol, do so, and hope for a film with Dolores and John.

MAC or 926.

Editor's note: Keep on hoping!

Moviegraphs

Texas Guinan, the famous night club proprietress, is to return to the screen as a Vitaphone star. Her first picture will be "Queen of the Night Club."

* *

Emil Jannings has signed a new contract with Paramount. This agreement kills the rumor that the German star planned to return to Berlin on the expiration of his first contract. He is now working on "Sins of the Father," which is to have a sound accompaniment.

* *

Eva Le Gallienne, founder and director of the Civic Repertory theater, has signed a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to appear in talking pictures. Miss Le Gallienne is quoted as saying she believes firmly in the potentiality of talking films in carrying standards of dramatic diction to the far corners of the country.

* *

James Kirkwood, who recently returned to Hollywood after a state tour in Europe, has been signed by Paramount for a rôle in Charles Rogers' second starring picture, "Just Twenty-One." The cast includes Mary Brian, Chester Conklin, and William Austin. Richard Wallace will direct.

A Sigh of Relief.

Ten years ago, I was stationed with the 46th United States infantry at Fort Sheridan. We were detailed to do guard duty. We became lax in keeping our equipment clean. After one or two Saturdays' inspections, and several reprimands, our captain—a hard boiled, but likeable regular army officer—told us that any one on the following Saturday who had a dirty rifle would serve thirty days on "kitchen police."

After cleaning and polishing for several days, I fell out for inspection. It seemed everything went all right until he got to me. After looking over my rifle carefully, he looked through the barrel, then at me. Of course my heart began to sink. I could already vision myself washing dishes for thirty long, hot days. He held the gun up for me to look through. "Do you see that dirt in there?" he asked.

Thinking I might as well make it as easy on myself as possible, I agreed.

He said, "You're a liar; there isn't any dirt in there." My buddies standing at my side told me later they could hear a sigh of relief. F. G. M.

A Voice from the Dead.

Our outfit was "Somewhere in France." Our casual replacement troops had arrived from the states, and each man was being assigned to duties best suited to his qualifications.

No one knew where Uncle Sam had found Private Joe, a regular misfit in the army, a tall, lanky, slow, superstitious soul. We had learned that only two classes of soldiers existed long in a combat outfit; the quick, and the dead, and after every effort to make Joe quick had failed we decided to place him on permanent kitchen detail.

Every ex-service man will remember the holes that were sometimes dug to take care of the refuse from temporary camps. It so happened that Joe was on this digging detail, and the unlucky one to unearth the full skeleton of a human being, which was, according to his theory, a soldier from some previous war. Thereafter, on account of his peculiar disposition, nothing but a direct order could ever induce him to dump anything into the hole.

It was one of those muddy, rainy nights so common to the A. E. F. News came to the top kick's office that Joe had been ordered, over his protest and pleadings, to carry some refuse from the kitchen to the hole. A certain noncommissioned officer lounging in the office at the time decided to watch the performance and, not wishing to get wet, wrapped a heavy piece of white canvass around his person and rushed out into the inky blackness.

Suddenly we heard a yell that seemed to split the heavens. Every one ran to the scene and to our surprise there was poor Joe floundering around at the bottom of the hole. After being fished out, scraped off and assured that he was still alive, he told us what had happened.

He had crept up to the hole, balancing himself on his shaky legs, when a large, white object arose from the blackness and a voice cried out, "Don't throw that stuff down on me." Joe had tried to run, but the mud was too quick for him, and down he went to the bottom.

He was puzzled over the fact that the dead soldier spoke in perfect English, but he always believed that the voice was from the dead. R. L. H.

The New Captain.

About ten years ago, I was in the supply company of the 129th infantry, 33d division, and we were going toward the French village of Bretna. Orders were given for two battalions to move up to the front. As an orderly, I was given a message to deliver to Lieut. Ramond who was in charge of Company E.

Arriving at Lieut. Ramond's dugout, I handed him his message. It was his promotion to a captaincy. He asked me to come in, but I hesitated as I was late, my horse was restless, and I had many other messages to deliver.

I hadn't left the new captain more than ten minutes when a shell dropped on the dugout taking his life.

English Scientist and Irish Marquis Among the Visitors

By Mme. X.

IN THESE last days of summer there is little of local social importance for the chronicler of polite society to record. People are trickling back from summer outings, and plans are being made for autumn happenings. There are, however, a few visitors from foreign parts of more than casual importance.

Sir James Colquhon Irvine, a distinguished English scientist, visited this part of the country recently, making the Northwestern university his headquarters. His specialty is chemistry and he was of especially notable service to his country during the recent war, when by his researches he was able to supply certain necessary chemicals in synthetic form that the English up to that time had always got from Germany.

He is high commissioner of St. Andrews university at Edinburgh, one of the oldest and most famous of the educational institutions of England. This is an honor conferred only on men who have achieved the highest position in some department of English culture. I believe Lord Rosebery, the famous British statesman, and Sir James Barrie, the equally celebrated English author, are among those who in past times have held this office. Perhaps I am mistaken in this, but this is the impression I have received from the account of it given by some Englishman who seemed to know about it.

Too Many Volumes.

I well remember a description of the inaugural address delivered by Lord Rosebery, when, referring to the great library of the university, he was reported as saying something to the effect that there are many, too many books in the civilized world today and that more than half of them could be destroyed with no loss to the nations owning them. He said, or is said to have said, that he would advocate a rigorous discarding of some of the enormous number of volumes that cumbered the shelves of such an institution as the library at Edinburgh and which no one from generation to generation ever took down from the shelves unless it might be to dust them. Good sense and courage such a remark showed. I always have wondered whether he carried out his suggestion.

Another distinguished Britisher who is coming here in September is the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava. This is an ancient Irish title and the present bearer of it is the president of the senate of northern Ireland. One of the affairs for him will be the dinner in his honor that Mr. and Mrs. David Adler are giving at Shoreacres on Friday, Sept. 7. He will doubtless be the object of much hospitality during his stay here. The fact that he is a bachelor may add to his attractiveness in the opinion of some.

Mrs. Upham Honored.

Apropos of matters foreign and notable is the appointment of a well known Chicago woman, Mrs. Frederick Upham, to the American commission which will represent this country at the international exposition to be held at Seville, Spain, and which opens March 15, 1929. Others on this commission are Thomas E. Campbell, commissioner general; Miss Agnes Repplier, the well known writer; Helen Varick Boswell, and Roderick N. Matson.

It is long since Spain has given a party of this kind. I think that at the same time that we in this country were celebrating the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of this country, there was a smaller festival commemorating it in Spain. That was in 1892-'93. At the moment I cannot recall any other international affair undertaken by the Spanish government.

More and more are the American tourists making Spain their main object in undertaking a foreign outing. It is a country of historic and picturesque appeal. Spanish painters and paintings are among the foremost in the estimation of today's critics. From the days of Velasquez down, taking in Goya and his contemporaries, up to the present era of Zuloaga and his school, Spanish artists have made their mark. There is in the art of this people a strength, a vivid sense of color, an emphasis on light and shade rare among painters of other less picturesque lands. When you think of Spain, bleak, bare mountains, violently blue skies, intensely green foliage, castles, remote and austere, haughty hidalgoes wrapped in dark, all enveloping cloaks, lovely señoritas peeping out from Spanish lace headgears, or draped in mantillas, dark eyed youths strumming guitars and casting languishing eyes up to barred windows—all these and other things peculiar to the Iberian peninsula come to the mind's eye. The history of Spain is unlike that of any other European peoples.

The original race there has been so mixed with that of the Latins and other ancient Mediterranean peoples, and the Moorish occupation which lasted several hundred years, left such a deep mark on its civilization that today's result both outward and inward is quite different from that of any of the immediate neighbors of Spain. Today, with its political developments and ideals, has hardly touched Spain. We moderns can still taste the medieval atmosphere that once prevailed all over the continent after the fall of the Roman empire and when the renaissance set in.

It All Depends.

The social customs of Spanish family life seem to us of today strange and bespeaking another age from this free, gay era of ours. There it is not permissible for a married woman to dance with any one but her husband. She never goes out alone, nor do the young girls of society. The latter are not supposed to receive young men unless a chaperon is present. The home life is almost as secluded as it was in the time of the Moorish occupation. The man of the family usu-

Newport Refuses to Close Up Houses as Autumn Nears

By Nancy Randolph.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 25. — [Special Correspondence.]—Newport affects great scorn of the conventional Labor day ending of the summer season. Indeed, October and November find many of the great houses open and their owners in residence for the week-ends, at any rate. However, while turning a blind eye to Labor day, the Rhode Island resort nevertheless recognizes its approach by a speeding-up of social and sporting activity.

What with the annual tennis meeting, golf matches, and the yacht races for the King's cup, this has been indeed a busy week for the notables. The entire fleet taking part in the New York Yacht club's annual cruise put into Newport at the beginning of the week and, with flags flying and tenders darting back and forth between ships and shore, presented a lively sight.

Yachts Throng Harbor.

More than a hundred varied craft, from graceful schooners to stolid power yachts, and including both the beautiful bark Aloha of the Arthur Curtiss Jameses and Commodore Astor's new Nourmahal, the largest yacht afloat, thronged the harbor.

Among them were the Agawam of Mr. and Mrs. Van Rensselaer W. Bartram; the Colleen, with Gherardi Davis aboard; the Iris of W. A. W. Stewart, the Onawa, with Capt. W. Cameron Forbes; the Sachem, with Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Metcalf; the Shuttle with Junius Spencer Morgan Jr.; the Thistle, with Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Tod; the Vagrant, with Harold S. Vanderbilt; the Vanitie, with George Nichols; the Venture, with William Greenough; the Viking, with Mr. and Mrs. Myron C. Taylor, and the Whileaway, with Harry Payne Whitney aboard.

Making Up for the Loss.

Tennis week is naturally a tradition. Newport has never ceased to mourn that the national championships, once its inalienable right, were taken away as the popularity of the game grew. But the present series of invitation tournaments are quite as much of a social matter as the ancient championships.

Many of the competitors have been house guests at various "cottages" this week and luncheons galore have been given in honor of the players. Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice had seventy guests at Miramar, while others giving tennis luncheons included Mr. and Mrs. Norman De R. Whitehouse, at Sea Edge; Mrs. E. Bruce Merriman, at Gull Rock, and Mrs. Eustis Paine.

The W. Goadby Loews gave a dinner for forty at Stoneacre, and other dinners were given by Mr. and Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Binney, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Morgan, and Sidney Dillon Ripley.

Astors Act as Hosts.

Wednesday saw the tennis players lunching at Beechwood, where the Vincent Astors played host and hostess, later taking many of the guests out to the Nourmahal for an inspection of that now famous craft. The next day Mrs. William Goadby Loew and Mrs. Barger Wallach gave a luncheon for the players at Bailey's beach.

The galleries at the tennis matches were unusually brilliant. New frocks appeared like flowers in a garden show. Among those watching the play during the week were Mrs. Arthur W. Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor, Florence Havemeyer, who appeared with her fiancé, George Robinson; Mrs. Philip Rhinelander II., Louise Van Alen, who is being squired assiduously by Prince Alexis Mdivani, already booked up to be one of the lions at Palm Beach this coming winter; Maj. and Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Julia Berwind, Mrs. Dudley Pierrepont Gilbert, Mrs. William Goadby Loew, Mrs. Julian R. Sloan, Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, Mrs. James Stewart Cushman, Mrs. William Laimbeer, Mrs. Benjamin Royal Holcombe, and Mrs. C. Whitney Carpenter Jr.

Golf, despite the presence of the tennis notable, has not suffered. Tuesday saw play begin at the country club for the cup offered by Edward J. Berwind, the club's president.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

ally spends his evenings away from his domestic circle, at a restaurant or café, sipping his glass of oporto and playing backgammon or some other game with his pals. To us Americans it sounds like a deadly dull and uninteresting existence, at least for the women. But in this life it all depends on what you are used to, and the Spaniards must like this manner of living or they could have changed it long ago.

While on the manners and customs of other countries I'll share with you a letter recently received from a well known Chicagoan who spent several weeks motoring through German provinces. He speaks of the almost entire lack of automobile traffic on the country roads, but goes on to say that these same highways are more trouble to navigate than any American roads, by reason of the enormous numbers of bicycles.

"Motoring in Germany presents difficulties the states know nothing about," he writes. "An overwhelming number of cycles are used here by every class of persons and none of them really knows how to ride; also, they carry with them poles, rakes, fowls, funeral wreaths, or the day's marketing, and, steering with one hand, they veer like a cutworm over the road. One never knows whether the workman is tipsy, dazed, or just absent minded, so uncertain is his course."

Too Much Freedom.

Furthermore, he says: "The German is in a bad way, anyway. Relieved of the strict discipline of prewar days, he seems unable to cope with his freedom." And so forth and so on. This traveler, who knows his Germany as few Americans do, being of German descent and speaking the language as well as he does English, bewails the change that has come over that once well organized people.

"His greatest sin," he continues, speaking of the average German, "is his forgetfulness and lack of interest."

Perhaps he, my tourist correspondent, does not realize what a strain it is for any long subjugated people to appreciate the splendor and value of independence. Its light might well daze and blind them, and send them staggering along the road until they learn what personal freedom means to them.

If the eighteenth amendment should get complete control of us Americans we might also stagger and reel along the road as do the Germans. Some of our fellow countrymen are noted for this ungraceful gait in other countries where they have free access to liquor. We are a byword abroad for the open and unconcealed drunkenness prevalent among many American tourists. Such strict control as that under which old Germany used to exist is bound to weaken initiative and capacity for self-direction and self-control in any nation. Let us learn the lesson taugh by Germany today.

Mary Borden Again.

While on this topic of personal opinion on national characteristics, it is not malapropos to touch on another of Mrs. Mary Borden Spiers' articles in the London Spectator. A fortnight ago I commented on a contribution of hers to this same English mirror of the times on the subject of American men. This present one, on American women, is, like its companion essay, extremely well written. She has the gift of words and uses them in a masterly manner. Chicago born and bred, she nevertheless looks at us as from a great distance, almost one might call it a superior height. Seen from above, a good many of our characteristics do not look natural.

Whereas that brilliant observer, Emil Ludwig, commented on the fact that he saw no old or even elderly women here as they are reckoned in his country, Mary Borden says the American woman fails to wear well. "At the age of 40 she probably becomes peevish, and has nerves, and toward 50, her life frustrated, she turns to religion or bridge or becomes either a colorless individual or a fanatic." Furthermore, she attributes this early atrophy of the American woman to the great hunger of life of her country, "which sucked her dry, drained the blood from her veins, and cast her aside, a disappointed, insignificant old woman."

Again I have to say to clever, attractive Mary Borden: "Grand language, my dear, but nothing doing!" Look at Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. Borden Harriman, Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. Charles Sabin, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, Miss Mabel Boardman, and a lot of other noted social leaders, no longer young, who are anything but colorless, or fanatic, or afflicted with nerves or peevishness.

She goes on to say that the American woman is a nervous creature. "She is never still, but always graceful. She understands movement, but not repose. She dances beautifully. She talks incessantly. She fears silence and solitude. Child of skyscrapers, cinemas, prairies, motorcars, saxophones, she has a craving for noise, activity and crowds."

Cinemas and prairies—that's an odd combination to be considered a source of commotion and excitement. Prairies as we know them are large, placid, tranquil and utterly unexciting.

Their "New Antiques."

When she goes on to say of the American woman, "Antiques must be new antiques, new that is, to her, just arrived from the other side of the Atlantic; otherwise she won't look at them," one wonders what kind of American women Mrs. Spiers met. Certainly not those smart, fashionable and ultra-clever women who ransack the out of the way corners of this country to equip their country houses with the most charming and veritable examples of early American or colonial furniture, glass, and china. The sapient woman of this land does not go to Louis XVI. or the Medicis for her furnishings nowadays. That is an out of date mode.

This article is another instance of the temptations into which the wielder of a nifty pen can involve him or herself. "New antiques" sounds snappy and sarcastic, but is really a pitfall for the writer using the phrase, as it fails to catch its intended victim, the hapless American woman.

The business women in America, however, are pleasing to the eye of our Americo-British critic. Of them she approves; to them she accords what commendation she has to bestow; to them she gives her best in the way of language, and that is saying much. She maintains that they are happy; that they are in tune with their country and their age.

"The mind of America does not understand idleness, but it understands work, and it approves of these women, who are helping to develop the vast resources of the country, who are a vital and harmonious part of the great abounding energy, enthusiasm, and optimism of the nation."

And so on. She does not say they are insects crawling on the outside of their monstrous machines, as she describes American men. Also she misses a fine opportunity of handing a well earned bouquet to the American man by saying that it is to him alone that the American woman owes her splendid and unrivaled freedom to enter on any sphere of activity she selects, a privilege that is denied her sex in older countries by the men of those lands. Insignificant, ignoble, leechlike, as he is, according to her verdict, the homo-Americanus merits some recognition as being the main agent to make possible the American woman in business. He, and he alone, has so developed the vast natural resources of this country as to enable her to enjoy her present freedom.

As Others See Us.

If the American woman at 50, "sucked dry by her country, the blood drained from her veins, becomes a disappointed, insignificant old woman," as she does, according to Mrs. Spiers, the American man "at 40 turns to fat quickly and becomes bald and a bore to women, with his lonely city office his only refuge after a life devoted to business."

Really, I didn't know our lively middle aged people could become so unpleasant in the eyes of a visitor from the other side of the great pond. As I look about on the people I know in this period of life so vigorously described by our ex-Chicagoite, I fail to see any likeness to the portraits she so forcibly draws. I could name a dozen, fifty, or even a hundred and more men and women among my intimate acquaintances well within this ghastly circle of senile dementia who conceal it under a gay and agreeable guise of alert intelligence that makes them delightful companions.

Well, well, it is a wholesome experience to see ourselves as others see us. May we profit by it!

Mrs. Sherfesee Recovering.

Apropos of delightful and attractive matrons, Mrs. Forsythe Sherfesee's friends hereabouts will be glad to know of the latest bulletin as to her speedy approach to good health. Her physicians now say that in a month she will be entirely restored to her former self and able to take up life where she left off at the outset of the severe attack of rheumatic fever which has beset her since June. This is better news than any one had hoped for, as so serious was her illness that it was feared a long convalescence lay ahead of her, though her ultimate recovery was promised by her doctors.

I am told that rheumatic fever is dreaded as one of the worst scourges by hospital nurses and doctors. It is agony to the patient and also, what few people realize, it is one of the most contagious of diseases and one to which nurses are liable.

Mrs. Sherfesee, before her marriage last autumn to Forsythe Sherfesee of Pekin, was one of Chicago's society leaders, and she is widely known both for her delightful hospitality and for her philanthropic and other valuable activities. The fact that she will probably make her home in the east and in Europe henceforth is bad news here. Her charming house on Lake View avenue has been leased to the Wolcott Blairs for a term of years, and she doubtlessly will divide her time between her place near Cooperstown, N. Y., and in foreign travel. She has a long lease on an apartment in Paris and owns a house in the New Forest, in one of England's loveliest regions.

So one more of the notable persons who have given life, color, gayety, and distinction to Chicago's social side is leaving us. Those delightful Sunday buffet luncheons that she used to give in her Chicago home and which brought people of all ages and outlooks together will be no more. Her friends at these gatherings had the opportunity of meeting many of the celebrities who visited this country, notabilities like Hugh Walpole and Beverly Nichols. She will be more missed than most of us would be in this hurrying, preoccupied world of ours.

Only An Item.

What a world it is in which we live today if it be judged by our daily papers! A world in which the big is little and the little is exaggeratedly large, or else our sense of relative importance is out of joint. On Aug. 16 the Chicago dailies announced, at the bottom of a column in the inner part of the paper on the financial page, the resignation of H. B. Thayer from the office of chairman and director of the American Telegraph & Telephone company. It was as tersely recorded as is possible in the English language; namely, in twelve words in which it took five words to give the name of the company, and yet it told of the retirement of the chief official of one of the biggest corporations in the world today—a corporation having a capitalization of a good deal more than two billion dollars, I'm told.

On the front pages were various items of relatively slight import, if money and financial power be taken as a measure of comparative value. Perhaps Mary Borden is right when she says the American financier finds the world "a lonely place except for the machines in it whose wheels are whirling, whirling, ceaselessly whirling."

Mrs. Stanley McCormick Returning.

Many Chicagoites will be pleased to learn that Mrs. Stanley McCormick is to be here this coming winter. She has taken an apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. McCormick was born and brought up in Chicago, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wirt Dexter, were prominent in the last quarter of the nineteenth century. Since her marriage she has lived in Boston, New York, and Switzerland, and she also has a charming country house at Marion, Mass.

A Peer and Great Sportsman Marks His Golden Wedding

By La Dauphine.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Not all of the late summer sport in Britain is to be found north of the old Roman wall. For example, one of the peers with the greatest resources for entertaining is the earl of Lonsdale, whose possessions around Penrith, to the south of the historic town of Carlisle, run to something like 175,000 acres. The earl, who fills a host of official postions in the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland and in the army, gives his leisure to racing and boxing. He encourages the wrestling matches on his native heath, which he has done much to revive in recent years. He is also a famous host, and on occasion has entertained such royalties as King George and his father. He was even known, many years ago, to have done the honors to that somewhat discredited personage of high title who now happens to be the leading nobility of Doorn.

The fifth earl of Lonsdale, present holder of the title, descends from an ancient family whose seat has long been Lowther hall or castle in Westmoreland. It so happens that the immense Lowther—now Lonsdale—estates cover much of the most interesting and picturesque part of the lake district. Here lies not only the Wordsworth country to the west, but nearby is the Charlotte Bronte, or rather Jane Eyre, country. From the terrace of Lowther castle there is a magnificent view over the marvelous region of Cumberland, with the superb expanse of Ullswater beginning about three miles west of Lowther park, while inward the far horizon about may be seen the noble forms of Helvely and Saddleback. Not far to the north is the home which Lord Brougham decorated with such eccentric magnificence, and a few miles further on, to the northeast, is that Eden hall whose legend of the glass goblet forms the subject of Longfellow's poem, "The Luck of Eden Hall." This goblet, which was not shattered to bits as the poem would lead us to suppose, now reposes safely in the Bank of England.

An Honorable History.

The Lowthers, since time out of mind, have been important land owners in this region; and later also became powerful parliamentarians. As early as the twelfth century they had interests on both sides of the Trent. Sir Richard Lowther, who happened to be high sheriff of Cumberland in the days of Queen Elizabeth, imprisoned Mary Queen of Scots when she fled to Cumberland in 1568; but he incurred Elizabeth's displeasure for admitting the duke of Norfolk to visit the pulchritudinous Mary while she was in custody of Carlisle castle. Late in the seventeenth century the title of Viscount Lonsdale was conferred on John Lowther, who, in an age of extreme legislative corruption, refused to handle parliamentary bribes for King William. Nearly a century later, in 1784, the title was raised to an earldom.

Though the present Lord Lonsdale's activities in the realm of sport have a wide range, and he is better known as a strong supporter of boxing, his first love is the horse. In some capacity he is attached to almost every horse breeding society in England. It was Lord Lonsdale who founded the international horse show, which is held each June in London, and he was instrumental in obtaining the patronage and support of the leading breeders of American show horses. One of the most popular features of this annual show is the class for coster donkeys which Lord Lonsdale introduced with the inauguration of the show. Since that time it is rare to find an illfed or ill conditioned donkey in England.

His love for boxing dates from his college days, and since that time he has done more to encourage and improve the manly art of self defense than any other man in the world. He first offered the famous Lonsdale belts in 1909, and at that time he drew up the well known Lonsdale scale of weights and conditions to govern championship contests, putting up a belt for each weight. About a dozen of these belts, valued at $2,500 each, have been won outright, all of which shows that Lord Lonsdale's love for the sport costs him a considerable sum.

Their American Alliances.

In recent years some of the sons of this family have had alliances or interests in America. For example, Sir Gerard A. Lowther, grandson of the third earl of Lonsdale [who died about a dozen years ago after service as ambassador to Constantinople], married in 1905 Alice Blight, daughter of Atherton Blight of Philadelphia. His brother, Harold, who was born in 1864, has a ranch near Billings, Mont. The present Lord Lonsdale married Lady Grace Cecilie Gordon, a sister of the Marquess of Huntly, who married Mrs. James MacDonald of Cincinnati.

Late in June Lord and Lady Lonsdale celebrated their golden wedding and the affair, attended by the king and queen, was one of the last big social events of the London season. On this occasion their royal guests sat a dinner table decorated in Lord Lonsdale's racing colors of red, yellow, and white. In the center of the table was a magnificent gold casket, the gift of sportsmen throughout the world, and presented to the earl at a ceremony the night before by the Prince of Wales. The thirty-two guests sat at four small tables on which were racing cups and other trophies won by Lord Lonsdale.

Notables Watch Bar Harbor Show

BAR HARBOR, Me.—[Special Correspondence.]—The annual horse show took place this week, with many notable visitors in the gallery, including Henry Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford, and their children, Henry II. and Benson Ford; Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr. and their son, Nelson Rockefeller; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Livingston and their sons, Philip and Benedict Livingston, and Edgar G. Young. In Mrs. Henry F. Dimock's box were her daughter and the latter's husband, Signor Giuseppe Cataland. Others present included Charles E. Sampson, Miss Gertrude Sampson, and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick.

Deauville Season Nears Its Close

By May Birkhead.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Deauville again takes the palm for the most popular French seaside resort. The season here, though short, has a point of similarity with Paris in the June season in the supreme attraction of horse races. Like Paris, its Grande Semaine and its Grand Prix are terminating the season, after which the crowd scatters, half going either to Biarritz or Venice, while the other half goes to England or Scotland for shooting.

Few of the huge crowd here for the big week know the history of this part of the Normandy coast or realize that Deauville drew throngs long before the term "Grand Semaine" was thought of. La Plage Fleurie, as Deauville is sometimes called, while not very old, was one of the first beaches having a brilliant social success.

Made Famous by Dumas.

It was Trouville that started the fashionable vogue, later transferred to its sister, Deauville. Under the second empire both places began to flourish. Alexander Dumas, by a series of bright articles, drew the world's attention to Trouville, which in 1860 was called the Boulevard des Ittaliens of Normandy beaches. This means the last word in elegance.

Sea bathing scarcely existed. Women with crinolines dressed up five or six times daily, and it was still fashionable to faint or at least to produce the smelling salts on the slightest provocation. When they ventured to swim, a rope divided the men from the women.

Founded by Nobleman.

The Hotel des Roches Noires, at Deauville, was the most expensive hostelry and is the most fashionable hotel in Normandy today. The greatest racing feature is the present Grande Semaine, called Prix Morny, taking its name from the Duc de Morny, who founded Deauville and its picturesque race course. This second empire nobleman first built a villa along the sand dunes. On Aug. 18, 1864, he inaugurated the race course which today is generally conceded to be the most beautiful in France. It was instantaneously the rage.

All the fashionable folk drove in their coaches from Paris. For the first season, comprising only two days, the prizes for the races amounted to 23,000 francs [about $4,600]. A statue to the Duc de Morny was erected in the heart of Deauville, but after the fall of the second empire it was torn down.

Today the only statue erected to the memory of any one of Deauville's promoters is the bust of the late M. Cornuche, who started his career as a dishwasher in a Paris restaurant, was later maître d'hôtel, and founded the famous gambling rooms of Deauville's casino.

Copelands Coming Here.

Among the Chicagoans at Deauville are Ira Nelson Morris and his wife, who have also been at Letouquet, further up the coast. Frederick K. Copeland and his wife, after traveling during the summer, are sailing home the middle of September.

Mary Landon Baker is spending the early part of the autumn in Venice. She is a frequent hostess and recently gave a picnic, taking her guests in gondolas across the lagoon to Torcello, an island five miles from the city.

Polo Is Attraction at Narragansett

NARRAGANSETT, R. I. — [Special Correspondence.]—Polo at the Point Judith Polo club was the feature of the week, perfect weather bringing out a huge crowd on Monday to watch the first of the matches for the Rhode Island cup. The Westchester Newport team was defeated by the Fox Hunter by 10 goals to 5.

Among those in the gallery were Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Fell, Mr. and Mrs. William V. Logan, Mrs. Balfour S. Craib, Josephine Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Durkee, Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Ehret, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Cooley, and Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Van Valzah.

Another event of the week was the buffet supper for sixty guests, given by Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hall Smith. The guests included Lady Beecham, Mr. and Mrs. Hanford Mead Twitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Purdy, Dorothy Bush, Frank R. Shumway, and Marjorie Speakman.

Byrd's Voyage to Antarctic Will Cost $500,000

If Commander Byrd were to take with him to the antarctic all the gadgets and doodads which have been offered, the expedition would need several ships the size of the Leviathan. As it is, a list of the required equipment includes more than 1,200 items, even after carefully weeding out unessential details. The trip will cost more than $500,000.

Enterprising tradesmen, especially food manufacturers, engaged in a mad rush to get Byrd to accept their products gratis. It is quite a distinction, you see, to be able to say that a certain article kept men hale and hearty through the privations of an antarctic winter.

One company, for instance, offered to donate a ton of chocolate yeast. A good food, undoubtedly, but a ton takes up a lot of badly needed space. Another firm wanted Byrd to carry a huge consignment of its cough drops. And he has received hundreds of samples of trick designs in cold weather clothing.

Take Three Airplanes.

The expedition's staff of advisers has spared no pains to anticipate the needs of the men on the ice. The work of the party will require a year or two of isolation in the antarctic wastes and no deficiencies can be made up after leaving civilization. Their lives depend on the foresight of the outfitters. Scott perished in the cold because of a few mistakes, and Byrd is taking no chances. He started the preparations for this expedition while still at King's bay, Spitsbergen, two years ago.

First in importance, of course, were the problems of transportation. A ship, the Samson, since renamed the City of New York, was procured. Although rather smaller than desired, it is a sturdy craft especially built for ice breaking. On it will be carried three airplanes—a large three motored Ford and two smaller ones for scouting work. The larger one is capable of taking off with a big load at a high altitude.

The antarctic plateau is 10,500 feet high and there are few planes which can fly heavily loaded at 13,000 to 14,000 feet.

Clothing Important.

When clambering on foot over glacier bound mountains, the explorers will be outfitted with implements from the icy regions of the earth. The skis are from Norway, and climbing rope, ice axes, alpenstocks and ski-poles have been purchased in Switzerland. The costly experience of generations of Alpinists will rebound to the benefit of Byrd's gallant crew.

Bases will be set up on the ice to house the men and to permit the scientists to carry on their work. A new type of antarctic house will be used. This is a collapsible wooden affair, built to give protection against the extreme cold without sacrificing proper ventilation. Machine shops manned by experienced craftsmen will be set up for repairing equipment. Carpenters and mechanics are included in the party, as well as two or three Eskimos for sewing fur clothing.

Clothing is one of the most important requisites of the expedition. The temperature falls to seventy-five degrees below zero where Byrd will winter, and the antarctic storms are the worst in the world. Consequently the clothes to be used are of the highest possible quality.

Furs from Alaska.

The furs are all from Alaska, having been prepared by the Eskimos. The parkas are of reindeer skin linbd with fawnskin, and they are large enough to go over plenty of heavy underclothing and yet allow freedom of movement. Caps are of fur too, and there are socks made with fur inside to absorb the moisture from feet inclosed in many pairs of stockings. The moisture goes through the stockings and fur on to the hide, lessening the danger of frozen feet.

For sleeping, all sorts of heavy wool blankets have been provided, as well as sleeping bags. These latter are of reindeer, with an outer bag of canvas. Some of the men will be supplied with air mattresses but to hardened adventurers these are of minor importance.

Food is a difficult problem because of the danger of scurvy and the difficulty of preserving eatables at extremely low temperatures. Tin in which most foods are packed, crystalises and crumbles away at 30 below zero. Nevertheless, tin must be used to a large extent, but it will be coated with some protective metal.

Equipped with Radio.

Cooking will be done chiefly with oil or canned heat stoves. Some of them look like plumbers' blow torches, and one is specially designed to stay alight in the worst blizzard. There are several cooks attached to the party, but it is a saying that anything you start to cook while on the ice turns into a stew anyway. The firearms, which are depended upon to supply fresh meat, are mostly standard models, but some are convertible pistols which can be used as short rifles.

Exploring is only half the explorer's task; preparing for the trip is the harder half. But the Byrd expedition is well prepared for any emergency. It must be, for they will be locked behind an icy barrier 2,300 miles from the nearest human habitation.

There is little reason to expect that Byrd's men will suffer the hard fate of those of Scott and Nobile. They will be well protected from ill health or accident. Radio outfits will keep them in constant communication with the world. Even the danger of a deficiency of sunlight has been foreseen for they are taking along an electric artificial sun.

DRESSES FOR "75 BELOW."

CLOTHING is one of the most important requisites in antartic exploration. Commander Richard E. Byrd's polar costume is of reindeer skin lined with fawnskin, and is large enough to go over plenty of heavy underclothing.

Yachts Dot Coast at Southampton

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y.—[Special Correspondence.]—Southampton has not been devoid of yachting interest. The Sebonaic basin has been dotted with white craft, easily visible across the dunes from the golf links. Harry S. Black, with Mrs. Black, the former Isabel May, arrived on the Brook II., Percy R. Pyne's yacht. The Edward F. Huttons' Hussar is at Southampton, as are H. Nelson Slater's Phantom, Wolcott Blair's Helena, James N. Stillman's Winona II., and Col. H. H. Rogers' Fankwai.

One of the largest luncheons of the week was that which the Robert M. Littlejohns gave at the Beach club, with the guests seated at large tables in the spacious living room and looking past gayly colored awnings to the ocean.

Public Musicale Planned.

Among those present were the Earl and Countess of Effingham, Mr. and Mrs. W. Albert Pease Jr., Prince and Princess Rospigliosi, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Daly, Mr. and Mrs. G. Latham Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax S. Landstreet, Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor Terry, Dr. and Mrs. Fenton Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Louis De G. Milhau, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schermerhorn, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan Preston, Mrs. Edward Van Ingen, Mrs. Robert Franklin Adams, Vincent S. Mulford, and Carol Mulford.

Southampton is looking forward to Sept. 6, when Wooldon Manor, the summer home of the James P. Donohues, will be opened for a public musicale. Rafaelo Diaz and Miss Leslie Frick will be the soloists.

Comings and Goings.

Among those arriving and departing were Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Bache Pratt, who came on the Majestic on Tuesday from abroad. Mrs. Frederic Frothingham of Texico arrived to visit Mr. and Mrs. Alson McCook Beard.

Carol Mumford, whose engagement to H. Christian Sonne was announced last week, left Southampton for Newport, to be the guest of Margaret Pritchard at Shamrock Cliff, the Pritchard villa at the Rhode Island resort.

Mrs. Olcott Gives Party at Saratoga

SARATOGA, N. Y.—[Special Correspondence.]—This week completed the fourth of the current racing season.

Quite the event of the week was the garden party given by Mrs. Chauncey A. Olcott for Mrs. William A. Prime at Inniss Carr. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Alexandre, Cornelia Prime, William Prime, Mrs. James R. Deering, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Theriot, Mrs. George Mesta, and George B. Post.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Widener were the dinner guests of Mrs. W. Averill Harriman before they left on Tuesday for Newport.

Dr. Frank Billings is the guest of C. G. A. Billings this week, while Charles Hayden is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin.

Many Fine Exhibitions Seen at Institute

East Wing Houses Paintings of Seven Well Known Artists

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE last letter to be sent out by the Art institute this season contains an excellent summary of the exhibitions current in the temporary galleries in the east wing, that place which can be beyond heat, hot but which earnest efforts are making comparatively cool. The summary runs along something after this fashion:

Paintings by Karl A. Buehr, Paul Trebilcock, J. Theodore Johnson, John A. Spelman, Charles A. Willimovsky, Francis Chapin, and Carl Wuermer.

In Mr. Buehr's group are a number of distinctive figure paintings—young girls and women in graceful positions, seated or standing on outdoor porches, with a wealth of flowers behind them and around them, and nearer at hand a still life arrangement of table and cloth, fruit, glass, china, and flowers, each detail marvelously executed and the entire composition a study in charm and repose.

Pastoral New York.

The canvases by Carl Wuermer are landscapes of the pastoral country around eastern New York. Do not mistake the reference to New York to mean the city. One might then question the justice of the "pastoral."

Paul Trebilcock has a group of portraits, several of them likenesses of Chicago notables. Among them are portraits of ex-Mayor William E. Dever, Dr. W. A. Granville, Dr. C. N. Johnson, Charles H. Burkholder (who, by the way, is secretary of the Art institute), Miss Charlotte Eckhart, Miss Catherine Gardner, and Miss Jane McIntosh. One question: Did Paul Trebilcock ever paint again the portrait of Dr. Johnson's daughter (or was she his granddaughter?) At all events, neither she nor her husband, nor any one else, liked the portrait—it was discussed with their consent in this column last spring—and what happened?

Among the portraits exhibited by J. Theodore Johnson are those of Prof. Henry J. Cox, Marie Hubbard, Miss Elizabeth Eckhart, and of the artist's wife, Mary. Landscapes form another important division of his exhibit.

Francis Chapin presents only landscapes and these are exceptionally painted, with a warm color and a richness of imagination that make them linger in the memory.

Willimovsky shows the country of Wisconsin, in particular the virgin timber in the Menominee Indian reservation. Other of his canvases deal with the southwest, Taos, and the Indians of New Mexico. A group of wood blocks, other evidence of his versatile talent, is found in the entrance corridor.

John Spelman exhibits paintings of the northland, of Brown county, Indiana, and of the Cumberland mountains.

$50,000 Collection in Storage.

It seems difficult to credit a situation such as is outlined in this story:

"Word comes from Galesburg, Ill., that a $50,000 collection of art is now being stored in a musty room in a club in that town for want of a proper place in which to hang the canvases.

The paintings were originally collected by James H. Dole, who was vice president of the Chicago Art institute from 1891 until his death in 1902, and he left them to his son, George S. Dole, who lived in Galesburg. About fourteen years ago this son gave the fifty pictures to the Elks, and they were hung on the walls of that club. Recently, however, the members decided they could no longer meet the expense of insurance on the collection, so the paintings were taken down and have been placed in storage, where they await a final disposition.

In the group are paintings by such well known artists as Winslow Homer, Walter McEwen, J. Francis Murphy, Walter Shirlaw, Anna C. Shaw, Frederick W. Freer, Thomas Moran, Harry Thompson, Charles F. Daubigny, and the French animal painter, Brissot.

Notes of Arts and Artists.

Such a number of artists are away! A card from Florence White Williams is from Cintra, Portugal, and betrays her enthusiasm for the ancient palaces and castles of that romantic country. For ships, though, Miss Williams writes, she will have to come back to our New England coast.

Speaking of ships brings to mind her one man exhibit at the Chicago galleries last spring and her magnificent painting of a yacht and her fascinating flight of white gulls.

To coin an Irish bull, Miss Williams is very much on earth on the water. She knows the ins and the outs of the world of pleasure boating. Fantasy does not supplant facts when it comes to her painting of a ship.

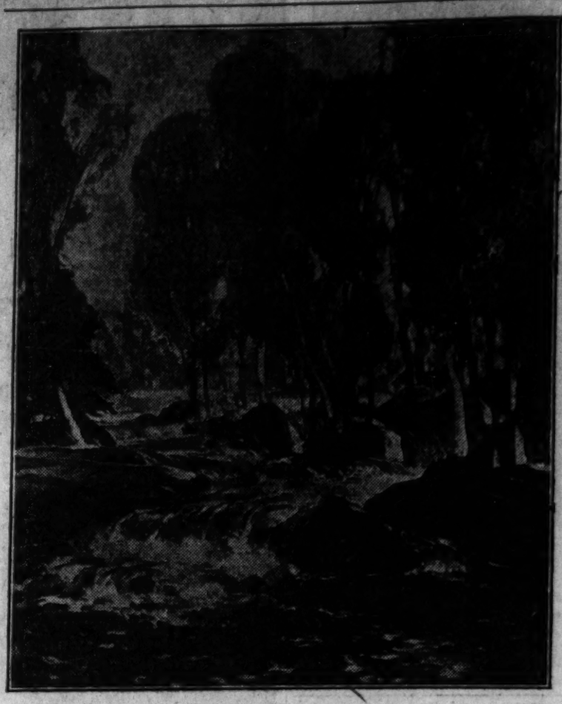
An exceedingly polite letter from Oskar J. W. Hansen reveals the whereabouts of this talented young sculptor. He is near Chicago and will always live, stopped at the office some ten days ago. Playing Sherlock Holmes, this suggests that if he were not just passing through town toward one seaboard or another, young Mr. Allbright is summering on the north shore, near where his father for many years had an extremely attractive studio.

Marques E. Reitzel is again at Oregon, Ill., where he and his charming young wife have bought an old cow stable and transferred it into an adorable home. It is almost directly across from the summer colony of artists which has brought fame to Oregon. Among the painters and sculptors who have worked up and down the Rock river and given Oregon its luster it wears are Ralph Clarkson and Lorado Taft. The late Olin Dennett Grover was another famous American artist to summer there.

Mrs. Alice L. Bidwell is a member of the artist colony at Saugatuck, Mich., and classes take up a good many of her hours a day. Mrs. Bidwell's paintings have always a charming to them. She uses color joyously and she paints in such fashion that behind her color, warming it, is a subtle glow as though the sun had been caught on her palette and transferred to her canvas, where it was still trying to break through.

Pauline Palmer, after spending last summer in California, is this summer painting in Provincetown, Mass. Martha E. Jaques is in Pasadena. So it goes, every one scattered.

The Chicago Y. W. C. A. is about to publish a new magazine, to be called "The Chicago Girl." A contest to select a suitable cover has just been held and both Pauline Palmer and Mrs. Jaques served as members of the jury. The third member was Agnes Carroll Hayward, advertising counselor. All the designs that were submitted are to be placed on exhibition. Meanwhile "The Chicago Girl" will be issued under the auspices of the public relations committee, a group of well known newspaper, publicity, and advertising women of the city. Mrs. Beth Devine Jewell and Mrs. William Donahey are among the committee members who are particularly interested in the art success of this infant publication.



"MENOMINEE RESERVATION," by Charles A. Wilimovsky, whose one-man show is one of the points of interest toward which the feet of visitors press these summer days in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The summer exhibitions will continue through September.

In Woman's Realm

The Rev. Marie B. Wilcox of Red Cloud, Neb., recently performed a function seldom, if ever, accorded other grandmothers. She baptized her own grandchild.

Mme. Barthelet is France's first woman town crier and municipal bill-poster. Part of her job is to beat the drum which a French town crier carried.

At present no government has an official woman representative in France, although there are several women working on special diplomatic assignments. One of them is Mme. Marguerite deRes, special secretary of the Hungarian legation.

CHURCH NEWS

(Other news of churches will be found on page 8 of this section.)

Three young ministers will be ordained this evening at 8 o'clock at a special service in the First St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, 1301 North La Salle street, the Rev. Henry Kowert, pastor. The three are: The Rev. C. Batz from Nebraska, the Rev. G. Schroeder from Illinois, and the Rev. G. Groth from Merrill, Wis. The service will be under the auspices of the mission board of the Missouri Synod Lutheran church for South America, located in Chicago, and is held on the eve of the departure of the young men for South America. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Prof. Edward Fiehler of Concordia Teachers' college, River Forest, Ill.

George Nesbitt McClusky, for several years educational secretary of the Connecticut Council of Religious Education, accepts the invitation of the Presbyterian board of Christian education to become head of the senior and intermediate work, beginning Saturday, with headquarters in the Witherspoon building, Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. McClusky received his seminary training at the Presbyterian Theological seminary (formerly McCormick) in Chicago. He spent three years as advertising manager for manufacturing concerns in Illinois and St. Louis and then became principal of the Academy of Huron college, South Dakota, and also faculty adviser and general assistant to the president of the college. During the last two years he has been studying under Dr. Luther Allan Weigle at Yale university and will receive the degree of Ph. D. upon the completion of his thesis. At the same time he has been engaged under the Bridgeport, Conn., Council of Churches as director of weekday church schools, using public school plan.

The Rev. Louis Grudzinski, pastor of the St. John of God Catholic church, Throop and West 52d streets, today will be the central figure of a jubilee celebration, the silver jubilee of his ordination, the fiftieth anniversary of his birth, and the twentieth anniversary of his appointment as pastor. He will be the celebrant of a solemn high mass at his church this morning at 11 o'clock, and this evening at 6 o'clock there will be a banquet in his honor at Hotel Stevens, with all the Polish organizations cooperating. Father Grudzinski has had an unusually active career and among his many accomplishments are his new church costing $250,000, the founding of Angel Guardian home and St. Elizabeth's home for trained workers. He has been administrator for several terms of Resurrection and St. Adalbert's cemeteries and aided in establishing St. Hedwig's orphanage at Niles, Ill. Recognition also has come from his homeland by the bestowal of the commander's cross of "Polonias Restitute" by Premier Pilsudski and his being made an honorary member of the Papal Tyberian academy. The blessing of the holy father, including greetings from the cardinals as well as tributes from the premier of Poland, the minister of foreign affairs and the Polish ambassador at Washington, together with messages from Vice President Dawes and local leaders, has been received.

At the general conference of the German Baptist churches of North America, which will be held this week, beginning Monday and closing next Sunday, the big day will be Friday, when the afternoon and evening will be occupied by the Young People's and Sunday School union at the new First Congregational church, Ashland and Washington boulevards. This union represents a constituency of about 225 young people's societies, with a membership of about 10,000, and 326 Sunday schools, with about 37,000 pupils and teachers. The afternoon session will be occupied principally with reports and discussions, closing with the election of the new officers and the general secretary. A banquet and reception, will preside, and the principal report will be made by the Rev. A. P. Mihm, Forest Park, Ill., the general secretary. An banquet and rally meeting will follow the afternoon session in the dining room at the W. A. Wieboldt department store, Ogden and Ashland avenues. The chairman and toastmaster will be Judge A. V. Soller of Fessenden, N. D., and Herman Zachay of Philadelphia, Pa., will lead the songs. The evening address will be made by the Rev. A. A. Schade of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Rev. John S. Mix, C. R., will sing his first solemn high mass this morning at St. Hyacinth's church, 2336 Wolfram street, the Rev. Joseph Swierzkyzski, master of the novices of the Resurrectionist order, St. Joseph house, Cragin, preaching the sermon. Afterwards a dinner will be tendered the young priest in the parish auditorium. The Rev. Mr. Mix was born in our Lady of Perpetual Help parish, Chicago. He obtained his education at St. Stanislaus Kostka college, and entered the novitiate at Cragin. He continued his studies in the Gregorian university at Rome, where he received the degree of Ph. D., also making the baccalaureate of the canon law. Father Mix was ordained at a private ceremony at the Resurrection church in Rome by Cardinal Pomilj, vicar to his holiness, the pope.

The Episcopal Young People's association of Chicago will hold its fifth annual conference at Taylor hall, Racine, Wis., beginning Thursday and continuing through Monday, Sept. 3. The relation of youth to the church and its program and plans for activities during the coming year are the topics to be discussed. Among the speakers on the program are: Dr. George Craig Stewart, rector St. Luke's church, Evanston, and chaplain of Episcopal work at Northwestern university; the Rev. Leroy S. Burroughs, student chaplain, Iowa State college, Ames; the Rev. James Madison Jonnson, vicar of St. John's church, Rapids, Wis.; the Rev. Walter C. Bihler, rector of Christ church, River Forest. David E. Evans is president of the association.

At Winona Lake, Ind., this is the closing day of the Bible conference. Among the speakers there will be Dr. Ralph McAfee, Dr. J. C. Massee, Dr. Herbert Bieber, and Dr. W. E. Biederwolf. At 9:15 this evening a consecration service will end the conference until next August. Tomorrow and Tuesday evening the religious motion picture, "The King of Kings," will be given in the Sunday tabernacle.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Home for Aged Will Be Dedicated Today

(Other news of churches will be found on page 5 of this section.)

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THE Evangelical Homes for Children and for Aged will hold their 33d annual festival today at Bensonville, Ill. It is the first festival since the dedication of the new home for children. The home formerly used for both children and aged has been remodeled, and today will be dedicated as the Home for Aged only.

The Rev. William C. Krause, Melrose, president, and the Rev. A. B. Fiedler, Chicago, vice president of the board of directors, will have charge of the program for the entire day. The committees on arrangements consist of members of the men's and ladies' auxiliaries, Robert J. Nordhold, Chicago, chairman of the men, and Mrs. William Lodding, Chicago, of the ladies.

The Rev. D. Irion, D. D., president emeritus of Elmhurst college, Elmhurst, Ill., will be the speaker at 11 a. m. in German, and at 3 p. m. the Rev. H. J. Schick, president of the Northern Illinois district of the Evangelical synod and pastor of Immanuel Evangelical church, Chicago, will speak in English. From 2 to 3 p. m. the children of the home will furnish a program and at the close of the afternoon services the Community high school band of Bensonville will give a concert.

Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson comes from the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church, Wichita, Kas., to become associate pastor with Dr. John Timothy Stone of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Chicago. He preaches his first sermons on Sunday, Sept. 9, afternoon and evening. Dr. Stone preaching in the morning. He will come to Chicago the first week in September to take up his residence in the Fourth church manse, while Dr. Stone will live in one of the faculty homes of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, of which he is the president.

Dr. Anderson received his theological training in McCormick seminary, where he obtained his B. D., and was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry in 1917. His honorary degree was given in 1922 by the College of Emporia, Kas., of which institution he is a trustee. He has held two pastorates, serving the First Presbyterian church, Ellsworth, Kas., from 1917 to 1921, and the First church, Wichita, since 1921. He is a member of the American Legion and was chaplain of the 103d regiment, 26th division, in the world war.

He does not come as a stranger to Fourth church, for during his student days he served as an assistant there. The church he leaves in Wichita has had a remarkable history in its development.

President D. L. Marsh of Boston university is announcing a new organization of the department of preaching of the university school of theology. The Rev. William L. Stidger, D. D., since 1925 pastor of the Linwood Boulevard Methodist Episcopal church, Kansas City, Mo., is the new head of the department. As a cooperating staff and associates in his department there will be four leading preachers of Boston—the Rev. Henry H. Crane, Center Methodist Episcopal church; the Rev. Henry K. Sherrill, rector of Trinity Episcopal church; the Rev. Raymond Calkins, First Congregational church, and the Rev. Samuel M. Lindsay, First Baptist church, Brookline. Each of these associates will give two hours a week through one-quarter of the year. Dr. Stidger comes from an experience of a preacher who draws large audiences and holds them. He is the author of fifteen books.

The Catholic Club of Chicago [Episcopal] will conduct a retreat for laymen at St. Alban's school, Syracuse, Ill., during the coming week-end. D. D. Doolittle of the Church of the Ascension is president of the club.

At the convocation of the University of Chicago on Friday the Rev. M. B. Williams, rector of the Episcopal church of the Incarnation, 102d street and Parnell avenue, will see the fruition of an ambition of 35 years' standing, when he receives the degree of doctor of philosophy. The Rev. Mr. Williams entered the university 35 years ago with the expectation of taking the doctor's degree. Untoward circumstances prevented and it was not until three years ago that he began the real work. The degree will be granted by the department of Old Testament study and the Rev. Mr. Williams' thesis was on the quotations of Barhebraeus in his "Treasury of Secrets," and involved original translations from Syriac and Greek. He is a graduate of Northwestern university and received his B. D. from the Chicago Theological seminary in 1901. He has been rector of the Church of the Incarnation for five years.

The statement in last Sunday's church column that the degree of doctor of divinity had been given to a layman for the third time should have been limited to "the third time to a layman of the Presbyterian church." It is a well known fact that Dr. Shailer Mathews is a layman and that President Harper [now deceased] of the University of Chicago was a layman, and both were honored with the degree of D. D.

A fourteen days' pilgrimage to three American shrines and principal cities of Canada and the United States in the east has been undertaken by a group of the Catholic Daughters of America, headed by Miss Elizabeth O'Brien, 7813 Sangamon street, who is president of the Chicago assembly and chairman of the tour. If the program was fulfilled, they visited the shrines of St. Joseph's at Montreal, Ste. Anne de Beaupre at Quebec, and Mt. St. Sepulchre at Washington last week, and will arrive tomorrow in New York City. They are to return to Chicago on Saturday by special Pullman train from Washington, D. C.

The Living Church [Episcopal] calls attention to an interesting occurrence at Stratton, Vt., a sparsely settled New England community, where the Rev. Edwin V. Griswold, rector of St. Elizabeth's church, 1738 West Marquette road, Chicago, is taking his vacation. The Rev. Mr. Griswold constructed an altar by the wayside of 144 stones from the ruins of an old fence and here he celebrates the Eucharist every Sunday morning, thereby arousing the interest of many of different sects.

During the absence of Dr. Herbert Whiting Virgin, pastor of the North Shore Baptist church, Berwyn at Lakewood avenues, the Rev. A. J. Harms, D. D., is supplying the pulpit and will preach this morning at 11 o'clock on "Messages from Genesis," and this evening at 8 o'clock on "The Salt of the Earth." Dr. Harms, who is on the faculty of the Northern Baptist Theological seminary, is a member of the North Shore church.

For thirty-one years Francis S. Moore served the First Presbyterian church of Chicago as organist. The First Methodist Episcopal church of Oak Park has engaged him as organist and musical director.

Miss Cecelia J. Johnson, for eighteen years a missionary in Burma, will speak on her work there at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the North Shore Baptist church, Berwyn avenue at Lakewood, and will exhibit many interesting curios. Burma is the oldest and most extensive field of missionary effort by the Baptist church.

This is convocation Sunday at the University of Chicago and the convocation sermon will be preached by the Rev. Prof. Gerald Birney Smith, D. D., of the university, in Leon Mandel assembly hall, at 11 o'clock this morning.

ROOM SERVICE AT THE MORRISON HOTEL CHICAGO

NEW MORRISON HOTEL CHICAGO
The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel—46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms OFTEN, on warm August days, you feel inclined for a light, dainty lunch served in your own room, instead of "dressing up" for a more formal meal in a dining room.

Meals Served at Highest Speed
Almost as soon as your order is given, the tray arrives. Through long experience, the management at the Morrison can reckon with close accuracy the number of tables required for room service at different seasons of the year, and a few more than the estimated maximum are kept ready day and night.

1944 Rooms—Each with Bath
The same perfect service prevails throughout the institution. Every guest-room is outside, with bath, running ice water, bed-head lamp, telephone, and Servidor, assuring privacy with its "grille" feature. A housekeeper is assigned to every floor, and all guests enjoy the privileges of the hotel's garage.

You will enjoy your trip on the S.S. Leviathan, world's largest liner—

Sept. 15 from New York to England and France

A trip abroad on any American cabin ship costs even less, and you have a day or two longer at sea to enjoy yourself. Regular sailings from New York: George Washington, America, Republic, Pres. Harding, Pres. Roosevelt.

WHETHER it's pleasure or business that calls you abroad, the ship you select should be the best afloat. The "travel-wise" prefer the American way—the most economical, because of the superior luxuries, steward service, and cuisine that are included in the cost of their passage to Europe.

"QUEEN OF CRUISING STEAMERS"

RANDOM selections from the gorgeous pageant of costumes and color tones which saunter in and out of "The Voyage of Your Dreams"—Stately Moors in white flowing robes—Mohammedan Zamboanguenos, like musical comedy bell-hops, wearing emerald green trousers and scarlet zouave jackets,—trousered women and gowned men of China—strapping Koreans with tiny "fly-trap" hats and yard-long pipes.

All these and innumerable other oddities viewed from a vantage point of lordly luxury.—Each country visited at the pinnacle of its particular season.—One world-wise management conducting shore excursions and ship's rollicking activities.—A cuisine unsurpassed.

Fair Fans at Ladies' Day See More Than Just a Ball Game

Folk at Their Funniest for World's Fairs

Offered Many Odd Ideas in 1893.

IT would be a liberal education in human nature to serve on a World's Fair committee in Chicago if incidents similar to those prevailing the Columbian exposition of 1893 are to be repeated.

The ways and means committee probably will sit and laugh as heartily and as loudly over the letters they will receive as did the ways and means committee of the days before the '93 World's Fair.

The content of the letters will no doubt be slightly different, owing to the new and wonderful products of the age, but there will be requests as absurd and as funny as the former ones.

Some Strange Requests.

There were recommendations as well as requests. One boy of 16, in 1892, wrote to the committee recommending the use of nickel in the slot machines for the telling of fish stories. A fellow tired of wandering about and still longing for the wonderful, might have his desires satisfied by sitting under a tree, depositing a nickel, and drinking in the details of a thriller. The most brilliant part of the suggestion was that the originator of the plan should receive a certain portion of the nickels.

A proud papa wrote that his 6 year old boy was such a wonder as an orator that the committee might like to have him introduce the main orators of the day. He thought it would illustrate something—as no doubt it would.

Two boys from New York wrote that they would like to travel on foot to Chicago, pitch a tent on the grounds, and give lectures on the hardships of tramp life. That was before the days of week end camping trips and tourists camps.

A mathematician asked for standing room only, where he might show how to square a circle. Another genius wanted to bring his perpetual motion machine for exhibit. This idea had an unfortunate outcome, for a later letter stated that the machine had broken down but the principle remained the same.

Idea from Beauty Doctor.

Several bar maids from England sent pictures and asked for work. Surely their pictures should have done something for them, but the hard hearted committee did not send for them.

There was a southern gentleman who knew of a Negro child who was an anatomical freak. He was sure

AMERICAN LEGION NEWS

This department is devoted to views of the American Legion. Officials of all posts are invited to make use of it to keep the Legionnaires of the whole county in touch with activities of the individual posts. Items must reach the American Legion Editor, Sunday Tribune, not later than Wednesday morning for publication the following Sunday.

LEGIONNAIRES who like competition will have numerous events to hold their interest at Waukegan Sept. 10 and 11 during the state convention. There will be contests between bands, drum corps, quartets, golf teams, bowling teams, drill teams, trap shooters, and horseshoe pitchers. The election of a new state commander is already a matter of much discussion. The Cook county candidates are James E. White of Theodore Roosevelt post, senior vice commander of the department of Illinois; David L. Shillinglaw of Advertising post, past commander of the Cook County association; Lawrence E. McGann Jr. of Austin post, past junior commander of the department of Illinois; Al C. Linenthal of Ravenswood post, vice commander of the Cook County council, and Arthur ("Jack") Poorman, commander of Chicago Heights post.

Stanley M. Peterson, adjutant of Wilmette post No. 46, says that the post's drum and bugle corps will take part in the competition among the musical organizations at Waukegan. The corps has been organized since March 1 of this year and has been practicing hard to make a good appearance at the big get-together. Recently the corps took part in the Wilmette day program and helped to make that event a success.

* *

The annual dance of the Harold A. Taylor post, No. 47, is scheduled for Oct. 26 at Merry Garden ballroom. As this event is the largest source of revenue for the post's general fund in the entire year, Dr. Walter Goldsmith, general chairman, is desirous of an early start with preparations.

Hoover Stirs New Interest in the Quakers

Some Customs of the Ancient Friends.

By Eunice Stebbins.

SINCE Hoover was nominated you have been more interested in the Quakers, or, as they call themselves, the Friends. You probably already know that they paid the Indians for the land on which they settled, called Penn's woodland or Pennsylvania, and that they founded and named Philadelphia, "the city of brotherly love." The name "Quaker" probably brings to you a picture of a man in a broad brimmed hat and coat with no vain notch in the lapel; or the image of a sweet faced woman in an ugly drab or black bonnet, with a daints white kerchief neatly crossed on the bosom of an ugly drab or black gown. And you know vaguely that the Friends use forms of "thou" in their talk.

There is much more to know about that quaint people who attend to their own business and live in peace with the world, even, as in the early days, with the Indians.

Come with me to Quakerland, somewhere in the rich farming country near Philadelphia. Stand with me in the porch of the plain brick meeting house, different from a dwelling only in size and possibly the two entrances in front.

No Show of Wealth.

It is first-day; the Friends use no names of heathen gods for the days or the months. The meeting [not the congregation] is coming in. The older Friends wear the dress you know; the younger are garbed as the world's people. All exchange greetings; some may wander among the myrtle covered tombstones, low and plain, marked only with names and dates. The Friends do not believe in show of wealth in a graveyard, nor, for that matter, in any place of life.

The men and women are separating at the two entrances. Let us enter with them. Long benches on both sides; a few in front, where the pulpit or organ would be in other places of worship. No service but sitting in silence while the humming or buzzing

JAKE EISSLER'S cider mill at his place on the Barrington pike is now open for business, on Tuesdays from 2 p. m. to 9 p. m. and all day Saturdays. Jake has the kegs and barrels; all you have to supply is the apples.

Fred Sargent, accommodating president of the North Western, has made our local depot at Canal and Madison streets a regular stop for two of his new trains—crackerjacks both of them. They will pick up passengers for St. Paul and Minneapolis and Omaha and Sioux City. Our village sure is progressing and we congratulate it on again getting on the map.

Our leading commuter between Chicago and Havana, Noble Judah, will be back again in September.

Peter Smith of 7303 Yates avenue came forward last week with the story he had caught a muskie weighing more than 40 pounds and measuring 51 inches. Pete occupied the spotlight at the corner cigar store until George E. Q. Johnson, our U. S. district attorney, returned from the Pacific coast to his home at 7327 Crandon avenue. George caught a 50 foot whale, but had to throw it back as had taken his legal limit of cetaceans that day.

DR. F. EDWARD SCHMIDT.

Hoo-rah, hoo-ree,
Rah-rah, naught-three.

WE ARE privileged today to gaze upon the doctor contemplating the universe 25 years ago as a member of the graduating class of the University of Chicago. He looks natural despite the chinscraper choker collar. Even in our most liberal institutions of learning the Adam's apple had not yet achieved emancipation. It was still being born to blush unseen. It was to be years later that an inspired and daring haberdasher was to enlighten the world with open plumbing in neckwear.

The doctor, or Florian, as his classmates truthfully expressed it, early won recognition as a youth of iron will, who could take his frats or leave them. This was because of his unique ambition to establish a record as a nonjoiner. He was eminently successful. He joined nothing, not even the Y. M. C. A. He should have received a "C," but didn't.

"Any man can do the same," says the doctor modestly, "if only he refuses often enough and long enough."

Of course, he played alto saxophone in the band, but why bring that up?

'Cute' Players Only Part of Free Outing

What Other Women Wear Divides Interest.

By Helen Dare

TWO chorus girls—at least they looked it, with their ankle bracelets, extreme clothes, and heavy makeup—sat behind me.

"Lemme see," said the one whose blonde curls looked suspiciously detachable, "the guys in white are our team—the Cubs—and the others are either the Yankees or maybe Brooklyn. But I don't know anything else about the game."

"Well, it's like this," explained her companion, who was decked out in slinky red fringe, among other things, "first one side gets up and goes out and then the other side does. And when they both get up and go out they call it an inning."

"But what do they call it an inning for," retorted the blonde curls, "if they go out all the time?"

Furious Toward Usher.

Ladies' day at Wrigley field. A day overhung with threats of rain, which, however, didn't dampen the spirits of the feminine fans—or bargain hunters. Women are admitted free on Ladies day, you know.

Mamma brought the girls and was furious when the guard insinuated that they weren't perfect ladies.

"You'll have to buy a ticket for them," he insisted wearily, "or go to the office. I can't do anything about it. I'm only an usher. I'm only supposed to let ladies in. That means over 14 years. See?"

Mamma and the girls decided to take their outing at Lincoln park instead.

But other youngsters, with the aid of deft lipsticks and sophisticated smirks, managed to get by the not infallible guards. Three of them came giggling in to where I sat up in the second deck.

"And I said I was 16 and he fell for it," said one, obviously no more than 12. "Oooh, here comes Kiki," as Cuyler came to bat in the first. "Swat her a nice long one, Kiki," she yowled.

DON'T GET SCARED

THERE need be no cause for alarm because Peter Smith, 2215 South Albany avenue, thus greets you from behind a mask. The only thing to suffer from the weapon he handles is the accumulation on the stones of a building at Kenmore and Lawrence avenues, where he happened to be working when the photographer came along. A CAMP CHART OF CHEER

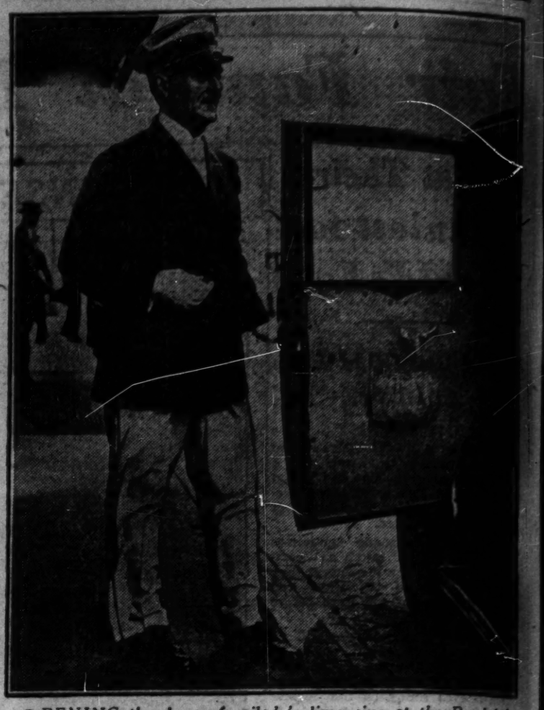
"SEE what I gained in the fresh air and sunshine," chortles Loretta Bailey to a mother and invalid daughter who have just arrived at Camp Algonquin, The Tribune's fresh air camp for mothers and children on the Fox river. And let us hope that the little girl, looking wistfully at the record, will be equally benefied by the essentials in health which the camp in the country provides. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

FINDS JOY IN FLOWERS

LIKE most women, Mrs. G. W. Good, 3201 Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, Ill., gets a great deal of pleasure from her flower garden, and she has found her work of cultivation particularly rewarded this summer. The cannas which she has grown are greatly admired by passersby. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

SERVICE DE LUXE



OPENING the door of milady's limousine at the Randolph and State street entrance of Marshall Field and company, we have Edward Percy Cardigan Wilder, whose gracious and dignified manner is the result of aristocratic background. Mr. Wilder, a familiar figure in the loop these last five years, was born at Maidenhead, Berkshire, England, and his father took part in the famous "Charge of the Light Brigade" at Balaklava. AL INTERVIEWS THE "BLANKET BUMS"

And Finds Animated Cigar Signs Indulging in a Redskin Racket

By Snowshoe Al.

LAST week me and my wife happened to be in the vicinity of the Lac Du Flambeau Indian reservation, so we decided to breeze over and slip this flock of Cigar Signs a few curious glances. We expected to find them galloping around in feathers, war paint and beads; therefore we were quite surprised to see them wearing overalls, straw hats, and wrist watches.

"This is terribly disappointing," snorts my Quarrel Partner; "in fact, I'd hardly recognize them as Indians if it wasn't for the fact that none of the men are working."

"You're wrong," says me, "because I can see a guy working—he's winding his wrist watch! He'll probably have to lay down under a tree an' rest for an hour after all that strenuous labor. By golly, there don't seem to be many Blanket Bums on the street today. I wonder where they're all at!"

"Why don't you ask somebody?" says my Noisy Half. "Here comes a little boy—ask him."

"Hey, papoose, where is your father today?" says I; "is he running around in the forests shooting deer?"

"Don't get comical!" says the papoose; "he's probably running around in the gutters, shooting cigaret butts. He didn't come home last night. Just wait till my mother gets her mitts on the old boy—she's gonna raise lumps on him."

* *

Funny Talk.

At this moment my wife sees a small souvenir shop which, according to a sign, is owned by Chief White Eagle, so she says to me:

"Run over to that store and ask the guy where all the Indians are at."

I trots into Mr. White Eagle's place of business and finds him sitting in a rocking chair, smoking a punk cigar. As I entered he looked up, yawned, and remarked "Ugh."

"Ugh right back at you," says I; "pardon me, Chief, but me like to ask you question. Me look for heap much Indians, but me no findum. How come, kid, how come? Indians all croak from much cold weather last winter an' go to Happy Hunting Grounds, huh?"

"Your phraseology would indicate an atmosphere of either sarcasm or slight jest," yawns Mr. White Eagle. "You'll find most of our people over at the Indian Pageant. Drive straight up this street and then follow the first road to your left. By the way, how did the Cubs come out yesterday?"

"The Pirates beat 'em," says I.

"@#$%&!!!" snorts he, tearing up a 25 cent chance on a baseball lottery. "Would you like to buy an Indian basket?"

"Certainly not," sneers me; "what would I want an Indian basket for?"

"About 15 cents, I suppose," says he, "but you wouldn't get it."

A Redskin Racket.

So me and my wife grabbed the first road to the left and started on the trail of the Blanket Bums. There was lots of other cars headed in the same direction. After traveling a couple miles we began to hear large quantities of war whoops, tomtom beating, and other forms of redskin racket, and pretty soon we arrived at the entrance to a large park. A fat squaw leaned out of a small ticket office window and asked me how many tickets I wanted.

"What's the cost?" asks me. "What's going on in there? Why is all that racket? It sounds like somebody just found a Canadian dime among his small change."

"The tickets are 50 cents each," says the fat squaw, "and we show you the way we used to live. You'll see the way we used to cook, eat, work, and fight 'way back in the primitive days."

So I coughs up one dollar and in we goes. Well, it seems as how this Indian village consists of about twenty round dwellings made of some sort of woven fiber or matting, with birch bark roofs. In front of each of them was some old squaws making blankets and other things. My Noisy Half stops to ask one of these old dames a few questions, so I keeps on going and enters one of the wigwams. It contained three army cots, an alarm clock, and a gasoline stove. A stout Indian mamma was sitting on one of the cots eating a candy bar and humming her papoose a very primitive lullaby, entitled "Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

The Dawn of Civilization.

"Well, well," says I, "so this is the way you ginks lived way back in the early days!"

"Sure," says the squaw.

"By golly," says me, "Chris Columbus must have got an awful shock when you people offered to trade him some alarm clocks for a bottle of firewater. I can almost hear him saying, 'Hey, keed, where you gitta deez teengs, huh?'"

Just then a cute little Indian girl breezed into the joint. She was about 4 years old, and she was carrying a little, black kitten.

"Hello, little gal," says I, slipping her a dime, "here's some money for you. Now, what are you gonna do with it—buy a bow an' arrow?"

"How silly!" says the little brat; "I'm gonna buy two boxes of crackerjack an' I don't mean perhaps!"

I moved along and entered another wigwam where two old Blanket Bums were sitting in rocking chairs listening to a New York radio program and arguing as to whether Tito Schipa had a better tenor voice than John McCormack.

"Good morning, gents," says I.

"Good morning," says one of them.

"You are an old man," says I, "an' I bet you have seen many interesting sights in your days. Do you remember Custer's Last Stand?"

"No," says he, "but I remember Sitting Bull. Ah, what a wonderful Chief he was! Sitting Bull had a wife named Squatting Cow and a daughter named Reclining Calf. He also had another daughter named Reposing Heifer and a son named Prostrate Ox. He also had——"

"Something tells me that your name is either Lying Beef or Bum Steer," says I; "good-by, Ananias, I do not care to be spoofed."

Early American.

I went out and found my wife. She was watching the Indian war dances, so I sat down beside her and gazed at this very interesting piece of hokum. A dozen Blanket Bums was hopping around in a circle, doing heap much quantities of yelling and large amounts of perspiring. Near them sat the native jazz orchestra beating on tomtoms, hollow logs, etc. Over near us sat a fat warrior who was evidently in charge of the monkey business, because he was always shouting instructions to the dancers. I listened closely to what he was saying, and you'd be surprised to learn how easy it is to understand the Indian language! No fooling, I readily picked up quite a few primitive phrases, such as:

"Snap into it, youse guys—step on the gas!"

"Come on, Big Boy, shake those hoofs!"

"Hey, Charlie! Get going, kid, get going!"

Well, me and the wife wanders away from this scene and starts walking around. Pretty soon I spots an old cigar sign sitting under a tree. Old? Sa-ay, I betcha this guy helped to scalp the driver of the first covered wagon! His face contained more wrinkles than a carload of washboards. His last tooth must have fell out about the time of the Boston Tea party.

* *

A Kansas Zephyr Ends It All.

"Hello, Papa Time," says I; "how old are you?"

"Ugh wug mug ugh mug jug wug mug," mumbles him.

"Add your own mug to that collection," says I, "because it's too comical to be overlooked. How old are you?"

"One hundred and ten," says he.

"You're just the bimbo I'm looking for," says I; "here's a half dollar! Now tell me all about Custer's Last Stand."

"Ah," says he, "how well I remember Custer's Last Stand! It was in a small town in Kansas. He had nice red-and-white striped awnings on it to keep out the sun's rays. He did a great business in barbecue sandwiches, popcorn, lemonade, and coffee, but he also sold oil and gasoline. One day, however, a Kansas cyclone came along and blew the stand to kindling wood. Mr. Custer became very exasperated. 'Damn these cyclones,' said he, 'this is the fourth time they have blown me out of business and I am getting tired of it; in fact, I hereby resolve never to build another stand!' So that, my friend, was Custer's Last——"

"Aw, go to hell!" says I.

THE OLD MURPHY HOME

STILL standing at the northwest corner of Rogers avenue and Clark street is the old house built by Edward Murphy in 1841 on land which he purchased for $1.50 an acre. Mr. Murphy was a school teacher in pioneer days and also served as deputy sheriff and coroner. The house stands just north of the old Indian boundary line. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Police Trap Hungry Thief Who Ate Soup

BRESLAU.—(AP)—An unusual clew led to the capture of two professional burglars guilty of a series of baffling crimes.

One of the robbers while ransacking an apartment, had picked up an apple from the kitchen table and started to bite it. It happened that the fruit was imitation and made of soap. He dropped it quickly in disgust and the police used the teeth marks later to identify a captive under suspicion.

Home Town Honors Famous French Ace

THUIT, France.—(AP)—Georges Guynener, France's greatest flying ace, who disappeared over the German lines twelve years ago, has been commemorated by a stained glass window in the village church where he was baptized. Airplanes maneuvered overhead while the window was being dedicated to "St. George."

Fighters of Forest Fires Use Wireless

MISSOULA.—(AP)—Radio will be used by forest fire fighters in the south of France to combat the devastating fires which have caused much damage to woodlands this summer. Forest fire fighting is being put on an entirely new basis by union of the services of the Forest Union of the Alps and the Foresters' Union of Provence.

ITS DAYS NUMBERED

THE Ravenswood Historical Society building, at the southwest corner of Monrose and Hermitage avenues, is soon to be torn down. The structure was erected by the flourishing community of Ravenswood about 1884. In 1890 the Historical society went out of existence and the building was sold. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Bargains!

Send us a short and snappy letter telling the how, why, and wherefore of the best bargain you ever struck. We'll pay $2 for every letter published. Address Bargains, Chicago Tribune.

For $2.50.

In my effort to find a small table for a room that I was furnishing for the purpose of renting, I entered a second hand furniture store. My eyes fell upon an antique, marble-topped table of covered walnut.

Upon asking the price, I was informed that I could have it for $2.50. I eagerly agreed to the price, and paid a small amount to have it delivered.

My friends have complimented me on my lovely table numerous times. I merely smile and murmur a polite answer.

Incidentally, I recently was offered $60 for it. W. C. C.

A Bargain Book.

I was starting a library and as I hadn't much money with which to buy books, I went into a second hand book store seeking bargains.

While looking around I came to one table on which lay a beautiful book of poems. They were written by Longfellow, Whittier and other noted poets. The book was beautifully bound and the type was excellent.

I thought the owner would want at least two dollars for it. But when I asked the price and found that it was fifty cents, I almost danced with glee.

Needless to say, I bought the book on the spot, and now it has a prominent place in my library. J. L.

Bargains in High Finance.

One day a man approached me saying if I wanted to invest $250 in an oil lease.

I asked him about the location of the lease. After listening to his description of the place, I wrote him a check for the amount.

Exactly thirty days later, I received a check for more than $1,000 in exchange for seven-eighths of my interest in the lease.

Before another month had passed an oil man asked me if I would take $1,500 for the remaining one-eighth of my holding! H. F.

No Money Lost.

Several years ago we moved to a small town in Louisiana, taking our furniture along. After having lived there for three years we had to go back to Chicago. Since it was not certain whether or not we could set up housekeeping at once, we decided to sell our furniture.

Imagine our surprise when without any effort on our part we received just as much for it after we had used it for about five years as we had paid for it in Chicago. J. A. K.

War Planes in Red Cross Work Up for Debate

PARIS.—(AP)—The first international congress on airplane sanitation and airplane rescue will be held in Paris in May, 1929.

Marshal Lyautey, who organized a service of "Red Cross airplane ambulances" on the Syrian and Moroccan war fronts, will preside over the sessions. The French government sent invitations to "all nations possessing an air fleet and interested in the problems of airplane rescue work."

Favorable replies have been received from Great Britain, Belgium and Poland.

France has made a long and thorough study of the use of airplanes in bringing aid to sick or injured persons. The congress will be under the patronage of several French ministries as well as army and health officials.

The French campaigns in Syria and Morocco have permitted the development of an experiement begun in France as far back as 1910. During these actions French airplane ambulances transported more than 4,000 sick or wounded soldiers and saved many lives.

Despite the expertor results the price is most reasonable.

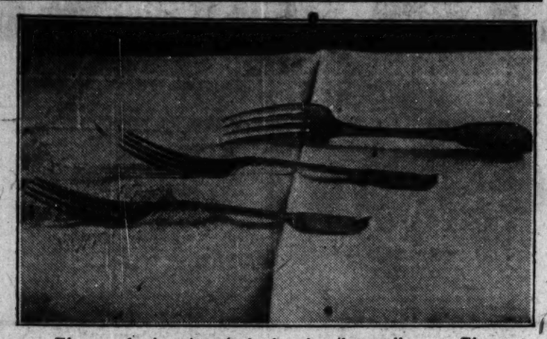
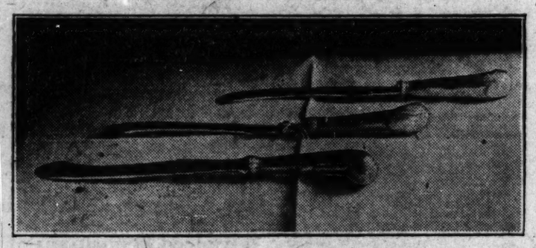
Silver That Lends a Lure to the Table

Knives and Forks; Also Useful Novelties of Charm

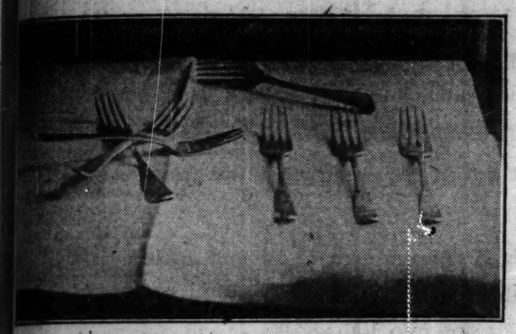
Two old English silver coasters, which, if you do not care for liquors, can be used for ash trays. They are of a size used under decanters, and the workmanship is very fine. They have a diminutive railing across the top edge.



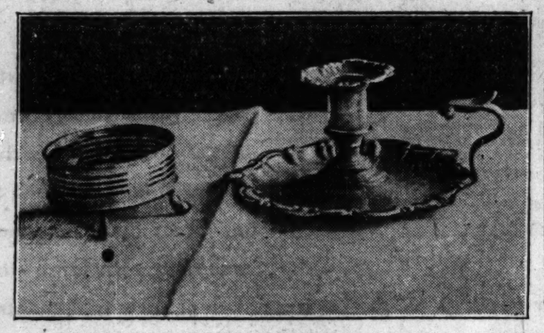
Three early American forks for the silver collector. They are three of a dozen, all perfect and of heavy weight.



Three of a dozen old English silver knives of pistol handles. The blades are steel and are still in the best of cutting condition.

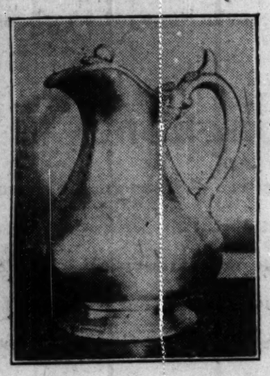


Part of a set of twelve Georgian silver fruit or salad forks. They are fine in workmanship and their size is useful, though they cannot be used for roast.

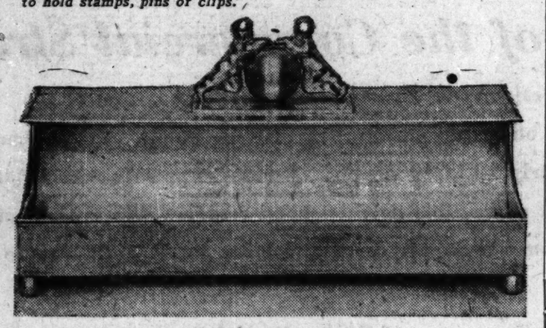


A Sheffield candlestick and an old salt cellar. The cellar is lined with sapphire blue glass. A nice combination for a desk, the cellar to hold stamps, pins or clips.

A modernistic lamp in white faience, with a shade of crinkled silk that shades from white to dark cobalt blue in all the range of blues. It would be a lovely bedroom lamp.



For the country house—a beautiful covered water pitcher of pewter. Think of its usability, and its flylessness, which, combined with its beauty, make it a joy forever.



An inkwell and pen rack in hand-wrought silver. This piece was designed as a golf trophy and shows what can be done in the way of useful trophies rather than useless cups that clutter up the house, make unnecessary work for the servants and give the wife nervous prostration.

Hoover Stirs New Interest in the Quakers

Some Customs of the Ancient Friends.

may come through the open unstained windows.

"As quiet as a Quaker meeting" is a familiar phrase. Presently some one may arise and speak, or the silence may be unbroken throughout the hour. It is as "the spirit moves"; a hireling minister is an abomination unto the Lord. At the end of the time, one of those high in meeting [on the front benches] shakes hands with his neighbor, the rest clasp hands with the nearest, and a childish voice may pipe, "Now we'll have our dinners."

"Rules of Discipline."

Were I to introduce thee as we pass out, thee would have kindly handshaking but no bowing or hat-doffing which are due only to the Lord. If I had said, "Miss" or "Mrs." the gentle voice would say, "And what is thy name?" and afterwards thee would be known by thy Christian name to mark they friendly equality with all men.

If, as is likely, thee were to have an invitation to dinner, I would advise thee to accept. The hostess would not stint thee in sweet home cured ham or home fed chickens, vegetables fresh from her own garden, cold slaw, Quaker pie, all enriched with cream from her own dairy, and served on delicately patterned china with plain but glittering solid silver, nothing for show but all for goodness and enjoyment. If there is a grandmother in the house, thee will almost exclaim with delight at the beauty of the white cap softening the wrinkled face and thinning hair. And thee will notice the gossamer fineness of cap and kerchief and the almost royal richness of the silk in the plain gray gown.

On the parlor table may lie a little black book "Rules of Discipline." It will tell thee how the lives of Friends are guided. When the monthly meeting assembles, men and women apart but equal, therp will be questions asked, "Have tale-bearing and detracting been guarded against?" "If differences have arisen, have there been endeavors speedily to end them?" "Are all Friends living within their means?" "Are all children properly cared for and educated?" "Are all Africans living with Friends properly taught?"

Simplicity at Weddings.

If the monthly meeting cannot solve problems there is the quarterly, and after that the yearly. The monthly is the gathering of one congregation; the quarterly of several; the yearly of all.

When thee is born, the monthly records the date with thy name and parents in its book, so that thee may always know thy age, and have thy birthright as born into meeting [a member of the society]. When thee dies, the meeting sees that thee is buried with due respect and silent prayer, although it bears testimony against wearing of mourning for thee. Extravagance and indulgence of emotion are not in accord with Friendly ideas of thrift and self-control. If thee wishes to marry, thee and thy mate must pass meeting, i. e., must ask its permission. It will appoint a committee to examine into the past life and circumstances to see if both of you may decently and honorably enter into the union.

The committee will attend thy wedding to see that all is conducted properly. Thy ceremony will be the simplest af all known rites. Thee merely stand before the assembled Friends and say, "In the presence of God and of these witnesses, I hereby take —— to be my lawfully wedded wife, and promise to be a loving and faithful husband till death us part." And she says the same of thee. And thy vows are as binding as if taken before a hundred priests. The Friends recognize no divorce; some of them will not even mention it by word.

Opposed to Slavery.

In that little black book, thee will find testimonies against swearing, the liquor traffic, slavery, war, going to law. "Make thy yea, yea; thy nay, nay." In every oath-taking form of law today, there is provision for "affirm" besides "swear," and I might say that one is believed as strongly as the other.

The Friends might not engage in liquor traffic or linger around taverns, where they might learn frivolous and pernicious ways. They were not wholly consistent; there was nothing in discipline against taking a drink. But I think many of them must have been displeased with that ad of a good natured looking man in colonial costume holding a bottle labeled "Quaker whisky."

They testified against slavery in the open and in their own sweet Quaker darkness. They formed abolition societies when joining might mean the loss of wealth and all respect. James Mott stood hesitating, pen in hand, before the paper the signing of which might cost him his worldly all. Lucretia's voice was soft as the dew:

"James, write thy name."

"The Spirit Leads."

Were thee working with a certain Quaker in the fields, thee might see a neighbor lad ride up and tell of the woods meeting next Seventh-Day week, and slip a blank piece of paper into the old man's hand. That night he would row his boat to a certain landing on the Susquehanna, take on board a sturdy black man or maybe a dark woman with a silent baby in her arms, row them to another landing where a team was waiting, row home, sleep in peace, and work the next day in the fields without a thought of his bit of work on the great underground railroad.

That little woman who said, "James, write thy name," thee will remember as one of the first suffragettes. The Quaker women came into their equality as naturally as falls the dew. They couldn't have told you when their sect joined the cause. Indeed, they had to go out and mingle with the world's people before they could tell what to argue about.

Were thee to ask a Quaker why he or any other did thus or so, why he ignored the laws against helping slaves, or kept his account straight every day, or kept his hat on in church, or sat in meeting while the battle waged, or shouldered his musket at Lincoln's call, leaving word as he marched away, that he was sorry he was going against discipline, the only answer he could give thee would be "The spirit leads" or "The light came." The essence, the very soul of the Friendly faith lies in the following of the inward light. "Wait until the light comes," is the watchword in any time of stress or perplexity. The true Friend waits and waits and waits and waits until there comes that clearing of the pathway by the divine light within. Had Shakespeare been a Friend, he could never have written a Hamlet.

Some Quaker Tales.

Naturally thee asks, "Do the Quakers always obey their discipline or follow the inward light? Are they all as saintly and serene as thee would make out?"

I answer, quoting David Harum, "There's as much human nature in some folks as in some others, and in some of them there's more." And I would tell thee some of the many tales the Quakers tell on themselves with an understanding little twinkle in the eye.

One wealthy old Friend gave generously toward the building of a church in his community. The church had a lofty steeple. Members of meeting waited on him to reason with him for giving to such show and vainglory.

"I subscribed to the building, not to the steeple," was his answer.

Another was much opposed to the modern spirits who wished to put an organ in the meeting house. When, after a long holding out, he finally surrendered, he gave the largest sum of any. He was rallied on his inconsistency.

"Well, if thee must praise the Lord by machinery, I want thee to have a good machine."

Phineas Fletcher.

A young Friend had an argument with a cumrade that heated both to fighting point. "I mayn't hit thee, but there's nothing in discipline agin choking," he said.

Once a gang of rowdies tried to break up a Friends' meeting by a charivari under the windows. Out came a sturdy son of peace. "Although it may be to the detriment of my soul, it will be for the betterment of thine, and, therefore, my friend, I will endeavor to take Satan out of thee."

The hoodlums' bruises testified to the amount of sacrifice a Quaker would make to save a neighbor's soul. Do you remember Phineas Fletcher in Uncle Tom's Cabin? As the slave catcher leaped across the chasm, Phineas suddenly remarked, "Friend, thee isn't wanted here," and pushed him down the gap. There was nothing in discipline against pushing.

In the war of 1812, an American ship was attacked by the British. An English seaman was climbing a rope on the side of the Yankee vessel. A Quaker stood at the rail by the top of the line. He opened his knife and began to saw at the fibers.

"Friend, if thee wants the rope, thee may have it."

The foeman took most of the rope into the sea with him.

A Quaker Threat.

Here is a bad one. I don't believe it; I tell it because a Quaker told it to me. I must inform you beforehand that courts have decided a certain word unaccompanied by the name of the Deity is not profanity. A Quaker knows his discipline. I will also inform thee, that, if thee wishes to make an ox stand over, thee must twist his tail. An ox does not understand English.

A Friend was feeding a calf. The hungry baby stuck its head clear into the bucket and then brought it out to splash feed and milk all over the immaculate first day suit. The Friend spoke deliberately.

"I will not beat thee, and I will not curse thee, but I will twist thy damned tail."

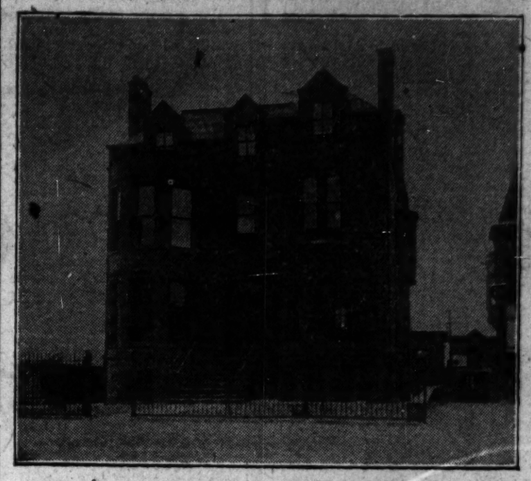
A Mother's Advice.

The Quaker story I like best is one told of Isaac T. Hopper, the noted preacher and abolitionist. I think you will like it, too, and you will like it better if you will only read it again.

Isaac was leaving the old home for the city to seek his fortune. He stood by his mother's rocker to receive her last advice.

"Now, Isaac, remember," said she, "as long as thee behaves thyself,—as long as thee behaves thyself, thee is just as good as anybody." She waited a minute, then she added, "and no better."

FAMOUS HOMES



VISITORS in the old days to what was the home of Jesse Spalding, 1637 Prairie avenue, are said to have been impressed by its atmosphere of friendliness and contentment. The cozy library was the popular evening room where the family passed the hours between tea and retiring. Its books furnished recreation for the man who, beginning with 1860, exercised wide influence over the mercantile, political and social interests of Chicago. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Al Smith Home in Erin Bears Fame Proudly

Was the Birthplace of His Grandfather.

AVAN, Ireland.—(AP)—On the edge of a peat bog in the farming district near here stands a one story thatched cottage built of rough white washed stone, which has become famous as the ancestral home of the Democratic candidate for President of the United States.

It is the birthplace of Gov. Smith's grandfather, who set out from this humble homestead to seek his fortune in America, during the turbulent period of the Ulster farmers' revolt against oppressive landlords, in which he was a leading agitator. It is said here that the elder Smith had to flee the country on account of his activities.

House Still Sturdy.

The house, situated in the heart of a region noted for its sylvan beauty is typical of farmers' cottages throughout the Bruskey district. Weeks of hard labor went into its erection and although it is now very old, it is a veritable part of the soil and as sturdy as the Smiths who occupy it still.

The stones for its making were carried in creels or wicker baskets on the backs of the Smith farmers from a quarry a mile away, and were built in by hand, with rough mortar. Rushes for the thatched roof were cut from a nearby field.

Near Wild Bogland.

Beside the cottage is a wild stretch of bogland where the exiled Smith worked cutting turf, and where his kinsmen, James Smith, the present occupant of the homestead, and John Reilly, both second cousins of Gov. Smith, cut turf now.

Around this district is a veritable colony of farmers named Smith, all of whom are very proud of the Democratic candidate for the presidency who has brought their name into prominence in America. Proudest of them all is James Smith. He is sure that his little home will soon be famous.

Liquor Imports of the Bahamas Up 10 Per Cent

NASSAU, Bahama Islands.—(AP)—These prosperous islands have increased their whisky imports 10 per cent during the first part of 1928.

Customs house figures show that every man, woman, and child in the Bahamas would have the use of three cases of hard liquor monthly if all of the incoming bottles stayed in the islands, which they do not.

Despite the massing of coast guard destroyers, cutters, and seaplanes off the Florida coast, more than $2,000,000 worth of whisky was unloaded here during the first six months of this year. Meanwhile the export figures have been cut in half because of the growing practice of trans-shipping liquors to schooners and warehouses at Grand Bahama and Bimini islands.

The latter are only sixty miles from Palm Beach and Miami. If fast motor boats dash here and there across the gulf stream without the formality of clearing the Bahaman customs, the Bahaman authorities have no cognizance of the fact.

Birth Rate of London Shown on the Decline

LONDON.—(AP)—London's birth rate has fallen continuously since 1921, says the London county council's annual health report.

The population of the metropolis has remained stationary at about 4,500,000, but the child population has dropped considerably. The proportion of children under 15 years of age has dropped from 30 per cent in 1901 to 26 per cent at the last census.

If the decrease in births and the rate of infant mortality continues at its present level until the next census, children under 15 will then form less than 20 per cent of the total population.

HE GOT IT.

"Was that the telephone, Betty?"

"Yes, but it wasn't for us. Somebody wanted the wrong number."

Foochow Troubled by Too Much Money

FOOCHOW, China.—(AP)—Foochow is having financial troubles. There's no shortage of money.

On the contrary, there's too much, and of what there is it's the wrong kind. Hence the currency is to be changed, and even the prospect of such an action is causing havoc with the banks and money changers.

Months ago a "financial" strike resulted in the banks being closed for days. The money changers instead of the banks virtually control the provincial currency. The money changers have issued their own paper currency, each dollar being worth a thousand cash.

Ball Game Is Not All with Pretty Fans

What Other Women Wear Divides Interest.

"What did he do then?" asked the blonde curls as Kiki walked to first. A nearby gentleman volunteered the information that he had been hit by a batted ball. "Why, how mean! I don't think that Brooklyn team plays fair, anyway!"

* *

Hack Called "Cute."

Hack Wilson came up next amid a roar of feminine approbation. He may not look like Valentino, but he could have any number of telephone numbers, if he only knew it.

"Isn't he darling!" "Isn't he cute!" were from those who knew a little more about the game, "Hack's the guy we'll do it!"

Down in front of me a gray haired woman—a mother of four or maybe five, she looked—was rooting for Hack, too, and calling the plays correctly, as far as I could tell.

"Where did you learn so much about the game?" her neighbor asked.

"I watch the 'kids,'" she said with a grin. "They play in the empty lot next door all the time."

Hack was a disappointment. He didn't wallop the ball, as everybody expected to him to do. He sent off a little one to the shortstop or somewhere, and in due form both Cuyler and Wilson were put out to end the inning.

* *

Bring Babies Along.

A brave young man to the left of me had brought his girl down and, with what he hoped was patience, tried to explain the game to her between times.

"Who are the funny little black things?" she asked, "that keep running back and forth?"

"Umpires," he said shortly.

"But what do they do? Which side are they on?" she persisted.

"They do lots and they aren't on either team," was his very explanatory explanation.

Several women brought tiny babies with them. It is not on record what the babies thought of the great American sport, but their mothers seem to enjoy it in spite of their burdens.

It was, however, too slow a game to please the ladies. They wanted more blood and thunder, heavier swatting and a few homers. The intricacies of a pitching battle didn't appeal to them.

"Why do they keep fanning?" complained the girl in the red fringe, whatever she meant by that. "But I just love to watch a baseball game. Do you think this rouge is too dark for my skin? I really can't get any that quite suits me."

* *

Score Causes Screams.

In the ninth the game finally got exciting. Neither side had scored when Brooklyn came up in the first half.

"Who's batting first?" asked the blonde curls.

"Number four, that's Hack Wilson," answered the red fringe. "Or no, I guess Brooklyn's up. Lemme see; it's a guy named Flowers."

Flowers hit one and went to first, and then Herman hit one and went out, but Flowers got to second. Then Bressler hit one and Blake missed it, so in ran Flowers to the accompaniment of screams from the women.

"Oh, dear," said the girl with a man, "are we going to lose? I think that's mean of the Cubs to go and lose at my first ball game."

The gray haired woman was leaving.

"Sorry," she said to her companion. "I wish I could stay to see the end, but I live a long way off and I've got to get supper."

* *

Boo at Decision.

Hartnett came to bat in the Cubs' half and things looked interesting again when he hit one. Somebody else ran for him, which puzzled the women.

"I hope the Brooklyn guys didn't notice that," said the blonde curls. "Maybe Hartnett can't run fast enough and the Cubs want to be sure and win. Isn't it getting exciting? O, say, remember that boy you introduced me to yesterday? I'd like to have a date with him some time."

McMillan was up next and the umpires certainly did lots for him when they called him out at first. The women weren't any happier than the men over the decision and they booed long and loudly.

Beck fanned, and Maguire came up with two out.

"Wouldn't you hate to be him?" sympathized the red fringe. "I'd be just so nervous I couldn't do a thing."

It may have been nervousness or anything else. Anyway the Brooklyn pitcher caught his ball and the game was over.

* *

The Eternal Feminine.

The blonde curls and her red fringed friend were pushing their way out ahead of me.

"Yes, I just love baseball," the blonde curls was saying. "Isn't it fun to watch them. O, see that girl with the ankle socks! Let's get some."

A Paisley Shawl.

I had a rooming house and needed bedding, so when one of my neighbors sold out I bought a quilt from her. It had been her grandmother's and was really too heavy for a steam heated home, so I proceeded to remove the top to take out some of the cotton.

Imagine my surprise to find that a beautiful Paisley shawl and an old fashioned fringed shawl had been used instead of cotton batting.

At the time the grandmother had made the quilt cotton batting was scarce but the Paisley shawl now is almost priceless.

The $1.50 I paid for the quilt has been exceptionally well spent money.

New Plant for Old.

I purchased a large, expensive rubber plant from a loop department store. It was placed out on my airy sun porch, but it somehow failed to thrive, and after a few weeks a white scale formed on the withering leaves and it died, much to my chagrin.

I sent in a call to the department store to come and take the plant back, which they did. A day or so later I received a check for the amount I had paid and a letter explaining that the plant was infected with a common disease and that the department would gladly advise me in the selection of a new one.

I followed this suggestion, and the plant I chose is growing large and beautiful.

From our special correspondent at Larned, Kas.: "The wedding bells peeled joyfully at the home of Mr. H. R. The bride's brother, Charlie, played Meddlesome's wedding march on his cornet, and considering the fact he has only had it about nine months it sounded good. Rev. Osgood, who has been working through harvest and picking up a little on the side, performed the nuptials. The bride's costume was a sort of light, gauzy affair and white slippers and stockings to match. Of course she wore heavier clothes when she went on their wedding trip. Quite a merry crowd assembled to see them off, and as they didn't have any rice, some of them got to throwing roasting ears. Harry was struck under the eye by a large ear and blacked it pretty bad. They drove right to Larned and stayed all night at the hotel and then took their wedding trip to Kinsley and Dodge City. They have rented the old home place and will be at home next Tuesday. For eight years Mother Blaauw had been wishing for a daughter to complete the family circle. The wish has been granted. A neighbor knocked at the back door early one morning last week. Mrs. Blaauw hurried to answer. It was a baby girl that had been left in the Blaauw's yard. Mother Blaauw took her in her arms. When the police came a few hours later, she said, "I won't give her up. CITADELS of SUCCESS

"The Cities within the City"

Milwaukee, Ashland and Division Streets, a major market of Wicker Park

THROUGH the ages men have gathered together and built cities. Some have known the brief glory of boom prosperity . . . followed by quick extinction or slow commercial decay. Others, founded upon more solid foundations, have steadily advanced to positions of dominance over their neighbors. Chicago is one of these cities, a struggling prairie town that has grown to be a giant among cities.

Sharing in the growth of Chicago as a whole and an integral part of its prosperity are the 48 "cities within the city"—the residential districts where the 3,200,000 inhabitants of Chicago live. In everything but name these neighborhoods are actual cities. All but 11 of them have populations of 25,000 to 175,000. They have their own large stores, banks, and recreation centers. The size of their populations, the buying power of their inhabitants, make these neighborhoods equal in business possibilities to any cities of their size in the country.

One of the Commercial Strongholds . . . .

The prosperity of Wicker Park, one of the largest of the "cities of Chicago," illustrates the chances for success offered by all the city's neighborhoods. This district on the northwest side contains a population of nearly 138,000 people. Besides supporting one of the most flourishing of the city's outlying department stores, this neighborhood requires 485 grocery and delicatessen stores to furnish its food, 78 drug stores to supply drugs and toilet goods, and 45 radio stores to provide home entertainment and recreation.

The trading centers of Wicker Park did not grow to their present size and prosperity by accident. The merchants of this district long ago saw their neighborhood as it was—not a small collection of scattered families, content to be served by leisurely, inefficient shopkeepers, but a vigorous, constantly growing metropolis. Because they were wise enough to shape their selling and merchandising methods to the demands of a modern community, they have prospered. The same reason is behind the success of every neighborhood merchant who sells to "the cities within the city."

The New Era of Selling . . . . . .

The aggressive neighborhood retailers of Chicago know the vital part that advertising plays in present day selling. They long wanted a medium that would allow them to reach the buyers of their neighborhoods at a reasonable cost. And when that medium—the Metropolitan Section of the Sunday Tribune—appeared, they testified to its productiveness by placing over a million lines of advertising in it during the first year of its existence!

The Metropolitan Section divides the Sunday Tribune's coverage of 690,000 families in Chicago and suburbs into three great parts—one for each side of the city. This separation enables neighborhood retailers to buy only that part of the Sunday Tribune's selling influence they can use without waste. In their immediate neighborhood Wicker Park merchants can reach over 22,000 families—plus an additional coverage of 269,000 families on the west and northwest sides who live near enough to shop in this center! The cost of Metropolitan Section space is in proportion to the coverage received—about a third of the rate for full Sunday Tribune circulation!

Don't Put Off Prosperity! . . . . . .

Sales and success have been the reward of other Metropolitan Section advertisers. Ask a Tribune man to call and give you additional facts and figures about this medium's selected circulation. Let him show you how well suited it is for your business! Phone Superior 0100.

The Chicago Tribune publishes as a part of its regular Sunday issue a Metropolitan Section, the circulation of which is divided so that local neighborhood merchants may advertise in any one or more of the three sides of Chicago and suburbs as follows:

Uniforms for the seventeen members of the firing squad of the Morton Grove post, No. 134, were ordered at a recent meeting of the post. Funds derived from the benefit carnival will be used for the purchase.

Roseland post, No. 49, drum and bugle corps, forty-five pieces, snappily uniformed and finely equipped, will take part in a big parade at the homecoming celebration to be staged on the far south side tomorrow in honor of Elizabeth Robinson, the Thornton Township High school girl who broke the world's record for the 100 meter dash at the 1928 Olympiad.

* *

Bell post, No. 242, has been sponsoring girls' baseball games at Speedway hospital every other Sunday of the month. This post is comprised of employés of the Bell system in Chicago. The girl ball teams which participate in these games are employés of the Western Electric company. The next game is scheduled for today, so come out to the hospital, you Legionnaires, to see your buddies and also see a good ball game. Bell post has also entered its bugle and drum corps in the competition meet at Waukegan.

At the regular meeting of Theodore Roosevelt post, No. 627, the following delegates were elected to the state convention: C. H. Woodbridge, J. B. Morgan, E. E. Erickson, and A. E. Loescher. The delegates were also instructed to vote on all ballots for our own post commander, and present senior vice commander of the state department, James E. White, for the office of state commander.

Pulaski auxiliary, No. 86, is giving an old fashioned basket picnic today through the courtesy of the past post commander, Peter I. Bukowski. The picnic will be held at the grounds of Mr. Bukowski's summer resort in Deer Park. All Pulaski post members and their friends are invited. By auto —Northwest highway to Rand road, to "Kitty Corner," west on Dundee road to Deer park. By train—C. & N. W. to Palatine, then bus to Deer park; follow posters.

The Commonwealth Edison post's drum and bugle corps, led by L. J. Michaels, will enter the competition at Waukegan and also at the national convention in San Antonio. This corps placed second in the state competition last year, Kankakee post winning first. This will be the corps' first trip to a national convention. At a recent meeting of the post, twenty men were nominated, from which eight are to be elected delegates to the convention at Waukegan. Although only eight men will represent the post as delegates, the Edison post expects to be represented by several of its best members for at least part of the convention.

Homewood post No. 483 is overhauling its "Leaping Lena" for the convention at Waukegan. The post clowns are also rehearsing some new acts.

* *

Edison Park post No. 541, in conjunction with its auxiliary unit, is holding a barbecue picnic at Elk grove, forest preserve, on Higgins road, today. The auxiliary will barbecue the meats, and coffee, pop, ice cream, etc., will all be served free. Games and races with prizes will be held. This affair is limited to post and auxiliary members and their families. Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. the post will present its second band concert of the series being sponsored for the community of Edison Park. St. Hedwig's orphanage band will play under the direction of Al Cook, who also directs the Chicago Elks Lodge band. Adjutant H. E. Schuett will be the post delegate to Waukegan, and Commander S. C. Bromberg will act as alternate.

Armour post, No. 266, will hold its next regular meeting Tuesday evening at 6:30 p. m., at the Saddle and Sirloin club, Union stockyards, preceded by a dinner. Important business will be brought up, principally the election of three delegates and three alternates for the state convention. Also a prize is to be awarded to the member obtaining the largest number of new members during the year.

* *

Riverside post, No. 488, at Riverside, will hold a carnival Aug. 29 to Sept. 1 inclusive, and extends an invitation to its neighboring Legionnaires and their friends to attend. This is the first carnival the post has held for a period of three years.

* *

Sig-Yeo post, No. 267, has selected Mrs. Nell Weston Halstead as its delegate to the state convention, with Miss Myrl Leonard as alternate.

* *

Consumers post, No. 251, holds its annual field day tomorrow at the Evergreen Golf club, at which time the members will make strenuous and perspiring efforts to win the big, beautiful, thirty-six inch cup donated by the post. The low scorer of two tournaments secures permanent possession of the trophy. However, the outstanding battle of the day will be the contest between two one-armed golfers, Commander Walter Jasper and Ed Dean. This affair bids well to develop into a statewide scrap, as several challenges have already been received from other one-armed Legionnaires who believe that they can annihilate Commander Jasper of Consumers post.

* *

Walter P. Murphy has just returned from a vacation spent in Wisconsin, and announces the filing of his resignation as commander of Ravenswood post. Commander Murphy was reelected to the office in June, 1928, but due to the press of business, finds he is unable to hold the office for another year. At the next regular meeting of the post on Tuesday, candidates will be nominated for the office of commander, and also third vice commander. Bill Long, elected in June as third vice commander, has left Chicago and will be unable to continue with the post.

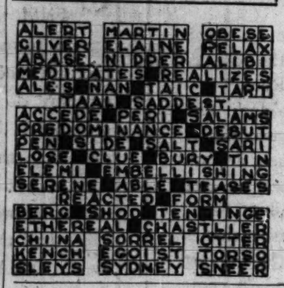
ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE



LESSONS IN BRIDGE

BY R. M. ROGERS.

ARTICLE XXIII.

R. M. ROGERS.

If penalties incurred on account of games lost were charged up against each player the record would show fourth hand to be a high offender. Fourth hand is inclined to forget or possibly doesn't know that a hand strong enough for a dealer to bid, or second hand if dealer passes, must be much stronger to justify a bid after three passes. If the hand doesn't come up to the required number of tricks for a fourth hand bid (and every one should at least know the original bid in any position) the player should pass and get a new deal.

It must be evident that as partner passed he isn't worth over two tricks, and it takes at least ten tricks for game at anything except no trump, and therefore a fourth hand bid can only be made with a hand holding eight tricks giving credit to the partner who has passed for only two tricks. To bid a no trump after three hands have passed is never wise without all suits being stopped and the count of at least seven tricks in the bidder's own hand.

One has to take into consideration the character of the various players as to their game, because there are many players who prefer to let some one else open the bidding and pass the first round with really a bidding hand.

The best rule of action for fourth hand bidder after three passes is, do not start the bidding unless you can bid up to four and can defeat any other bid that opponents could make and which, of course, would be doubled.

The temptation to shade this rule is sometimes overwhelming, particularly if opponents have a game in, but the only good reason for any exception is the belief that if Dame Fortune is playing fair she will give each pair of players their share of the luck and if opponents won the last hand and both pass on this one it may be her luck contribution to the side having no game to its credit but got the winning hand on the wrong side of the table—namely: 4th hand instead of second. If the temptation to bid is too strong to be overcome and you are bound to yield, consider carefully two things:

1st: Counting partner for two tricks how many tricks can you take, remembering that three in a major or four in a minor suit is the only safe bid originally by fourth hand after three passes?

Is the possibility of loss worth the chance which always exists under exceptional conditions that the hands will so fit that you will not lose at all?

2d: Can you defeat the opponents at any bid they might make over your original bid? Unless you can double anything that the adversary bids and beat them you might better pass the hand.

The fourth hand original bid may be in a minor or major suit but rarely in no trump, and the player should be prepared to make a game bid or double and win against anything the adversaries undertake.

For the consideration of those who play bridge but don't always follow the conventions, and to that extent are unreliable, there is submitted below a fourth hand which was held recently, three passes preceding it. Would you bid the hand after every one has passed and if so—what? The hand:

Spades—A.
Hearts—A, 6, 4.
Diamonds—A, 9, 4.
Clubs—Q, 9, 8, 5, 3, 2.

You have six sure losers if clubs are bid, and possibly more. If you bid no trump and spades are opened, your first club lead probably will be taken by opponents, who may run three or four more spade tricks and still have control of your clubs.

Let us suppose you are playing with a partner who hasn't yet reached the stage as a player where he can be depended upon always to bid if he has the requirements that are agreed upon as necessary for a conventional bid of one—namely: two quick tricks, one of which must be in the suit mentioned, and four tricks in the hand, three of them being in the suit named. Let us suppose that he has:

Spades—9, 7, 4.
Hearts—8, 5.
Diamonds—7, 5, 3.
Clubs—A, K, 10, 6, 4.

If he passes this hand and you hold the one shown above, will you not be obliged to pass also? If, however, he is an honest player and knows the conventions he must bid one club on the above holding, or else he practically says in plain English, "Partner, I have not two quick tricks in this hand, with at least one of them in the suit mentioned by me, and I have not four tricks in the hand," a statement which is, of course, untrue. Holding the first hand shown above, any one that knows anything about the game would bid three no trumps and be able to make it after a club bid by partner.

Similar situations to this arise at almost every sitting at a game of bridge, and it is incomprehensible to the writer why any one should pass a hand like the last one shown above without bidding one club, which can produce no harm, and would often do a lot of good and frequently make a game. The writer would be pleased to hear from those bridge players who would pass the hand shown last above in defense of it.

DRYING 'EM IS HARDEST

THE sorrowful expression on the face of Eugene Owens gives indication that, so far as a fireman is concerned, drying the dishes is the most irksome part of the dishwashing task. Charles Barnes contends that it's simply a matter of plenty of running hot water. The kitchen sink scene was snpaped at engine house No. 51, 6345 Wentworth avenue. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

A Spaniard craved permission to stage a bull fight. Paris had discouraged his attempts at its exposition in 1889, but perhaps, the Spaniard thought, the savages of America would welcome it right royally.

There was one man who lived before his time. He was a cosmetic dealer who proposed that he bring an old woman, one-half of whose face was smoothly beautiful, the other half wrinkled and yellow with age. At the end of the fair, as a grand climax, he would smooth out the wrinkles, making her youthful again in all her face—all with the wonderful preparation he had for sale.

Couldn't Please Everybody.

Various suggestions were made — a tower 3,000 feet high, a suite of rooms under Lake Michigan, and a building 400 stories high. The ways and means committee couldn't please everybody, and so some suggested plans could not be adopted. The wonders which they did permit to be shown were frequently misunderstood. There was a complete armor, well set up, in the Italian section, which brought forth the exclamation from a woman to her husband, "It's a diver! I've seen 'em. Ain't he natural lookin'?"

There was a large battleship on which you were landed after a gondola ride which carried you about on a little water trip. An aged woman and her husband took the trip, but only as far as the ship's edge.

"Ephraim," the woman exclaimed, "you don't know nothin' about ships. It might sink or it might sail away with you."

And so Ephraim obediently stayed away from the ship.

Fakirs Were Popular.

Of course, the committee had to permit some fakirs to come for entertainment. They were popular.

Outside one tent there squatted a little man in Egyptian dress calling out, "This, ladies and gentlemen, is the temple of Luxor, the tomb of Ramesis the Second. You will find his mummy about the fifth one on the right. On the left the mummy of King Solomon's father-in-law, also his sister-in-law. The sacred dances are about to begin."

A man standing listening one day turned to his neighbor and inquired, "Is this the German village?"

A Vague Exhibit.

The committee didn't always make everything clear to spectators. In the silk department there was a gigantic mechanical worm. Into one end went the raw silk, out of the other came spools of thread. One woman watching, suddenly exclaimed, "I understand everything excepting how they get the silk colored."

A magazine writer, one Gustav Kobbé, had a good time chuckling over other folk in 1893. He laughed at the angels on the Transportation building because they made him think of the fate "we are most exposed to when we use modern means of transportation."

English Pastor Finds Calm on His Visit Here

LONDON.—(AP)—Americans who visit England slander their own country outrageously, says the Rev. Joseph Shepherd, pastor of the Islington chapel, who has just returned from a tour of northeastern United States.

"According to them, New York is a city where the people have no time for manners in their grab for gold. Their police are moody mandarins who swagger along the streets with revolvers dangling at their sides, swinging their batons and ready to use them if you do not fling yourself into the whirlwind of hustle.

"That is the dream America created by Americans and Hollywood pictures. It is a nightmare America that does not exist."

Strauss Finishing Lively New Opera

VIENNA.—(AP)—Richard Strauss, famous author of the operatic gems, "Rosenkavalier," "Salome," "The Egyptian Helena," and others, is completing a new opera called "Arabella." The scenes are laid in Vienna. Arabella is the name of a very pretty Viennese countess who elopes with her coachman. The dialogue is merry and the music is said to equal in charm Strauss' previous works.

Experts Report Summer Static is Diminishing

Conditions Will Improve from Now On.

Just now when every distance listener is swearing at the summer static, or has given up in disgust, or has "junked his set" it is welcome news to hear the static experts at the U. S. bureau of standards say the worst is over and that the curve of bad atmospherics is on the toboggan.

Systematic recording of static by Uncle Sam for about six years shows that extreme conditions prevail in June and July almost invariably followed by relief towards the end of August, improving steadily with the cool nights which begin to be felt during September and with the very best listening conditions from the middle of October to the middle of March.

High Last June.

According to the standards bureau observations static this year was equally bad during June and July of this year. At that, it was much lower this July than last but June static this summer was worse than during the same period last summer. In June, 1927, the static was abnormally low, as a matter of fact, and that is the reason it appeared to be so much higher last June.

Static has been pretty high the past month in many parts of the country due to the thunderstorms which have prevailed. A curious condition was noticeable the night Secretary Hoover spoke, however.

It followed a protracted heat spell—a record breaker in most places—and the night before he spoke static was so high almost everywhere that it was next to impossible to pull in outside stations.

Hoover Got Break.

However, on the evening of his speech, according to the U. S. weather bureau, it was cool all over the east, but a rainy condition existed minus thunderstorms. This was the very territory Mr. Hoover was desirous of reaching and where the night before people were out in their automobiles or on the porch trying to cool off the night of the speech they very likely were kept in doors where they were almost sure to be listening in on the radio.

To make the break luckier, there being no thunderstorms, static was greatly reduced and the clear listening range was far beyond anything it had been for weeks before.

Surely there ought to be very advanced evidences of static conditions with the beginning of autumn on Sunday, Sept. 23. Inasmuch as that is only about a month off there will not be much longer for the fans to wait.

Discovery of Hawaii Islands to Be Told on W-G-N Tomorrow

The dramatic story of Capt. James Cook, English explorer, and the tragic fate he met when he discovered the Hawaiian islands, will be told in radio drama with a background of Hawaiian music tomorrow night in the family party program broadcast by W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel.

As the famous navigator sailed into a harbor of one of the islands the plaintive notes of Hawaiian music played on strange native instruments fell for the first time upon Nordic ears. Although the music captivated the fancy of the officers and crew of the ship, a century and a half elapsed before it was known and loved by the western world.

Joseph Green's novelty orchestra will render part of the musical program but "Holoua's Troubadours," one of the foremost native musical organizations, will provide much of the background of Hawaiian music during the dramalogue. Holoua came to America in 1901 and attracted unusual attention at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, where his company gave its entertainments in an Hawaiian village. He toured the country many times in vaudeville and has appeared with his associates in concert in the leading theaters.

Henry Selinger and His Violin Return to W-G-N Tomorrow

Henry Selinger, virtuoso violinist, returns to his accustomed place on W-G-N's programs tomorrow night at 9:30 o'clock. Mr. Selinger has been absent for several weeks on vacation, and Johann Lingeman, cellist, has been occupying the time ordinarily filled by the former.

Mr. Selinger's series of violin recitals started over two years ago, when he first came on the air as the "Phantom Violin." During the last nine months, his weekly programs have been given under his own name.

Listeners have been particularly pleased with Mr. Lingeman's series of programs, and now that he will no longer be heard on Monday night, W-G-N has arranged for him to present a joint recital each Saturday night at 8 o'clock with Herbert Johnson, W-G-N pianist. The first of these joint recitals comes next Saturday.

W-G-N Will Present Two Radio Plays on Air This Week

Drama on the radio will be supplied by two features this week on W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel. Thursday night at 9 o'clock the second and concluding act of "The Purple Towers," the mystery musical comedy, will be heard, while on Saturday night listeners can hear the dramatization of the new Tribune Sunday serial, "One of the Follies."

Harry W. Spingold is directing both of these productions. The installment of "One of the Follies" presented is the dramatization of the third episode, so that listeners can pick up the thread of the story before reading the fourth installment in The Tribune the following day.

VACATION DAYS AT LINCOLN PARK

NOTHING like the woods and waters when the languid summer days come on. Some folk travel far for the purpose of getting back to nature. Others find rest for their nerves in Lincoln park, and here we have a typical August afternoon scene at the lagoon. The water ripples to the dip of the oars and calmly reflects the shadows of the trees along the shore.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN A. RYAN.

HERE IS ONE of the heart touching kind of letters that, fiction tells us, clowns and actors receive occasionally. It is seldom, I suppose, that we humble broadcasters receive such, and when we do we may be pardoned for tucking it away, for memory's sake in years to come:

"Dear Sir: Probably I should have said 'Uncle Quin,' as that is the title the children love so well. I heard you this evening telling the story of blackberry bush and the little boy with the honey-colored hair, and judging by the way in which you tell your stories to the children [and the grown-ups as well] you must love children. I have just a few words to tell you. I can't call it a 'story,' as it happened in real life, only recently. Something prompted me to tell you this — how happy you made a little boy with honey-colored hair, too—and helped to cheer his last weeks of young life. The seven year old son of friends of mine had been ailing for months, and because he knew you so well, on the air every evening, I bought him a little gift, as a pastime in his weary days and weeks of suffering. It was your book of the circus, the clowns, etc. Could you have seen the look of joy in his emaciated face, it would recompense you for your broadcasting work and for your children's book. His mother told me how he read and reread the book every day when the pain was not too agonizing, and cherished the contents almost to the end."
[Signed.]

Radio has got religion, and religion has got radio. Taking, say, 700 as the total of radio stations in the United States, we find that one in every fifteen is owned by a religious organization. Add to these the number of churches or sectarian schools participating in the operation of radio stations, and the ratio moves up to about one in every ten. Further, one-half of all the stations include some form of worship or a religious program in their broadcast offerings. Religion has embraced the radio, and the sky pilots are cruising the skies.

After reverently weighing the listening public's reports on the matter, we may draw the compound conclusion that religious broadcasting is a great privilege and a great pest.

It is from the larger cities that there comes the angry designation of religious stations as pests. Many a city or suburban listener finds a crusading broadcaster in his territory hogging the air and ruining his chances of enjoying other stations with diversified programs. When the Jumping Jehosaphats build a potent broadcasting plant in any locality the neighbors for miles around have the alternative of listening exclusively to fervent calisthenics or of turning in their radio sets for useful fireless cookers.

Since press agents, movies, billboards, and other modern devices of salesmanship have been called to the evangelical cause, it was but natural that churches should employ the radio for publicity. Just these churches that employ it obviously for advertising bring down upon their heads the wrath of the everyday radio devotee.

In many more cases, on the other hand, the religious radio is deemed a divine blessing. It delivers to the hearthstone of the isolated and to the bedside of the shut-in balm and inspiration of holy service—and welcomely, too, even to individuals who have been indifferently beyond the rim of any flock.

An infinite variety of letters—from the invalid, the woodsman, the hill-bound farmer, the lighthouse guardian, the housewife whose domestic duties do not permit church going—testify to the radio's efficacy in bringing the very "feel" of the church service to them. Its mirroring of the inspirational exercises within the church wins back countless strayed members of the flock. Its nondenominational programs gain the ears of thousands who shun the pulpits. Its moral lessons hit home effectively because the recipient is in a receptive mood, at his ease in his home, with no distractions.

Religious broadcasting has been so successful that there have been predictions of "radio churches" to supplant poorly equipped rural pastorates. A community chapel would replace the little red meeting house and a radio horn replace the little read preacher.

One writer in a religious publication foretells the passing of the circuit riding parson, the wheezy organ, the home made choir, the inept sermons, and sparse attendance. The pastor, he predicts, will become, instead, a social organizer and superintendent of the radio services. The congregation will gather to hear the sermon of a famous metropolitan divine and will join with the singing of renowned artists miles distant.

The opposing debaters—and there has been more debating on the subject than the public suspects—contend that people will never be satisfied with merely auricular attendance at church; that religion is more than simple hearing, whatever the belief. They argue that services on the radio lose their devoutness; that the churchgoer misses the warmth and comfort of personal attendance; that there is lacking the communion of spirit and the sense of holiness.

What do you, for one, think? Do you think you could be satisfied with attending your church by radio?

At any rate, the bulk of the churches are making vast and good use of this child of science, and their increasing numbers seem to answer for themselves the worry that broadcasting may lessen the attendance at church.

Questionnaires submitted to pastors tell, in ten instances to one, of attendance increased after broadcasting, of letters received from distant points containing promises to attend church more often, of the dispelling of points of prejudice, and of the creation of bountiful good will. They even tell of voluntary monetary donations to the collection box.

The clergyman who has probably the largest and most variegated audience in the world is Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, who preaches via a chain of radio stations on Sunday afternoons. He includes a "question box" for the answering of questions sent to him from his scattered listeners of all sects and creeds. He says of broadcasting:

"Properly used, radio presents an amazingly wide field for reasonable propaganda of the great truths we hold in common. I have found it an immense help in reaching countless numbers of people who have no definite affiliations with the churches. They are not irreligious. Far from it. They are deeply moved by spiritual realities and are a very large group presenting a fascinating field for religious enterprise. If the radio industry existed for this purpose alone, it would be amply justified."

As for the lazy sheep of the flock, why worry about them? A man who will remain away from the church in order that he may lie at home, smoke his pipe, listen to the services, and chuckle as he hears the tinkle of the collection would likewise, in playing golf alone, concede himself most of his three foot putts.

Small Stations to Have Place in Radio Plan

Local Programs Approved by Commissioners.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—(AP)—While members of the federal radio commission have divergent opinions on the methods of allocation and the limitation of station power, they are in accord on the usefulness of small stations that give good programs of community interest.

The commissioners were impressed by the showing made by representatives of several of the small stations at the hearings granted 126 broadcasters, who had been cited to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked in the public interest.

Robinson Approves.

Additional evidence of the popularity of some of these community stations was revealed in the flood of letters from listeners urging their retention. Judge Ira E. Robinson, who has issued few statements since he became chairman of the commission, has indicated on several occasions his approval of the small stations.

Even Commissioner O. H. Caldwell, who is an advocate of high power for the larger stations, declares he is a staunch supporter of the local station where it does not interfere with the general service rendered by the big studios.

"The usefulness of every home radio receiver will be expanded, if in addition to the general programs there is also made available a place on the dial where the listener can tune in his town or county transmitter and hear events and ceremonies of strictly local interest," he said.

Service to Farmers.

In the sparsely settled regions and great distances of the far west there are few local stations and the residents of these areas are dependent upon higher powered stations for their programs. However, Commissioner Lafount, the representative of this zone, has provided room for all of the existing small stations in his allocation plan for the entire country.

Judge Eugene Sykes, representative of the south, and Commissioner Sam Pickard of the middle west have been favorable in their attitude towards the small stations, especially those which give good service to the farmers.

Zisman's Mandolin Trio Ends Service at W-G-N Tuesday

Josef Zisman's mandolin trio makes its farewell appearance as an instrumental group on W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel, Tuesday night at 10:30 o'clock. The trio, which consists of Mr. Zisman, Nicolas Manlioff, and George Robach, has been heard many times on the station.

Following the Tuesday night program, the trio will be dissolved, since Mr. Zisman is leaving for New York. For more than three years he has been a featured artist on W-G-N, and it is only now, upon the eve of his departure, that station officials have learned that the smiling artist is really Josef Zimanich, officer of the former imperial Russian army, and a veteran of the great war, in which he was twice wounded and received the Cross of St. George.

AMERICAN LEGION NEWS

This department is devoted to views of the American Legion. Officials of all posts are invited to make use of it to keep the Legionnaires of the whole county in touch with activities of the individual posts. Items must reach the American Legion Editor, Sunday Tribune, not later than Wednesday morning for publication the following Sunday.

LEGIONNAIRES who like competition will have numerous events to hold their interest at Waukegan Sept. 10 and 11 during the state convention. There will be contests between bands, drum corps, quartets, golf teams, bowling teams, drill teams, trap shooters, and horseshoe pitchers. The election of a new state commander is already a matter of much discussion. The Cook county candidates are James E. White of Theodore Roosevelt post, senior vice commander of the department of Illinois; David L. Shillinglaw of Advertising post, past commander of the Cook County association; Lawrence E. McGann Jr. of Austin post, past junior commander of the department of Illinois; Al C. Linenthal of Ravenswood post, vice commander of the Cook County council, and Arthur ("Jack") Poorman, commander of Chicago Heights post.

Hoover Stirs New Interest in the Quakers

Some Customs of the Ancient Friends.

By Eunice Stebbins.

SINCE Hoover was nominated you have been more interested in the Quakers, or, as they call themselves, the Friends. You probably already know that they paid the Indians for the land on which they settled, called Penn's woodland or Pennsylvania, and that they founded and named Philadelphia, "the city of brotherly love." The name "Quaker" probably brings to you a picture of a man in a broad brimmed hat and coat with no vain notch in the lapel; or the image of a sweet faced woman in an ugly drab or black bonnet, with a dainty white kerchief neatly crossed on the bosom of an ugly drab or black gown. And you know vaguely that the Friends use forms of "thou" in their talk.

There is much more to know about that quaint people who attend to their own business and live in peace with the world, even, as in the early days, with the Indians.

Come with me to Quakerland, somewhere in the rich farming country near Philadelphia. Stand with me in the porch of the plain brick meeting house, different from a dwelling only in size and possibly the two entrances in front.

No Show of Wealth.

It is first-day; the Friends use no names of heathen gods for the days or the months. The meeting [not the congregation] is coming in. The older Friends wear the dress you know; the younger are garbed as the world's people. All exchange greetings; some may wander among the myrtle covered tombstones, low and plain, marked only with names and dates. The Friends do not believe in show of wealth in a graveyard, nor, for that matter, in any place of life.

The men and women are separating at the two entrances. Let us enter with them. Long benches on both sides; a few in front, where the pulpit or organ would be in other places of worship. No service but sitting in silence while the humming or buzzing

George caught a 50 foot whale, but had to throw it back as had taken his legal limit of cetaceans that day.

DR. F. EDWARD SCHMIDT.

Hoo-rah, hoo-ree,
Rah-rah, naught-three.

WE ARE privileged today to gaze upon the doctor contemplating the universe 25 years ago as a member of the graduating class of the University of Chicago. He looks natural despite the chinscraper choker collar. Even in our most liberal institutions of learning the Adam's apple had not yet achieved emancipation. It was still being born to blush unseen. It was to be years later that an inspired and daring haberdasher was to enlighten the world with open plumbing in neckwear.

The doctor, or Florian, as his classmates truthfully expressed it, early won recognition as a youth of iron will, who could take his frats or leave them. This was because of his unique ambition to establish a record as a nonjoiner. He was eminently successful. He joined nothing, not even the Y. M. C. A. He should have received a "C," but didn't.

"Any man can do the same," says the doctor modestly, "if only he refuses often enough and long enough."

Of course, he played alto saxophone in the band, but why bring that up?

What Other Women Wear Divides Interest.

By Helen Dare

TWO chorus girls—at least they looked it, with their ankle bracelets, extreme clothes, and heavy makeup—sat behind me.

"Lemme see," said the one whose blonde curls looked suspiciously detachable, "the guys in white are our team—the Cubs—and the others are either the Yankees or maybe Brooklyn. But I don't know anything else about the game."

"Well, it's like this," explained her companion, who was decked out in slinky red fringe, among other things. "first one side gets up and goes out and then the other side does. And when they both get up and go out they call it an inning."

"But what do they call it an inning for," retorted the blonde curls, "if they go out all the time?"

Furious Toward Usher.

Ladies' day at Wrigley field. A day overhung with threats of rain, which, however, didn't dampen the spirits of the feminine fans—or bargain hunters. Women are admitted free on Ladies' day, you know.

Mamma brought the girls and was furious when the guard insinuated that they weren't perfect ladies.

"You'll have to buy a ticket for them," he insisted wearily, "or go to the office. I can't do anything about it. I'm only an usher. I'm only supposed to let ladies in. That means over 16 years. See?"

Mamma and the girls decided to take their outing at Lincoln park instead.

But other youngsters, with the aid of deft lipsticks and sophisticated smirks, managed to get by the not infallible guards. Three of them came giggling in to where I sat up in the second deck.

"And I said I was 16 and he fell for it," said one, obviously no more than 12. "Oooh, here comes Kiki," as

'AL INTERVIEWS THE "BLANKET BUMS"

And Finds Animated Cigar Signs Indulging in a Redskin Racket

By Snowshoe Al.

LAST week me and my wife happened to be in the vicinity of the Lac Du Flambeau Indian reservation, so we decided to breeze over and slip this flock of Cigar Signs a few curious glances. We expected to find them galloping around in feathers, war paint and beads; therefore we were quite surprised to see them wearing overalls, straw hats, and wrist watches.

"This is terribly disappointing," snorts my Quarrel Partner; "in fact, I'd hardly recognize them as Indians if it wasn't for the fact that none of the men are working."

"You're wrong," says me, "because I can see a guy working—he's winding his wrist watch! He'll probably have to lay down under a tree an' rest for an hour after all that strenuous labor. By golly, there don't seem to be many Blanket Bums on the street today. I wonder where they're all at!"

"Why don't you ask somebody?" says my Noisy Half. "Here comes a little boy—ask him."

"Hey, papoose, where is your father today?" says I; "is he running around in the forests shooting deer?"

"Don't get comical!" says the papoose; "he's probably running around in the gutters, shooting cigaret butts. He didn't come home last night. Just wait till my mother gets her mitts on the old boy—she's gonna raise lumps on him."

* *

Funny Talk.

At this moment my wife sees a small souvenir shop which, according to a sign, is owned by Chief White Eagle, so she says to me:

"Run over to that store and ask the guy where all the Indians are at."

I trots into Mr. White Eagle's place of business and finds him sitting in a rocking chair, smoking a punk cigar. As I entered he looked up, yawned, and remarked "Ugh."

"Ugh right back at you," says I; "pardon me, Chief, but me like to ask you question. Me look for heap much Indians, but me no findum. How come, kid, how come? Indians all croak from much cold weather last winter an' go to Happy Hunting Grounds, huh?"

"Your phraseology would indicate an atmosphere of either sarcasm or light jest," yawns Mr. White Eagle. "You'll find most of our people over at the Indian Pageant. Drive straight up this street and then follow the first road to your left. By the way, how did the Cubs come out yesterday?"

"The Pirates beat 'em," says I.

"IZ$$@$$Z$$!!!" snorts he, tearing up a 25 cent chance on a baseball lottery. "Would you like to buy an Indian basket?"

"Certainly not," sneers me; "what would I want an Indian basket for?"

"About 15 cents, I suppose," says he, "but you wouldn't get it."

A Redskin Racket.

So me and my wife grabbed the first road to the left and started on the trail of the Blanket Bums. There was lots of other cars headed in the same direction. After traveling a couple miles we began to hear large quantities of war whoops, tomtom beating, and other forms of redskin racket, and pretty soon we arrived at the entrance to a large park. A fat squaw leaned out of a small ticket office window and asked me how many tickets I wanted.

"What's the cost?" asks me. "What's going on in there? Why is all that racket? It sounds like somebody just found a Canadian dime among his small change."

"The tickets are 50 cents each," says the fat squaw, "and we show you the way we used to live. You'll see the way we used to cook, eat, work, and fight 'way back in the primitive days."

So I coughs up one dollar and in we goes. Well, it seems as how this Indian village consists of about twenty round dwellings made of some sort of woven fiber or matting, with birch bark roofs. In front of each of them was some old squaws making blankets and other things. My Noisy Half stops to ask one of these old dames a few questions, so I keeps on going and enters one of the wigwams. It contained three army cots, an alarm clock, and a gasoline stove. A stout Indian mamma was sitting on one of the cots eating a candy bar and humming her papoose a very primitive lullaby, entitled "Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

The Dawn of Civilization.

"Well, well," says I, "so this is the way you ginks lived way back in the early days!"

"Sure," says the squaw.

"By golly," says me, "Chris Columbus must have got an awful shock when you people offered to trade him some alarm clocks for a bottle of firewater. I can almost hear him saying, 'Hey, keed, where you gitta deez teengs, huh?'"

Just then a cute little Indian girl breezed into the joint. She was about 4 years old, and she was carrying a little, black kitten.

"Hello, little gal," says I, slipping her a dime, "here's some money for you. Now, what are you gonna do with it—buy a bow an' arrow?"

"How silly!" says the little brat; "I'm gonna buy two boxes of crackerjack an' I don't mean perhaps!"

I moved along and entered another wigwam where two old Blanket Bums were sitting in rocking chairs listening to a New York radio program and arguing as to whether Tito Schipa had a better tenor voice than John McCormack.

"Good morning, gents," says I.

"Good morning," says one of them.

"You are an old man," says I, "an' I bet you have seen many interesting sights in your days. Do you remember Custer's Last Stand?"

"No," says he, "but I remember Sitting Bull. Ah, what a wonderful Chief he was! Sitting Bull had a wife named Squatting Cow and a daughter named Reclining Calf. He also had another daughter named Reposing Heifer and a son named Prostrate Ox. He also had——"

"Something tells me that your name is either Lying Beef or Bum Steer," says I; "good-by, Ananias, I do not care to be spoofed."

Early American.

I went out and found my wife. She was watching the Indian war dances, so I sat down beside her and gazed at this very interesting piece of hokum. A dozen Blanket Bums was hopping around in a circle, doing heap much quantities of yelling and large amounts of perspiring. Near them sat the native jazz orchestra beating on tomtoms, hollow logs, etc. Over near us sat a fat warrior who was evidently in charge of the monkey business, because he was always shouting instructions to the dancers. I listened closely to what he was saying, and you'd be surprised to learn how easy it is to understand the Indian language! No fooling, I readily picked up quite a few primitive phrases, such as:

"Snap into it, youse guys—step on the gas!"

"Come on, Big Boy, shake those hoofs!"

"Hey, Charlie! Get going, kid, get going!"

Well, me and the wife wanders away from this scene and starts walking around. Pretty soon I spots an old cigar sign sitting under a tree. Old? Sa-ay, I betcha this guy helped to scalp the driver of the first covered wagon! His face contained more wrinkles than a carload of washboards. His last tooth must have fell out about the time of the Boston Tea party.

* *

A Kansas Zephyr Ends It All.

"Hello, Papa Time," says I; "how old are you?"

"Ugh wug mug ugh mug jug wug mug," mumbles him.

"Add your own mug to that collection," says I, "because it's too comical to be overlooked. How old are you?"

"One hundred and ten," says he.

"You're just the bimbo I'm looking for," says I; "here's a half dollar! Now tell me all about Custer's Last Stand."

"Ah," says he, "how well I remember Custer's Last Stand! It was in a small town in Kansas. He had nice red-and-white striped awnings on it to keep out the sun's rays. He did a great business in barbecue sandwiches, popcorn, lemonade, and coffee, but he also sold oil and gasoline. One day, however, a Kansas cyclone came along and blew the stand to kindling wood. Mr. Custer became very exasperated. 'Damn these cyclones,' said he, 'this is the fourth time they have blown me out of business and I am getting tired of it; in fact, I hereby resolve never to build another stand!' So that, my friend, was Custer's Last——"

"Aw, go to hell!" says I.

France Plans Giving of Aid to Its Writers

PARIS. — (AP)—The "Rescue Station for Intelectuals" is trying to solve the problem of how to help French writers in distress.

The secretary said that the purpose of the movement was to reach the man who is too proud to ask for help, as well as those who have suffered misfortune. The station makes a policy of granting loans on word of honor without a fixed date for repayment. The committee is composed of poets, academicians, dramatists, lawyers, and cabinet ministers.

"A few men of letters, touched by the misfortunes of brother artists, decided to organize a society to aid them," explained the secretary. "Our aim is at once moral and material. Our members are asked especially to seek out colleagues who are too proud to ask us for loans. If it is necessary, we advance money in these delicate cases by an anonymous money order."

Among the members of the committee are Edouard Herriot, minister of public instruction; Paul Fort, poet; the dramatist Brieux, Edouard Estaunie, and Henri de Ragnier of the French academy, and Henri-Robert, celebrated lawyer.

the child could easily be stolen from its mother; in fact, he would gladly undertake the kidnaping himself, for a sum of money.

A Spaniard craved permission to stage a bull fight. Paris had discouraged his attempts at its exposition in 1889, but perhaps, the Spaniard thought, the savages of America would welcome it right royally.

There was one man who lived before his time. He was a cosmetic dealer who proposed that he bring an old woman, one-half of whose face was smoothly beautiful, the other half wrinkled and yellow with age. At the end of the fair, as a grand climax, he would smooth out the wrinkles, making her youthful again in all her face—all with the wonderful preparation he had for sale.

Couldn't Please Everybody.

Various suggestions were made — a tower 3,000 feet high, a suite of rooms under Lake Michigan, and a building 400 stories high. The ways and means committee couldn't please everybody, and so some suggested plans could not be adopted. The wonders which they did permit to be shown were frequently misunderstood. There was a complete armor, well set up, in the Italian section, which brought forth the exclamation from a woman to her husband, "It's a diver! I've seen 'em. Ain't he natural lookin'?"

There was a large battleship on which you were landed after a gondola ride which carried you about on a little water trip. An aged woman and her husband took the trip, but only as far as the ship's edge.

"Ephraim," the woman exclaimed, "you don't know nothin' about ships. It might sink or it might sail away with you."

And so Ephraim obediently stayed away from the ship.

* *

Fakirs Were Popular.

Of course, the committee had to permit some fakirs to come for entertainment. They were popular.

Outside one tent there squatted a little man in Egyptian dress calling out, "This, ladies and gentlemen, is the temple of Luxor, the tomb of Ramesis the Second. You will find his mummy about the fifth one on the right. On the left the mummy of King Solomon's father-in-law, also his sister-in-law. The sacred dances are about to begin."

A man standing listening one day turned to his neighbor and inquired, "Is this the German village?"

A Vague Exhibit.

The committee didn't always make everything clear to spectators. In the silk department there was a gigantic mechanical worm. Into one end went the raw silk, out of the other came spools of thread. One woman watching, suddenly exclaimed, "I understand everything excepting how they get the silk colored."

A magazine writer, one Gustav Kobbé, had a good time chuckling over other folk in 1893. He laughed at the angels on the Transportation building because they made him think of the fate "we are most exposed to when we use modern means of transportation."

FINDS JOY IN FLOWERS

LIKE most women, Mrs. G. W. Good, 3201 Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, Ill., gets a great deal of pleasure from her flower garden, and she has found her work of cultivation particularly rewarded this summer. The cannas which she has grown are greatly admired by passersby.

Fighters of Forest Fires Use Wireless

MARSEILLES.—(AP)—Radio will be used by forest fire fighters in the south of France to combat the devastating fires which have caused much damage to woodlands this summer. Forest fire fighting is being put on an entirely new basis by union of the services of the Forest Union of the Alps and the Foresters' Union of Provence.

Turkish Cops Take Lessons in English

CONSTANTINOPLE.—(AP)—To facilitate shopping and sight seeing of American tourists, the Turkish government is giving an intensive course in the English language to members of the Constantinople police.

Under the tutorship of Prof. Thomas Tully, instructor in English at the Galata Serai Lyceum, and himself a Moslem convert, the policemen have been taught how to answer all reasonable questions that a tourist is likely to ask.

Police Trap Hungry Thief Who Ate Soap

BRESLAU.—(AP)—An unusual clew led to the capture of two professional burglars guilty of a series of baffling crimes.

One of the robbers while ransacking an apartment, had picked up an apple from the kitchen table and started to bite it. It happened that the fruit was imitation and made of soap. He dropped it quickly in disgust and the police used the teeth marks later to identify a captive under suspicion.

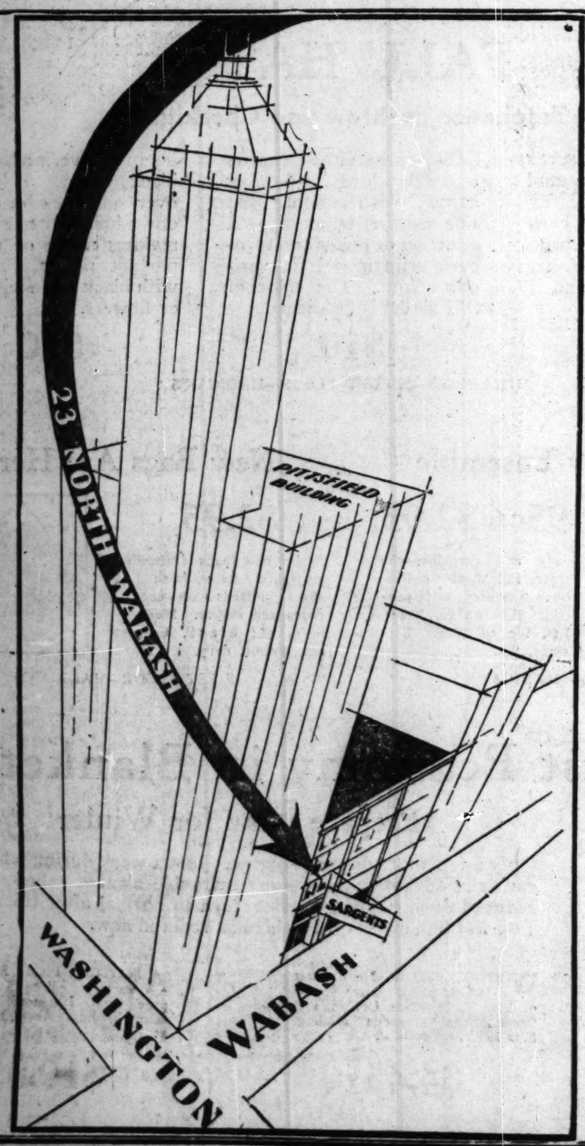
SARGENT'S DRUG STORE



Culminates Three-Quarters of a Century of Prescription Service

REPUTATION takes years in the building and is a thing which merits every possible care to prevent its destruction. Such care means absolute adherence to principles of good and intelligent service and, particularly in our case, the ability to serve faultlessly a profession which is strict in what it wants.

For 75 years Sargent's have sought to render better and better prescription service to physicians and their patients. Here the latter is protected against medicines of the wrong sort, while physicians are promptly supplied with those essentials of their business that have been tested and approved by highest authorities in the medical profession.

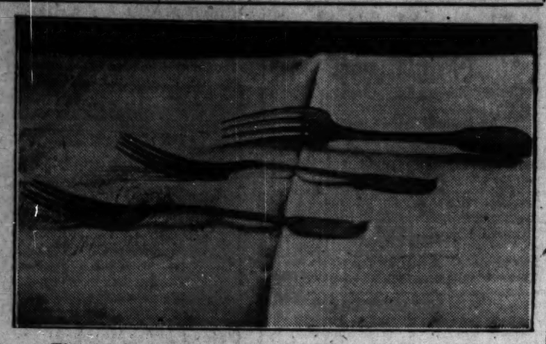
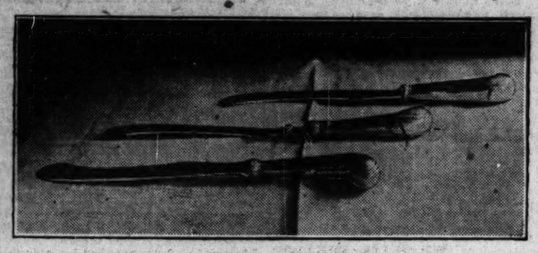
Silver That Lends a Lure to the Table

Knives and Forks; Also Useful Novelties of Charm

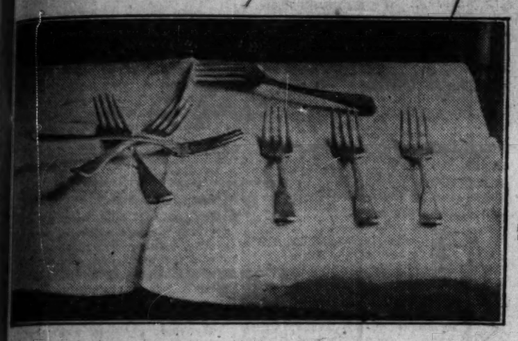
Two old English silver coasters, which, if you do not care for coasters, can be used for ash trays. They are of a size used under decanters, and the workmanship is very fine. They have a diminutive beading across the top edge.



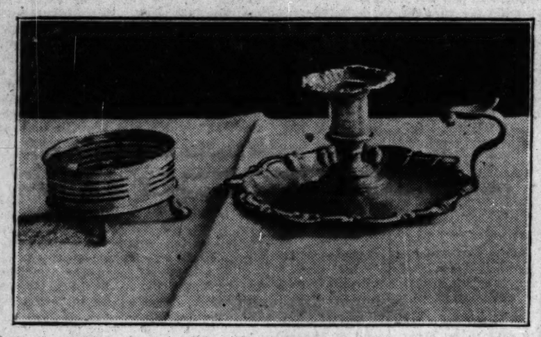
Three early American forks for the silver collector. They are three of a dozen, all perfect and of heavy weight.



Three of a dozen old English silver knives of pistol handles. The blades are steel and are still in the best of cutting condition.

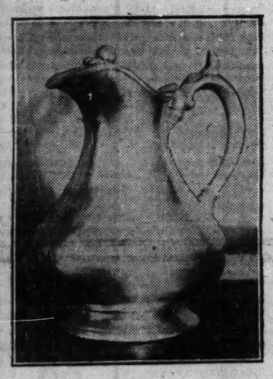


Part of a set of twelve Georgian silver fruit or salad forks. They are fine in workmanship and their size is useful, though they cannot be used for roast.

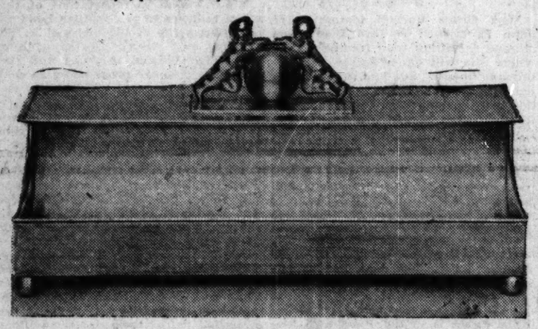


A Sheffield candlestick and an old salt cellar. The cellar is lined with sapphire blue glass. A nice combination for a desk, the cellar to hold stamps, pins or clips.

A modernistic lamp in white bronze, with a shade of stretched silk that shades from white to dark cobalt blue in all the range of blues. It would be a lovely bedroom lamp.



For the country house—a beautiful covered water pitcher of pewter. Think of its usability, and its stylessness, which, combined with its beauty, make it a joy forever.



An inkwell and pen rack in hand-wrought silver. This piece was designed as a golf trophy and shows what can be done in the way of useful trophies rather than useless cups that clutter up the house, make unnecessary work for the servants and give the wife nervous prostration.

Teach Parents to Understand Child's Mind

New School Opposed to "Vegetable Vogue."

LITTLE Richard's mother was bewailing the difficulty of getting her son to like carrots, and was reciting her troubles to the nursery laboratory experts of Teachers' college, Columbia university.

"But why insist upon carrots?" Dr. Ruth Andruss inquired.

"They're good for him, and I've been doing my very best to make him eat them," the distressed and dutiful parent explained.

That "very best," she went on to tell, usually consisted in calling her small son suddenly and unwillingly away from his play, compelling him to wash his hands and face immediately—or doing the job quickly and thoroughly for him—and regardless of his imploring and protesting howls plumping him quickly onto a chair at the table before the carrots would have time to get cold, holding his rebellious little hands in one efficient big one, and feeding him with the other.

Food for Thought.

"Every time he opens his mouth to cry I put in a piece of carrot. It's the only way I can get him to eat them. I simply don't know what to do to get him to like them. He says he hates carrots."

The doctor looked at the parent, and asked:

"How would you like to have some capable giant, some one four times as big as you are, come and jerk you away from your most interesting occupation, hurry you along and feed you the way you feed Richard?"

"O, but he's only . . . Say, I never thought of that!"

"Well, suppose you go home and think about it."

Start State Crusade.

Because there are thousands of poor little Richards and their small sisters all over the state of New York whose meal time and play time, getting up in the morning and going to bed at night are being made utterly miserable by bad doses of good intentions, something had to be done about it. For the mental conflicts that by these means have been set up in young systems have been found to stunt the progress of children at school and to dog their footsteps and obstruct their happiness and efficiency all through life.

So a state-wide crusade has been started within the department of education to conquer and subdue hostile home environment, and incidentally to come into possession of a rich fund of knowledge about what goes on in the mysterious territory of a young child's mind.

Far from anticipating any hindrance from parents in cities or the hinterlands, Miss Andruss, who is placed in charge, looks forward to their friendly coöperation.

Attitude That Counts.

"I don't know any other group of people so receptive to new ideas," she said. "Parents are awfully anxious to do the right thing. We have to keep on our toes to keep up with what they want to know.

"To some mothers it may sound strange to be told that it is not so much what a child eats as his attitude toward his surroundings while he is eating, that his emotional condition at mealtime is of the highest importance.

"But they are eager for information. There are so many things they want to know."

* *

Stopping Their Play.

A perturbed parent came in to complain about the lack of promptness and obedience on the part of junior and his little sister. She hoped the doctor would be able to tell her what to do.

"Obedience? Just what do you mean?" Dr. Andruss asked.

"They're never ready to stop their play when I call them. They wait until they are good and ready. Then they come."

"And you want them to come at once?"

"Why, of course."

"And leave unfinished whatever they happen to be doing?"

"But they're not doing anything. They're only playing."

"Suppose you give them a warning call," the young doctor advised. "Tell them that you will expect them to come in two or three or five minutes. That will give them a chance to bring to some sort of conclusion whatever they may be doing."

Sins of the Parents.

She went on to explain that it is just as important for a child to stick to the job of playing until it is done up to some reasonable point for quitting as it is for a man to stick to his job of work until that is done; and that the same habit of concentration which operates in the infant mind is carried along into later life.

The sins of parents in this one particular of interrupting children has, she believes, brought an immeasurable blight of inattention into the school and on into adult lives that might otherwise have been much more happy and effective.

After parents throughout the state become acquainted with the causes behind juvenile conduct they will not, as a distracted New York mother recently did, bribe a youngster to be good before company. The contract worked admirably until dessert was brought in, and then the good little girl became suddenly and annoyingly bad. Her mother's soft-voiced remonstrance was hushed by Mary's demand:

"It's time for some one to give me some more money. I've been good long enough for a quarter!"

Sympathy for Parents.

The young doctor director's sympathy is about equally divided between parents who want to do the right thing and the youngsters whose characters must somehow be formed, regardless of blundering adult handling. Incidentally she is in favor of handling and opposed to the "vegetable" vogue that came in some years ago of leaving babies unmolested to eat and sleep their first years through.

"The emotional life of children depends entirely upon conditions with which they are surrounded," she said. "If we don't talk to them from the beginning how can we expect them to become interested in words? A young baby is very receptive to being talked to and sung to and treated with tenderness. Emotional balance is surely as important as a well-nurtured stomach."

This new educational program will not be paid for by the citizens of the state, but is being financed through a grant from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller foundation.

TEARS IN THE CARROTS

SCENES of this sort will pass out if the new school of child development has its way. The school blames bad doses of good intentions for emotional upsets of the juvenile mind.

English Town Provides Gay Life for Mice

No Pied Piper Would Be Welcomed.

RAYLEIGH, England. — (AP) — No Pied Piper need expect a welcome in this little Essex village, for, although over 50,000 mice can be found here, they are cherished inhabitants whose presence is a source of local pride.

They have a home of their own, called "The Mousery," feed on specially prepared tidbits, and are so happy that they will not leave their houses even when they are given an opportunity to do so.

For Medical Use.

"The Mousery" is a breeding place for mice which are sent to universities and medical schools for use in cancer research work. It is the only establishment of its kind in England. In this rodent's paradise live mice of every variety and hue—white mice, silver mice, lemon colored mice, and putty colored mice.

Row upon row of cages, carefully arranged and labeled with details concerning the family that lives in each one, are ranged round the walls, and the mouse farmer, Mr. A. Tuck, can put his hand on a particular mouse at a moment's notice. He has a personal acquaintance with all of them and can give you the family pedigree of the 300 or so newcomers who are born each day, without any difficulty.

Won't Leave Cages.

Feeding time at "The Mousery" is an interesting performance. It takes Mr. Tuck and two assistants five hours each day to serve dinner to the 50,000, most of which are so tame that they stand up and beg, and do other tricks in order to get the choicest morsels.

The mice will not leave their cages even when the doors are left open. Even a mouse knows when he is well off.

Al Smith Home in Erin Bears Fame Proudly

Was the Birthplace of His Grandfather.

AVAN, Ireland.—(AP)—On the edge of a peat bog in the farming district near here stands a one story thatched cottage built of rough white washed stone, which has become famous as the ancestral home of the Democratic candidate for President of the United States.

It is the birthplace of Gov. Smith's grandfather, who set out from this humble homestead to seek his fortune in America, during the turbulent period of the Ulster farmers' revolt against oppressive landlords, in which he was a leading agitator. It is said that the elder Smith had to flee the country on account of his activities.

House Still Sturdy.

The house, situated in the heart of a region noted for its sylvan beauty is typical of farmers' cottages throughout the Bruskey district. Weeks of hard labor went into its erection and although it is now very old, it is a veritable part of the soil and as sturdy as the Smiths who occupy it still.

The stones for its making were carried in creels or wicker baskets on the backs of the Smith farmers from a quarry a mile away, and were built by hand, with rough mortar. Rushes for the thatched roof were cut from a nearby field.

Near Wild Bogland.

Beside the cottage is a wild stretch of bogland where the exiled Smith worked cutting turf, and where his kinsmen, James Smith, the present occupier of the homestead, and John Smith, both second cousins of Gov. Smith, cut turf now.

Around this district is a veritable colony of farmers named Smith, all of whom are very proud of the Democratic candidate for the presidency who has brought their name into prominence in America. Proudest of them all is James Smith. He is sure that his little home will soon be known.

London to Put Rat Catchers Upon Pay Roll

LONDON.—(AP)—Official rat catchers are to be placed on the pay roll of the port of London authorities in consequence of the findings of the recently held international sanitary convention.

The holders of these posts will be required to know everything necessary to rid a vessel of rats. For instance, he will have to be able to estimate the number of rats in a ship before he begins to fumigate, and that estimate will be checked by the number of rats found.

Strauss Finishing Lively New Opera

VIENNA.—(AP)—Richard Strauss, famous author of the operatic gems, "Rosenkavalier," "Salome," "The Egyptian Helena," and others, is completing a new opera called "Arabella." The scenes are laid in Vienna. Arabella is the name of a very pretty Viennese countess who elopes with her coachman. The dialogue is merry and the music is said to equal in charm Strauss' previous works.

Foochow Troubled by Too Much Money

FOOCHOW, China.—(AP)—Foochow is having financial troubles. There's no shortage of money.

On the contrary, there's too much, and of what there is it's the wrong kind. Hence the currency is to be changed, and even the prospect of such an action is causing havoc with the banks and money changers.

Months ago a "financial" strike resulted in the banks being closed for days. The money changers instead of the banks virtually control the provincial currency. The money changers have issued their own paper currency, each dollar being worth a thousand cash.

AMERICAN LEGION NEWS

mark of 1,500 for its membership roll for 1929. Commander John V. Clinnin sends word to his comrades that the meetings this fall will be snappy and that entertainments, dances, athletics, smokers, and fights will follow each meeting. The post is organizing and uniforming a drum and bugle corps which it believes will be the best in Illinois.

* *

COUNTY COMMANDER EDWARD CLAMAGE says that the slogan, "Beat New York," which appeared at the head of this column two weeks ago, has been adopted as the official membership slogan of the department of Illinois in the contest with New York. "The two states," he adds, "are grouped for leadership in membership in the union. We, in Cook county, want Illinois to go to our national convention in San Antonio as the 'bell ringers.'"

* *

The drum and bugle corps of Ravenswood post, No. 149, caused much favorable comment during its appearance on parade at the summer festival and carnival held by the post this last week at Berwyn and Western avenues. The money raised from the festival will be used to carry on post activities in the community and in aiding ex-service men.

* *

AT its meeting tomorrow night, Advertising Men's post, No. 38, will have Martha's Minstrels, an all juvenile organization, as its guests. The speaker for the evening will be Maj. R. L. Benston, service officer for the department of Illinois. The post shows the largest membership in its history—1,018 members—and third position in the state. The post has also achieved apother unique record in its formation of the first and only glee club in American Legion posts in Illinois.

* *

Chicago Stock Yards post, No. 333, has just finished a golf tournament, opened to all the men in the yards for the purpose of acquainting nonmembers with the personnel of the Legion. Among those active in the tournament were Bud Fisher, Jim Neary, Conny Hanley, Ed Schultz, Otto Witt, Red Lyons, Warren Egan, N. C. Johnson, Lee Doty, Al Fiels, and Bob Grieser. The post's delegates to the state convention have been chosen, as follows: Past Commanders Kee and Noble, Commander Waters, Senior Vice Commander Martin, and Monroe Livingston. The alternates are John Russell, Tom Condon, Carter Hall, T. J. Slattery and H. F. Joy. C. E. Taylor, post adjutant, says that the organization's roast beef dinners are fast becoming famous.

* *

North Western post, No. 430, through its commander, C. J. Freeman, and W. G. Burns, service officer, recently arranged with the Red Cross unit in charge of Edward Hines Jr. hospital, for a ball game between the two girls' teams of the C. & N. W. Playground Baseball league. The interesting contest was played at the Speedway grounds.

* *

The annual fall carnival of the Harry G. Maxted post, No. 154, was held during this last week at Western Springs. R. M. McNelly is post commander; I. W. Hurley, vice commander; G. R. Hill Jr., adjutant; G. W. Bohnhoff, sergeant-at-arms; and John Oball, finance officer.

* *

Interest has been evinced in many legion circles in the national convention to be held at San Antonio in October.

LAWNDALE-CRAWFORD POST No. 98, has elected the following delegates to the state convention at Waukegan: Commander Joseph Baumruk Jr, Past Commanders Edward P. Skubic, George F. Kryda, F. H. Hitchcock, and John P. Havlicek; alternates, Past Commander Otto F. Raiman, and Henry Hanson, Emil J. Martinec, V. Zidek and Casey Wasilewski. The post is also arranging to send its bugle and drum corps to the convention.

A big fall carnival is being planned by the Charles L. Eddy post, No. 714. On the opening night, Sept. 13, there will be a parade from 74th and Halsted streets, south to 79th street and west to Elizabeth street where the Woodlawn post crack drill team will put on a demonstration. The carnival will last ten days. Active in the committee of arrangements are Commander Jack Finerty, Frank J. Prindeville, Garrett Flavin, Ed McCauley, Jim Kinsella, Tom Kinsella, Ray Schofield, Joe McDonald, Henry Multhauf, and Kid Flanagan. Everybody welcome. The post has the honor of having for its chaplin, The Rev. John L. O'Donnell, D. S. C., chaplain of the 33d division.

Sept. 22 has been designated by the city council as Forget-Me-Not day. The wearing of a forget-me-not on that occasion will mean much more than the expression of sentiment. It will carry with it, as well, the fact that the wearer is thereby performing an unselfish service in assisting needy and disabled American veterans.

* *

AT the monthly meeting of the 40 and 8 to be held Thursday night at the Hotel La Salle, the main order of business will be the election of delegates to the 40 and 8 state convention at Waukegan, Sept. 8 and 9.

* *

During the last week County Commander Edward Clamage has been in Springfield on legion business. Ed is now back at the Cook county council offices, room 310, 160 North La Salle street, for the purpose of greeting members of the organization.

* *

Because of the success of their last picnic some week ago, Lincoln Park post announces another picnic to be held Sept. 9 at Bauler's grove, Bryn Mawr avenue and East River road. At the close of the picnic a group of members will board two airplanes for the convention at Waukegan.

* *

As has been its custom, Forges post, No. 196, will hold its bi-monthly get-together today at Forges camp in the Forges woods section of the forest preserve.

* *

Raymond J. Hagamann post, a newcomer among the posts in the third district, will hold a housewarming at its quarters, 5401 Wentworth avenue, tomorrow night. It is to be an open meeting and many legion officers in the Chicago district are expected to attend.

* *

TOMORROW night North Shore post, No. 21, will hold the last of its series of outdoor boxing bouts at the Wilshore pavilion. These Monday night bouts have been running since June 25. Lisle C. Hart has been the prime mover in these events.

* *

Through the courtesy of Charles Bishop of Maywood post, No. 133, every member of the post having a car now has a radiator cap bearing the legion emblem and the name and number of the post.

* *

* *

Uniforms for the seventeen members of the firing squad of the Morton Grove post, No. 134, were ordered at a recent meeting of the post. Funds derived from the benefit carnival will be used for the purchase.

* *

Bell post, No. 242, has been sponsoring girls' baseball games at Speedway hospital every other Sunday of the month. This post is comprised of employés of the Bell system in Chicago. The girl ball teams which participate in these games are employés of the Western Electric company. The next game is scheduled for today, so come out to the hospital, you Legionnaires, to see your buddies and also see a good ball game. Bell post has also entered its bugle and drum corps in the competition meet at Waukegan.

* *

At the regular meeting of Theodore Roosevelt post, No. 627, the following delegates were elected to the state convention: C. H. Woodbridge, J. B. Morgan, E. E. Erickson, and A. E. Loescher. The delegates were also instructed to vote on all ballots for our own post commander, and present senior vice commander of the state department, James E. White, for the office of state commander.

* *

Pulaski auxiliary, No. 86, is giving an old fashioned basket picnic today through the courtesy of the past post commander, Peter I. Bukowski. The picnic will be held at the grounds of Mr. Bukowski's summer resort in Deer Park. All Pulaski post members and their friends are invited. By auto—Northwest highway to Rand road, to "Kitty Corner," west on Dundee road to Deer park. By train—C. & N. W. to Palatine, then bus to Deer park; follow posters.

* *

The Commonwealth Edison post's drum and bugle corps, led by L. J. Michaels, will enter the competition at Waukegan and also at the national convention in San Antonio. This corps placed second in the state competition last year, Kaukakee post winning first. This will be the corps' first trip to a national convention. At a recent meeting of the post, twenty men were nominated, from which eight are to be elected delegates to the convention at Waukegan. Although only eight men will represent the post as delegates, the Edison post expects to be represented by several of its best members for at least part of the convention.

* *

Edison Park post No. 541, in conjunction with its auxiliary unit, is holding a barbecue picnic at Elk grove, forest preserve, on Higgins road, today. The auxiliary will barbecue the meats, and coffee, pop, ice cream, etc., will all be served free. Games and races with prizes will be held. This affair is limited to post and auxiliary members and their families. Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. the post will present its second band concert of the series being sponsored for the community of Edison Park. St. Hedwig's orphanage band will play under the direction of Al Cook, who also directs the Chicago Elks Lodge band. Adjutant H. E. Schuett will be the post delegate to Waukegan, and Commander S. C. Bromberg will act as alternate.

Riverside post, No. 488, at Riverside, will hold a carnival Aug. 29 to Sept. 1 inclusive, and extends an invitation to its neighboring Legionnaires and their friends to attend. This is the first carnival the post has held for a period of three years.

* *

Consumers post, No. 251, holds its annual field day tomorrow at the Evergreen Golf club, at which time the members will make strenuous and perspiring efforts to win the big, beautiful, thirty-six inch cup donated by the post. The low scorer of two tournaments secures permanent possession of the trophy. However, the outstanding battle of the day will be the contest between two one-armed golfers, Commander Walter Jasper and Ed Dean. This affair bids well to develop into a statewide scrap, as several challenges have already been received from other one-armed Legionnaires who believe that they can annihilate Commander Jasper of Consumers post.

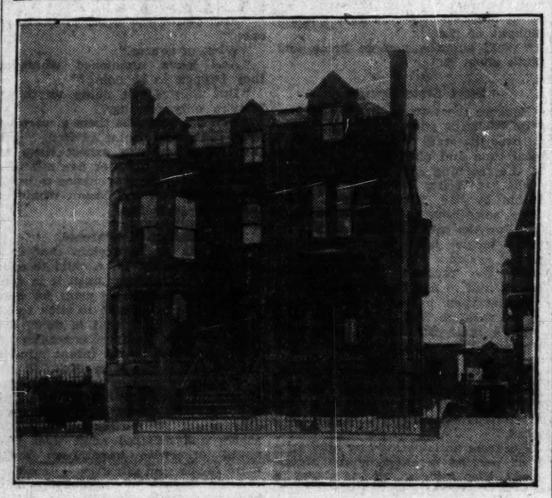
* *

Sig-Yeo post, No. 267, has selected Mrs. Nell Weston Halstead as its delegate to the state convention, with Miss Myrl Leonard as alternate.

ASHLAND AVENUE AT FORTY-EIGHTH

NOT far from this thriving district is located the world-famous center of the packing industry which covers 475 acres. Nearly every type of business is represented along the street. The picture was taken, looking north on Ashland avenue at 48th street. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

FAMOUS HOMES



VISITORS in the old days to what was the home of Jesse Spalding, 1637 Prairie avenue, are said to have been impressed by its atmosphere of friendliness and contentment. The cozy library was the popular evening room where the family passed the hours between tea and retiring. Its books furnished recreation for the man who, beginning with 1860, exercised wide influence over the mercantile, political and social interests of Chicago. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

If you travel far enough south you come to the modest cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Blaauw, 350 West 109th street. Jacob is a railroad crossing, watchman at 115th street and Lafayette avenue. They have two fine boys, Arthur, 15, and Benjamin, 9. "Now, if we just had a little girl," Mother Blaauw would say to Jacob over the dinner table, and Jacob would nod his head sympathetically. For eight years Mother Blaauw had been wishing for a daughter to complete the family circle. The wish has been granted. A neighbor knocked at the back door early one morning last week. Mrs. Blaauw hurried to answer. It was a baby girl that had been left in the Blaauw's yard. Mother Blaauw took her in her arms. When the police came a few hours later, she said, "I won't give her up. We're going to raise her just like she was our own daughter." They let her keep it. Great days, these, in the modest cottage of the railroad crossing watchman at 350 West 109th street.

A Pleasant Surprise.

Have you ever lived with your grandmother? I did, and it was hard. Being old-fashioned, she believed in sensible, plain clothes.

While buying a pair of shoes the clerk brought out a lovely pair of French heeled pumps, very youthful looking. Well, my grandmother preferred a pair of low heeled, plain strap slippers.

On delivery I was surprised to find both pair of shoes. This, after much persuasion, I kept the pumps.

This was certainly "Shoppers' Service" on my part, for I continued to trade there. I. C.

New Plant for Old.

I purchased a large, expensive rubber plant from a loop department store. It was placed out on my sun porch, but it somehow failed to thrive, and after a few weeks a white scale formed on the withering leaves and it died, much to my chagrin.

I sent in a call to the department store to come and take the plant back, which they did. A day or so later I received a check for the amount I had paid and a letter explaining that the plant was infected with a common disease and that the department would gladly advise me in the selection of a new one.

I followed this suggestion, and the plant I chose is growing large and beautiful. C. C.

Personal Service.

Recently I made arrangements to go on a hike with several other young people. The meeting place was to be about six blocks from my home. On arriving there, I found that I had worn a pair of heavy shoes, and decided to purchase a pair of "gym" shoes in a small store near there.

My next problem was what to do with my other shoes. Since the store would be closed in a few hours, I could not leave them there, and since it was to be a long hike, I could not carry them with me.

Although I was a total stranger to the proprietor, he took time off to go out into the street and try to find a boy whom he could hire to carry my shoes to my home. Not finding any, he took me across the street and made arrangements with another storekeeper, whose shop would be open all day, to keep my shoes for the time.

I have since gone out of my way to trade at this store. I. L.

LESSONS IN BRIDGE

BY R. M. ROGERS.

ARTICLE XXIII.

R. M. ROGERS.

If penalties incurred on account of games lost were charged up against each player the record would show fourth hand to be a high offender. Fourth hand is inclined to forget or possibly doesn't know that a hand strong enough for a dealer to bid, or second hand if dealer passes, must be much stronger to justify a bid after three passes. If the hand doesn't come up to the required number of tricks for a fourth hand bid (and every one should at least know the original bid in any position) the player should pass and get a new deal.

It must be evident that as partner passed he isn't worth over two tricks, and it takes at least ten tricks for game at anything except no trump, and therefore a fourth hand bid can only be made with a hand holding eight tricks giving credit to the partner who has passed for only two tricks. To bid a no trump after three hands have passed is never wise without all suits being stopped and the count of at least seven tricks in the bidder's own hand.

One has to take into consideration the character of the various players as to their game, because there are many players who prefer to let some one else open the bidding and pass the first round with really a bidding hand.

The best rule of action for fourth hand bidder after three passes is, do not start the bidding unless you can bid up to four and can defeat any other bid that opponents could make and which, of course, would be doubled.

The temptation to shade this rule is sometimes overwhelming, particularly if opponents have a game in, but the only good reason for any exception is the belief that if Dame Fortune is playing fair she will give each pair of players their share of the luck and if opponents won the last hand and both pass on this one it may be her luck contribution to the side having no game to its credit but got the winning hand on the wrong side of the table—namely: 4th hand instead of second. If the temptation to bid is too strong to be overcome and you are bound to yield, consider carefully two things:

1st: Counting partner for two tricks how many tricks can you take, remembering that three in a major or four in a minor suit is the only safe bid originally by fourth hand after three passes?

Is the possibility of loss worth the chance which always exists under exceptional conditions that the hands will so fit that you will not lose at all?

2d: Can you defeat the opponents at any bid they might make over your original bid? Unless you can double anything that the adversary bids and beat them you might better pass the hand.

The fourth hand original bid may be in a minor or major suit but rarely in no trump, and the player should be prepared to make a game bid or double and win against anything the adversaries undertake.

For the consideration of those who play bridge but don't always follow the conventions, and to that extent are unreliable, there is submitted below a fourth hand which was held recently, three passes preceding it. Would you bid the hand after every one has passed and if so—what? The hand:

Spades—A.
Hearts—A. 6. 4.
Diamonds—A. 6. 4.
Clubs—Q. 9. 8. 5. 3. 2.

You have six sure losers if clubs are bid, and possibly more. If you bid no trump and spades are opened, your first club lead probably will be taken by opponents, who may run three or four more spade tricks and still have control of your clubs.

Let us suppose you are playing with a partner who hasn't yet reached the stage as a player where he can be depended upon always to bid if he has the requirements that are agreed upon as necessary for a conventional bid of one—namely: two quick tricks, one of which must be in the suit mentioned, and four tricks in the hand, three of them being in the suit named. Let us suppose that he has:

Spades—9. 7. 4.
Hearts—8. 5.
Diamonds—7. 5. 3.
Clubs—A. K. 10. 6. 4.

If he passes this hand and you hold the one shown above, will you not be obliged to pass also? If, however, he is an honest player and knows the conventions he must bid one club on the above holding, or else he practically says in plain English, "Partner, I have not two quick tricks in this hand, with at least one of them in the suit mentioned by me, and I have not four tricks in the hand," a statement which is, of course, untrue. Holding the first hand shown above, any one that knows anything about the game would bid three no trumps and be able to make it after a club bid by partner.

Similar situations to this arise at almost every sitting at a game of bridge, and it is incomprehensible to the writer why any one should pass a hand like the last one shown above without bidding one club, which can produce no harm, and would often do a lot of good and frequently make a game. The writer would be pleased to hear from those bridge players who would pass the hand shown last above in defense of it.

Bargains

Send us a short and snappy letter telling the how, why, and wherefore of the best bargain you ever struck. We'll pay $2 for every letter published. Address Bargains, Chicago Tribune.

For $2.50.

In my effort to find a small table for a room that I was furnishing for the purpose of renting, I entered a second hand furniture store. My eyes fell upon an antique, marble-topped table of covered walnut.

Upon asking the price, I was informed that I could have it for $2.50. I eagerly agreed to the price, and paid a small amount to have it delivered.

My friends have complimented me on my lovely table numerous times. I merely smile and murmur a polite answer.

Incidentally, I recently was offered $60 for it. W. C. C.

A Paisley Shawl.

I had a rooming house and needed bedding, so when one of my neighbors sold out I bought a quilt from her. It had been her grandmother's and was really too heavy for a steam heated home, so I proceeded to remove the top to take out some of the cotton.

Imagine my surprise to find that a beautiful Paisley shawl and an old fashioned fringed shawl had been used instead of cotton batting.

At the time the grandmother had made the quilt cotton batting was scarce but the Paisley shawl now is almost priceless.

The $1.50 I paid for the quilt has been exceptionally well spent money. A. T.

A Bargain Book.

I was starting a library and as I hadn't much money with which to buy books, I went into a second hand book store seeking bargains.

While looking around I came to one table on which lay a beautiful book of poems. They were written by Longfellow, Whittier and other noted poets. The book was beautifully bound and the type was excellent.

I thought the owner would want at least two dollars for it. But when I asked the price and found that it was fifty cents, I almost danced with glee.

Needless to say, I bought the book on the spot, and now it has a prominent place in my library. J. L.

Bargains in High Finance.

One day a man approached me asking if I wanted to invest $250 in an oil lease.

I asked him about the location of the lease. After listening to his description of the place, I wrote him a check for the amount.

Exactly thirty days later, I received a check for more than $1,000 in exchange for seven-eighths of my interest in the lease.

Before another month had passed an oil man asked me if I would take $1,800 for the remaining one-eighth of my holding! H. P.

DRYING 'EM IS HARDEST

THE sorrowful expression on the face of Eugene Owens gives indication that, so far as a fireman is concerned, drying the dishes is the most irksome part of the dishwashing task. Charles Barnes contends that it's simply a matter of plenty of running hot water. The kitchen sink scene was snpaped at engine house No. 51, 6345 Wentworth avenue. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

War Planes in Red Cross Work Up for Debate

PARIS.—(AP)—The first international congress on airplane sanitation and airplane rescue will be held in Paris in May, 1929.

Marshal Lyautey, who organized a service of "Red Cross airplane ambulances" on the Syrian and Moroccan war fronts, will preside over the sessions. The French government sent invitations to "all nations possessing an air fleet and interested in the problems of airplane rescue work."

Favorable replies have been received from Great Britain, Belgium and Poland.

France has made a long and thorough study of the use of airplanes in bringing aid to sick or injured persons. The congress will be under the patronage of several French ministries as well as army and health officials.

The French campaigns in Syria and Morocco have permitted the development of an experiement begun in France as far back as 1910. During these actions French airplane ambulances transported more than 4,000 sick or wounded soldiers and saved many lives.

MOST IMPORTANT DUTY.

The owner of a big plant, addressing a new employé:

"Did my foreman tell you what you will have to do?"

"Yes, sir, he told me to wake him up when I see you coming."—Forbes Magazine.

UNFAIR COMPETITION.

Prospective Son-in-law—I quite fail to see your objection. You admit that my character is without blemish.

Her Father—Yes, that's just the trouble. Nice thing it would be for me to go through the rest of my life with you held up as a shining example.—The Humorist.

France Plans Giving of Aid to Its Writers

PARIS.—(AP)—The "Revenue Station for Intellectuals" is trying to solve the problem of how to help French writers in distress.

The secretary said that the purpose of the movement was to reach the man who is too proud to ask for help, as well as those who have suffered misfortune. The station makes a policy of granting loans on word of honor without a fixed date for payment. The committee is composed of poets, academicians, dramatists, lawyers, and cabinet ministers.

"A few men of letters, touched by the misfortunes of brother artists, decided to organize a society to aid them," explained the secretary. "Our aim is at once moral and material. Our members are asked especially to seek out colleagues who are too proud to ask us for loans. If it is necessary, we advance money in these delicate cases by an anonymous money order."

Among the members of the committee are Edouard Herriot, minister of public instruction; Paul Fort, poet; the dramatist Brieux, Edouard Estaunie, and Henri de Regnier of the French academy, and Henri-Robert, celebrated lawyer.

Home Town Honors Famous French Ace

THUIT, France.—(AP)—Georges Guynemer, France's greatest flying ace, who disappeared over the German lines twelve years ago, has been commemorated by a stained glass window in the village church where he was baptised. Airplanes maneuvered overhead while the window was being dedicated to "St. George."

Ball Game Is Not All with Pretty Fans

What Other Women Wear Divides Interest.

Cuyler came to bat in the first. "Swat her a nice long one, Kiki," she yowled.

"What did he do then?" asked the blonde curls as Kiki walked to first. A nearby gentleman volunteered the information that he had been hit by a pitched ball. "Why, how mean! I don't think that Brooklyn team plays nice, anyway!"

* *

Hack Called "Cute."

Hack Wilson came up next amid a roar of feminine approbation. He may not look like Valentino, but he could have any number of telephone numbers, if he only knew it.

"Isn't he darling!" "Isn't he cute!" or from those who knew a little more about the game, "Hack's the guy who'll do it!"

Down in front of me a gray haired woman—a mother of four or maybe five, she looked—was rooting for Hack, too, and calling the plays correctly, as far as I could tell.

"Where did you learn so much about the game?" her neighbor asked.

"I watch the kids," she said with a grin. "They play in the empty lot next door all the time."

Hack was a disappointment. He didn't wallop the ball, as everybody screeched to him to do. He sent off a little one to the shortstop or somewhere, and in due form both Cuyler and he were put out to end the inning.

* *

Bring Babies Along.

A brave young man to the left of me brought his girl down and, with what he hoped was patience, tried to explain the game to her between plays.

"Who are the funny little black men?" she asked, "that keep running back and forth?"

"Umpires," he said shortly.

"But what do they do? Which team are they on?" she persisted.

"They do lots and they aren't on any team," was his very explanatory explanation.

Several women brought tiny babies with them. It is not on record what the babies thought of the great American sport, but their mothers seem to enjoy it in spite of their burdens.

It was, however, too slow a game to please the ladies. They wanted more blood and thunder, heavier swatting and a few homers. The intricacies of a pitching battle didn't appeal to them.

"Why do they keep fanning?" complained the girl in the red fringe, whatever she meant by that. "But I just love to watch a baseball game. Do you think this rouge is too dark for my skin? I really can't get any that quite suits me."

* *

Score Causes Screams.

In the ninth the game finally got exciting. Neither side had scored when Brooklyn came up in the first half.

"Who's batting first?" asked the blonde curls.

"Number four, that's Hack Wilson," answered the red fringe. "Or no, I guess Brooklyn's up. Lemme see, it's a guy named Flowers."

Flowers hit one and went to first, and then Herman hit one and went out, but Flowers got to second. Then Wessler hit one and Blake missed it, so in ran Flowers to the accompaniment of screams from the women.

"Oh, dear," said the girl with a pun, "are we going to lose? I think that's mean of the Cubs to go and lose at my first ball game."

The gray haired woman was leaving.

"Sorry," she said to her companion. "I wish I could stay to see the end, but I live a long way off and I've got to get supper."

* *

Boo at Decision.

Hartnett came to bat in the Cubs' half and things looked interesting again when he hit one. Somebody else cheered for him, which puzzled the women.

"I hope the Brooklyn guys didn't notice that," said the blonde curls. "Maybe Hartnett can't run fast enough and the Cubs want to be sure and win. Isn't it getting exciting? Oh, say, remember that boy you introduced me to yesterday? I'd like to have a date with him some time."

McMillan was up next and the umpire certainly did lots for him when they called him out at first. The women weren't any happier than the men over the decision and they booed long and loudly.

Hack fanned, and Maguire came up with two out.

"Wouldn't you hate to be him?" shuddered the red fringe. "I'd be just so nervous I couldn't do a thing." It may have been nervousness or anything else. Anyway the Brooklyn pitcher caught his ball and the game was over.

* *

The Eternal Feminine.

The blonde curls and her red fringed friend were pushing their way out ahead of me.

"Yes, I just love baseball," the blonde curls was saying. "Isn't it fun to watch them. O, see that girl with the ankle socks! Let's get some."

MAY MARRY

King Boris of Bulgaria may not remain unmarried much longer, according to reports. An attempt is said to have been made to arrange a marriage between the bachelor king and the Princess Francoise de Guise, daughter of the pretender to the French throne.

Old Romance Being Revived by King Boris

Bachelor Ruler May Wed French Heiress.

SOFIA.—(AP)—The visit here of Pierre Lenail, former member of the French chamber of deputies, has revived reports of an attempt to arrange a marriage between King Boris of Bulgaria and the Princess Francoise de Guise.

The princess is the daughter of the pretender to the French throne.

Lenail put forward his proposal in 1922, when the king was 28 years old and the princess 20. The king is now 34 and Bulgaria is showing serious concern over the fact that there is no heir.

Obstacles Intervene.

Various other matrimonial alliances have been mentioned from time to time for King Boris, notably one with Princess Giovanna of Italy, a pretty, dark eyed girl of 21 years, who is considered one of the most eligible young princesses of Europe.

Religious obstacles, and certain political interests, are understood, however, to have intervened, although it was understood at one time that the marriage arrangements were practically terminated.

Many Other Rumors.

Other rumors have linked King Boris' name with Princess Astrid of Sweden, now the Duchesse de Brabant of Belgium, and, since her marriage, with her sister. Princess Ileana of Roumania has also been named as the future queen of Bulgaria.

An English princess and even an American "dollar princess" have stood in the Bulgarian matrimonial spotlight.

Liquor Imports of the Bahamas Up 10 Per Cent

NASSAU, Bahama Islands.—(AP)—These prosperous islands have increased their whisky imports 10 per cent during the first part of 1928.

Customs house figures show that every man, woman, and child in the Bahamas would have the use of three cases of hard liquor monthly if all of the incoming bottles stayed in the islands, which they do not.

Despite the massing of coast guard destroyers, cutters, and seaplanes off the Florida coast, more than $2,000,000 worth of whisky was unloaded here during the first six months of this year. Meanwhile the export figures have been cut in half because of the growing practice of trans-shipping liquors to schooners and warehouses at Grand Bahama and Bimini islands.

The latter are only sixty miles from Palm Beach and Miami. If fast motor boats dash here and there across the gulf stream without the formality of clearing the Bahaman customs, the Bahaman authorities have no cognizance of the fact.

Hoover Stirs New Interest in the Quakers

Some Customs of the Ancient Friends.

may come through the open unstained windows.

"As quiet as a Quaker meeting" is a familiar phrase. Presently some one may arise and speak, or the silence may be unbroken throughout the hour. It is as "the spirit moves"; a hireling minister is an abomination unto the Lord. At the end of the time, one of those high in meeting [on the front benches] shakes hands with his neighbor, the rest clasp hands with the nearest, and a childish voice may pipe, "Now we'll have our dinners."

* *

"Rules of Discipline."

Were I to introduce thee as we pass out, thee would have kindly handshaking but no bowing or hat-doffing which are due only to the Lord. If I had said, "Miss" or "Mrs." the gentle voice would say, "And what is thy name?" and afterwards thee would be known by thy Christian name to mark they friendly equality with all men.

If, as is likely, thee were to have an invitation to dinner, I would advise thee to accept. The hostess would not stint thee in sweet home cured ham or home fed chickens, vegetables fresh from her own garden, cold slaw, Quaker pie, all enriched with cream from her own dairy, and served on delicately patterned china with plain but glittering solid silver, nothing for show but all for goodness and enjoyment. If there is a grandmother in the house, thee will almost exclaim with delight at the beauty of the white cap softening the wrinkled face and thinning hair. And thee will notice the gossamer fineness of cap and kerchief and the almost royal richness of the silk in the plain gray gown.

On the parlor table may lie a little black book "Rules of Discipline." It will tell thee how the lives of Friends are guided. When the monthly meeting assembles, men and women apart but equal, there will be questions asked, "Have tale-bearing and detracting been guarded against?" "If differences have arisen, have there been endeavors speedily to end them?" "Are all Friends living within their means?" "Are all children properly cared for and educated?" "Are all Africans living with Friends properly taught?"

Opposed to Slavery.

If the monthly meeting cannot solve problems there is the quarterly, and after that the yearly. The monthly is the gathering of one congregation; the quarterly of several; the yearly of all.

In that little black book, thee will find testimonies against swearing, the liquor traffic, slavery, war, going to law. "Make thy yea, yea; thy nay, nay." In every oath-taking form of law today, there is provision for "affirm" besides "swear," and I might say that one is believed as strongly as the other.

The Friends might not engage in liquor traffic or linger around taverns, where they might learn frivolous and pernicious ways. They were not wholly consistent; there was nothing in discipline against taking a drink. But I think many of them must have been displeased with that ad of a good natured looking man in colonial costume holding a bottle labeled "Quaker whisky."

They testified against slavery in the open and in their own sweet Quaker darkness. They formed abolition societies when joining might mean the loss of wealth and all respect. James Mott stood hesitating, pen in hand, before the paper the signing of which might cost him his worldly all. Lucretia's voice was soft as the dew:

"James, write thy name."

"The Spirit Leads."

Were thee working with a certain Quaker in the fields, thee might see a neighbor lad ride up and tell of the woods meeting next Seventh-Day week, and slip a blank piece of paper into the old man's hand. That night he would row his boat to a certain landing on the Susquehanna, take on board a sturdy black man or maybe a dark woman with a silent baby in her arms, row them to another landing where a team was waiting, row home, sleep in peace, and work the next day in the fields without a thought of his bit of work on the great underground railroad.

That little woman who said, "James, write thy name," thee will remember as one of the first suffragettes. The Quaker women came into their equality as naturally as falls the dew. They couldn't have told you when their sect joined the cause. Indeed, they had to go out and mingle with the world's people before they could tell what to argue about.

Were thee to ask a Quaker why he or any other did thus or so, why he ignored the laws against helping slaves, or kept his account straight every day, or kept his hat on in church, or sat in meeting while the battle waged, or shouldered his musket at Lincoln's call, leaving word as he marched away, that he was sorry he was going against discipline, the only answer he could give thee would be "The spirit leads" or "The light came." The essence, the very soul of the Friendly faith lies in the following of the inward light. "Wait until the light comes," is the watchword in any time of stress or perplexity. The true Friend waits and waits and waits and waits until there comes that clearing of the pathway by the divine light within. Had Shakespeare been a Friend, he could never have written a Hamlet.

Some Quaker Tales.

Naturally thee asks, "Do the Quakers always obey their discipline or follow the inward light? Are they all as saintly and serene as thee would make out?"

I answer, quoting David Harum, "There's as much human nature in some folks as in some others, and in some of them there's more." And I would tell thee some of the many tales the Quakers tell on themselves with an understanding little twinkle in the eye.

One wealthy old Friend gave generously toward the building of a church in his community. The church had a lofty steeple. Members of meeting waited on him to reason with him for giving to such show and vainglory.

"I subscribed to the building, not to the steeple," was his answer.

Another was much opposed to the modern spirits who wished to put an organ in the meeting house. When, after a long holding out, he finally surrendered, he gave the largest sum of any. He was rallied on his inconsistency.

"Well, if thee must praise the Lord by machinery, I want thee to have a good machine."

Phineas Fletcher.

A young Friend had an argument with a comrade that heated both to fighting point. "I mayn't hit thee, but there's nothing in discipline agin choking," he said.

Once a gang of rowdies tried to break up a Friends' meeting by a charivari under the windows. Out came a sturdy son of peace. "Although it may be to the detriment of my soul, it will be for the betterment of thine, and, therefore, my friend, I will endeavor to take Satan out of thee."

The hoodlums' bruises testified to the amount of sacrifice a Quaker would make to save a neighbor's soul. Do you remember Phineas Fletcher in Uncle Tom's Cabin? As the slave catcher leaped across the chasm, Phineas suddenly remarked, "Friend, thee isn't wanted here," and pushed him down the gap. There was nothing in discipline against pushing.

In the war of 1812, an American ship was attacked by the British. An English seaman was climbing a rope on the side of the Yankee vessel. A Quaker stood at the rail by the top of the line. He opened his knife and began to saw at the fibers.

"Friend, if thee wants the rope, thee may have it."

The foeman took most of the rope into the sea with him.

A Quaker Threat.

Here is a bad one. I don't believe it; I tell it because a Quaker told it to me. I must inform you beforehand that courts have decided a certain word unaccompanied by the name of the Deity is not profanity. A Quaker knows his discipline. I will also inform thee, that, if thee wishes to make an ox stand over, thee must twist his tail. An ox does not understand English.

A Friend was feeding a calf. The hungry baby stuck its head clear into the bucket and then brought it out to splash feed and milk all over the immaculate first day suit. The Friend spoke deliberately.

"I will not beat thee, and I will not curse thee, but I will twist thy damned tail."

* *

A Mother's Advice.

The Quaker story I like best is one told of Isaac T. Hopper, the noted preacher and abolitionist. I think you will like it, too, and you will like it better if you will only read it again.

Isaac was leaving the old home for the city to seek his fortune. He stood by his mother's rocker to receive her last advice.

"Now, Isaac, remember," said she, "as long as thee behaves thyself,—as long as thee behaves thyself, thee is just as good as anybody." She waited a minute, then she added, "and no better."

SEASONED

There is nothing amateurish about the manner in which Robert Irvine anticipates the desires of the traveling public passing through the La Salle street station. He has been a "red cap" there for the last twenty-nine years—the oldest there in point of service. Mr. Irvine, who lives at 1040 South Scoville avenue, Oak Park, has been in the employ of the Rock Island lines for thirty-five years. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

"The Cities within the City"

Milwaukee, Ashland and Division Streets, a major market of Wicker Park

THROUGH the ages men have gathered together and built cities. Some have known the brief glory of boom prosperity . . . followed by quick extinction or slow commercial decay. Others, founded upon more solid foundations, have steadily advanced to positions of dominance over their neighbors. Chicago is one of these cities, a struggling prairie town that has grown to be a giant among cities.

Sharing in the growth of Chicago as a whole and an integral part of its prosperity are the 48 "cities within the city"—the residential districts where the 3,200,000 inhabitants of Chicago live. In everything but name these neighborhoods are actual cities. All but 11 of them have populations of 25,000 to 175,000. They have their own large stores, banks, and recreation centers. The size of their populations, the buying power of their inhabitants, make these neighborhoods equal in business possibilities to any cities of their size in the country.

One of the Commercial Strongholds . . . .

The prosperity of Wicker Park, one of the largest of the "cities of Chicago," illustrates the chances for success offered by all the city's neighborhoods. This district on the northwest side contains a population of nearly 138,000 people. Besides supporting one of the most flourishing of the city's outlying department stores, this neighborhood requires 485 grocery and delicatessen stores to furnish its food, 78 drug stores to supply drugs and toilet goods, and 45 radio stores to provide home entertainment and recreation.

The trading centers of Wicker Park did not grow to their present size and prosperity by accident. The merchants of this district long ago saw their neighborhood as it was—not a small collection of scattered families, content to be served by leisurely, inefficient shopkeepers, but a vigorous, constantly growing metropolis. Because they were wise enough to shape their selling and merchandising methods to the demands of a modern community, they have prospered. The same reason is behind the success of every neighborhood merchant who sells to "the cities within the city."

The New Era of Selling . . . . . .

The aggressive neighborhood retailers of Chicago know the vital part that advertising plays in present day selling. They long wanted a medium that would allow them to reach the buyers of their neighborhoods at a reasonable cost. And when that medium—the Metropolitan Section of the Sunday Tribune—appeared, they testified to its productiveness by placing over a million lines of advertising in it during the first year of its existence!

The Metropolitan Section divides the Sunday Tribune's coverage of 690,000 families in Chicago and suburbs into three great parts—one for each side of the city. This separation enables neighborhood retailers to buy only that part of the Sunday Tribune's selling influence they can use without waste. In their immediate neighborhood Wicker Park merchants can reach over 22,000 families—plus an additional coverage of 269,000 families on the west and northwest sides who live near enough to shop in this center! The cost of Metropolitan Section space is in proportion to the coverage received—about a third of the rate for full Sunday Tribune circulation!

Don't Put Off Prosperity! . . . . . .

Sales and success have been the reward of other Metropolitan Section advertisers. Ask a Tribune man to call and give you additional facts and figures about this medium's selected circulation. Let him show you how well suited it is for your business! Phone Superior 0100.

The Chicago Tribune publishes as a part of its regular Sunday issue a Metropolitan Section, the circulation of which is divided so that local neighborhood merchants may advertise in any one or more of the three sides of Chicago and suburbs as follows:

North and Uptown Section—West and Northwest Section—South and Southwest Section

Metropolitan Section

Experts Report Summer Static is Diminishing

Conditions Will Improve from Now On.

Just now when every distance listener is swearing at the summer static, or has given up in disgust, or has "junked his set" it is welcome news to hear the static experts at the U. S. bureau of standards say the worst is over and that the curve of atmospherics is on the toboggan.

Systematic recording of static by Uncle Sam for about six years shows that extreme conditions prevail in June and July almost invariably followed by relief towards the end of August, improving steadily with the cool nights which begin to be felt during September and with the very best listening conditions from the middle of October to the middle of March.

High Last June.

According to the standards bureau observations static this year was equally bad during June and July of this year. At that, it was much lower this July than last but June static this summer was worse than during the same period last summer. In June, 1927, the static was abnormally low, as a matter of fact, and that is the reason it appeared to be so much higher last June.

Static has been pretty high the past month in many parts of the country due to the thunderstorms which have prevailed. A curious condition was noticeable the night Secretary Hoover spoke, however.

It followed a protracted heat spell—a record breaker in most places—and the night before he spoke static was so high almost everywhere that it was next to impossible to pull in outside stations.

Hoover Got Break.

However, on the evening of his speech, according to the U. S. weather bureau, it was cool all over the east, but a rainy condition existed minus thunderstorms. This was the very territory Mr. Hoover was desirous of reaching and where the night before people were out in their automobiles or on the porch trying to cool off the night of the speech they very likely were kept in doors where they were almost sure to be listening in on the radio.

To make the break luckier, there being no thunderstorms, static was greatly reduced and the clear listening range was far beyond anything it had been for weeks before.

Surely there ought to be very advanced evidences of static conditions with the beginning of autumn on Sunday, Sept. 23. Inasmuch as that is only about a month off there will not be much longer for the fans to wait.

Discovery of Hawaii Islands to Be Told on W-G-N Tomorrow

The dramatic story of Capt. James Cook, English explorer, and the tragic fate he met when he discovered the Hawaiian islands, will be told in radio form with a background of Hawaiian music tomorrow night in the family hour program broadcast by W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel.

As the famous navigator sailed into the harbor of one of the islands the primitive notes of Hawaiian music played on strange native instruments fell for the first time upon Nordic ears. Although the music captivated the fancy of the officers and crew of the ship, a century and a half elapsed before it was known and loved by the western world.

Joseph Green's novelty orchestra will render part of the musical program but "Holoua's Troubadours," one of the foremost native musical organizations, will provide much of the background of Hawaiian music during the dramalogue. Holoua came to America in 1901 and attracted national attention at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, where his company gave its entertainments in an Hawaiian village. He toured the country many times in vaudeville and has appeared with his associates in concert in the leading theaters.

W-G-N Will Present Two Radio Plays on Air This Week

Drama on the radio will be supplied by two features this week on W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. Thursday night at 9 o'clock the second and concluding act of "The Purple Towers," the mystery musical comedy, will be heard, while on Saturday night listeners can hear the dramatization of the new TRIBUNE Sunday serial, "One of the Follies."

Harry W. Spingold is directing both of these productions. The installment of "One of the Follies" presented is the dramatization of the third episode, so that listeners can pick up the thread of the story before reading the fourth installment in THE TRIBUNE the following day.

VACATION DAYS AT LINCOLN PARK

NOTHING like the woods and waters when the languid summer days come on. Some folk travel far for the purpose of getting back to nature. Others find rest for their nerves in Lincoln park, and here we have a typical August afternoon scene at the lagoon. The water ripples to the dip of the oars and calmly reflects the shadows of the trees along the shore.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN A. RYAN.

HERE IS ONE of the heart touching kind of letters that, fiction tells us, clowns and actors receive occasionally. It is seldom, I suppose, that we humble broadcasters receive such, and when we do we may be pardoned for tucking it away, for memory's sake in years to come:

"Dear Sir: Probably I should have said 'Uncle Quin,' as that is the title the children love so well. I heard you this evening telling the story of blackberry bush and the little boy with the honey-colored hair, and judging by the way in which you tell your stories to the children [and the grown-ups as well] you must love children. I have just a few words to tell you. I can't call it a 'story,' as it happened in real life, only recently. Something prompted me to tell you this — how happy you made a little boy with honey-colored hair, too—and helped to cheer his last weeks of young life. The seven year old son of friends of mine had been ailing for months, and because he knew you so well, on the air every evening, I bought him a little gift, as a pastime in his weary days and weeks of suffering. It was your book of the circus, the clowns, etc. Could you have seen the look of joy in his emaciated face, it would recompense you for your broadcasting work and for your children's book. His mother told me how he read and reread the book every day when the pain was not too agonizing, and cherished the contents almost to the end."

[Signed.]

Radio has got religion, and religion has got radio. Taking, say, 700 as the total of radio stations in the United States, we find that one in every fifteen is owned by a religious organization. Add to these the number of churches or sectarian schools participating in the operation of radio stations, and the ratio moves up to about one in every ten. Further, one-half of all the stations include some form of worship or a religious program in their broadcast offerings. Religion has embraced the radio, and the sky pilots are cruising the skies.

After reverently weighing the listening public's reports on the matter, we may draw the compound conclusion that religious broadcasting is a great privilege and a great pest.

It is from the larger cities that there comes the angry designation of religious stations as pests. Many a city or suburban listener finds a crusading broadcaster in his territory hogging the air and ruining his chances of enjoying other stations with diversified programs. When the Jumping Jehosaphats build a potent broadcasting plant in any locality the neighbors for miles around have the alternative of listening exclusively to fervent calisthenics or of turning in their radio sets for useful fireless cookers.

Since press agents, movies, billboards, and other modern devices of salesmanship have been called to the evangelical cause, it was but natural that churches should employ the radio for publicity. Just these churches that employ it obviously for advertising bring down upon their heads the wrath of the everyday radio devotee.

In many more cases, on the other hand, the religious radio is deemed a divine blessing. It delivers to the hearthstone of the isolated and to the bedside of the shut-in balm and inspiration of holy service—and welcomely, too, even to individuals who have been indifferently beyond the rim of any flock.

Questionnaires submitted to pastors tell, in ten instances to one, of attendance increased after broadcasting, of letters received from distant points containing promises to attend church more often, of the dispelling of points of prejudice, and of the creation of bountiful good will. They even tell of voluntary monetary donations to the collection box.

The clergyman who has probably the largest and most variegated audience in the world is Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, who preaches via a chain of radio stations on Sunday afternoons. He includes a "question box" for the answering of questions sent to him from his scattered listeners of all sects and creeds. He says of broadcasting:

"Properly used, radio presents an amazingly wide field for reasonable propaganda of the great truths we hold in common. I have found it an immense help in reaching countless numbers of people who have no definite affiliations with the churches. They are not irreligious. Far from it. They are deeply moved by spiritual realities and are a very large group presenting a fascinating field for religious enterprise. If the radio industry existed for this purpose alone, it would be amply justified."

As for the lazy sheep of the flock, why worry about them? A man who will remain away from the church in order that he may lie at home, smoke his pipe, listen to the services, and chuckle as he hears the tinkle of the collection would likewise, in playing golf alone, concede himself most of his three foot putts.

Zisman's Mandolin Trio Ends Service at W-G-N Tuesday

Josef Zisman's mandolin trio makes its farewell appearance as an instrumental group on W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, Tuesday night at 10:30 o'clock. The trio, which consists of Mr. Zisman, Nicolas Manilloff, and George Robach, has been heard many times on the station.

Following the Tuesday night program, the trio will be dissolved, since Mr. Zisman is leaving for New York. For more than three years he has been a featured artist on W-G-N, and it is only now, upon the eve of his departure, that station officials have learned that the smiling artist is really Josef Zimanich, officer of the former imperial Russian army, and a veteran of the great war, in which he was twice wounded and received the Cross of St. George.

ORCHESTRA OF CELLOS.

A director in Wellington, New Zealand, formed an orchestra of twenty cellos for broadcasting.

Small Stations to Have Place in Radio Plan

Local Programs Approved by Commissioners.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—While members of the federal radio commission have divergent opinions on the methods of allocation and the limitation of station power, they are in accord on the usefulness of small stations that give good programs of community interest.

The commissioners were impressed by the showing made by representatives of several of the small stations at the hearings granted 126 broadcasters, who had been cited to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked in the public interest.

Additional evidence of the popularity of some of these community stations was revealed in the flood of letters from listeners urging their retention. Judge Ira E. Robinson, who has issued few statements since he became chairman of the commission, has indicated on several occasions his approval of the small stations.

Even Commissioner O. H. Caldwell, who is an advocate of high power for the larger stations, declares he is a staunch supporter of the local station where it does not interfere with the general service rendered by the big studios.

"The usefulness of every home radio receiver will be expanded, if in addition to the general programs there is also made available a place on the dial where the listener can tune in his town or county transmitter and hear events and ceremonies of strictly local interest," he said.

Fair Fans at Ladies' Day See More Than Just a Ball Game

Folk at Their Funniest for World's Fairs

Offered Many Odd Ideas in 1893.

It would be a liberal education in human nature to serve on a World's Fair committee in Chicago if incidents similar to those preceding the Columbian exposition of '93 are to be repeated.

The ways and means committee probably will sit and laugh as heartily as loudly over the letters they will receive as did the ways and means committee of the days before the '93 World's Fair.

The content of the letters will no doubt be slightly different, owing to the new and wonderful products of the age, but there will be requests as absurd and as funny as the former ones.

Some Strange Requests.

There were recommendations as well as requests. One boy of 16, in 1892, wrote to the committee recommending the use of nickel in the slot machines in the telling of fish stories. A fellow tired of wandering about and still longing for the wonderful, might have his desires satisfied by sitting under a tree, depositing a nickel, and drinking in the details of a thriller. The most brilliant part of the suggestion was that the originator of the plan should receive a certain portion of the nickels.

A proud papa wrote that his 6 year old boy was such a wonder as an orator that the committee might like to have him introduce the main orators of the day. He thought it would illustrate something—as no doubt it would.

Two boys from New York wrote that they would like to travel on foot in Chicago, pitch a tent on the grounds, and give lectures on the platitudes of tramp life. That was before the days of week end camping parties and tourists camps.

A mathematician asked for standing room only, where he might show how to square a circle. Another genius wished to bring his perpetual motion machine for exhibit. This idea had the unfortunate outcome, for a later letter stated that the machine had broken down but the principle remained the same.

Idea from Beauty Doctor.

Several bar maids from England sent pictures and asked for work. Surely their pictures should have done something for them, but the hard hearted committee did not send for them.

There was a southern gentleman who knew of a Negro child who was an anatomical freak. He was sure

LICENSED TO FLY

OTHER girls may be able to wear aviation togs but, in the pocket of her slicker, Nan O. Durnham, 6325 Ingleside avenue, has something that few of her sex possess. It is a pilot's license that has just been granted her by the department of aeronautics at Washington, D. C. Nan's ambition is to fly a mail plane.

AMERICAN LEGION NEWS

This department is devoted to views of the American Legion. Officials of all posts are invited to make use of it to keep the Legionnaires of the whole county in touch with activities of the individual posts. Items must reach the American Legion Editor, Sunday Tribune, not later than Wednesday morning for publication the following Sunday.

LEGIONNAIRES who like competition will have numerous events to hold their interest at Waukegan Sept. 10 and 11 during the state convention. There will be contests between bands, drum corps, quartets, golf teams, bowling teams, drill teams, trap shooters, and horseshoe pitchers. The election of a new state commander is already a matter of much discussion. The Cook county candidates are James E. White of Theodore Roosevelt post, senior vice commander of the department of Illinois; David L. Shillinglaw of Advertising post, past commander of the Cook County association; Lawrence E. McGann Jr. of Austin post, past junior commander of the department of Illinois; Al C. Linenthal of Ravenswood post, vice commander of the Cook County council, and Arthur ("Jack") Poorman, commander of Chicago Heights post.

Stanley M. Peterson, adjutant of Wilmette post No. 46, says that the post's drum and bugle corps will take part in the competition among the musical organizations at Waukegan. The corps has been organized since March 1 of this year and has been practicing hard to make a good appearance at the big get-together. Recently the corps took part in the Wilmette day program and helped to make that event a success.

* *

The annual dance of the Harold A. Taylor post, No. 47, is scheduled for Oct. 26 at Merry Garden ballroom. As this event is the largest source of revenue for the post's general fund in the entire year, Dr. Walter Goldsmith, general chairman, is desirous of an early start with preparations.

Hoover Stirs New Interest in the Quakers

Some Customs of the Ancient Friends.

By Eunice Stebbins.

SINCE Hoover was nominated you have been more interested in the Quakers, or, as they call themselves, the Friends. You probably already know that they paid the Indians for the land on which they settled, called Penn's woodland or Pennsylvania, and that they founded and named Philadelphia, "the city of brotherly love." The name "Quaker" probably brings to you a picture of a man in a broad brimmed hat and coat with no vain notch in the lapel; or the image of a sweet faced woman in an ugly drab or black bonnet, with a dainty white kerchief neatly crossed on the bosom of an ugly drab or black gown. And you know vaguely that the Friends use forms of "thou" in their talk.

There is much more to know about that quaint people who attend to their own business and live in peace with the world, even, as in the early days, with the Indians.

Come with me to Quakerland, somewhere in the rich farming country near Philadelphia. Stand with me in the porch of the plain brick meeting house, different from a dwelling only in size and possibly the two entrances in front.

No Show of Wealth.

It is first-day; the Friends use no names of heathen gods for the days or the months. The meeting [not the congregation] is coming in. The older Friends wear the dress you know; the younger are garbed as the world's people. All exchange greetings; some may wander among the myrtle covered tombstones, low and plain, marked only with names and dates. The Friends do not believe in show of wealth in a graveyard, nor, for that matter, in any place of life.

The men and women are separating at the two entrances. Let us enter with them. Long benches on both sides; a few in front, where the pulpit or organ would be in other places of worship. No service but sitting in silence while the humming or buzzing

OUR TOWN

Unusual Bits of News About the Neighbors:

By Fred Pasley.

JAKE EISSLER'S cider mill at his place on the Barrington pike is now open for business, on Tuesdays from 2 p. m. to 9 p. m. and all day Saturdays. Jake has the kegs and barrels; all you have to supply is the apples.

Fred Sargent, accommodating president of the North Western, has made our local depot at Canal and Madison streets a regular stop for two of his new trains—crackerjacks both of them. They will pick up passengers for St. Paul and Minneapolis and Omaha and Sioux City. Our village sure is progressing and we congratulate it on again getting on the map.

Michael H. Wolf, the sody pop host at 219 West North avenue, has returned from his sightseeing trip to Kentucky, center of the U. S. population in colonels.

M. Mars, prominent planet, who has been summering in Aries, will spend the fall and winter months in Taurus, we are reliably informed.

Our leading commuter between Chicago and Havana, Noble Judah, will be back again in September.

* *

Peter Smith of 7303 Yates avenue came forward last week with the story he had caught a muskie weighing more than 40 pounds and measuring 51 inches. Pete occupied the spotlight at the corner cigar store until George E. Q. Johnson, our U. S. district attorney, returned from the Pacific coast to his home at 7327 Crandon avenue. George caught a 50 foot whale, but had to throw it back as had taken his legal limit of cetaceans that day.

DR. F. EDWARD SCHMIDT.

Hoo-rah, hoo-ree,
Rah-rah, naught-three.

WE ARE privileged today to gaze upon the doctor contemplating the universe 25 years ago as a member of the graduating class of the University of Chicago. He looks natural despite the chinscraper choker collar. Even in our most liberal institutions of learning the Adam's apple had not yet achieved emancipation. It was still being born to blush unseen. It was to be years later that an inspired and daring haberdasher was to enlighten the world with open plumbing in neckwear.

The doctor, or Florian, as his classmates truthfully expressed it, early won recognition as a youth of iron will, who could take his frats or leave them. This was because of his unique ambition to establish a record as a nonjoiner. He was eminently successful. He joined nothing, not even the Y. M. C. A. He should have received a "C," but didn't.

"Any man can do the same," says the doctor modestly, "if only he refuses often enough and long enough."

Of course, he played alto saxophone in the band, but why bring that up?

'Cute' Players Only Part of Free Outing

What Other Women Wear Divides Interest.

By Helen Dare

TWO chorus girls—at least they looked it, with their ankle bracelets, extreme clothes, and heavy makeup—sat behind me.

"Lemme see," said the one whose blonde curls looked suspiciously detachable, "the guys in white are our team—the Cubs—and the others are either the Yankees or maybe Brooklyn. But I don't know anything else about the game."

"Well, it's like this," explained her companion, who was decked out in slinky red fringe, among other things, "first one side gets up and goes out and then the other side does. And when they both get up and go out they call it an inning."

"But what do they call it an inning for," retorted the blonde curls, "if they go out all the time?"

* *

Furious Toward Usher.

Ladies' day at Wrigley field. A day overhung with threats of rain, which, however, didn't dampen the spirits of the feminine fans—or bargain hunters. Women are admitted free on Ladies' day, you know.

Mamma brought the girls and was furious when the guard insinuated that they weren't perfect ladies.

"You'll have to buy a ticket for them," he insisted wearily, "or go to the office. I can't do anything about it. I'm only an usher. I'm only supposed to let ladies in. That means over 16 years. See?"

Mamma and the girls decided to take their outing at Lincoln park instead.

But other youngsters, with the aid of deft lipsticks and sophisticated smirks, managed to get by the not infallible guards. Three of them came giggling in to where I sat up in the second deck.

"And I said I was 16 and he fell for it," said one, obviously no more than 12. "Oooh, here comes Kiki," as Cuyler came to bat in the first. "Swat her a nice long one, Kiki," she yowled.

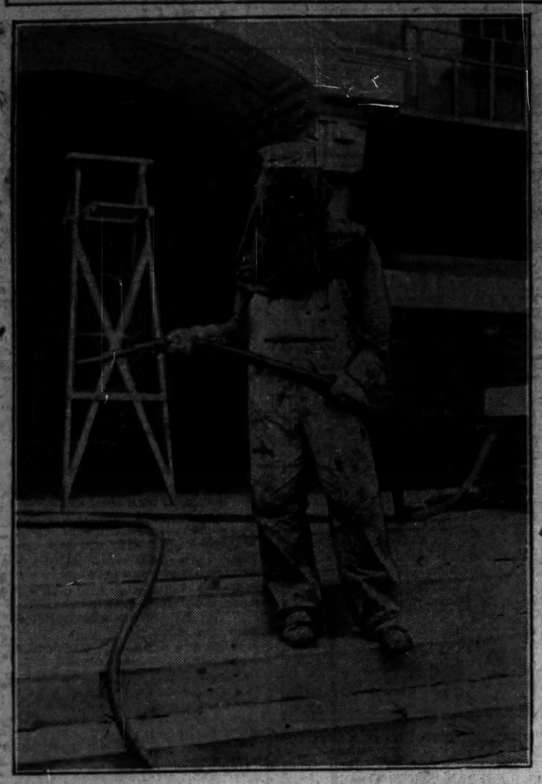
DON'T GET SCARED



THERE need be no cause for alarm because Peter Smith, 3215 South Albany avenue, thus greets you from behind a mask. The only thing to suffer from the weapon he handles is the accumulation on the stones of a building at Kenmore and Lawrence avenues, where he happened to be working when the photographer came along. A CAMP CHART OF CHEER

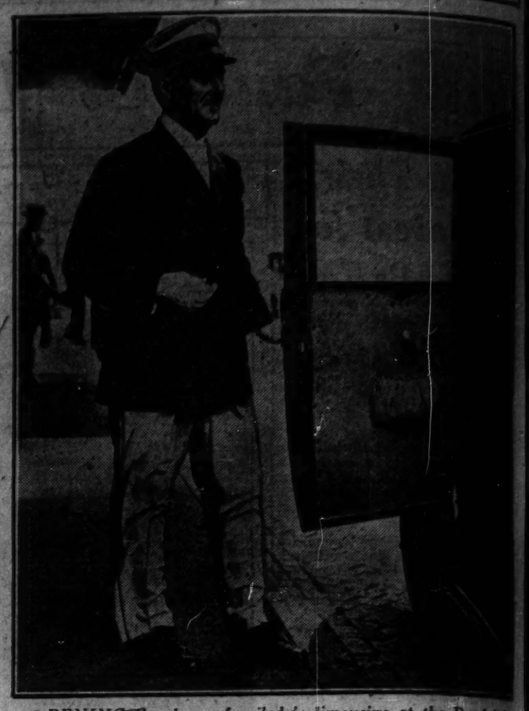
"SEE what I gained in the fresh air and sunshine," chortles Loretta Bailey to a mother and invalid daughter who have just arrived at Camp Algonquin, The Tribune's fresh air camp for mothers and children on the Fox river. And let us hope that the little girl, looking wistfully at the record, will be equally benefied by the essentials in health which the camp in the country provides. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

FINDS JOY IN FLOWERS

LIKE most women, Mrs. G. W. Good, 3201 Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, Ill., gets a great deal of pleasure from her flower garden, and she has found her work of cultivation particularly rewarded this summer. The cannas which she has grown are greatly admired by passersby. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

SERVICE DE LUXE



OPENING the door of milady's limousine at the Randolph and State street entrance of Marshall Field and company, we have Edward Percy Cardigan Wilder, whose gracious and dignified manner is the result of aristocratic background. Mr. Wilder, a familiar figure in the loop these last five years, was born at Maidenhead, Berkshire, England, and his father took part in the famous "Charge of the Light Brigade" at Balaklava. CHARGE OF THE LAWNMOWERS' BRIGADE

WHAT chance has the grass in Garfield park of reaching maturity when this quintet of mowing machine manipulators is constantly on the job? No, every green blade within the sound of the revolving knives knows it's just a matter of time before its ambitions will be thwarted by either T. F. Mulvery, Pat Ryan, Edward Jones, Mike Pentoes, or Leo Koenig. There's recompense, though, when visitors exclaim over the beauty of the bobbed style in lawn grass. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Hoover Stirs New Interest in the Quakers

Some Customs of the Ancient Friends.

may come through the open unstained windows.

"As quiet as a Quaker meeting" is a familiar phrase. Presently some one may arise and speak, or the silence may be unbroken throughout the hour. It is as "the spirit moves"; a hireling minister is an abomination unto the Lord. At the end of the time, one of those high in meeting [on the front benches] shakes hands with his neighbor, the rest clasp hands with the nearest, and a childish voice may pipe, "Now we'll have our dinners."

* *

"Rules of Discipline."

Were I to introduce thee as we pass out, thee would have kindly handshaking but no bowing or hat-doffing which are due only to the Lord. If I had said, "Miss" or "Mrs." the gentle voice would say, "And what is thy name?" and afterwards thee would be known by thy Christian name to mark they friendly equality with all men.

If, as is likely, thee were to have an invitation to dinner, I would advise thee to accept. The hostess would not stint thee in sweet home cured ham or home fed chickens, vegetables fresh from her own garden, cold slaw, Quaker pie, all enriched with cream from her own dairy, and served on delicately patterned china with plain but glittering solid silver, nothing for show but all for goodness and enjoyment. If there is a grandmother in the house, thee will almost exclaim with delight at the beauty of the white cap softening the wrinkled face and thinning hair. And thee will notice the gossamer fineness of cap and kerchief and the almost royal richness of the silk in the plain gray gown.

On the parlor table may lie a little black book, "Rules of Discipline." It will tell thee how the lives of Friends are guided. When the monthly meeting assembles, men and women apart but equal, there will be questions asked, "Have tale-bearing and detracting been guarded against?" "If differences have arisen, have there been endeavors speedily to end them?" "Are all Friends living within their means?" "Are all children properly cared for and educated?" "Are all Africans living with Friends properly taught?"

Simplicity at Weddings.

If the monthly meeting cannot solve problems there is the quarterly, and after that the yearly. The monthly is the gathering of one congregation; the quarterly of several; the yearly of all.

When thee is born, the monthly records the date with thy name and parents in its book, so that thee may always know thy age, and have thy birthright as born into meeting [a member of the society]. When thee dies, the meeting sees that thee is buried with due respect and silent prayer, although it bears testimony against wearing of mourning for thee. Extravagance and indulgence of emotion are not in accord with Friendly ideas of thrift and self-control. If thee wishes to marry, thee and thy mate must pass meeting, i. e., must ask its permission. It will appoint a committee to examine into the past life and circumstances to see if both of you may decently and honorably enter into the union.

The committee will attend thy wedding to see that all is conducted properly. Thy ceremony will be the simplest of all known rites. Thee merely stand before the assembled Friends and say, "In the presence of God and of these witnesses, I hereby take ——— to be my lawfully wedded wife, and promise to be a loving and faithful husband till death us part." And she says the same of thee. And thy vows are as binding as if taken before a hundred priests. The Friends recognize no divorce; some of them will not even mention it by word.

Opposed to Slavery.

In that little black book, thee will find testimonies against swearing, the liquor traffic, slavery, war, going to law. "Make thy yea, yea; thy nay, nay." In every oath-taking form of law today, there is provision for "affirm" besides "swear," and I might say that one is believed as strongly as the other.

The Friends might not engage in liquor traffic or linger around taverns, where they might learn frivolous and pernicious ways. They were not wholly consistent; there was nothing in discipline against taking a drink. But I think many of them must have been displeased with that ad of a good natured looking man in colonial costume holding a bottle labeled "Quaker whisky."

They testified against slavery in the open and in their own sweet Quaker darkness. They formed abolition societies when joining might mean the loss of wealth and all respect. James Mott stood hesitating, pen in hand, before the paper the signing of which might cost him his worldly all. Lucretia's voice was soft as the dew:

"James, write thy name."

"The Spirit Leads."

Were thee working with a certain Quaker in the fields, thee might see a neighbor lad ride up and tell of the woods meeting next Seventh-Day week, and slip a blank piece of paper into the old man's hand. That night he would row his boat to a certain landing on the Susquehanna, take on board a sturdy black man or maybe a dark woman with a silent baby in her arms, row them to another landing where a team was waiting, row home, sleep in peace, and work the next day in the fields without a thought of his bit of work on the great underground railroad.

That little woman who said, "James, write thy name," thee will remember as one of the first suffragettes. The Quaker women came into their equality as naturally as falls the dew. They couldn't have told you when their sect joined the cause. Indeed, they had to go out and mingle with the world's people before they could tell what to argue about.

Were thee to ask a Quaker why he or any other did thus or so, why he ignored the laws against helping slaves, or kept his account straight every day, or kept his hat on in church, or sat in meeting while the battle waged, or shouldered his musket 'at Lincoln's call, leaving word as he marched away, that he was sorry he was going against discipline, the only answer he could give thee would be "The spirit leads" or "The light came." The essence, the very soul of the Friendly faith lies in the following of the inward light. "Wait until the light comes," is the watchword in any time of stress or perplexity. The true Friend waits and waits and waits until there comes that clearing of the pathway by the divine light within. Had Shakespeare been a Friend, he could never have written a Hamlet.

Some Quaker Tales.

Naturally thee asks, "Do the Quakers always obey their discipline or follow the inward light? Are they all as saintly and serene as thee would make out?"

I answer, quoting David Harum, "There's as much human nature in some folks as in some others, and in some of them there's more." And I would tell thee some of the many tales the Quakers tell on themselves with an understanding little twinkle in the eye.

One wealthy old Friend gave generously toward the building of a church in his community. The church had a lofty steeple. Members of meeting waited on him to reason with him for giving to such show and vainglory.

"I subscribed to the building, not to the steeple," was his answer.

Another was much opposed to the modern spirits who wished to put an organ in the meeting house. When, after a long holding out, he finally surrendered, he gave the largest sum of any. He was rallied on his inconsistency.

"Well, if thee must praise the Lord by machinery, I want thee to have a good machine."

Phineas Fletcher.

A young Friend had an argument with a comrade that heated both to fighting point. "I mayn't hit thee, but there's nothing in discipline agin choking," he said.

Once a gang of rowdies tried to break up a Friends' meeting by a charivari under the windows. Out came a sturdy son of peace. "Although it may be to the detriment of my soul, it will be for the betterment of thine, and, therefore, my friend, I will endeavor to take Satan out of thee."

The hoodlums' bruises testified to the amount of sacrifice a Quaker would make to save a neighbor's soul. Do you remember Phineas Fletcher in Uncle Tom's Cabin? As the slave catcher leaped across the chasm, Phineas suddenly remarked, "Friend, thee isn't wanted here," and pushed him down the gap. There was nothing in discipline against pushing.

In the war of 1812, an American ship was attacked by the British. An English seaman was climbing a rope on the side of the Yankee vessel. A Quaker stood at the rail by the top of the line. He opened his knife and began to saw at the fibers.

"Friend, if thee wants the rope, thee may have it."

The foeman took most of the rope into the sea with him.

A Quaker Threat.

Here is a bad one. I don't believe it; I tell it because a Quaker told it to me. I must inform you beforehand that courts have decided a certain word unaccompanied by the name of the Deity is not profanity. A Quaker knows his discipline. I will also inform thee, that, if thee wishes to make an ox stand over, thee must twist his tail. An ox does not understand English.

A Friend was feeding a calf. The hungry baby stuck its head clear into the bucket and then brought it out to splash feed and milk all over the immaculate first day suit. The Friend spoke deliberately.

"I will not beat thee, and I will not curse thee, but I will twist thy damned tail."

* *

A Mother's Advice.

The Quaker story I like best is one told of Isaac T. Hopper, the noted preacher and abolitionist. I think you will like it, too, and you will like it better if you will only read it again.

Isaac was leaving the old home for the city to seek his fortune. He stood by his mother's rocker to receive her last advice.

"Now, Isaac, remember," said she, "as long as thee behaves thyself,—as long as thee behaves thyself, thee is just as good as anybody." She waited a minute, then she added, "and no better."

Police Trap Hungry Thief Who Ate Soap

BRESLAU.—(AP)—An unusual clew led to the capture of two professional burglars guilty of a series of baffling crimes.

One of the robbers while ransacking an apartment, had picked up an apple from the kitchen table and started to bite it. It happened that the fruit was imitation and made of soap. He dropped it quickly in disgust and the police used the teeth marks later to identify a captive under suspicion.

Home Town Honors Famous French Ace

THUIT, France.—(AP)—Georges Guynener, France's greatest flying ace, who disappeared over the German lines twelve years ago, has been commemorated by a stained glass window in the village church where he was baptized. Airplanes maneuvered overhead while the window was being dedicated to "St. George."

AL INTERVIEWS THE "BLANKET BUMS"

And Finds Animated Cigar Signs Indulging in a Redskin Racket

By Snowshoe Al.

LAST week me and my wife happened to be in the vicinity of the Lac Du Flambeau Indian reservation, so we decided to breeze over and slip this flock of Cigar Signs a few curious glances. We expected to find them galloping around in feathers, war paint and beads; therefore we were quite surprised to see them wearing overalls, straw hats, and wrist watches.

"This is terribly disappointing," snorts my Quarrel Partner; "in fact, I'd hardly recognize them as Indians if it wasn't for the fact that none of the men are working."

"You're wrong," says me, "because I can see a guy working—he's winding his wrist watch! He'll probably have to lay down under a tree an' rest for an hour after all that strenuous labor. By golly, there don't seem to be many Blanket Bums on the street today. I wonder where they're all at!"

"Why don't you ask somebody?" says my Noisy Half. "Here comes a little boy—ask him."

"Hey, papoose, where is your father today?" says I; "is he running around in the forests shooting deer?"

"Don't get comical!" says the papoose; "he's probably running around in the gutters, shooting cigaret butts. He didn't come home last night. Just wait till my mother gets her mitts on the old boy—she's gonna raise lumps on him."

* *

Funny Talk.

At this moment my wife sees a small souvenir shop which, according to a sign, is owned by Chief White Eagle, so she says to me:

"Run over to that store and ask the guy where all the Indians are at."

I trots into Mr. White Eagle's place of business and finds him sitting in a rocking chair, smoking a punk cigar. As I entered he looked up, yawned, and remarked "Ugh."

"Ugh right back at you," says I; "pardon me, Chief, but me like to ask you question. Me look for heap much Indians, but me no findum. How come, kid, how come? Indians all croak from much cold weather last winter an' go to Happy Hunting Grounds, huh?"

"Your phraseology would indicate an atmosphere of either sarcasm or light jest," yawns Mr. White Eagle. "You'll find most of our people over at the Indian Pageant. Drive straight up this street and then follow the first road to your left. By the way, how did the Cubs come out yesterday?"

"The Pirates beat 'em," says I.

"!Z%$@$$!Z%$!!!" snorts he, tearing up a 25 cent chance on a baseball lottery. "Would you like to buy an Indian basket?"

"Certainly not," sneers me; "what would I want an Indian basket for?"

"About 15 cents, I suppose," says he, "but you wouldn't get it."

A Redskin Racket.

So me and my wife grabbed the first road to the left and started on the trail of the Blanket Bums. There was lots of other cars headed in the same direction. After traveling a couple miles we began to hear large quantities of war whoops, tomtom beating, and other forms of redskin racket, and pretty soon we arrived at the entrance to a large park. A fat squaw leaned out of a small ticket office window and asked me how many tickets I wanted.

"What's the cost?" asks me. "What's going on in there? Why is all that racket? It sounds like somebody just found a Canadian dime among his small change."

"The tickets are 50 cents each," says the fat squaw, "and we show you the way we used to live. You'll see the way we used to cook, eat, work, and fight 'way back in the primitive days."

So I coughs up one dollar and in we goes. Well, it seems as how this Indian village consists of about twenty round dwellings made of some sort of woven fiber or matting, with birch bark roofs. In front of each of them was some old squaws making blankets and other things. My Noisy Half stops to ask one of these old dames a few questions, so I keeps on going and enters one of the wigwams. It contained three army cots, an alarm clock, and a gasoline stove. A stout Indian mamma was sitting on one of the cots eating a candy bar and humming her papoose a very primitive lullaby, entitled "Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

The Dawn of Civilization.

"Well, well," says I, "so this is the way you ginks lived way back in the early days!"

"Sure," says the squaw.

"By golly," says me, "Chris Columbus must have got an awful shock when you people offered to trade him some alarm clocks for a bottle of firewater. I can almost hear him saying, 'Hey, keed, where you gitta deez teengs, huh?'"

Just then a cute little Indian girl breezed into the joint. She was about 4 years old, and she was carrying a little, black kitten.

"Hello, little gal," says I, slipping her a dime, "here's some money for you. Now, what are you gonna do with it—buy a bow an' arrow?"

"How silly!" says the little brat; "I'm gonna buy two bozes of crackerjack an' I don't mean perhaps!"

I moved along and entered another wigwam where two old Blanket Bums were sitting in rocking chairs listening to a New York radio program and arguing as to whether Tito Schipa had a better tenor voice than John McCormack.

"Good morning, gents," says I.

"Good morning," says one of them.

"You are an old man," says I, "an' I bet you have seen many interesting sights in your days. Do you remember Custer's Last Stand?"

"No," says he, "but I remember Sitting Bull. Ah, what a wonderful Chief he was! Sitting Bull had a wife named Squatting Cow and a daughter named Reclining Calf. He also had another daughter named Reposing Heifer and a son named Prostrate Ox. He also had——"

"Something tells me that your name is either Lying Beef or Bum Steer," says I; "good-by, Ananias, I do not care to be spoofed."

Early American.

I went out and found my wife. She was watching the Indian war dances, so I sat down beside her and gazed at this very interesting piece of hokum. A dozen Blanket Bums was hopping around in a circle, doing heap much quantities of yelling and large amounts of perspiring. Near them sat the native jazz orchestra beating on tomtoms, hollow logs, etc. One of us sat a fat warrior who was evidently in charge of the monkey business, because he was always giving instructions to the dancers. I listened closely to what he was saying, as you'd be surprised to learn how easy it is to understand the Indian language! No fooling, I readily picked up quite a few primitive phrases such as:

"Snap into it, youse guys—step on the gas!"

"Come on, Big Boy, shake them hoofs!"

"Hey, Charlie! Get going, kid, get going!"

Well, me and the wife wander away from this scene and starts wandering around. Pretty soon I spots an old cigar sign sitting under a tree. Old? Say-ay, I betcha this guy helped to scalp the driver of the first covered wagon! His face contained more wrinkles than a carload of washboards. His last tooth must have fell out about the time of the Boston Tea party.

A Kansas Zephyr Ends It All.

"Hello, Papa Time," says I; "how old are you?"

"Ugh wug mug ugh mug jug wug mug," mumbles him.

"Add your own mug to that collection," says I, "because it's too comical to be overlooked. How old are you?"

"One hundred and ten," says he.

"You're just the bimbo I'm looking for," says I; "here's a half dollar! Now tell me all about Custer's Last Stand."

"Ah," says he, "how well I remember Custer's Last Stand! It was in a small town in Kansas. He had nice red-and-white striped awnings on it to keep out the sun's rays. He did a great business in barbecued sandwiches, popcorn, lemonade, and coffee, but he also sold oil and gasoline. One day, however, a Kansas cyclone came along and blew the stand to kindling wood. Mr. Custer became very exasperated. 'Damn these cyclones,' said he, 'this is the fourth time they have blown me out of business and I am getting tired of it. In fact, I hereby resolve never to build another stand!' So that, my friend, was Custer's Last——"

"Aw, go to hell!" says I.

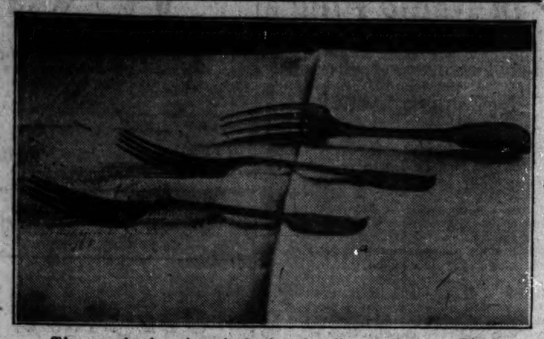
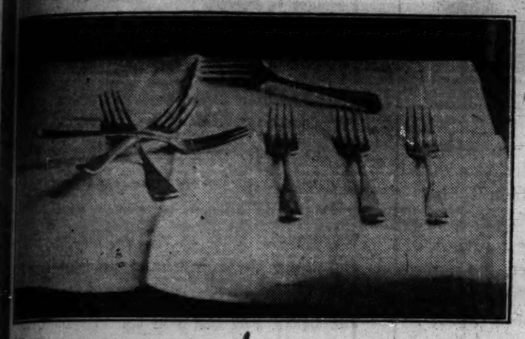
Silver That Lends a Lure to the Table

Knives and Forks; Also Useful Novelties of Charm

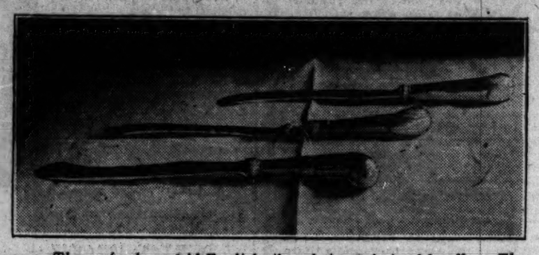
Two old English silver coasters, which, if you do not care for coasters, can be used for ash trays. They are of a size used under decanters, and the workmanship is very fine. They have a diminutive beading across the top edge.



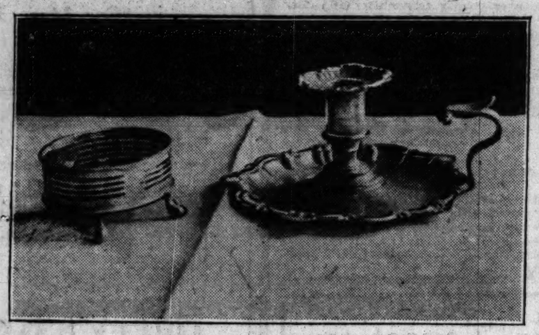
Three early American forks for the silver collector. They are three of a dozen, all perfect and of heavy weight.



Part of a set of twelve Georgian silver fruit or salad forks. They are fine in workmanship and their size is useful, though they cannot be used for roast.

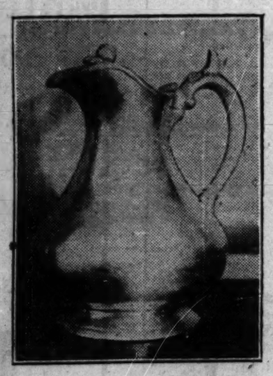


Three of a dozen old English silver knives of pistol handles. The blades are steel and are still in the best of cutting condition.

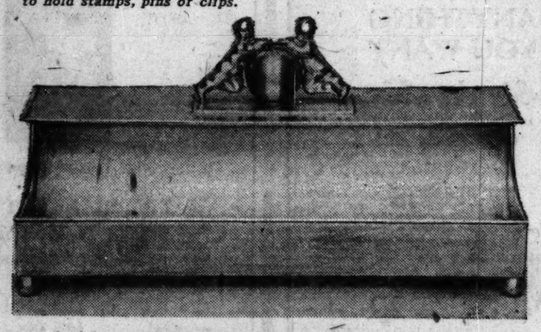


A Sheffield candlestick and an old salt cellar. The cellar is lined with sapphire blue glass. A nice combination for a desk, the cellar to hold stamps, pins or clips.

A modernistic lamp in white bronze, with a shade of matched silk that shades from white to dark cobalt blue in all the range of blues. It would be a lovely bedroom lamp.



For the country house—a beautiful covered water pitcher of pewter. Think of its usability, and its flylessness, which, combined with its beauty, make it a joy forever.



An inkwell and pen rack in hand-wrought silver. This piece was designed as a golf trophy and shows what can be done in the way of useful trophies rather than useless cups that clutter up the house, make unnecessary work for the servants and give the wife nervous prostration.

English Town Provides Gay Life for Mice

No Pied Piper Would Be Welcomed.

RAYLEIGH, England. — (AP) — No Pied Piper need expect a welcome in this little Essex village, for, although over 50,000 mice can be found here, they are cherished inhabitants whose presence is a source of local pride.

They have a home of their own, called "The Mousery," feed on specially prepared tidbits, and are so happy that they will not leave their homes even when they are given an opportunity to do so.

* *

For Medical Use.

"The Mousery" is a breeding place for mice which are sent to universities and medical schools for use in cancer research work. It is the only establishment of its kind in England.

In this rodent's paradise live mice of every variety and hue—white mice, silver mice, lemon colored mice, and fancy colored mice.

Row upon row of cages, carefully numbered and labeled with details concerning the family that lives in each one, are ranged round the walls, and the genial farmer, Mr. A. Tuck, can put his hand on a particular mouse at a moment's notice. He has a personal acquaintance with all of them and can give you the family pedigree of the 500 or so newcomers who are born each day, without any difficulty.

Won't Leave Cages.

Feeding time at "The Mousery" is an interesting performance. It takes Mr. Tuck and two assistants five hours each day to serve dinner to the mice, most of which are so tame that they stand up and beg, and do other tricks in order to get the choicest morsels.

The mice will not leave their cages even when the doors are left open. How a mouse knows when he is well fed.

MOST IMPORTANT DUTY.

The owner of a big plant, addressing a new employe:

"Did my foreman tell you what you will have to do?"

"Yes, sir, he told me to wake him up when I see you coming."—Forbes Magazine.

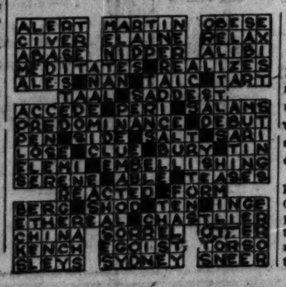
ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE



HITCHED TO A STAR.

Seventy-five U. of M. students whose pictures in the Michigan annual showed promise were interviewed by a motion picture producer. Ten of them were selected for screen tests, and those surviving the tests will be offered film contracts.

Thus some, right at the threshold of life, have greatness thrust upon them. Others, after trying to break into professional baseball, must resign themselves to careers as professional men or scholars or something.—Detroit News.

Angry Purchaser—Then why is it that I'm never able to get more than two eggs from them and sometimes none at all in one day?

Poultry Seller — I don't know, ma'am, unless it's because you look for eggs too often. Now if you look for them only once a week I feel quite positive that you will get as many eggs as I did.—Weekly Scotsman.

From our special correspondent at Larned, Kas.: "The wedding bells peeled joyfully at the home of Mr. H. R. Drake last Tuesday when their highly accomplished and beautiful daughter, Melva, became the blushing bride of that sterling young farmer, Henry Eastman. The bride's brother, Charlie, played Meddlesome's wedding march on his cornet, and considering the fact he has only had it about nine months it sounded good. Rev. Osgood, who has been working through harvest and picking up a little on the side, performed the nuptials. The bride's costume was a sort of light, gauzy affair and white slippers and stockings to match. Of course she wore heavier clothes when she went on their wedding trip. Quite a merry crowd assembled to see them off, and as they didn't have any rice, some of them got to throwing roasting ears. Harry was struck under the eye by a large ear and blacked it pretty bad. They drove right to Larned and stayed all night at the hotel and then took their wedding trip to Kinsley and Dodge City. They have rented the old home place and will be at home next Tuesday. Melva expects to take charge of Cooper and Jones cook shack for the rest of the season."

For eight years Mother Blaauw had been wishing for a daughter to complete the family circle. The wish has been granted. A neighbor knocked at the back door early one morning last week. Mrs. Blaauw hurried to answer. It was a baby girl that had been left in the Blaauw's yard. Mother Blaauw took her in her arms. When the police came a few hours later, she said. "I won't give her up. We're going to raise her just like she was our own daughter." They let her keep it. Great days, these, in the modest cottage of the railroad crossing watchman at 350 West 109th street.

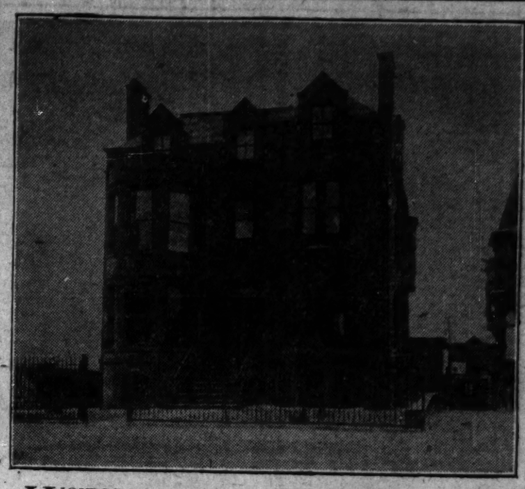
FAMOUS HOMES



VISITORS in the old days to what was the home of Jesse Spalding, 1637 Prairie avenue, are said to have been impressed by its atmosphere of friendliness and contentment. The cozy library was the popular evening room where the family passed the hours between tea and retiring. Its books furnished recreation for the man who, beginning with 1860, exercised wide influence over the mercantile, political and social interests of Chicago. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Madame Chiang Most Modern in Her Ways

Years at Wellesley Show Their Influence.

SHANGHAI.—(AP)—An interviewer who tries to get Mme. Chiang Kai-shek to talk about herself finds it difficult to keep her to the subject. She continually strays from discussion of her own tastes to tell of the likes and dislikes of her husband, the military leader of the Chinese nationalist revolution.

An informal interview with Mme. Chiang, youthful, vivacious, speaking English with hardly a trace of an accent, revealed to the correspondent that she takes very seriously her rôle of interpreter of the west and its arts and ways to her conservative, orient trained husband.

Likes U. S. Movies.

As an alumna of Wellesley she has an outlook much like that of an intelligent, cultured young American woman. She enjoys tennis and swimming. The music she loves best is that of the violin of the west, not the squeaking fiddle of China.

Her acquaintance with western literature is extensive and intelligent, and one gathers that her true intellectual recreation is found there. She confessed a liking for the American movies and goes to "the pictures" frequently when living in her residence in the French concession in Shanghai.

Mme. Chiang is hardly out of the bride stage in her matrimonial career, for it was only last September that the former Mayling Soong, daughter of a Methodist mission helper, became the wife of the nationalist generalissimo in Shanghai.

Gowns are Smart.

Mme. Chiang's taste in occidental literature runs to biography and history. "I like to know what living people do and think," she explained. "I read what other men who have been beset by my husband's problems have done, and I like to go to the sources of their inspirations."

From her long residence in America Mme. Chiang has acquired a sure taste in western dress. Her gowns are smart and up to date, and she wears them with a Fifth avenue air. But she prefers Chinese vostume and is much interested in the evolution in new Chinese styles.

Cling to Collars.

"I think we are developing an interesting and beautiful costume in the combination of the national Chinese blouse and the foreign style skirt," she told the interviewer. It should be explained, however, that the "western style" skirt as adapted by Chinese women to replace the silken trousers they used to wear falls to the angles and has little in common with the knee revealing mode of the day in America.

"The combination," Mme. Chiang went on, "affords opportunity for all the variations of style that please women. We delight in testing our ingenuity in evolving new forms of this particular adaptation. We retain, however, the upstanding collar which is a familiar characteristic of Chinese clothes, and do not have decollette, front or back. In the long gown of the moment we have achieved a graceful line which would with profit be adapted in the west."

Strauss Finishing Lively New Opera

VIENNA.—(AP)—Richard Strauss, famous author of the operatic gems, "Rosenkavalier," "Salome," "The Egyptian Helena," and others, is completing a new opera called "Arabella." The scenes are laid in Vienna. Arabella is the name of a very pretty Viennese countess who elopes with her coachman. The dialogue is merry and the music is said to equal in charm Strauss' previous works.

Experts Report Summer Static is Diminishing

Conditions Will Improve from Now On.

Just now when every distance listener is swearing at the summer static, or has given up in disgust, or has "junked his set" it is welcome news to hear the static experts at the U. S. bureau of standards say the worst is over and that the curve of bad atmospherics is on the toboggan.

Systematic recording of static by Uncle Sam for about six years shows that extreme conditions prevail in June and July almost invariably followed by relief towards the end of August, improving steadily with the cool nights which begin to be felt during September and with the very best listening conditions from the middle of October to the middle of March.

High Last June.

According to the standards bureau observations static this year was equally bad during June and July of this year. At that, it was much lower this July than last but June static this summer was worse than during the same period last summer. In June, 1927, the static was abnormally low, as a matter of fact, and that is the reason it appeared to be so much higher last June.

Static has been pretty high the past month in many parts of the country due to the thunderstorms which have prevailed. A curious condition was noticeable the night Secretary Hoover spoke, however.

It followed a protracted heat spell—a record breaker in most places—and the night before he spoke static was so high almost everywhere that it was next to impossible to pull in outside stations.

Hoover Got Break.

However, on the evening of his speech, according to the U. S. weather bureau, it was cool all over the east, but a rainy condition existed minus thunderstorms. This was the very territory Mr. Hoover was desirous of reaching and where the night before people were out in their automobiles or on the porch trying to cool off the night of the speech they very likely were kept in doors where they were almost sure to be listening in on the radio.

To make the break luckier, there being no thunderstorms, static was greatly reduced and the clear listening range was far beyond anything it had been for weeks before.

Surely there ought to be very advanced evidences of static conditions with the beginning of autumn on Sunday, Sept. 23. Inasmuch as that is only about a month off there will not be much longer for the fans to wait.

Zisman's Mandolin Trio Ends Service at W-G-N Tuesday

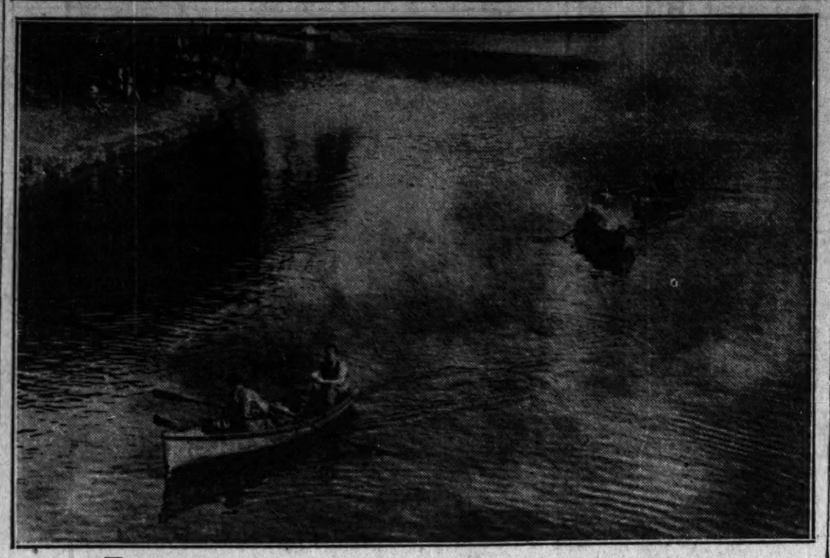
Josef Zisman's mandolin trio makes its farewell appearance as an instrumental group on W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, Tuesday night at 10:30 o'clock. The trio, which consists of Mr. Zisman, Nicolas Manilloff, and George Robach, has been heard many times on the station.

Following the Tuesday night program, the trio will be dissolved, since Mr. Zisman is leaving for New York. For more than three years he has been a featured artist on W-G-N, and it is only now, upon the eve of his departure, that station officials have learned that the smiling artist is really Josef Zimanich, officer of the former imperial Russian army, and a veteran of the great war, in which he was twice wounded and received the Cross of St. George.

W-G-N Will Present Two Radio Plays on Air This Week

Drama on the radio will be supplied by two features this week on W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. Thursday night at 9 o'clock the second and concluding act of "The Purple Towers," the mystery musical comedy, will be heard, while on Saturday night listeners can hear the dramatization of the new TRIBUNE Sunday serial, "One of the Follies."

VACATION DAYS AT LINCOLN PARK



NOTHING like the woods and waters when the languid summer days come on. Some folk travel far for the purpose of getting back to nature. Others find rest for their nerves in Lincoln park, and here we have a typical August afternoon scene at the lagoon. The water ripples to the dip of the oars and calmly reflects the shadows of the trees along the shore.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN A. RYAN.

HERE IS ONE of the heart touching kind of letters that, fiction tells us, clowns and actors receive occasionally. It is seldom, I suppose, that we humble broadcasters receive such, and when we do we may be pardoned for tucking it away, for memory's sake in years to come:

"Dear Sir: Probably I should have said 'Uncle Quin,' as that is the title the children love so well. I heard you this evening telling the story of blackberry bush and the little boy with the honey-colored hair, and judging by the way in which you tell your stories to the children [and the grown-ups as well] you must love children. I have just a few words to tell you. I can't call it a 'story,' as it happened in real life, only recently. Something prompted me to tell you this — how happy you made a little boy with honey-colored hair, too—and helped to cheer his last weeks of young life. The seven year old son of friends of mine had been ailing for months, and because he knew you so well, on the air every evening, I bought him a little gift, as a pastime in his weary days and weeks of suffering. It was your book of the circus, the clowns, etc. Could you have seen the look of joy in his emaciated face, it would recompense you for your broadcasting work and for your children's book. His mother told me how he read and reread the book every day when the pain was not too agonizing, and cherished the contents almost to the end."

[Signed.]

Radio has got religion, and religion has got radio. Taking, say, 700 as the total of radio stations in the United States, we find that one in every fifteen is owned by a religious organization. Add to these the number of churches or sectarian schools participating in the operation of radio stations, and the ratio moves up to about one in every ten. Further, one-half of all the stations include some form of worship or a religious program in their broadcast offerings. Religion has embraced the radio, and the sky pilots are cruising the skies.

After reverently weighing the listening public's reports on the matter, we may draw the compound conclusion that religious broadcasting is a great privilege and a great pest.

It is from the larger cities that there comes the angry designation of religious stations as pests. Many a city or suburban listener finds a crusading broadcaster in his territory hogging the air and ruining his chances of enjoying other stations with diversified programs. When the Jumping Jehosaphats build a potent broadcasting plant in any locality the neighbors for miles around have the alternative of listening exclusively to fervent calisthenics or of turning in their radio sets for useful fireless cookers.

Since press agents, movies, billboards, and other modern devices of salesmanship have been called to the evangelical cause, it was but natural that churches should employ the radio for publicity. Just these churches that employ it obviously for advertising bring down upon their heads the wrath of the everyday radio devotee.

In many more cases, on the other hand, the religious radio is deemed a divine blessing. It delivers to the hearthstone of the isolated and to the bedside of the shut-in balm and inspiration of holy service—and welcomely, too, even to individuals who have been indifferently beyond the rim of any flock.

Questionnaires submitted to pastors tell, in ten instances to one, of attendance increased after broadcasting, of letters received from distant points containing promises to attend church more often, of the dispelling of points of prejudice, and of the creation of bountiful good will. They even tell of voluntary monetary donations to the collection box.

The clergyman who has probably the largest and most variegated audience in the world is Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, who preaches via a chain of radio stations on Sunday afternoons. He includes a "question box" for the answering of questions sent to him from his scattered listeners of all sects and creeds. He says of broadcasting:

"Properly used, radio presents an amazingly wide field for reasonable propaganda of the great truths we hold in common. I have found it an immense help in reaching countless numbers of psople who have no definite affiliations with the churches. They are not irreligious. Far from it. They are deeply moved by spiritual realities and are a very large group presenting a fascinating field for religious enterprise. If the radio industry existed for this purpose alone, it would be amply justified."

As for the lazy sheep of the flock, why worry about them? A man who will remain away from the church in order that he may lie at home, smoke his pipe, listen to the services, and chuckle as he hears the tinkle of the collection would likewise, in playing golf alone, concede himself most of his three foot putts.

Small Stations to Have Place in Radio Plan

Local Programs Approved by Commissioners.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—While members of the federal radio commission have divergent opinions on the methods of allocation and the limitation of station power, they are in accord on the usefulness of small stations that give good programs of community interest.

The commissioners were impressed by the showing made by representatives of several of the small stations at the hearings granted 126 broadcasters, who had been cited to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked in the public interest.

Additional evidence of the popularity of some of these community stations was revealed in the flood of letters from listeners urging their retention. Judge Ira E. Robinson, who has issued few statements since he became chairman of the commission, has indicated on several occasions his approval of the small stations.

Even Commissioner O. H. Caldwell, who is an advocate of high power for the larger stations, declares he is a staunch supporter of the local station where it does not interfere with the general service rendered by the big studios.

"The usefulness of every home radio receiver will be expanded, if in addition to the general programs there is also made available a place on the dial where the listener can tune in his town or county transmitter and hear events and ceremonies of strictly local interest," he said.

In the sparsely settled regions and great distances of the far west there are few local stations and the residents of these areas are dependent upon higher powered stations for their programs. However, Commissioner Lafount, the representative of this zone, has provided room for all of the existing small stations in his allocation plan for the entire country.

Judge Eugene Sykes, representative of the south, and Commissioner Sam Pickard of the middle west have been favorable in their attitude towards the small stations, especially those which give good service to the farmers.

At its meeting tomorrow night, Advertising Men's post, No. 38, will have Martha's Minstrels, an all juvenile organization, as its guests. The speaker for the evening will be Maj. R. L. Benston, service officer for the department of Illinois. The post shows the largest membership in its history—1,018 members—and third position in the state. The post has also achieved another unique record in its formation of the first and only glee club in American Legion posts in Illinois.

Chicago Stock Yards post, No. 323, has just finished a golf tournament, open to all the men in the yards for the purpose of acquainting non-members with the personnel of the Legion. Among those active in the tournament were Bud Fisher, Jim Barry, Conny Hanley, Ed Schultz, Ben Witt, Red Lyons, Warren Egan, C. C. Johnson, Lee Doty, Al Fiels, and Bob Grieger. The post's delegates to the state convention have been chosen, as follows: Past Commanders Kee and Noble, Commander Waters, Senior Vice Commander Martin, and Monroe Livingston. The alternates are John Russell, Tom Condon, Carter Hall, T. J. Slattery and H. F. Joy. C. E. Tayler, post adjutant, says that the organization's roast beef dinners are fast becoming famous.

* *

North Western post, No. 430, through its commander, C. J. Freeman, and W. G. Burns, service officer, recently arranged with the Red Cross unit in charge of Edward Hines hospital, for a ball game between two girls' teams of the C. & N. W. Inground Baseball league. The interesting contest was played at the railway grounds.

Interest has been evinced in many legion circles in the national convention to be held at San Antonio in October.

LAWNDALE-CRAWFORD POST No. 98, has elected the following delegates to the state convention at Waukegan: Commander Joseph Baumruk Jr, Past Commander Edward P. Skubic, George F. Hyde, F. H. Hitchcock, and John P. Bullock; alternates, Past Commander Joe F. Raiman, and Henry Hanson, Emil J. Martinec, V. Zidek and Casey Wallewski. The post is also arranging to send its bugle and drum corps to the convention.

A big fall carnival is being planned by the Charles L. Eddy post, No. 714. On the opening night, Sept. 13, there will be a parade from 74th and Halsted streets, south to 79th street and west to Elizabeth street where the Woodlawn post crack drill team will put on a demonstration. The carnival will last ten days. Active in the committee of arrangements are Commander Jack Finerty, Frank J. Prindeville, Garrett Flavin, Ed McCauley, Jim Kinsella, Tom Kinsella, Ray Schofield, Joe McDonald, Henry Multhauf, and Kid Flanagan. Everybody welcome. The post has the honor of having for its chaplin, The Rev. John L. O'Donnell, D. S. C., chaplain of the 33d division.

Sept. 22 has been designated by the city council as Forget-Me-Not day. The wearing of a forget-me-not on that occasion will mean much more than the expression of sentiment. It will carry with it, as well, the fact that the wearer is thereby performing an unselfish service in assisting needy and disabled American veterans.

AT the monthly meeting of the 40 and 8 to be held Thursday night at the Hotel La Salle, the main order of business will be the election of delegates to the 40 and 8 state convention at Waukegan, Sept. 8 and 9.

During the last week County Commander Edward Clamage has been in Springfield on legion business. Ed is now back at the Cook county council offices, room 310, 160 North La Salle street, for the purpose of greeting members of the organization.

* *

Because of the success of their last picnic some week ago, Lincoln Park post announces another picnic to be held Sept. 9 at Bauler's grove, Bryn Mawr avenue and East River road. At the close of the picnic a group of members will board two airplanes for the convention at Waukegan.

* *

As has been its custom, Forges post, No. 196, will hold its bi-monthly get-together today at Forges camp in the Forges woods section of the forest preserve.

* *

Raymond J. Hagamann post, a newcomer among the posts in the third district, will hold a housewarming at its quarters, 5401 Wentworth avenue, tomorrow night. It is to be an open meeting and many legion officers in the Chicago district are expected to attend.

* *

TOMORROW night North Shore post, No. 21, wil hold the last of its series of outdoor boxing bouts at the Wilshore pavilion. These Monday night bouts have been running since June 25. Lisle C. Hart has been the prime mover in these events.

* *

Through the courtesy of Charles Bishop of Maywood post, No. 133, every member of the post having a car now has a radiator cap bearing the legion emblem and the name and number of the post.

* *

* *

Uniforms for the seventeen members of the firing squad of the Morton Grove post, No. 134, were ordered at a recent meeting of the post. Funds derived from the benefit carnival will be used for the purchase.

Roseland post, No. 49, drum and bugle corps, forty-five pieces, snappily uniformed and finely equipped, will take part in a big parade at the homecoming celebration to be staged on the far south side tomorrow in honor of Elizabeth Robinson, the Thornton Township High school girl who broke the world's record for the 100 meter dash at the 1928 Olympiad.

* *

Bell post, No. 242, has been sponsoring girls' baseball games at Speedway hospital every other Sunday of the month. This post is comprised of employés of the Bell system in Chicago. The girl ball teams which participate in these games are employés of the Western Electric company. The next game is scheduled for today, so come out to the hospital, you Legionnaires, to see your buddies and also see a good ball game. Bell post has also entered its bugle and drum corps in the competition meet at Waukegan.

* *

At the regular meeting of Theodore Roosevelt post, No. 627, the following delegates were elected to the state convention: C. H. Woodbridge, J. B. Morgan, E. E. Erickson, and A. E. Loescher. The delegates were also instructed to vote on all ballots for our own post commander, and present senior vice commander of the state department, James E. White, for the office of state commander.

* *

Pulaski auxiliary, No. 86, is giving an old fashioned basket picnic today through the courtesy of the past post commander, Peter I. Bukowski. The picnic will be held at the grounds of Mr. Bukowski's summer resort in Deer Park. All Pulaski post members and their friends are invited. By auto —Northwest highway to Rand road, to "Kitty Corner," west on Dundee road to Deer park. By train—C. & N. W. to Palatine, then bus to Deer park; follow posters.

* *

The Commonwealth Edison post's drum and bugle corps, led by L. J. Michaels, will enter the competition at Waukegan and also at the national convention in San Antonio. This corps placed second in the state competition last year, Kankakee post winning first. This will be the corps' first trip to a national convention. At a recent meeting of the post, twenty men were nominated, from which eight are to be elected delegates to the convention at Waukegan. Although only eight men will represent the post as delegates, the Edison post expects to be represented by several of its best members for at least part of the convention.

* *

Homewood post No. 483 is overhauling its "Leaping Lena" for the convention at Waukegan. The post clowns are also rehearsing some new acts.

* *

Edison Park post No. 541, in conjunction with its auxiliary unit, is holding a barbecue picnic at Elk grove, forest preserve, on Higgins road, today. The auxiliary will barbecue the meats, and coffee, pop, ice cream, etc., will all be served free. Games and races with prizes will be held. This affair is limited to post and auxiliary members and their families. Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. the post will present its second band concert of the series being sponsored for the community of Edison Park. St. Hedwig's orphanage band will play under the direction of Al Cook, who also directs the Chicago Elks Lodge band. Adjutant H. E. Schuett will be the post delegate to Waukegan, and Commander S. C. Bromberg will act as alternate.

* *

Armour post, No. 266, will hold its next regular meeting Tuesday evening at 6:30 p. m., at the Saddle and Sirloin club, Union stockyards, preceded by a dinner. Important business will be brought up, principally the election of three delegates and three alternates for the state convention. Also a prize is to be awarded to the member obtaining the largest number of new members during the year.

* *

Riverside post, No. 488, at Riverside, will hold a carnival Aug. 29 to Sept. 1 inclusive, and extends an invitation to its neighboring Legionnaires and their friends to attend. This is the first carnival the post has held for a period of three years.

* *

Consumers post, No. 251, holds its annual field day tomorrow at the Evergreen Golf club, at which time the members will make strenuous and perspiring efforts to win the big, beautiful, thirty-six inch cup donated by the post. The low scorer of two tournaments secures permanent possession of the trophy. However, the outstanding battle of the day will be the contest between two one-armed golfers, Commander Walter Jasper and Ed Dean. This affair bids well to develop into a statewide scrap, as several challenges have already been received from other one-armed Legionnaires who believe that they can annihilate Commander Jasper of Consumers post.

Sig-Yeo post, No. 267, has selected Mrs. Nell Weston Halstead as its delegate to the state convention, with Miss Myrl Leonard as alternate.

Walter P. Murphy has just returned from a vacation spent in Wisconsin, and announces the filing of his resignation as commander of Ravenswood post. Comnander Murphy was re-elected to the office in June, 1928, but due to the press of business, finds he is unable to hold the office for another year. At the next regular meeting of the post on Tuesday, candidates will be nominated for the office of commander, and also third vice commander. Bill Long, elected in June as third vice commander, has left Chicago and will be unable to continue with the post.

France Plans Giving of Aid to Its Writers

PARIS. — (AP)—The "Rescue Station for Intelectuals" is trying to solve the problem of how to help French writers in distress. The secretary said that the purpose of the movement was to reach the man who is too proud to ask for help, as well as those who have suffered misfortune. The station makes a policy of granting loans on word of honor without a fixed date for repayment. The committee is composed of poets, academicians, dramatists, lawyers, and cabinet ministers.

"A few men of letters, touched by the misfortunes of brother artists, decided to organize a society to aid them," explained the secretary. "Our aim is at once moral and material. Our members are asked especially to seek out colleagues who are too proud to ask us for loans. If it is necessary, we advance money in these delicate cases by an anonymous money order."

Among the members of the committee are Edouard Herriot, minister of public instruction; Paul Fort, poet; the dramatist Brieux, Edouard Estaunie, and Henri de Ragnier of the French academy, and Henri-Robert, celebrated lawyer.

LESSONS IN BRIDGE

BY R. M. ROGERS.

ARTICLE XXIII.

R. M. ROGERS.

If penalties incurred on account of games lost were charged up against each player the record would show fourth hand to be a high offender. Fourth hand is inclined to forget or possibly doesn't know that a hand strong enough for a dealer to bid, or second hand if dealer passes, must be much stronger to justify a bid after three passes. If the hand doesn't come up to the required number of tricks for a fourth hand bid (and every one should at least know the original bid in any position) the player should pass and get a new deal.

It must be evident that as partner passed he isn't worth over two tricks, and it takes at least ten tricks for game at anything except no trump, and therefore a fourth hand bid can only be made with a hand holding eight tricks giving credit to the partner who has passed for only two tricks. To bid a no trump after three hands have passed is never wise without all suits being stopped and the count of at least seven tricks in the bidder's own hand.

One has to take into consideration the character of the various players as to their game, because there are many players who prefer to let some one else open the bidding and pass the first round with really a bidding hand.

The best rule of action for fourth hand bidder after three passes is, do not start the bidding unless you can bid up to four and can defeat any other bid that opponents could make and which, of course, would be doubled.

The temptation to shade this rule is sometimes overwhelming, particularly if opponents have a game in, but the only good reason for any exception is the belief that if Dame Fortune is playing fair she will give each pair of players their share of the luck and if opponents won the last hand and both pass on this one it may be her luck contribution to the side having no game to its credit but got the winning hand on the wrong side of the table—namely: 4th hand instead of second. If the temptation to bid is too strong to be overcome and you are bound to yield, consider carefully two things:

1st: Counting partner for two tricks how many tricks can you take, remembering that three in a major or four in a minor suit is the only safe bid originally by fourth hand after three passes?

Is the possibility of loss worth the chance which always exists under exceptional conditions that the hands will so fit that you will not lose at all?

2d: Can you defeat the opponents at any bid they might make over your original bid? Unless you can double anything that the adversary bids and beat them you might better pass the hand.

The fourth hand original bid may be in a minor or major suit but rarely in no trump, and the player should be prepared to make a game bid or double and win against anything the adversaries undertake.

For the consideration of those who play bridge but don't always follow the conventions, and to that extent are unreliable, there is submitted below a fourth hand which was held recently, three passes preceding it. Would you bid the hand after every one has passed and if so—what? The hand:

Spades—A.
Hearts—A, 6, 4.
Diamonds—A, 6, 4.
Clubs—Q, 9, 8, 5, 3, 2.

You have six sure losers if clubs are bid, and possibly more. If you bid no trump and spades are opened, your first club lead probably will be taken by opponents, who may run three or four more spade tricks and still have control of your clubs.

Let us suppose you are playing with a partner who hasn't yet reached the stage as a player where he can be depended upon always to bid if he has the requirements that are agreed upon as necessary for a conventional bid of one—namely: two quick tricks, one of which must be in the suit mentioned, and four tricks in the hand, three of them being in the suit named. Let us suppose that he has:

Spades—9, 7, 4.
Hearts—8, 5.
Diamonds—7, 5, 3.
Clubs—A, K, 10, 6, 4.

If he passes this hand and you hold the one shown above, will you not be obliged to pass also? If, however, he is an honest player and knows the conventions he must bid one club on the above holding, or else he practically says in plain English, "Partner, I have not two quick tricks in this hand, with at least one of them in the suit mentioned by me, and I have not four tricks in the hand," a statement which is, of course, untrue. Holding the first hand shown above, any one that knows anything about the game would bid three no trumps and be able to make it after a club bid by partner.

Similar situations to this arise at almost every sitting at a game of bridge, and it is incomprehensible to the writer why any one should pass a hand like the last one shown above without bidding one club, which can produce no harm, and would often do a lot of good and frequently make a game. The writer would be pleased to hear from those bridge players who would pass the hand shown last above in defense of it.

DRYING 'EM IS HARDEST

THE sorrowful expression on the face of Eugene Owens gives indication that, so far as a fireman is concerned, drying the dishes is the most irksome part of the dishwashing task. Al Smith Home in Erin Bears Fame Proudly

Was the Birthplace of His Grandfather.

AVAN, Ireland.—(AP)—On the edge of a peat bog in the farming district near here stands a one story thatched cottage built of rough white washed stone, which has become famous as the ancestral home of the Democratic candidate for President of the United States.

It is the birthplace of Gov. Smith's grandfather, who set out from this humble homestead to seek his fortune in America, during the turbulent period of the Ulster farmers' revolt against oppressive landlords in which he was a leading agitator. It is said here that the elder Smith had to flee the country on account of his activities.

House Still Sturdy.

The house, situated in the heart of a region noted for its sylvan beauty is typical of farmers' cottages throughout the Bruskey district. Weeks of hard labor went into its erection and although it is now very old, it is a veritable part of the soil and as sturdy as the Smiths who occupy it still.

The stones for its making were carried in creels or wicker baskets on the backs of the Smith farmers from a quarry a mile away, and were built in by hand, with rough mortar. Rushes for the thatched roof were cut from a nearby field.

Near Wild Bogland.

Beside the cottage is a wild stretch of bogland where the exiled Smith worked cutting turf, and where his kinsmen, James Smith, the present occupant of the homestead, and John Reilly, both second cousins of Gov. Smith, cut turf now.

Around this district is a veritable colony of farmers named Smith, all of whom are very proud of the Democratic candidate for the presidency who has brought their name into prominence in America. Proudest of them all is James Smith. He is sure that his little home will soon be famous.

Foochow Troubled by Too Much Money

FOOCHOW, China.—(AP)—Foochow is having financial troubles. There is no shortage of money. On the contrary, there's too much, and of what there is it's the wrong kind. Hence the currency is to be changed, and even the prospect of such an action is causing havoc with the banks and money changers.

Months ago a "financial" strike resulted in the banks being closed for days. The money changers instead of the banks virtually control the provincial currency. The money changers have issued their own paper currency, each dollar being worth a thousand cash.

Ball Game Is Not All with Pretty Fans

What Other Women Wear Divides Interest.

"What did he do then?" asked the blonde curls as Kiki walked to first. A nearby gentleman volunteered the information that he had been hit by a pitched ball. "Why, how mean! I don't think that Brooklyn team plays nice, anyway!"

* *

Hack Called "Cute."

Hack Wilson came up next amid a roar of feminine approbation. He may not look like Valentino, but he could have any number of telephone numbers, if he only knew it.

"Isn't he darling!" "Isn't he cute!" or from those who knew a little more about the game, "Hack's the guy who'll do it!"

Down in front of me a gray haired woman—a mother of four or maybe five, she looked—was rooting for Hack, too, and calling the plays correctly, as far as I could tell.

"Where did you learn so much about the game?" her neighbor asked.

"I watch the kids," she said with a grin. "They play in the empty lot next door all the time."

Hack was a disappointment. He didn't wallop the ball, as everybody screeched to him to do. He sent off a little one to the shortstop or some one, and in due form both Cuyler and he were put out to end the inning.

* *

Bring Babies Along.

A brave young man to the left of me brought his girl down and, with what he hoped was patience, tried to explain the game to her between plays.

"Who are the funny little black men?" she asked, "that keep running back and forth?"

"Umpires," he said shortly.

"But what do they do? Which team are they on?" she persisted.

"They do lots and they aren't on any team," was his very explanatory explanation.

Several women brought tiny babies with them. It is not on record what the babies thought of the great American sport, but their mothers seem to enjoy it in spite of their burdens.

It was, however, too slow a game to please the ladies. They wanted more blood and thunder, heavier swatting and a few homers. The intricacies of a pitching battle didn't appeal to them.

"Why do they keep fanning?" complained the girl in the red fringe, whatever she meant by that. "But I just love to watch a baseball game. Do you think this rouge is too dark for my skin? I really can't get any that quite suits me."

* *

Score Causes Screams.

In the ninth the game finally got exciting. Neither side had scored when Brooklyn came up in the first half.

"Who's batting first?" asked the blonde curls.

"Number four, that's Hack Wilson," answered the red fringe. "Or no, I guess Brooklyn's up. Lemme see; it's a guy named Flowers."

Flowers hit one and went to first, and then Herman hit one and went out, but Flowers got to second. Then Bressler hit one and Blake missed it, so in ran Flowers to the accompaniment of screams from the women.

"Oh, dear," said the girl with a man, "are we going to lose? I think that's mean of the Cubs to go and lose at my first ball game."

The gray haired woman was leaving.

"Sorry," she said to her companion. "I wish I could stay to see the end, but I live a long way off and I've got to get supper."

* *

Boo at Decision.

Hartnett came to bat in the Cubs' half and things looked interesting again when he hit one. Somebody else ran for him, which puzzled the women.

"I hope the Brooklyn guys didn't notice that," said the blonde curls. "Maybe Hartnett can't run fast enough and the Cubs want to be sure and win. Isn't it getting exciting? O, say, remember that boy you introduced me to yesterday? I'd like to have a date with him some time."

McMillan was up next and the umpires certainly did lots for him when they called him out at first. The women weren't any happier than the men over the decision and they booed long and loudly.

Beck fanned, and Maguire came up with two out.

"Wouldn't you hate to be him?" sympathized the red fringe. "I'd be just so nervous I couldn't do a thing."

It may have been nervousness or anything else. Anyway the Brooklyn pitcher caught his ball and the game was over.

* *

The Eternal Feminine.

The blonde curls and her red fringed friend were pushing their way out ahead of me.

"Yes, I just love baseball," the blonde curls was saying. "Isn't it fun to watch them. O, see that girl with the ankle socks! Let's get some."

the child could easily be stolen from its mother; in fact, he would gladly undertake the kidnaping himself, for a sum of money.

A Spaniard craved permission to stage a bull fight. Paris had discouraged his attempts at its exposition in 1889, but perhaps, the Spaniard thought, the savages of America would welcome it right royally.

There was one man who lived before his time. He was a cosmetic dealer who proposed that he bring an old woman, one-half of whose face was smoothly beautiful, the other half wrinkled and yellow with age. At the end of the fair, as a grand climax, he would smooth out the wrinkles, making her youthful again in all her face—all with the wonderful preparation he had for sale.

Couldn't Please Everybody.

Various suggestions were made — a tower 3,000 feet high, a suite of rooms under Lake Michigan, and a building 400 stories high. The ways and means committee couldn't please everybody, and so some suggested plans could not be adopted. The wonders which they did permit to be shown were frequently misunderstood. There was a complete armor, well set up, in the Italian section, which brought forth the exclamation from a woman to her husband, "It's a diver! I've seen 'em. Ain't he natural lookin'?"

There was a large battleship on which you were landed after a gondola ride which carried you about on a little water trip. An aged woman and her husband took the trip, but only as far as the ship's edge.

"Ephraim," the woman exclaimed, "you don't know nothin' about ships. It might sink or it might sail away with you."

And so Ephraim obediently stayed away from the ship.

Fakirs Were Popular.

Of course, the committee had to permit some fakirs to come for entertainment. They were popular.

Outside one tent there squatted a little man in Egyptian dress calling out, "This, ladies and gentlemen, is the temple of Luxor, the tomb of Ramesis the Second. You will find his mummy about the fifth one on the right. On the left the mummy of King Solomon's father-in-law, also his sister-in-law. The sacred dances are about to begin."

A man standing listening one day turned to his neighbor and inquired, "Is this the German village?"

The committee didn't always make everything clear to spectators. In the silk department there was a gigantic mechanical worm. Into one end went the raw silk, out of the other came spools of thread. One woman watching, suddenly exclaimed, "I understand everything excepting how they get the silk colored."

SHE KNEW DOROTHY.

The visitor—What an innocent looking face your little girl has!

Her hostess—I hadn't noticed it, Dorothy, what have you been doing?

A Pleasant Surprise.

Have you ever lived with your grandmother? I did, and it was hard. Being old-fashioned, she believed in sensible, plain clothes.

While buying a pair of shoes the clerk brought out a lovely pair of French heeled pumps, very youthful looking. Well, my grandmother preferred a pair of low heeled, plain strap slippers.

On delivery I was surprised to find both pair of shoes. Thus, after much persuasion, I kept the pumps.

This was certainly "Shoppers' Service" on my part, for I continued to trade there. L. C.

New Plant for Old.

I purchased a large, expensive rubber plant from a loop department store. It was placed out on my airy sun porch, but it somehow failed to thrive, and after a few weeks a white scale formed on the withering leaves and it died, much to my chagrin.

I sent in a call to the department store to come and take the plant back, which they did. A day or so later I received a check for the amount I had paid and a letter explaining that the plant was infected with a common disease and that the department would gladly advise me in the selection of a new one.

I followed this suggestion, and the plant I chose is growing large and beautiful. C. C.

Personal Service.

Recently I made arrangements to go on a hike with several other young people. The meeting place was to be about six blocks from my home. On arriving there, I found that I had worn a pair of heavy shoes, and decided to purchase a pair of "gym" shoes in a small store near there.

My next problem was what to do with my other shoes. Since the store would be closed in a few hours, I could not leave them there, and since it was to be a long hike, I could not carry them with me.

Although I was a total stranger to the proprietor, he took time off to go out into the street and try to find a boy whom he could hire to carry my shoes to my home. Not finding any, he took me across the street and made arrangements with another storekeeper, whose shop would be open all day, to keep my shoes for the time.

I have since gone out of my way to trade at this store. I. L.

Fraternal News

The Tribune offers space in the Metropolitan Section to legitimate fraternal organizations for notices of meetings, elections of new officers, social affairs, and other items of general interest. Fighters of Forest Fires Use Wireless

MARSEILLES — (AP) — Radio will be used by forest fire fighters in the south of France to combat the devastating fires which have caused much damage to woodlands this summer. Forest fire fighting is being put on an entirely new basis by union of the services of the Forest Union of the Alps and the Foresters' Union of Provence.

Bargains! Stories of Bargains!

Send us a short and snappy letter telling the how, why, and wherefore of the best bargain you ever struck. We'll pay $2 for every letter published. Address Bargains, Chicago Tribune.

For $2.50.

In my effort to find a small table for a room that I was furnishing for the purpose of renting, I entered a second hand furniture store. My eyes fell upon an antique, marble-topped table of covered walnut.

Upon asking the price, I was informed that I could have it for $2.50. I eagerly agreed to the price, and paid a small amount to have it delivered.

My friends have complimented me on my lovely table numerous times. I merely smile and murmur a polite answer.

Incidentally, I recently was offered $60 for it. W. C. C.

A Paisley Shawl.

I had a rooming house and needed bedding, so when one of my neighbors sold out I bought a quilt from her. It had been her grandmother's and was really too heavy for a steam heated home, so I proceeded to remove the top to take out some of the cotton.

Imagine my surprise to find that a beautiful Paisley shawl and an old fashioned fringed shawl had been used instead of cotton batting.

At the time the grandmother had made the quilt cotton batting was scarce but the Paisley shawl now is almost priceless.

The $1.50 I paid for the quilt has been exceptionally well spent money. A. T.

A Bargain Book.

I was starting a library and as I hadn't much money with which to buy books, I went into a second hand book store seeking bargains.

While looking around I came to one table on which lay a beautiful book of poems. They were written by Longfellow, Whittier and other noted poets. The book was beautifully bound and the type was excellent.

I thought the owner would want at least two dollars for it. But when I asked the price and found that it was fifty cents, I almost danced with glee.

Needless to say, I bought the book on the spot, and now it has a prominent place in my library. J. L.

CHANGED HIS MIND.

"Why didn't you shoot at that tiger?"

"I decided I didn't really need such a ferocious rug."

France Plans Giving of Aid to Its Writers

PARIS. — (AP) — The "Reunion Mutuelle pour Intelectuals" is organized to solve the problem of how to help French writers in distress.

The secretary said that the purpose of the movement was to reach the man who is too proud to ask for help as well as those who have suffered misfortune. The station maintains policy of granting loans on word of honor without a fixed date for repayment. The committee is composed of poets, academicians, dramatists, lawyers, and cabinet ministers.

"A few men of letters, touched by the misfortunes of brother artists, decided to organize a society to aid them," explained the secretary. "Our aim is at once moral and material. Our members are asked especially to seek out colleagues who are too proud to ask us for loans. If it is necessary, we advance money in these delicate cases by an anonymous money order."

Among the members of the committee are Edouard Herriot, minister of public instruction; Paul Fort, poet; the dramatist Brieux, Edouard Estaunie, and Henri de Regnier of the French academy, and Henri Robert, celebrated lawyer.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A Salesman With Stability
for a Real Executive Job.
A Chicago Manufacturer, established 25 years with an A1 rating, is building a national sales organization for a brand new steel product.
ARE YOU a salesman of 35 or more with experience in the sale of specialties, stocks, bonds, insurance or real estate?
HAVE YOU been able to prove your ability to handle your own affairs successfully by accumulating some money of your own?
DO YOU want a connection that will quickly provide promotion to a District Manager position—to make the LAST connection you are ever going to need?
MUST YOU earn at least $10,000 a year?
Then This May Be YOUR OPPORTUNITY!
Call Mr. Kamen Monday, Randolph 4745—and if you can interest us over the phone an interview will be arranged.
This is a real, big job for the man who can think and will work—who can improve big business men on terms of quality—who is resourceful and possesses a genuine background of real selling ability. Advance seekers, rainbow-chasers or high-pressure men CANNOT qualify.

A REAL SALESMAN.
A large manufacturing company whose product has more than the average sales resistance and which is sold to but one merchant in each town on an exclusive agency franchise, will employ a high grade man of unusual sales ability.
TO QUALIFY
for this connection requires a successful record in selling "intangibles" such as advertising service, territorial rights, agency contracts and other kindred lines that require intensive selling.
TO BE SUCCESSFUL
with us absolutely requires the above sales experience PLUS the ability to CLOSE on the FIRST interview.
ONLY such type of salesman need apply, and to the man selected we will offer a permanent connection and a substantial drawing account.
For interview, call at 1353 First National Bank Bldg. between 10 and 1.

A A A
SALESMEN TO SELL
HOMES.
SALARY AND COMMISSION.
To a limited number of salesmen who are looking for a place where they can profitably employ their abi-ities we offer a dignified, well paid selling proposition.
Qualifications: Neat appearance,
25-50 years of age; at least 10 years' residence in Chicago, with wide acquaintance; those living on the North Side preferred. Some selling experience needed, real estate, homes, or co-operatives preferred.
The Job: Selling high class suburban homes on a rental basis. Our unique ownership plan gives a powerful appeal for the family of average income. Prices are low; monthly terms actually less than rent for a similar home elsewhere.
Ambitious salesmen, who really mean business, are invited to investigate. Apply from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

ACTIVE REAL ESTATE
SALESMEN
If you have made good money selling real estate then you will easily double your past or present record with us.
Because we are starting the sale of what will be one of the outstanding communities on the Northwest Side.
Because the Chicago and Northwestern R. R. are building a new $2,000,000 station on Cumberland NOW.
Because all improvements, including pavement, will be completed by winter.
Because 4 important highways bound or intersect Cumberland.
Because we are Community
Builders and are starting a group of fine homes at once.
Because we will back you with a $60,000 advertising campaign and plenty of live post card leads.
If you have had successful sales experience you can cash in big on Cumberland. No selling like it before, or soon. No use wasting your time when you can draw down real money here. Get the facts Monday.

MEN!
HERE IS SOMETHING YOU CAN SELL
AND IT PAYS BIG MONEY EVERY WEEK.
AND IT'S PERMANENT.

If a man between the ages of 25 to 45 of good appearance and intelligence, will put in eight hours per day with us, he will earn more money than he can secure in the same time and with the same effort in any other line of which we have ever heard.

This is a Factory Branch, part of an International System—we have offices everywhere. We advertise in the Good Housekeeping Magazine, Ladies' Home Journal, Saturday Evening Post, and other publications. We have a full page in the Aug. 25 issue of the Good Housekeeping Magazine.

This Branch has been located in this same building for five years and has a lease for five more years. Hundreds of men have been proud here with the chance to make life easier and happier for the whole family.

Nothing in the market sells as readily as this product of ours or pays so well for the sale. One sale a day will pay a man $7,000 per year. Three demonstrations per day will mean one sale a day average. This device is not sold in any store. Can only be bought through this Factory Branch, and we pay the usual store profit direct to the man making the sale.

If you could show the housewife how to get rid of cleaning dirty brushes on a vacuum cleaner, could you get her order? [This is not a vacuum cleaner.]

If you could take away 50% of the weight of vacuum cleaner, would it help you make the sale? [This is something new.]

If you could do away with the aluminum smudge that any aluminum surface will deposit on an oriental rug, could you get the order?

If you had a floor cleaning device that automatically adjusted itself to any thickness of rug, could you prove it was worth a dollar to Mrs. Jones?

If you could alter a vacuum cleaner so that it would clean under low furniture, beds, radiators, etc., how much money people do you think you could interest?

If you could take the guess work out of cleaning, providing an indicator that would show when the dirt was gone, how many could you sell to vacuum cleaner owners?

If you could show the housewife how to get along without any cumbersome heavy vacuum cleaner attachments and still get the same results, and how, than attachments are supposed to do, could you go out and do business?

If you could do away with the necessity of ever emptying the filthy contents of a cleaning bag, how many people could you interest?

If you could show the lady of the house how to wax and polish hardwood floors and linoleums at no cost except for the wax, she would be interested, wouldn't she?

If you could offer the housekeeper the only known method of cleaning overstuffed furniture and then tell her there was no charge for the service, is there one who would not be interested?

If you could go into every home and positively get rid of the moths and keep them out for many sales of such a device could you make?

And then if you could renovate furs, get rid of cockroaches and other vermin, purify the air, eliminate disease germs, dry clean clothes, and drapories, and produce a cooling breeze, protect woolens, clean mattresses, change feathers in pillows, and all for seventeen cents per day, could you go out and do a big business?

We are a Three and One-half Million Dollar Company, and we say that, not only can you, as a salesman, do all these things, with our product, but thousands of men are already doing it.

These men are the highest paid specialty salesmen in America. They easily earn from $75 to $125 per week. A large proportion of them have had no previous sales success. We have a unique method and successfully teach it to our own men.

We have openings for eight or ten more men in Chicago. Come in and talk to our Sales Manager and let him show you evidence of the earnings of others with it. Remember, their is no investment required.

If you live outside of Chicago, write for address of nearest Branch. This office can use men anywhere in Illinois, Iowa, or in Northern Indiana.

DO YOU WANT A GOOD TRAINING?

We have obtained the services of Professor John H. Sherman, instructor of Land Economics in one of the large universities and we are giving a complete summer course free for the benefit of our salespeople.

We offer to men and women a wonderful opportunity. A chance to earn extra money while learning the most fascinating business on earth—Real Estate!

Professor Sherman is NOT a pep talker and does NOT deal in generalities, but talks of facts, figures and practical things that will help YOU!

You are under no obligation. Come to hear an interesting talker! Spend a pleasant evening! If your ambition answers the call and you wish to go farther, ask to see the General Manager personally and tell him your dreams.

BE ON TIME!

Tuesday evening, Aug. 28,
at promptly 8 o'clock.

The Homestead

More than a place to live—a WAY of living! Delightful furnished apartments in the Early American manner—2, 3 and 4 rooms. Beautiful suite and breakfast room; also single rooms with bath.

The treetops of Evanston beneath your Homestead windows sweep away to far-flung horizons. Northward: Campus spires and the Gross Point light. North and east: The lake in ever-changing moods—but always with its drowsing ore freighters and circling gulls. West and south: Unending panoramas over nestling bungalow-tops, and sometimes the glint of loop towers, gold in distant sunlight.

DO YOU KNOW SUCH A HOME AS THIS EXISTS IN CHICAGO?

SEEING IS BELIEVING

Built facing a 15 acre garden, formal and natural. Hundreds of evergreen trees, flowers, birds, floating swans, beautiful private walks, a restricted community of high class people, close to schools, shops and churches. Close to street cars, bus, Northwestern steam line. In the heart of the city, 7100 north, 2400 west, 2438 to 2484 Estes-av., in West Rogers Park.

Four, five, and six room apartment homes, large, light, airy rooms, loads of closets, paneled canvased and glazed walls. Many electric plugs, beautiful electric fixtures. Large reception rooms and galleries. Prize winning kitchens, beautiful cabinets, electric refrigeration; $175.00 Universal stove. Colored tile bath, wall above tile, and ceiling canvased. Venetian mirror, vitreous china lavatory, linen cabinet. Bedrooms, twin bed size, fancy electric plugs, and cross ventilation.

Think of it! Swimming pool, handball court, putting green, gymnasium. You have dreamed of it but never expected to see its realization.

And all this sounds expensive. It would be, but by 100 per cent co-operative ownership, where there is no loss of income, no vacancies, no profits to pay, etc., this is possible. Think of it! If you are paying $95.00 or more for five rooms you are spending more than it would cost you to live at Indian Boundary Park.

Investigate! That is how 180 families decided to make their homes at Indian Boundary Park. They came, 180 representative business men, lawyers, builders, bankers, architects, salesmen and executives, and after investigating, proved to themselves that this was to be their home.

Surely you must be curious enough to see this dream colony. A furnished apartment home is open for inspection and courteous guides will conduct you on a tour of inspection. Drop in when you are out driving. Open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Take Western-av. to Fitch (7100 North) and west on Fitch one and one-half blocks.

THE INEVITABLE
Higher Rents Are Coming.

With the steady increase in population, the World's Fair, and practically no building available near the lake front, you have but one alternative—Pay high rents or move back into a less desirable locality.

Don't Be Caught Again

As you were in 1920.

Buy a Co-Operative Apt.

We have 4, 5 and 6 rm. apts. between Sheridan-rd. and Broadway in 3 story bldg. We are the only firm who have these inexpensive apts. in a walk up bldg. in the Lincoln Park district. When these are gone you will be compelled to pay the price of tall construction together with the high upkeep of the elevator bldgs., with no better assurance of nice neighborhood or no better location than the apts. we now offer. Compare the location, the apt., the upkeep, and the price.

JUST OFF THE DRIVE.

There will be available soon several delightful 4, 5, and 6 room unfurnished apartments in this highly restricted residential building. The apartments are very interesting and the equipment is the last word in efficiency. Living rooms are all exceptionally large and have natural wood burning fireplaces. Location is within a brief walk of Loop, lake and park, with important churches, schools, clubs and specialty shops nearby.

THE INEVITABLE
Higher Rents Are Coming.

With the steady increase in population, the World's Fair, and practically no building available near the lake front, you have but one alternative—Pay high rents or move back into a less desirable locality.

Don't Be Caught Again

As you were in 1920.

Buy a Co-Operative Apt.

We have 4, 5 and 6 rm. apts. between Sheridan-rd. and Broadway in 3 story bldg. We are the only firm who have these inexpensive apts. in a walk up bldg. in the Lincoln Park district. When these are gone you will be compelled to pay the price of tall construction together with the high upkeep of the elevator bldgs., with no better assurance of nice neighborhood or no better location than the apts. we now offer. Compare the location, the apt., the upkeep, and the price.

REAL ESTATE LOANS.
SECOND MORTGAGE LOANS
Sometimes an opportunity, sometimes a convenience, sometimes a necessity prompts a Chicago home owner to place a second mortgage on his home.

The cost of money browsed for a necessity should be no greater than the cost of money borrowed for convenience sake nor for an opportunity.

We would never encourage a home owner to obtain funds on his home for use in a speculative venture, but where it is convenient or necessary or where there is an opportunity to use funds for a constructive purpose it is sometimes advisable to borrow money on a second mortgage.

Where there is need and when the time comes the average home owner does not know where to go.

Whatever the need The Chicago Morris Plan Bank, acting as agent for a substantial loan fund, has money to loan and facilities to offer to home owners whereby they can arrange for a second mortgage at a reasonable cost and upon convenient terms.

We make loans for a period of one to three years, with interest at 6% per annum and a commission of 3½% for one year, 6½% for two years and 9% for three years, and the monthly payments may be as low as 2% plus accrued interest each month.

The entire plan developed by The Chicago Morris Plan Bank as agent for the handling of second mortgages is geared down to meet the requirements of the home owner of this vicinity. We will be glad to have you come in and find out all about the proposition which we are offering in this direction.

STUDEBAKER'S USED CAR CLEARANCE

We are offering 127 good used cars at prices that we believe EXCEPTIONAL. Only by a personal visit and comparison will you be able to appreciate our remarkable values. Every car is backed by the famous Studebaker Used Car Pledge.

REDUCTIONS UP TO $300

NASH COACH. Few cars have the smart appearance of this attractive Nash. The finish is a beautiful color and the balloon tires appear new. Smooth performance and quick pick-up are some of the features of the engine. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, snubbers, spare tire, etc. Today, $645.

WILLYS-KNIGHT BROUGHAM. Not many people could distinguish this Willys-Knight from a new model. The finish is bright and shiny and the inside is exceptionally clean. Equipped with spotlight, snubbers, bumpers, trunk, spare tire, etc. A bargain de luxe at $545.

OAKLAND LANDAU. 1927 5 pass. Sedan that is beyond a shadow of a doubt, one of the greatest buys displayed. It's equipped with snubbers, bumpers, 4 wheel brakes, new spare tire, etc. Will not last long at $595.

CHEVROLET SEDAN. Late model landau that's in splendid mechanical condition; the appearance is handsome and we believe this Chev. is truly an outstanding selection. Equipped with snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, road light, etc. Priced at a very low figure—$395.

STUDEBAKER VICTORIA. Recent Commander 4 pass. Coupe that was owned by one of Chicago's wealthiest families. This Studebaker is a beauty. The finish is the original tan and there's not a mar on it. The upholstery is like new and it has expensive looking lace trimming. The big 6 motor is smooth and powerful and it's guaranteed. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, snubbers, bumpers, 5 good balloon tires, etc. You can make a big saving at our price of $1,050.

HUDSON BROUGHAM. This is an extraordinary buy. It was owned by a prominent advertising executive and today it looks splendid condition. Equipped with shutter front, trunk, bumpers, etc. The performance is excellent. Offered at the rock bottom price of $695.

REO SEDAN. Was in storage for almost a year and now this Reo will actually give new car satisfaction; the finish does not have a mar and the upholstery shows no wear; equipped with spare tire, spotlight, bumpers, etc.; will sell quickly at $545.

HUPMOBILE SEDAN. A broker on La Salle st. traded this Hupp at a low figure and we're willing to pass on the saving to you. The motor is A-1 and the appearance will satisfy the most discriminating buyer; equipped with 4 wheel brakes, spare tire, snubbers, spotlight, etc. Special for $595.

FLINT BROUGHAM. There's a lot of car for the money here; has handsome original finish, beautiful upholstery, and good balloon tires, equipped with 4 wheel brakes, bumpers, spare tire, heater, trunk, etc. Price is exceptionally attractive—$445.

ESSEX SEDAN. Please compare this car at our price of $495 with any other car in Chicago at a similar figure. Equipped with shutter front, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Every feature suggests a brand new Essex.

STUDEBAKER DICTATOR. A remarkable buy; it's a recent model 5 pass. Sedan that was owned by an East Park physician who gave it very careful attention. Result is this Dictator looks and runs like new. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, snubbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Only $845.

BUICK COUPE. Recent model 4 pass. Master Six that was owned by a well known lawyer. He drove it only a short time. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, spare tire, bumpers, etc. An exceptional bargain at $845.

AUBURN SEDAN. Will give new car satisfaction; the finish, upholstery, and general body work are all in the original new condition. The motor is excellent. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, shock absorbers, trunk, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Today, $795.

CHANDLER SEDAN. It was owned in conjunction with 2 other cars, so this Chandler, received little mileage. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, spotlight, trunk, etc. $495.

CHRYSLER COACH. Easily worth $200 more than our sales price. It's very clean and mechanically is A1. Has spare tire, bumpers, etc. Will not remain long at $425.

CADILLAC COUPE. 5 pass., that's an unusually clean throughout; equipped with shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. One of our best buys, $495.

ERSKINE COACH, 1928, driven just enough to be broken in; equipped with 4 wheel brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tires, etc. Finish is beautiful cobalt blue and every feature appears in the original new condition. Today, $785. Sold for almost $300 more 6 weeks ago.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT. A very late 7 pass. Big 6 Sedan. The former owner sold us the only drove it evenings and Sundays for pleasure purposes and the present splendid condition of the car substantiates this statement. The finish is bright and shiny, the upholstery is beautiful, and the tires have little mileage. The motor is in wonderful condition and it's guaranteed. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. A remarkable buy at $1,245.

LINCOLN Ownership

A Luxury but Not an Extravagance

Ask any Lincoln owner and he will tell you that his satisfaction in this splendid automobile exceeds anything in his previous experience. Indeed, Lincoln has established new conceptions of motor car luxury.

Paradoxical as it may seem, it is true that persons now owning cars of far less substantial quality can, without extravagance, enjoy Lincoln's supreme service. The reconditioned Lincolns displayed by your AUTHORIZED DEALER afford you this opportunity.

These cars are, for all practical purposes, as good as new. Since there are no yearly models, no Lincoln is "dated." Moreover, every one taken in by an AUTHORIZED DEALER is gone over with scrupulous care before it is again placed on sale. Exterior appearance is well-nigh perfect. Mechanical condition, likewise, is above criticism, having undergone rigid inspection by specially trained Lincoln mechanics—a service available through AUTHORIZED DEALERS only.

Your pride and satisfaction as the owner of a reconditioned Lincoln will be something that cannot be measured in money, yet these cars may be purchased for as little as $1,500. See the dealer near you today. He will explain the guarantee that goes with each reconditioned Lincoln and show you how easy it is to become the owner of one of these admirable motor cars.

CADILLAC

New Low Prices on Reconditioned Cadillacs and La Salles

With the announcement and showing of the new Cadillacs—the new La Salles—the new Fleetwoods, we have chosen this opportune time to make substantial price reductions on our complete stock of reconditioned Cadillac 314 series, and La Salles.

You will find in this showing motor cars of real value, rare beauty in design and appearance, and surely the car you prefer.

All cars listed below have been thoroughly reconditioned, tested, and checked, and are worthy of your immediate inspection.

At these new low prices there can be no greater value. Each car carries a standard warranty.

Calumet 6063. Calumet 6065.

PEERLESS 1928 6-80 4 DR. SEDAN. A very beautiful car. Interior includes finest arrangement and appointments imaginable. Driven only short distance. Has tires like new, trunk on rear, and fully equipped. Some family can enjoy this smart appearing car at a big saving. $1,075.

PAIGE 1927 6-65 ROADSTER. Hadn't turned a wheel in months when traded in. Has rumble seat, is covered and wired for wheel brakes, and all equipment. Appearance and mechanical condition 100%. A rare buy at $675.

HUDSON 1927 BROUGHAM 4 DR. Has 6 excellent tires, the spares with covers complete, trunk, 4 wheel brakes, and a beautiful car from every angle. Has leather back, elegant interior, and 100% mechanically. Without doubt the finest Hudson brougham buy in this city today. $925.

PAIGE 7 PASS. "CHECKER" SEDAN. This car was specially prepared for Checker cab service, but not used. It is entirely refinished, reconditioned, has balloon tires, 4 wheel brakes, trunk, and equipped with everything except the meter. A "approved job" is a splendid buy and should pay for itself within a very short time. Special proposition to "Checker" men.

WILLYS-KNIGHT 70 SEDAN. This is their famous "Six," with finish, mechanical condition, and all details year above the average used car. Driver can't tell it. Expect to find something snappy. $550.

FRANKLIN 4 DR. SEDAN LATE MODEL. This is the car with the aluminum air duct and pressure air cooling system. A great deal of money has been spent on it mechanically besides just having had a beautiful paint job by us. Has stabilators, demountable rims, etc. $400.

PONTIAC ROADSTER, 1927, with rumble seat and spare tire mounted left side. Like new in appearance, also little or no signs of wear. All equipment on it. Flashy and peppy, and guaranteed. $575.

CHRYSLER 70 LANDAU SEDAN. Finish is exactly like new. Mechanically it will recommend itself to the buyer who must have an A1 job. Had low mileage. Fully equipped. $875.
